FOUR CHARGES OF THEFT LAID AGAINST JUDD

Money Said to be Pledged as Bail for Prisoners Released to Appear for Trial.

$5,700 INVOLVED.

Guard Placed in Hospital Room Where Prisoner Has Been Since Accident.

LONDON, Ont., October 1 (C.P.). — Crown Attorney Albert Judd was placed under arrest at St. Joseph's Hospital to-day on four charges of theft involving $5,700, said to have been pledged as bail for prisoners released to appear for trial.

Mr. Judd was in hospital for several weeks recovering from injuries suffered in an automobile accident August 3. A guard was placed on his room.

Warrants Issued.

Warrants were issued shortly before noon to-day and were executed at 2 o'clock by Inspector E. C. Gurnett of the criminal investigation department of the Ontario Provincial Police. The warrants were sworn out by Joseph Sedgwick of the Attorney-General's department.

Mr. Judd is alleged to have committed theft in connection with a $1,000 Dominion of Canada bond, put up as bail over the prosecution of Joseph McGuire and Edward Housegow who recently appeared in court on charges of arson.

He is also charged with theft of $2,500 bail in connection with the prosecution of Frank Moore of Belmont, who was charged with criminal negligence in connection with an automobile accident. The bail money was put up by William C. Moore, father of Frank, also of Belmont.

The charge involves $1,000 bail for Albert Carroll of Lucan, who was charged with criminal negli-

To Peterborough Folks:

"A Message of Appreciation"

In very simple language, may we say

"Thank You Very Much"

for your most cordial reception of our new store and for your patience with the discomforts of shopping in a crowded store.

Possibly during the rush you did not get exactly what you wanted, so may we remind you that any purchase made in our store which does not satisfy you in every respect, will be gladly exchanged or the purchase price refunded, according to your preference.

Our warmest thanks are extended to the splendid group of salesladies who worked untiringly in new surroundings and with new merchandise. Their willingness to give smiling, friendly service is, indeed, a tribute to Peterborough.

You have given us a very nice send-off, and we feel a real obligation to so conduct our business as to merit your further patronage.

THE BIRTHDAY OF "PROBS"

On this date in 1876, the first weather probabilities were issued from the Toronto Observatory. But it must not be imagined that the Observatory is that young. As early as September, 1840, the British government established an astronomical and meteorological observatory at Toronto, under the direction of Lieut. Riddell, R.A., who, however, only remained a short while. General Sir Henry Lefroy, who had established a similar observatory at St. Helens, was transferred to Toronto and remained in charge until the spring of 1853 when the observatory was transferred to the Province of Canada. Professor Cherriman of University College, was placed in charge; he child the post for two years, then in 1855 Prof. G. T. Kingston, M.A., was appointed director. It was not until 1873 that enough money was voted to enable any real work to be done. A few reports were exchanged between Toronto and Washington and a daily weather chart made. By 1876 15 Canadian stations were sending in reports and it was felt that prognostication could begin. Now there are over 250 stations all over the northern hemisphere reporting by wire to Toronto. The weather chart is completed about 9 o'clock each morning and evening. The isobars are then drawn and the forecasts issued shortly after 9:30, standard time, and telegraphed all over the Dominion. These forecasts cover all Canada save British Columbia which has its own station at Victoria. The record of accuracy is high, on an average about 80 per cent. In addition to weather forecasting the observatory sends out time signals and furnishes special weather bulletins to mariners on the great lakes and in Canadian ocean waters.

On Saturday morning, crowds and crowds of children, small, tall, chubby, slender, all types, thronged into the Y.W.C.A. gym. Three hundred children were counted and did they have a good time! Massed stunts and exercises followed by games and races were the order of the day. The tug-of-war was keenly contested between the public school groups, which caused great excitement, and the Zoo game, when all the children pretended to be changed by Peter Pan into different animals. Two exhibitions were given by the stunt and life-saving classes in the swimming pool before the delighted children. Tiny Ruth Bell and Ann Boyle dived from the board and swam the length of the pool, little David Bell dived and swam, crawl-stroke, two lengths of the pool. The girls taking part in the exhibition were Marjorie Boyle, Jean Bell, Ethel Barnes, Betty Bell, Jane Turner, Mabel Barnes, Isabel Young, Evelyn Hill, Shirley Zacks, Vivian Carter, Ruth Dalliday, Beryl Carter, Iris Forbes, Jeannette Abel, Alberta Ellis, Madeline Gilbert. Refreshments were served in the domestic science room with Miss L. Brownscombe, Miss Sherin and Miss M. Elliott in charge, and oodles of hot cocoa, cookies and sandwiches were enjoyed by kiddies. Miss O. Littlefield announced that the full schedule of classes would start Monday and urged every girl, big and small, to take part in the health program. Tap and aesthetic dancing, gymnastics, basketball, in fact any activity in the Y gym. Dozens of eggs were given to the successful competitors on their way home.

DINGLE—VINING

Flame colored dahlias in tall standards and the bridesmaids in gowns of the same color formed the setting for the marriage Saturday afternoon in Knox College chapel, Toronto, of Margaret McLaren Vining, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Andrew Joseph Vining, to Lloyd Denham Dingle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard William Dingle of Burlington. The bride was lovely in her robe of deep cream velvet fashioned in mediaeval style with long flowing sleeves falling in points to the knees. Both sleeves and high cowl neckline were lined with cream chiffon. The gown fastened at the back with tiny velvet buttons, extended into a long train edged with a fold of chiffon. Her veil of exquisite Carrickmacross lace fell from the nape of the neck, leaving the hair exposed save for a bandeau of pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of yellow roses, lily-of-the-valley and bouvardia, and wore the gift of the groom, a pearl and diamond pin. The bride was attended by two bridesmaids, Mrs. Joseph S. Atkinson and Miss Kathleen Seaborn attired alike in flame velvet. Their gowns, with bracelet length sleeves and twisted neckline, fell into tiny trains, edged with pleating. They wore dark brown velvet tricorne hats. Their bouquets were flame colored dahlias tied with brown ribbon. Miss Barbara Vining Scott of Peterborough, niece of the bride, was junior bridesmaid, in a frock of flame colored net edged with pleating, a Dutch hat of flame velvet, and she carried a small bouquet of matching dahlias.

Dr. Russel Dingle was his brother's groomsman, and the ushers were Dr. A. Boyd McLay of Hamilton and Mr. Fred W. Kemp. The ceremony was conducted by the bride's father, assisted by Dr. Ernest W. Parsons of Rochester, uncle of the groom. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles Vining of Montreal. Mr. Harold Williams played the wedding music, and during the signing of the register Miss Phylis Saunders sang. A reception was held at the University Women's Club. Mrs. Vining, mother of the groom, welcomed the guests in a becoming gown of brown velvet and lace, with a draped turban to match, trimmed with ostrich tip, and shoulder bouquet of yellow orchids. Mrs. Dingle had chosen a gown of black velvet, a matching hat and shoulder bouquet of mauve orchids. Later the couple left on a motor trip, the bride donning a coat of brown French tweed collared in matching fox over a moss green crepe dress with a cravat of brown velvet. Her hat was of green and brown felt. She wore a corsage of yellow roses and pansies. On their return they will reside in Burlington.

Birth-Rate Lowest Since July, 1933

Thirty-six births were recorded at the City Hall during the month just ended, showing a decline over August of 26 births and being the lowest since July, 1933, when the population showed a natural increase of 35 births.

In September there were 25 deaths and 26 marriages, as compared with 33 deaths and 31 marriages in the previous month, and 26 deaths and 22 marriages in the corresponding month last year.

AUSTRALIAN FLIER IN RACE AGAINST TIME TO ENGLAND

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 1 (CP Cable, via Reuters).—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, one of the entrants in the London to Melbourne air race next month, is fighting against time to reach England by Oct. 14, the latest date on which competitors may report for the start.

Having flown 1,000 miles to Cloncurry yesterday the noted aviator was mystified to find the engine cowling splite in several places, forcing him to bring his plane back to Sydney for repairs. He hopes to make a fresh start tomorrow or Wednesday, allowing him 12 or 13 days to accomplish the flight from Australia to England. This is well over the record of 8 days, 9 hours, and also well over Sir Charles' previous flights in the opposite direction, to Australia.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR GENERAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

WOULD DOUBLING EAST HAVE PAID BETTER?

Neither side was vulnerable. North and South bid and made 4-no trumps in preference to doubling East's final bid of 4-hearts. North could have made 5-odd by double-dummy tactics. One player thought that the 4-hearts should have been doubled. Another player was equally certain that East should have bid 5-hearts.

An average rubber among the group runs 900 points. It will be instructive to figure out the advantages or disadvantages of doubling 4-hearts and 5-hearts, instead of continuing bidding no trumps.

The pair winning the first game of the rubber average to win 3 in 4 rubbers. Counting occasional honors and slams a love rubber runs something like 950 points. A three-game rubber runs about 750 points, giving a total of 3,600 points for a series of four rubbers, or 900 points per average rubber.

A game is one-half a rubber. Therefore in the long run the average value of a game is 450 points, in each circle where the average value of a rubber is 900 points. At any stage of the rubber winning a game averages to be worth that 450 points. If you accept 450 points penalty, instead of a certain game, you average to break even.

Against a 4-heart contract, North and South should win three spade tricks. K and ace will win two tricks. North's lead of the J must be passed by East or South will ruff the Q. Then the defenders must win one trick in each other suit. A double of 4-hearts should yield 450 points penalty, or just about the probable value of a game at no trumps. It was right not to double 4-hearts.

East should not overcall 4-no trumps with 5-hearts. Going down four tricks doubled should yield the defenders 700 points penalty, which is 250 points more than winning game at no trumps probably will be worth.

In case East should bid 5-hearts, it is true that double-dummy play will yield 5-odd at no trumps, but that is too much to expect to win. Moreover, the penalty for doubling will exceed the value of the game at no trumps.

When a rubber begins each side has two in four chances to win 900 points on an average. Each may estimate his equity as worth 450 points. The side winning the first game has three in four chances to win the rubber. The winners of that first game add 225 points to their original equity. The losers have an equity of only 225 points. The winners have an equity of 675 points. That first game has caused a shift of 450 points in equity. If the same pair wins the second game the losers yield their last 225 points equity. The winners cash their equity for 900 points.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Ignorance and delay are prime causes of the continued incidence of cancer—at least cancer on the surface of the body, which constituted three-quarters of the cases.

It is often urged that the publication of articles on cancer will create fear and make people think they have the disease. While that may be true in some instances, a true knowledge of the nature of disease will do much toward prevention.

Doctors and nurses have such knowledge and yet do not develop any hysteria about it.

A particular instance may serve better than any amount of argument to make my meaning clear. A physician of my acquaintance, 51 years old, noticed a scruffy place on the skin of the back of his hand. He is of a sandy complexion, with a thin, dry skin, particularly subject to these keratotic, scruffy spots, and to flat warts. This spot on the doctor's hand would become covered up with a number of skin scales, and then by too vigorous removal by a nail brush, or accidentally striking it against a table, or, more common than either, picking it, it would bleed a little. Then a scab would form, fall off in time, leaving the same scruffy appearance.

The doctor knew from his training in the microscope what was going on underneath those scales; that such spots are due to the piling up of superficial skin cells, and, while entirely local for a long time, a great many of them turn into cancer. He also realized that he was in the suspicious age zone for cancer. But he also knew, and this prevented him from worry, that the X-ray or radium would kill off the proliferating skin cells and prevent the development of such a contingency.

So he went to a fellow practitioner skilled in the use of the X-ray. This man agreed with his diagnosis and submitted the spot to exposure for a short time. There was no pain whatever associated with the treatment. Nor, at first, did there seem to be any change in the skin at the irritated spot. In about two months the doctor noticed the skin on that spot had become smooth again. This summer, during his vacation, his hands got tanned, but there was a little white spot of scar tissue where he was X-rayed.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There is a decided difference between French and American Salads, the words French being used as inclusive of Continental, since the Italian and other European salads are of the same sort. This difference consists not alone in the ingredients but in the way the salads are served. In the French salads the type is kept true for a salad is authentically "a dish of green herbs or vegetables, usually uncooked and served with a dressing, something mixed with chopped cold cooked meats."

* * * * * * *

The American salad has gone far astray from this definition. It now consists of a combination of any ingredients cooked, uncooked, garnished with a green vegetable or herb, and dressed with any kind of salad dressing, in which oil or butter (melted) supplies the richness or sometimes sour cream with vinegar, lemon juice, or the whey of sour cream is used as the acid and sometimes egg. Chili sauce, chopped pickles, capers, etc., are included. It is easy to see that variety is the essential for the American salad. It is not important in French salads, which feature a marinated green or salad vegetable intermingled with tomato, beet root or some simple vegetable (the tomato being included) and sometimes cold meat, or shell fish.

* * * * * * *

The typical French salad is tossed until the lettuce or green is bruised to extract its essence, and the other ingredients are thoroughly marinated. The salad is prepared in a bowl and served. The lettuce or other greens after washing, should be thoroughly dried by swinging in the air in a wire basket, or between two linen towels. This leaves the surfaces ready for the dressing to adhere. There is a peculiarly delicious flavor and delicate quality to these salads which are highly esteemed by epicures.

* * * * * *

American salads are distinct entities. Although this does not imply that French salads are not frequently found on American tables. There is a desire to have the dish dressy in appearance, so the various ingredients are apt to be daintily set forth on a platter. The salad dressing when heavy, such as mayonnaise, may give one of the color notes, or it may be served separately and be passed with the servings. Even the French or other light dressings are apt to be served separately, although this is not always so. But the greens are not so perky after being dressed, so the tendency is to put it on servings, so that the platter salad looks its best. It will be noted that it is the appearance of the salad which is of prime importance, now, with novel combinations of ingredients featured in the flavors.

Be Beautiful

The charming Sylvia Sidney, who, according to physiognomists, has the most perfect face in Hollywood, considers rose of geranium oil simply perfect for giving the hair luster. Sylvia, you know, has very thick, glossy hair. And she always uses this oil after shampoos, in order to keep her crowning glory in a healthy, lustrous state.

Practically all of the sirens who flaunt their charms on the silver screen, of course, have lovely, glossy tresses. And that's due, in part, to the fact that they always give their locks the best of care. That so admirable gloss is, in a good measure, merely the reflection of perfect hair and scalp health. But in addition, most screen stars employ proper shampooing methods, in order to enhance the natural luster of their locks.

The girl who desires to follow this same procedure will find it very simple. Before shampooing her hair, she should brush it briskly with a flexible-bristled brush, to remove all dirt and dust particles. Next, she should give her hair a hot oil treatment, as outlined in my "Beauty Culture" booklet, and should permit the oil to remain on her scalp as long as possible.

After the hot oil treatment, she should shampoo her hair thoroughly with a bland liquid soap, and continue lathering until she has removed every bit of the oil. Then she should rinse her hair free of all soapy lather, and as the last rinse, she should use a solution of eight drops of rose oil-geranium oil and a pint of clear water.

This procedure is especially beneficial for individuals who possess dry, brittle hair. And there are a good many women who do possess such hair at this time of the year. For during the summer season the hair is usually robbed of a good part of the natural oil so essential to its health. And to bring out the full loveliness of the tresses, this deficiency must be made up by external applications. If, then, your hair has become dry, harsh and brittle through exposure, begin at once to recondition it, so that no lasting injury is done to the health and loveliness of your locks.

Today's Recipes

Scrambled Eggs With Tomatoes.—Three tablespoons butter, one tablespoon minced onion, one tablespoon chopped green pepper, one cup tomatoes, fresh or canned; four eggs, three-fourths teaspoon salt, dash butter. Melt butter, saute onion and green pepper in it for three minutes. Add tomatoes and let simmer five minutes. Stir in eggs, beaten slightly. Continue to stir until mixture is well blended, light and creamy. Serve piping hot.

Peach Cake.—Cut a sponge cake in half. Cover the bottom layer with sliced peaches and sprinkle with sugar. Put on other layer. Frost with sweetened whipped cream and garnish with sliced peaches.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Cheese Dressing

One teaspoon salt, one teaspoon mustard, one-half teaspoon paprika one teaspoon sugar, one-half cup salad oil, one teaspoon onion juice, two ounces Roquefort cheese, three tablespoons vinegar. Mix dry ingredients and add to salad oil. Add cheese, onion juice and vinegar and stir or shake in a sealed bottle or jar until the mixture begins to thicken. A small piece of ice added before stirring makes it thicken at once.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD

The first meeting of the season of the King Edward Home and School Association was held in the kindergarten room with the president, Mrs. Gillespie, in the chair. Mrs. Mackness gave a report of the Home and School Council.

Arrangements were made to present the graduating class with certificates on Monday evening, October 19.

The September meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association was held in the school hall on Friday evening. The occasion was a significant one for the graduating entrance class and their parents and friends.

The president, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, presided. Jack Gibson sang two delightful numbers accompanied by Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. C. M. Scott was appointed as representative to the Local Council of Women. The banner was awarrded to Miss Madill's class.

Mrs. Wand, president of the Home and School Council gave an interesting talk on the work of the Council and presented the school with a beautiful hand-knit afghan. Miss Cairns and Miss Thomas accepted this on behalf of the teachers.

Mr. Steer took the chair and after a few introductory remarks introduced Inspector R. F. Downey, who addressed the graduating class. During his interesting and helpful talk, Mr. Downey emphasized with many amusing anecdotes the necessity of each boy and girl making a decision for the future and working toward its accomplishment. "Don't be nothing", he said and urged them to strive for the top and to avoid the bad habits which were a hindrance to the achievement of great things. He also spoke of the part the teachers of the school had in their success and how their interest and that of the community would follow them throughout the years.

Mr. Steer also gave the pupils some good advice after which he presented each with their certificate and a warm handshake.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem after which cake and ice cream was served to all in the kindergarten by the social committee.

Truck Strikes Car Rear-End Collision

Proceeding east on Highway No. 7 shortly after seven o'clock this morning a motor truck driven by Lawrence McCarthy, 103 Reid street, and owned by Stocks Bread Ltd., was involved in collision with the rear of an automobile. The accident happened near Burnham's bush and resulted in the motor truck turning upside down in the ditch.

The truck driver escaped with a few scratches and shock, and while the automobile was slightly damaged the driver, Horace Reddick of Madoc, was unhurt. The car was stationary at the time of the impact, Reddick having just got out of the car to wipe off his windshield.

Provincial Constable David Silvester investigated.

Man Gets 2 Months For Assaulting Wife

Pleading guilty to a charge of assaulting and beating his wife and causing actual bodily harm, Harry H. Gilling, 542 Armour Road, was this morning sentenced to two months' imprisonment.

Evidence was given by Edith Gilling, wife of the accused, who related the circumstances connected with the assault that took place yesterday. She appeared in the witness box with one of her eyes blackened.

While she stated, to Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry K.C., that it was the first occasion on which her husband had struck her, she said that shortly after their marriage seven years ago, her husband threw a butcher knife at her.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1934

MEANS MUCH TO CANADA.

In view of the lower interest rate, the new Canadian refunding loan of $350,000,000 is regarded as a real test of the patriotism of the Canadian people.

The success of this issue is of great importance, and it is to be hoped that Canadians will respond in a spirit worthy of the traditions of this country and in accordance with the significance of the appeal that is now being made.

Premier Bennett in a statement to the people of this country has declared that the national importance of the 1934 loan as an essential part of the debt conversion program cannot be over-emphasized. It is, he says, important from three aspects, national credit, national economy and national recovery.

The completion of the loan will mean a reduction in the interest burden of Canada of over $5,000,000 per annum, in addition to the $9,000,000 per year already saved by previous refundings.

It is clear, therefore, that the success of this new loan is, as Mr. Bennett says, 'the personal concern of every man and woman in the Dominion, and that it is the duty of Canadians to support this effort to the limit of their abilities "as an opportunity to promote our national welfare," to again quote the Prime Minister.

THE TAXPAYER'S BURDEN.

Some informative data upon the taxpayers' interest burden has been furnished by the Citizens' Research Institute in a recent bulletin which reveals the startling fact that, while in 1922 it took about 5 per cent. of the national income of the Canadian people, contributed in the form of taxes, licenses, etc., to pay interest charges, etc., on governmental debts, it took nearly 10 per cent. for the same purpose in 1932.

Interest and general service charges on governmental debt in Canada—exclusive of debt incurred on account of public service enterprises in so far as such debt was borne out of revenue from such enterprises and exclusive of any amounts set aside by Governments for debt retirement—amounted in 1932, the Institute reports, to $290,122,297.

In 1922 the amount required for this purpose was $213,345,466.

There was, therefore, an increase of interest charges during the ten years of 36 per cent.

At the same time the national income of Canadians, which in 1922 amounted to $4,326,670,000, had dropped by 1932 to $2,941,056,000, a decrease of 32 per cent

It is a situation that indeed justifies the Citizens' Research Institute in asking the question, Are not these figures sufficient evidence that Canadians have brought through their Governments—Dominion, provincial and municipal, including schools—sufficient goods and services on the instalment plan for the time being, and their main effort for the next few years should be directed along the line of trying to give posterity a "break"?

FOR ANOTHER YEAR.

With the return to standard time yesterday of the Canadian and American cities that have been operating in accordance with the summer time plan since last spring, the North American Continent is back to normalcy once more.

It is unfortunate that there should be this confusion every year over the jugging of time-pieces.

If the United States and Canada would adopt a national system of daylight saving and put it into effect simultaneously on both sides of the border for the summer months, there is much ground for believing that in the main the plan would be a boon for the people of both countries.

Unfortunately, however, neither the Canadian or the American Government is anxious to run foul of that portion of the electorate, particularly in the rural sections, which is violently opposed to the summer time idea, and so we have the haphazard arrangement under which individual cities select their own period of daylight saving, and there is much unnecessary inconvenience and confusion, especially for the travelling public, the business and industrial world and that not-to-be-overlooked body, the radio fans.

Whether or not they favor daylight saving most people are undoubtedly glad that the thing is over for another summer, and that on both sides of the international line a uniform time system is once more in force

THE NEW FRANCO-CANADIAN TREATY.

It is not to be imagined that the protest of the Niagara grape-growers over the the lowering of duties on French wines, which is an important feature of the new commercial agreement between France and Canada, will obtain much support.

In the first place, there is little competition between the French wines and the domestic brands, and in the second, the new treaty contains so many advantages for Canadian producers that its signing by Premier Bennett will be generally approved.

Through this agreement Canada will now obtain the French minimum tariff on wheat, oats, barley, rye, whiskey, zinc, footwear and a number of timber and chemical products, and substantial quotas have been granted to other Canadian products covering a wide range. At the same time France has withdrawn special excise taxes and a depreciated currency surtax that have been a barrier to trade between the two countries.

In exchange Canada has made substantial tariff reductions on French wines and liquers, French cheese, cigarette papers, mushrooms and chestnuts.

The agreement, at first blush at least, looks like a sensible business-like arrangement between two countries, each anxious to trade on reasonable terms with the other, and if it works out as it promises to do, Mr. Bennett's "holiday" trip to Geneva will eventually be looked upon as a very timely and advantageous journey—undoubtedly of much more value to Canada than had the Premier remained at home to participate in the recent by-elections.

After all it is much more useful to go out and sign trade agreements than it is to merely talk about the need of greater markets from the political platform.

TWENTY YEARS AGO—AND NOW.

Lord Riddell tells in his War Diary how Britain came in 1915 to the question of conscription. Should there be industrial and military conscription, or only military?

The same question of state control over the individual is found to-day in Britain and in North America.

Twenty years ago the objective was military security.

To-day the objective is economic security.

In both cases the issue is the same, it is the issue of how far government can or must encroach on the freedom of the individual, and how far it can make common cause of questions that must be solved.

Lord Riddell's story of those days of the war is all the more dramatic because it traces so clearly the patterns of thought which are being woven into the structure of society to-day.

Against the sombre background of the war, to-day's developments prove to be neither new nor spasmodic. They are actually the outgrowth of social and economic thought that sprang up two decades ago.

Upon Sinclair's victory in California, supported by the State Democratic convention, to spend $100 millions on his "End Poverty in California" program—this has its precedent in the national and community programs of the war years.

President Roosevelt's New Deal takes to the federal government powers which were first assumed in the war.

Canada's Marketing Act, to control natural products, echoes the fuel board and wheat board and other boards of the war years.

The list could go on at length. To-day's events reach back into yesterday, and prove how the extraordinary, emergent acts of the past have their counterpart in the commonplace of to-day.—Vancouver Sun.

THE OFFICE-SEEKER'S LAMENT.

While certain Conservatives are charging the Hepburn Government with exerting extensive patronage in respect to Liberal office-seekers, there comes from the Liberal side of the fence a plaintive cry that the Government is doing nothing of the kind, and, further, that it is not moving with a noticeable degree of speed to appease the famished condition of the ubiquitous and insistent Grit aspirants to nice, fat, cushy jobs. The diametrically opposite corners from which these criticisms come indicate that Ontario's new Government has been pursuing a middle course in respect to dismissals and appointments.

Perhaps there have been some dismissals that may have seemed unfair and uncalled for, but the same could be said of every Government in the past. Political human nature being what it is, there is bound to be some patronage, even paternal patronage, and this will continue until at least the millennium, which, at the present time, does not seem to be just around the corner. To an independent observer it must be apparent that the replacements have not been nearly as numerous as the self-seeking followers of the Liberal party had expected, following the 30 years' wandering in the wilderness.

But after all, the Hepburn Government was not elected to provide jobs for its supporters, although no doubt many voted for the party candidates in the hope that their unselfish loyalty and devotion would bring its reward in the shape of appointments which carried good salaries and little work. No, the Government was elected to reduce the costs of administration, to the end that the taxation burden of the people might be lightened. Mr. Hepburn promised to reduce administration costs by fifty per cent., and it must be admitted by all that he has already gone a considerable distance in that direction. A large part of the reduction in costs made so far has been effected by dismissing highly-paid officials and assigning their work to other officials already on the payroll. Of course, it doesn't require a great deal of astuteness to realize that this reduction could not be effected if the places of all dismissed officials were to be filled by new appointments. To carry out one of the main planks in its platform, that of a reduction in the costs of administration, the Hepburn Government is, therefore, justified in turning a deaf ear to the wolfish cries of the office-seekers for Government pap.

The new provincial regime has already made several new appointments, which naturally have gone to Liberals, and no doubt there will be many more of these. But it cannot be fairly criticized if all dismissals are based on inefficiency or partisanship. These, and a fixed retiring age, should alone constitute just causes for dismissal It is unfair to dismiss a faithful and efficient civil servant, who has carefully eschewed politics, in order that some supporter of the Government might be given a job. Such practices savor too much of the guillotine.

Several of the dismissals made by the Hepburn Government are in consequence of a pre-election promise of the leader that all appointments made by the Henry Government in its last year of office would be cancelled. The Liberals held that the last or fifth year's tenure of office was illegal since the Conservatives had been elected for four, not five years. In these dismissals the Government is only carrying out its pre-election assurance, and after ample notice had been given, but there is a danger that this axe-swinging may result in reprisals when the Conservatives are returned to power, and this to the detriment of the civil service, which, to render its best service, should be reasonably sure of continued employment, no matter how many Governments may come and go, so long as it renders efficient and non-partisan service.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It looks as if Col. Drew will eventually be forced to withdraw.

The Attorney-General's Department is to take over the task of protecting the Ontario investor. Mr. Roebuck's staff will soon have to work double shifts.

Peterborough's senior ball club is now through for the season. However, they won their own league, made a good fight for Ontario honors, and gave the home fans a lot of baseball this summer, so that 1934 will be remembered as a successful year.

As the Ottawa Journal says, it is curious that while the American trade index has been falling steadily since June, Roosevelt's party is expected to sweep the congressional elections in November, and here in Canada where the business index has been steadily rising the Bennett Government could only win one out of five by-elections.

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

COURTNEY, B. C.

The townsite of Courtney was first laid out on the south side of the Courtney river by Joseph McPhee in 1891, the settlement taking its name from the river which flowed hard by. The river was named by a British geographical party, whose duty laid in the naming of streams as well as surveying the land. A Lieutenant Courtney was a member of the party and he was honored by having the town named for him. Courtney is the terminus of the Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway and was incorporated as a city in 1914. The chief industries are logging and agriculture.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

LITTLE MAN, HOW ABOUT IT?

Yes, young fellow, I know you're a bright little man . . . You're only a year old, but you know everything that's going on. You point to your foot and say "soo-o-o", You point to your eye and say "I"? You try to turn the door-knobs. You stand in front of the radio and make it go so loud that you frighten yourself and you make a noise that you think is singing . . . You do a lot of things that your father and mother understand denote intelligence in their little boy but which wouldn't mean a thing to anybody else . . . You patty-cake all over the place, you know the cat has pins in his feet, you understand what "no" means, and when your sisters sit on the floor and play jacks, you sit there, too, as quiet as a mouse and don't try to steal any of the jacks.

Yes, your father knows you are a bright little boy. Even though he's your father, he admits that, and does not see any reason for being falsely modest about it.

But what are you going to do with that brightness of yours? You'll grow up and learn that the Battle of Hastings was in 1066, Columbus discovered America in 1492, Voltaire was a French thinker, Shakespeare wrote plays, Eric the Red came here before Columbus sailed, Washington didn't cut down the cherry tree and Tom Paine was a great man, too. Edison invented the electric light, Marconi invented the wireless, a slide rule is a very useful device, Einstein, Hitler, Mussolini and Lenin once lived on this earth, and you must break eggs if you want to make an omelet . . . Such a lot of things you'll learn, small boy.

But what will you do with them?

What will you do with that brain o yours? Will you be merely bright, or will you be wise? Will you be a smarty, or will you be intelligent? Will you use your knowledge just to get things for yourself, or will you work for other people, too? Will your brains be a nuisance and a trouble, or a comfort and a good possession? Will you be good as well as clever? Will you use your brains or merely let your brains use you? . . . What are you going to be a moocher or a maker, a giver or a taker?

That, Young Fellow, is what your father wants to know—and your father wonders if anything he can do or say have the slightest influence on his small son.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 96c to 98c; oats 35c to 38c; barley, 57c to 60c; corn, 94c to 96c; rye, 57½ to 59c; buckwheat, 53c to 55c; malting barley, 68c to 70c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Finishing swiftly downward like exhausted fireworks, prices for September delivery of wheat fell 4¾c a bushel in the last few minutes of Saturday's dealings.

The tumble of values furnished a bit of excitement for the time being and had a sympathetic disturbing effect on quotations for December delivery of wheat. The collapse, however, appeared to be due almost altogether to belated selling out on the part of a few holders of September contracts who had incorrectly expected that speculators short of wheat to adjust accounts would be compelled to pay fancy prices in an end-of-the-month squeeze.

Wheat closed nervous, with something of a rally, ½c to 3¾c under Friday's finish; Dec. new, $1.02¾ to $1.03; corn, ⅝c to 1¼c down; Dec. new, 77¾c to 78c; oats, unchanged to 2c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Eggs and cheese were slightly higher in price, while butter was fractionally easier on the Montreal produce and dairy market last week.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less ended the week at 28 to 29 cents a dozen for 'A' large, against 28c straight the previous week; 26 to 27 cents for 'A' medium, as compared with 26 cents straight for the week before; 21 cents for 'B', and 19 to 19½ cents for 'C'. Recepts for the week totaled 7,650 cases, in comparison with 8,413 cases in the preceding week.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored was quoted at 10¾ to 10½ cents a pound, up ½ cent over a week ago, and Quebec colored sold at 9¾ to 9¾c a pound up ¾ cent over the price of the preceding week. Ontario white cheese ended the week at 10 cents a pound, and Quebec white brought 9½ cents a pound. Receipts for the week totalled 24,278 boxes, against 26,385 boxes during the previous week.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19½ cents a pound in carlots or less, as compared with 19¾ to 19¾ cents at the end of the preceding week. Small lots to the retail trade held steady in price, being quoted at 20½ cents a pound for solids, and 21½ cents for prints. Receipts for the week totalled 12,631 boxes, as compared with 15,110 boxes during the preceding week.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 1. — Bolstered by support from the Government agency, Winnipeg Grain Exchange wheat prices on Saturday offered stubborn resistance to easiness at Chicago and Liverpool, closing unchanged to ¼c lower.

Trading again was light in volume with hedging restricted by small country deliveries. October wheat ended at 81⅝c, December at 82¼c, and May at 87c.

Liverpool ended ½d to ⅝d lower, and Chicago was down one to three cents.

GOODYEAR SALES SHOW INCREASE

POSITION IMPROVED.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Volume of sales and profits of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. of Canada, Limited for the past nine months have materially exceeded those of the same period a year ago, and the company has earned more than sufficient in this period to cover dividend requirements for the current year at rates heretofore paid, states C. H. Carlisle, president, in a letter to shareholders accompanying dividend cheques for the third quarter of 1934. The company has not only maintained but improved its position in the industry.

Stressing the value to the company of the human factor, Mr. Carlisle says: "As shareholders, we are prone to value the worth of a company by its financial position and its earning capacity, but there is another factor, that is its personnel. You have a very efficient and progressive organization, the men in your factories are high-grade, efficient, co-operative—72 per cent. of all factory employees have had more than five years' continuous service. Of these, 258 have had ten years' service or more, 166 fifteen years' or more, 42 twenty years' and over and two about twenty-five years' service or for the entire time since the formation of your company."

Referring with regret to the recent death of C. B. McNaught, vice-president of the company, Mr. Carlisle says: "He joined your board in 1921, was a man of sound judgment, a thinker, a hard worker and never too busy to give his best to your company. He always had a smile and a kind word for others. Mr. McNaught was a factor in Canadian business, serving as director or in management of many of the largest industries and financial institutions of Canada. He gave liberally of his time and efforts to his government at the time of the war and afterwards, serving as a member of the War Trade Board and also as a member of the Canadian Trade Commission."

Prof. F. Clarke Goes To London University

MONTREAL, Oct. 1.—(CP)—Prof. F. Clarke, for the past five years professor of education at McGill University, has accepted an appointment to the staff of the institute of education in the University of London, it was confirmed here today. He will act as advisor to overseas students, and will leave for his new post towards the end of January.

His new position was largely created, he said, through the generosity of the Carnegie Foundation and Prof. Clarke will be its first occupant.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

WELCH, W. Va., Oct. 1.—(AP)—West Virginia's NRA law, placing the state's police powers behind the enforcement of codes, was held unconstitutional today by Circuit

WINNIPEG WHEAT

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1 (CP).—Investigation into wheat futures operations on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange was suggested today by John I. McFarland, general manager of the Central Selling Agency of the Canadian wheat pools. He would ascertain the source of heavy selling of futures in the Winnipeg market during recent weeks in the face of reduced marketing and delivering by farmers.

"Some will say this is none of my business," said Mr. McFarland, "I had some doubt about that myself, but having regard to the position I hold, I have become convinced it is my duty to place the matter before the proper authorities at Ottawa."

noon and movement on the division was fairly active. Prices were holding steady on all grades. Sheep held steady but calves eased off slightly. Lambs steadied after an unsettled opening, but no settlement was made on the hog division.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 4,030; calves, 2,320; hogs, 1,380; sheep and lambs, 3,410.

A few weighty steers ranged from $3.00 to $5.00 with one top at $5.50. Butcher cattle sold at $2.50 to $4.25, while good cows brought $2.25 to $2.50 with canners at $1.00. Good butcher bulls went from $2.25 to $2.75, while bolognas sold at $1.75 to $2.00. Fed calves sold steady and stocker cattle, readily, the former at $5.00 to $7.00 per cwt., the latter at $2.65 to $3.10 for best and at $2.00 for common.

Calves were slightly easier with general tops at $7.00. Bulk of the supply moved from $4.00 to $6.50. Eeastern grass calves sold at $2.50, but heavy westerns could not be sold.

Hogs remained unsettled with packers' bids at $6.50 f.o.b. for bacons, $6.85 off truck and $7.25 off car. Lambs, after an unsettled opening, firmed to $5.75 for good ewes and wethers and to $4.75 for other grades. Sheep held at $1.00 to $3.00 per cwt., according to quality.

NO INFORMATION ASKED.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 1 (CP).—"The Winnipeg Grain Exchange has not been asked for any information regarding wheat market operation," declared Roy W. Milner, President of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, today.

Asked to comment on the recommendation of John I. McFarland, general manager of the Central Selling Agency of the Canadian wheat pools, that an investigation be instituted into the selling of futures on the exchange, Mr. Milner said the exchange had received no requests from the government or Mr. McFarland. "And the Exchange has no statement to make."

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (AP).—The stock market suffered a rather drastic decline today. Losses of around 1 to 3 points were numerous although selling volume was comparatively small. Prices were around their lows in the late dealings. U. S. Smelting lost more than 3 while Case, Du Pont, U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas and Johns-Manville sagged 1 to more than 2. Transfers approximated 625,000 shares.

TORONTO MINING.

TORONTO, Oct. 1 (CP).—The week-end flurry in the silver stocks blew up in the second hour of today's mining market session and prices drifted slowly lower, to show an unbroken row of moderate losses at the close. The gold issues were quieter than usual and narrowly irregular in their price movements and changes in the base metal group were mainly on the down side.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS.

TORONTO, Oct. 1 (CP).—The Industrial section of the Toronto Exchange dragged along to a heavy close today, almost all groups closing on the down side. Recessions up to a full point were recorded in the distillery, food, construction, bank and miscellaneous groups. Outside of the oil shares as well as Nickel, Brazilian and Ford "A", the turnover was distinctly off.

RUMORED "CORNER" UNDER WAY TO CONTROL ARGENTINE EXPORTS

Officials Ridicule Reports Effort Made to Break Canadian Grain Prices.

"A SCARE STORY."

(By Albert Wilson)

LONDON, Oct. 1 (AP).—Leaders of the London Grain Trade and members of the International Wheat Advisory Commission today ridiculed reports published here that "the biggest wheat corner in the world's history" was being prepared to control Argentine exports in an effort to break Canadian prices.

Most scornful of all was Miller Roland, manager of Louis Dreyfus and Company, of London, which was accused of engineering the "corner" together with Bunge and Company, of Antwerp, and the Mullers of Hamburg.

"It is a ridiculous scare story which is utterly impossible both financially and technically," Roland said.

Under Government Control

"In the first place all Argentine wheat exports are in sole possession and under the sole control of the Argentine Government.

"Secondly, there is no group in the world strong enough to take such a risk. Forty or fifty years ago a man named Leiter tried to corner the United States wheat market. Even in those days, when the proposition was only a decimal point of what it would be today, the scheme broke Leiter.

"In the third place, Muller's Company no longer exists, and any tie-up between us and Bunge is impossible. We are all in a dog fight in the grain trade nowadays, and that goes for Bunge and ourselves."

Published reports that the grain deal was the "real reason for the trip of Premier Bennett of Canada to Europe," and that he "hurried in a panic to Paris", to negotiate with Dreyfus representatives, were denied by Roland and by persons close to Mr. Bennett, who is now in London.

"We have often consulted Mr. Bennett concerning purely technical matters involving the grain trade, but that is all," said Roland.

Ridicule Reports

Official delegates to the Wheat Commission ridiculed the assertion that "this struggle was the real reason for the break-down of the wheat conference in London."

They pointed out that Canada and Argentina are the only important factors in the world market this year and were optimistic that both would obtain satisfactory quotas when the conference is resumed at Budapest November 20.

It was pointed out that lower prices for Argentine wheat in comparison with Canadian wheat were to be expected, because of the inferior quality of the former.

BATTLE WRECKAGE IS NOW GONE FROM ONCE SHELL-TORN VIMY

But 11,000 Canadians Must be Carved on Monument to Graveless Dead.

NO GHOSTS THERE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

"When the sun goes down on Vimy
And the nightwinds softly croon.
"There are many ghostly shadows
In the gleaming of the moon.
"In blue and gray and khaki
They gather on the hill.
"And there know one another
As mortals never will.

LENS, Oct. 1.—Vimy Ridge is being turned into a museum. Fresh sandbags in neat, orderly piles have been stacked up in those trenches below the ridge, which served as a jumping-off place for the murderous attack in that driving storm of sleet on Easter Monday, 1917. The dug-outs have been cleaned, disinfected and squared off. I sat in one of them this afternoon smoking my pipe and fell sound asleep. When I got up, I didn't even need to wipe my clothes. That sticky, gluey, chalk-mud with which the neighborhood was covered in days gone by has been completely removed. All we need now, I thought, as I sat contemplating the spot which has been called "forever Canada", is a set of leather cushions, a cocktail bar and a battery of electric fans to receive the delegations that are going to visit here in years to come.

Have Cleaned Trenches

"Everything has been left just exactly as it was in 1917, when the Canadians pushed ahead," you are informed. "Even the heroic atmosphere has been preserved," a gentleman wrote some time ago. Of course, those feet sticking out of the walls in some of the dugouts have been covered up. And nice new duck-walk boards now run through the trenches, so that visitors don't go stumbling over skulls and other things of that sort which have an eerie way of working themselves up to the surface after a winter's frost. But for the rest, Vimy has been left as it was. It is a nice place. I can easily imagine a stream of limousines coming up here from Paris and some statesman or other making a speech about the great adventure, heroism, the spirit of comradeship, and self-sacrifice. Vimy is going to be an ideal place for demonstrations of that kind. It has only one disadvantage; it is five thousand miles away from Ottawa.

The old tunnels below the hill in which the troops were massed for days before the attack, look as spick and span as the main street of a Dutch village. The latter-day moppers-up, I mused, should at least have left a few rusty Maconachie tins lying around, a belt or so, a Balaclava, a couple of broken bayonets. Such items heighten the heroic atmosphere. If the artillery had no brains, as was wickedly alleged more than once—and not without reason—the salvage corps on the other hand turns out to have been terribly efficient.

Barbed-Wire Problem

You must give the devil his due—those boys have done yeoman work. One sombre thought used to haunt the brains of the more thoughtful of the Canadian troops when they looked forward to the end of the war and the homeward journey. That thought poisoned their existence and drove some of them wild with worry. It was this: Who was going to roll up the barbed wire? Immense problem. The Portuguese, or whatever remained of them after Noeux-les- Mines, where the Australians mistook them for Fritzes one dark night—inexplicable error—had intimated, by gestures eloquent and expressive, that they would have nothing to do with the vast undertaking. Of our other noble allies, the Chinese just grinned and pretended not to understand. To the Scottish highlanders broaching the subject of barbed-wire was like putting a chip on your shoulder—barbed-wire had a way of attracting kilts permanently. And then the language of those "brithern"! Not exactly up to the highest Y.M.C.A. standards, to say the least! Who would roll up the wire? A suspicion grew alarmingly toward the end that we would be the goat. One corporal of my acquaintance who had a taste for strange mathematical calculations, which he based on the inside dimensions of the Great Pyramid in Egypt, had it all doped out that if the whole C.E.F. were set to work rolling up the wire, it would take us exactly till December 26, 1958.

'Forty years have I grieved with this generation!' His job in the army—he was connected with the sanitary service—had made a pessimist of the man, as well it might. "We'll get through the day after Christmas in 1958," he used to say with finality.

Well, it has all been rolled up neatly today. I saw piles of it lying along the road near Lens. All it needs is a little sandpapering, and it will be as good as new for use in the next last one!

No Ghosts There

The top of the ridge is being turned into a lawn and the famous "Pimple," with its view of Lens, will soon be as fitting a place to hold a picnic as Queenston Heights on the Niagara. I can see a delegation of cake-eaters come up here some day and pronounce the place idyllic. As to staying after dark, they don't need to worry about encountering embarrassing shades. That's only a poet's fancy. The boys in gray and blue and khaki don't commune. Still, I wished the poet were right. If indeed they could come back and tell us of their last moments in the "great adventure" and show us their wounds. It wouldn't be a pleasant sight—that corps reunion also. 70,000 men strong, but better an unpleasant sight than a new "great adventure" and more "glory".

But The Voice of The Child

I wandered around on the ridge till the lights of Lens began to dance in the distance. It began to rain, which is nothing unusual here; the wind moaned in the poplar trees, but I heard no ghosts whisper. What I heard was the blood of Abel crying to heaven, the soft voices of generations and generations of little Canadian children and German children and French children protesting to God that they could not come and play in the sunlight because they who were to have been their fathers lie dead here.

They are turning Vimy into a museum. Artists and workmen are busy erecting a gigantic monument to the ridge. It is taking them an inordinate length of time to finish that impressive of sculpture. Do you know why? They have to carve into the foot of the monument the names of eleven thousand Canadians who have no known grave. Eleven thousand names!

FRIENDS HONOR MADOC COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. R. Bristol Spend Delightful Evening at Home of Mr. and Mrs. P. Ashley.

GIFTS RESENTED.

MADOC, Oct. 1. (By Examiner Correspondent).—Mr. and Mrs. R. Bristol were honored guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Ashley where about thirty-five friends and neighbours gathered to spend the evening and help celebrate their twenty-fifth anniversary.

Cards were played during the first part of the evening after which the guests were invited into the dining room which was prettily decorated in pink and white with white bells and streamers and pink and white candles and pink roses on the table.

After a dainty luncheon Mr. Walter Whytock as toastmaster, called on Mr. J. Rutherford to propose the toast to the bride. Mr. Bristol responding. Mrs. Blanche Alexander sang "Until". Mrs. (Dr.) Nickle then in her pleasing manner read a humorous address to Mr and Mrs. Bristol and Mrs. A. Corrigal made the presentation of a silver sugar and cream set and a silver tray. Mrs. Bristol was also presented with a beautiful basket of snapdragon and roses tied with silver tissue ribbon.

Mrs. B. Alexander, Mrs. A. Kincaid and Mrs. F. Maines, St. Catharines, (formerly the O'Hara sisters) contributed a trio. Mrs. V. Jack gave a humorous reading. The balance of the evening was spent in sing-song and impromptu speeches by Messrs. G. White, R. Wellman, Dr. Nickle, R. Burnside, J. Irwin, A. Corrigal and W. Whytock.

After a vote of thanks to host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Ashley, all joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne".

JUDGMENT GIVEN IN THE JONES CASE

Justice Henderson Hands Down Judgment in Case Tried at Assizes.

Judgment in the lawsuit of Josiah Jones against the executors of the estate of the late Robert Jones, Eliza Jones and Arthur A. Jubb, all of Bethany, has been announced at Osgoode Hall by Mr. Justice Henderson. The case was tried here September 13 and 14.

"The defendant by counterclaim may elect within thirty days to pay such amount as is found necessary to redeem the lands and premises in the pleadings mentioned from the mortgage to the original plaintiff and to record a discharge of the said mortgage, and to pay the plaintiff by counterclaim his costs of third-party proceeding, in which event this proceeding will be terminated.

"If the defendant by counterclaim shall not so elect, then the plaintiff by counter-claim may elect to have judgment against the defendant by counter-claim for $1,000 and the costs of the third-party proceeding, together with an amount equal to such costs of the plaintiff in the original action as he shall be called upon to pay, or, in the alternative, to have judgment for an amount equal to the amount necessary to redeem the lands and premises in the pleadings mentioned, plus his costs of this third-party proceeding. The plaintiff by counterclaim shall make his election within thirty days after the defendant by counterclaim shall have made his election or after the period allowed therefore, whichever shall first happen".

W. F. Huycke acted for the plaintiff by counterclaim and A. M. Fulton for the defendant by counterclaim.

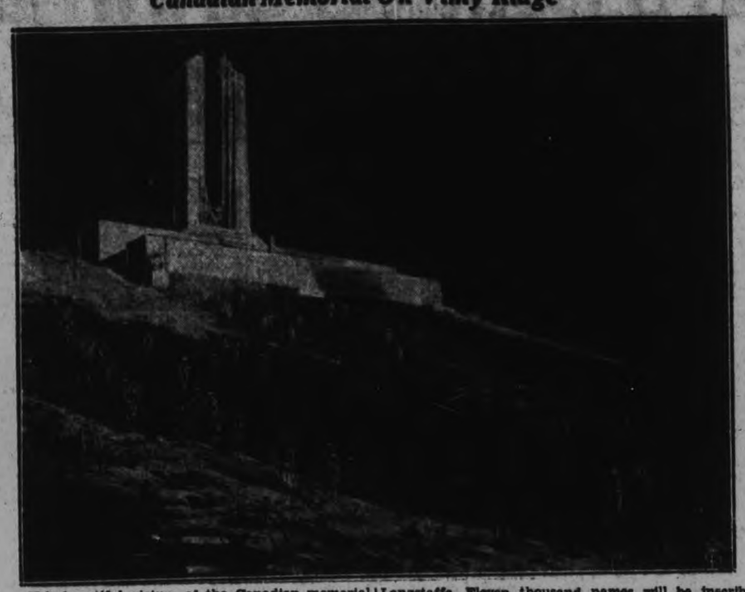
Canadian Memorial On Vimy Ridge



This beautiful picture of the Canadian memorial on Vimy Ridge and the artist's conception of the shadowy figures that pass and repass over that sacred ground is reproduced from "Vimy Ridge," by William Langstaffe. Eleven thousand names will be inscribed on the sculptured base of the memorial—names of Canadian soldiers, with no known grave, who died when the ridge was stormed.

Heavy Meal Spoils Butterfly Hunter's Carefully Laid Plan For Poison Death

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 29. — (A.P.).—John Leydeich Bauer chose death because he couldn't chase butterflies, but neither could he die.

The 21-year-old Millvale, Pa., youth said yesterday that he had taken a home-brewed poison because he could not finance an expedition to Brazil, where he had hoped to collect butterflies for a Pittsburgh museum.

Bauer's face was sheet-white and he smoked constantly, but he apparently enjoyed the sensation of being alive. His condition was much improved and physicians believed they would pull him through.

"I should die," he said, "unless all the books on toxicology are wrong."

But Bauer failed to reckon with a heavy meal he ate after taking the poison. The meal, doctors believed, counteracted the usually deadly effects of the potion.

GREAT BRITAIN OPENS DRIVE TO MAKE TELEPHONE POPULAR

Maximum Charge of 25 Cents for 3 Minute Calls Between Any 2 Points.

DURING EVENING.

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 1 (CP Cable).—To-day brought into force a whole string of new provisions affecting the daily life of millions of residents in the United Kingdom, chief among them drastic reductions in telephone charges. Britain has long been recognized as much less "phone-conscious" than most other countries.

Sir Kingsley Wood, Postmaster-General, who has control of the telephone service, is making a large-scale effort to popularize the telephone service. Most important is the institution of a maximum charge of 25 cents for a three-minute talk between any two points in the United Kingdom, during the evening and night hours. For this charge one may call from Land's End to John O'Groats.

The Lord Mayor of London initiated the new telephone service with a visit to His Majesty's cable ship Monarch, the first such vessel seen in the Thames. Two hundred mayors throughout the country participated in other ceremonies.

Part of Cuts Back

And for Labor, to-day marked the restoration of part of the wage cut given to half a million railwaymen during the economic crisis two years ago. To-day's restoration amounted to 1¼ per cent, out of a 5 per cent. cut. Another 1¼ per cent goes back in January.

To-day also the law was tightened to prevent freight-truck drivers from working excessive hours, a danger to highway safety here as in Canada.

To-day also, Walter Elliott, Minister of Agriculture, visited a big London School to drink a glass of mil, inaugurating provisions under which half a million scholars throughout the country will be supplied with a third of a pint daily. This not only assures the children of some refreshment, but helps the Milk Marketing Board in its task of disposing of the present huge surplus.

The children are charged a cent a glass, but those unable to pay get the milk free. The Government is willing to spend $5,000,000 on this.

CRASH INJURIES FATAL FORMER ONTARIO WOMAN

REGINA, Oct. 1 (CP)—Victim of a train-car crash of Sept. 20, when five prominent Regina women were injured, Mrs. H. Ward is dead here.

She will be buried Wednesday afternoon with services at Knox United Church. Death occurred yesterday.

Mrs. Ward suffered a punctured lung, a fractured left arm and several fractured ribs in the accident in which Mrs. W. Knight Wilson, Mrs. Alex Kelt, Mrs. H. V. Dalley and Mrs. Sid Loathian were also injured. Mrs. H. Hird, sixth passenger in the car, escaped with bruises and cuts.

Born Oct. 4, 1881, in Cayuga, Ontario, Mrs. Ward had lived in Regina since the Great War, prior to her marriage in 1915 she was associated with the Regina Public School Board as teacher and subsequently in secretarial work.

BRITISH LABOR FIGHTS FASCISM

Paint Movement "Old Deadly Reaction. Historic Enemy of Workers.

POINT TO AUSTRIA.

SOUTHPORT, England, Oct. 1. — (A.P.).—Members of Great Britain's Labor party are "determined not to allow ourselves to become victims of Fascism," W. R. Smith, the party's chairman, said to resounding cheers as he opened the annual conference to-day.

"The area of the black plague of Fascism has been extended with consummation of a dictatorship in Austria," Smith continued. "Despite its outfit of shirts, slogans and salutes, we recognize Fascism for what it is—old deadly reaction, historic enemy of workers."

Smith, classing happenings in Germany and Austria as "a terrible object-lesson and a warning to workers of all lands, said Fascism is "the trigger finger of political murder."

"The death of Dollfuss (late Austrian Chancellor)," he said, "is the latest proof a ruler may not only gain power by the bullet, but indeed, may lose his life by the bullet."

The chairman rapped Sir Oswald Mosley's blackshirt party in England, asserting "in judging the intentions and promises of British Fascism we are more impressed by what Mussolini and Hitler have done than by what Mosley has said."

Hits at Government

Smith accused the government of surveying the International scene with "smug self-satisfaction." But Labor looked with growing apprehension to both the national and international situation, he said.

Long-standing controversies in the Labor party are expected to result in some lively debate when the conference gets down to discuss the report of the national executive.

Sir Stafford Cripps and his radical wing of the party, known as the Socialist League, have tabled innumerable amendments to the executive's platform, which would change it completely, demanding more militant Socialism with a "five-year-plan."

The question of Arthur Henderson's successor as party secretary will lead to an important decision for the veteran Laborite—whether he will be permitted to resume an active political career, or remain solely an administrative official of the party.

STEER RUNS AMOK LINDSAY STREETS

Several Persons Injured Before Animal Subdued—Some Property Damage.

LINDSAY, Oct. 1. (By Examiner Correspondent).—A fractious steer ran amok on the streets of the town Saturday afternoon and injured several people before it was finally subdued.

The animal had been taken to the C.N.R. stock yard in P. Harrington's truck. While being unloaded it suddenly became enraged and made a wild dash for liberty. In its madcap pace it drove citizens to safety, tore up St. Paul's Church bowling green and a number of lawns.

A resident on William street met the onrush of the maddened animal with an axe and broke of one of its horns. Still further enraged by the blow it dashed along Glenelg street, over-turning a little girl on a tricycle and injuring her.

The child might have been fatally injured but for R. Newton, who attracted the maddened animal's attention by getting behind a tree. Joseph Walsh was slightly injured when the animal dashed along the lawn in front of his home and damaged it.

Dashing through the business section, the steer bowled over H. Bate, injuring him in the stomach. It finally made a mad dash for the river and plunged in just above the locks. Crowds lined the bank on either side watching the efforts of a number of men to rope the steer. It was finally subdued and a speed boat was requisitioned tow the animal to shore where it was finally placed on a truck and shipped to Toronto stock yards.

DEAN INGE SEES FEWER BIRTHS WORLD'S NEED

On Birth Control Well Known Cleric Expresses Himself Freely.

NO CLEAR GUIDANCE.

BY THOMAS T. CHAMPION
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, October 1. — What is called rationalization of industry will go further and capital will continue to receive "hard measure" in the opinion of Very Rev. W. R. Inge, who marks his retirement this month from the Deanery of St. Paul's Cathedral, by a modest little volume called "Vale." Incidentally the well known clergyman described capital as "only a term of abuse for the other fellow's savings used protectively."

Dr. Inge covers a wide range of subjects in his book and expresses views which are bound to attract attention and discussion. "The command 'be fruitful and multiply,' which is said to have been issued when the world contained only two human beings is inapplicable now that it has to support two thousand millions," he remarks.

The Dean points out how often he has urged that a remedy for the problem of population should be attempted through systematic State colonization, although he confesses the obstacles are enormous, "We no longer breed good colonists. The urban masses look to the State for everything and do not wish to lose their share of the rates and taxes by leaving the country. The United States and the Dominions shut their doors against immigrants. All these facts have convinced every unprejudiced observer that the fall in the birthrate has been absolutely necessary."

Dr. Inge admits the original Gospel leaves no clear guidance or encouragement in what for many men and women to-day is the purest and most disinterested of their aspirations—the desire to help in making human life in this world a better thing in the future than it is now. "In my attitude towards birth-control, enthusiasm and other testquestions, I am, with some reservations, on the side of the new morality against the old. At the same time I believe that no morality based on secularism can be satisfactory."

Lost Prestige

Expressing the belief that no British institution, certainly not the Church, has lost in prestige anything like so much as the House of Commons, Dr. Inge said: "In the few countries where popular government still survives the elected governors are either despised, or hated, or both."

In discussing the quest for happiness Dr. Inge has not the slightest doubt that "domestic happiness is the greatest of all gifts, next to that of 'wisdom,' for which Solomon prayed, and which may be defined as a right judgment of the relative value of things."

A short retrospect of the Dean's boyhood days in a Yorkshire parsonage is followed by some account of his career at both Oxford and Cambridge universities, before he entered upon his memorable tenure of the Deanery of St. Paul's, which has lasted for nearly 25 years.

Dr. Inge confesses that the offer of the Deanery by Prime Minister Herbert H. Asquith, was one of the greatest surprises of his life. Mr. Asquith's hope was that Dr. Inge would revive the reputation of intellectual brilliance which used to be associated with this prominent Anglican office.

It may be noted that an Asquithian comment on Dean Inge has only just been revealed in some letters which the former Prime Minister wrote to an intimate friend. "He is a strange isolated figure," wrote Asquith, "with all the culture in the world, but with kinks and twists both intellectual and temperamental which make him too freakish to be a real power. But he is the only ecclesiastic in these days who is really interesting."

Concrescence is the growing together of young plant organs by reason of mutual contact or pressure when forming.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL,
Peterborough, Ont.,
Sept. 26, 1934.

Editor, The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I wish to make a short statement regarding the disposition of our Isolation Hospital.

This is a question which should be thoroughly ventilated before taking a flying shot in the dark, to the detriment of the trade and commerce of this city and the innovation of making this district a health resort.

The Kawartha Lake's summer resort, one of the healthiest and most beautiful in Ontario, one which has been advertised extensively, would be contaminated by making Peterborough (The Gateway to the Lakes), a tubercular centre.

The tourists would cut us off and the city of Peterborough put in the same class as Gravenhurst, etc, with great loss of trade.

The patients of a T.B. hospital are given cups, etc., to expectorate into. They do this when under observation, but not so when they are walking about the streets or sitting in parks. This is dried in the dust and exposed for others. Children and adults breath it and contract the disease. They travel in the crowded buses with factory hands going and coming from work. They enjoy the canal, boating, fishing and trips round the Lakes. "Our drinking water comes from the river."

If a grant is obtained from the government, then Peterborough is open for any T.B. patients from any place in Ontario. In the interest and health of these patients, is it fair to them to be sent to such a small hospital as our Isolation, which I understand, is to be scrapped as such, and put under the care of physicians who have had little or no experience in this disease, instead of sending them to a government institution where there is every equipment and medical men with 20 and 30 years of experience in this disease alone.

If this Isolation Hospital is converted into a T.B. hospital, it will have to be enlarged and equipped, and staffed with nurses, and our city will have to stand this expense.

What are we going to do with the contagious cases—diphtheria, tubercular meningitis, spinal meningitis, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, erysipelas? The Department Minister of Health said: "Put them in tents." One doctor very foolishly said: "They can be attended just as well in their homes."

What about the other contacts? Why sacrifice our contagious cases for a few T.B. cases to please a few uninformed men who are extremely ignorant on such matters. If this change is to be made, why not wait for three months and let every candidate for mayor or alderman come out with his policy, and let the public, who pay, decide what is to be done.

Yours truly,
TAXPAYER.

Obituary

DONALD MacNAUGHTON

Simple dignity marked the funeral services as Donald MacNaughton of Otonabee township was borne to rest in the Norwood cemetery on Saturday. Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, assisted by Rev. C. D. Daniel, both of Peterborough, officiated.

Mr. MacNaughton was in his 85th year. He was born at Cottlesloe in Dummer, the eldest son of the late Peter MacNaughton and Janet Robb, and was the last of a family of eight. Shortly after his marriage to Elizabeth Kidd, who predeceased him 26 years ago, he settled near Norwood. He became a deacon in the Baptist Church there and was a valued member of the High School Board before he removed to Otonabee in 1919.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. C. E. Purdy, Edmonton; Mrs. R. Raddon, Sandusky, Ohio; Jessie and Vida, both in Peterborough; and two sons, R. Maxwell MacNaughton, Toronto, and Alexander MacNaughton, Peterborough.

In the funeral sermon, Rev. Sutcliffe praised the quiet, retiring disposition of the deceased and the uprightness of character which won for him a large circle of life-long friends. Rev. C. E. Downing, pastor of the Norwood Baptist Church, assisted in the ceremony at the graveside. Pall-bearers were L. J. Pettit, Peterborough; Hugh Robb and Ross MacNaughton, Norwood; Norman Patterson and Thomas Rose, Otonabee; and Donald Raddon, Keswick.

JOHN C. MILLER

Member of Peterborough Rangers Band for a great number of years, and overseas with the 93rd Battalion when in his late fifties, John C. Miller died early this morning in his 74th year.

He passed away at his residence, 508 College street, after a lengthy illness. Born in England on March 15, 1861, the late Mr. Miller had lived in Peterborough for sixty-four years and had followed the shoemaking trade.

Besides being a cornet player in the regimental band, Mr. Miller was for many years a valued member of George street United Church choir.

Predeceased by his wife in 1929 he leaves three sons—Clarence V., and Vernor R. Miller, both of Toronto, and W. Trevor Miller of Kingston; a daughter, Miss Hazel Miller at home; one brother, F. W. Miller of King street; and a sister, Mrs. Alice Walters of this city.

The funeral is to be held on Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the family residence with the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, pastor of George street church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Kinmount Widower Faces Serious Charge

Electing trial by Judge and jury and reserving his plea, Joseph Doughty, 74-year-old Kinmount widower, this morning appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K. C., charged with a serious offence against his stepdaughter. The preliminary hearing was set for Friday next, and bail was set in the sum of $2,000.

The stepdaughter, now in the care of the Salvation Army Home at Toronto, is stated to be eighteen years of age, and the charge against the accused alleges offences extending over a period of four years to the end of October, 1933.

The aged man was arrested at Kinmount on Saturday by Provincial Constable David Silvester and in a written statement he denied the charges.

The five children of the accused were brought to Peterborough by John Edgar, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society and were placed in the care of the Shelter.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At the regular meeting of the Sodality of the Blessed Virgin of Sacred Heart Parish, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Miss Louise Letellier; Vice-President, Miss Ethel Armstrong; Secretary, Marita Shaughnessy; Treasurer, Miss Mary Grady; Counsellors, Misses Mary Kerr, Marie Allen, Lillian Mattucci, Genevieve Courneya.

DELEGATES CHOSEN.

A conference was held in the Trades and Labor Hall for the All-Canadian Congress against War and Fascism on Friday. An interesting lecture was given and good educational discussion was heard. Two delegates were chosen to attend the congress in Toronto to represent Peterborough. It was decided that a general meeting would be held on October 12th, and the delegates would give an account of the congress.

STOVES WANTED.

We are receiving many requests for stoves and heaters. Half a dozen could easily be placed, if they were available. Many homes, some with small children, are without stoves just now, with no prospect of getting such necessities, unless charitable people will assist. In many places, there are stoves in cellars and sheds that might be repaired at small cost. And sometimes people hang on to stoves and heaters that are not in use. We would be very glad to place these in houses where they would give comfort and warmth through the cold months. Often an article that people of comfortable habits of life would not think of using comes in very handy in homes where there is no money to buy the necessities of life.

If stoves or heaters of any type are available, please telephone Miss McCarthy at The Examiner, and they will be placed to advantage.

BIG POTATOES

A basket of White Elephant potatoes, among which were several large enough in themselves to provide a meal for an average family, were brought to The Examiner by Walter Robinson of this city. He grew them at 121 Doure street.

The tubers are a cross between the Dooley and White Star varieties. One of the specimens weighs 1½ pounds, while a selection of five totals 5½ pounds in weight.

FAIR WEATHER PREDICTED FOR DETROIT GAMES

First Tickets for World Series Sold to Ontario Ball Fan.

COCHRANE CONFIDENT.

"Tigers Rarin' For Action," Says Bengal Club Pilot.

DETROIT, Oct. 1. (CP). — The first ticket for the world series baseball games was bought to-day by C. J. Ready, of Belle River, Ont. He got six tickets.

Lines formed early at Navin field as successful applicants for reserved seats sought to present their identification cards and obtain their tickets.

Twenty thousand unreserved seats will go on sale at 9 a.m. the day of each game and ticket purchasers will be required to go directly to their seats after obtaining the one ticket to be sold each person.

Cochrane Confident

Mickey Cochane exhibited the same quiet confidence that marked his attitude during the regular season.

"We do not fear the result,' he said.

The Bengal pilot remarked that every member was "on his toes" against the Browns Sunday and said "it looked as if we were ready."

As hotel managers busied themselves arranging reservations for the throng expected to descend on the city Tuesday night, the government meterologist studied his weather charts and forecast the series weather would be "fair and warmer."

SITUATION NOT ENCOURAGING IN BRITAIN TO-DAY

Only Solution is Harder Work for Smaller Remuneration; Ralph Whitaker Tells Rotary Club.

MUST SELL SERVICES.

British Industrialists Declare Faith in Canada and in Possibilities it Offers.

Admitting that he was sacrificing optimism to realism and his views were shared only by a minority who were less disposed to accept glowing statements of politicians and newspapers than to think for themselves. Ralph R. Whitaker, F.S.S., of Bradford, England, addressing the Peterborough Rotary Club, at its weekly luncheon to-day declared that the situation in Great Britain was frankly not encouraging.

Introduced by Kiwanian A. R. Piper, Mr. Whitaker said that during the post war period the people of Britain had revelled in numerous luxuries and privileges. Higher education, increased pensions and insurance benefits, clinics, public baths, bigger houses, parks, more elaborate water works were in order and the responsibility for the payment of much unremunerative capital outlaw became a legacy to posterity. Concurrently came demands for higher wages, shorter working hours, work made easy and all forms of amusement given daily.

"To-day" said Mr. Whitaker, "the nation finds itself burdened by tremendous legislated expenditure; with industry impoverished and manacled by disproportionate income from services greatly reduced, capital disappearing and being squandered in death duties and big taxation, the highest taxation in the world, many export markets permanently lost, others lost so long a production costs remain relatively high. More and more tariffs against British produce inability to secure payment for exports due to exchange restrictions, import quotas and the expanding tendency toward close nationalism."

Britain, the speaker pointed out, unlike Canada, could not depend upon the exploitation of natural resources. Her life blood was confined to service in two forms—mental and physical. Of these, mental service had been working for little or no remuneration, while physical service, through the medium of trade unionism, had attempted to dictate its value to the world which, unhappily had been unwilling or unable to accept such service at its own valuation, with the result that unemployment had increased, old-established firms had gone out of business, and export markets had been lost.

"Despite all this," said Mr. Whitaker, "trade union leaders refuse to be converted, the while resisting readjustment and indulging in attempts to further disturb the economic muddle. Great Britain is ridden with stubborn, uneducated and inconvertible socialistic leadership."

"During a period when the cost of living advanced from 40 to 50 per cent," continued the speaker, "wages were increased by 85 to 95 per cent. and this despite the increased amenities of the social services. In eight years Great Britain lost 4.52 per cent of the total world trade, or 26.3 per cent of her share of it."

The sole international solution to the economic disequilibrium, declared Mr. Whitaker, was harder work for smaller remuneration. If Great Britain could not sell services in the form of exports, she could not buy food, and without food her nationals could not live.

Speaking of the Ottawa Conference, Mr. Whitaker declared that concessions were made by the Mother Country to all Empire interests, for which she received nothing but a promise of equitable competition with protected interests after the differences in manufacturing costs had been equalized by the tariff. As yet, little or nothing had been done to put that promise into effect.

During his travels both in Canada and the United States, he had found the common impression that Great Britain would repeat her historical record by emerging victorious once again from her economic adversity.

"Believe me, gentlemen," said the speaker, "there is no evidence of such a possibility in the near future.

"I frankly admit that I place my expectations in Canada, which, I believe to be the richest, finest and most promising country in the world to-day."

In this connection the speaker urged support for any plan of reformation that would follow the Government investigation of productive and distributive practices. "The issue is not political," he said, "so that it is within the scope of Canada's many service clubs to devise a plan of reformative procedure and collectively to add strength and give decisive power to the attainment of such a deserving objective."

The thanks of the club were extended to the speaker by President J. Fred Reed.

W. S. Brown, one of to-day's guests, contributed a much enjoyed vocal solo to the program. Judge Sheldon Smoke and Mayor R. Denne were among the other guests.

30 P.C. INCREASE.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Oct. 1. (C.P.-Havas) — British producers are rapidly ousting American goods from the Canadian market, said G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to Great Britain, upon his arrival to-day from Canada.

"Canada is becoming an increasing purchaser in the British markets," he said. "And British goods are rapidly replacing American products. Up to July 30, this year, Canada's purchases from Great Britain showed a 30 percent increase as compared with last year.

"Next to Great Britain, Canada has made more satisfactory progress from the depression than any other country in the world."

"That is due to the fact that all her institutions and methods are based on the principles obtaining in England."

Churchill Shipping Supplies To Missions

CHURCHILL, Man., October 1 (C.P.). — Aside from becoming a prombinent grain port, Churchill today boasts another distinction— it has become the jumping-off place for supplies to the northern missions. This season more than 100 tons of mission supplies were shipped out of Churchill.

Foodstuffs and dry goods as well as books and hospital supplies went to Roman Catholic outpost missions. A smaller quantity was sent to the far-flung missions of the Church of England.

Included in the cargoes carried to the six Roman Catholic missions of Cape Eskimo, Chesterfield Inlet, Baker Lake, Southampton, Repulse, and Igloolk aboard the Pius XI. were 50 tons of coal for the Grey Nuns Hospital at Chesterfield. The trim little supply ship Pius XI made three trips to missions during the summer.

PSYCHIATRISTS BEING NAMED IN KIDNAP CASE

District Attorney Intimates He Wants Several, New Jersey Asks Three.

EXAMINATION MONDAY.

Hauptmann to Face Extortion Indictment First Unless Sister State Wins Case.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1 (A.P.).—Several psychiatrists, and not three as originally announced, will conduct mental tests of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, indicted as an extortioner in the Lindbergh kidnap case, District Attorney Samuel J. Foley announced to-day.

Meantime, the short affidavit on which Hauptmann was held prior to his indictment, was dismissed by Magistrate William Klapp, in West Farms court to-day. Hauptmann was not brought into court for the routine proceedings, which required only about half a minute.

Magistrate Klapp signed the dismissal without comment.

Foley said the mental examination of Hauptmann probably will take place Wednesday.

"New Jersey has indicated it wants three psychiatrists," Foley said. "I want several myself, one of whom will be Dr. S. Philip Goodhart, who has helped me in other cases. The defence has indicated an intention to have one present."

The Bronx prosecutor said the indictment reached by the Bronx County Grand Jury last week, charging Hauptmann with extortion will be the indictment on which the prisoner will be tried here," unless new evidence is brought warranting a new indictment."

"There will be no one indicted in the Bronx as 'John Doe' or 'Jane Doe'," the prosecutor declared.

Foley said a number of persons would be questioned to-day, but added he did not expect any of them would be "important."

Foley reiterated, in response to inquiries, that he had talked with an "important woman witness" in the case "outside his office."

Believe Girl Slayers Seen In Stratford

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 1 (CP). —Belief that Merion W. Goodrich, and his titian haired wife, wanted in Detroit for the slaying of 11-year-old Lilliam Gallagher, were in the village of Newton on Friday, was expressed to-day by Clark Wright, county constable and blacksmith at Newton.

Wright came to Stratford to-day on business and visited the local police station. There he saw a picture of the hunted man and immediately recalled that a pair closely resembling Goodrich and his wife were in the village store at Newton on Friday. They had come in on a freight and were seen also by the store owner, John Woodowiss, and a Mrs. Margaret Smith who lives near Newton.

All agree they look like the alleged slayers of the Detroit child. The man was haggard looking and had noticeably bad teeth; the woman has red hair and a limp in one leg. Wright believed they headed for the Wellesley district.

ST. CATHARINES AIRMAN HURT IN ENGLISH CRASH

WOODFORD, Essex, England, Oct. 1 (C.P. Cable).—Richmond F. Robinson, who came to England from St. Catharines, Ont., recently, was still unconscious to-day suffering severe injuries received in the collision of the plane he was piloting with another machine at an air pageant here Saturday.

Robinson was landing after a joy-ride with two passengers who were slightly injured, when his plane was struck by another preparing to take off.

FIREMEN LAUNCH ANNUAL APPEAL

Toys Are Requested for Repair and Distribution to Needy Children.

WILL CALL FOR TOYS.

As in former recent years members of Peterborough Fire Department are planning to establish a Santa Claus workshop where old and dilapidated toys will be received for repairs and renovation for ultimate distribution at Christmas-tide to the children of needy families.

The firemen are again appealing for contributions to the work-shop, and solicit the public to start hunting in attics, cellars, playrooms and other likely places for toys of any description. A 'phone call to the Fire Hal will bring a collector for the toys, and it really doesn't matter how badly worn or broken the toys may be, the firemen can fix them that they will be destined to bring hours of enjoyment to some needy child who would otherwise look in vain for Santa Claus.

Generous response has been made to the appeal in the past four or five years since the firemen first started their charitable activity, and the skill displayed by the firefighters in making repairs to toys has provided evidence of their skill as handymen.

In launching their appeal the firemen are counting upon the same measure of co-operation that has marked their previous efforts. They are now ready to receive contributions to the toy repair shop, and call for toys upon request.

LAD KILLED BY FALL

WALKERTON, Oct. 1 (CP)—Serious injuries received when he fell some 15 feet from a tree while out beech-nut hunting with two other young companions, Howard and Catherine Krampp, Saturday afternoon, Gerald Blyth, 9-year-old son of Ernie Blyth and Mrs. Blyth, died Sunday at the Bruce County Hospital. Besides serious injuries to his side and body the young lad had practically all the teeth knocked out in the fall.

IN MEMORIAM

GRAHAM.—In loving memory of a dear father, James Graham of Otonabee, who passed away September 30, 1932.

When the evening shades are falling
And we are sitting all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
'Tis sweet to think that we will meet
Where sorrows are no more,
And that the ones we love so well
Has just gone on before.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE WOODBINE Fall meeting closed on Saturday in a blaze of glory. The largest crowd of the week turning out to say farewell to the bangtails at the east end course until next spring. The track was heavy from the early morning rain and consequently no records were broken but a good spirited program was enjoyed. De don't want to pin too many bouquets on ourselves but it will do no harm to mention that a two dollar straight ticket on all our selections at the recent Woodbine meeting would have netted a handsome profit.

The good mudder Top Hattie showed a lot of pep the other day in the Woodbine paddock and let go with both hind feet and caught one of the jockeys standing nearby, full in the stomach injuring him quite severely. He then went out on the track and was a distant trailer all the way finishing last of his field. We think he will wake up at Abe Orpen's Lake Shore plant and pay off at about forty bucks. Dark Ayr is another that will win before our season closes, and he always returns a handsome dividend.

WE MENTIONED some time ago about American interests making Harry Giddings a huge offer for his good stallion Marine. Well he sold him the other day, but instead of going across the line he was purchased by R. J. McLaughlin, the well known Oshawa sportsman. This is a great break for Canadian racing as Marine is considered to be one of the best young sires on the American continent. We hear that Pencater is all set to win a heat down at Havre de Gras and also one by the name of Louis Merryman. This one also prefers a heavy racing strip but is no slouch over a dry track. At any rate they are both in tip-top condition and it will only be a matter of time now.

Down at Rockingham there is one called Bitty Bit who is just crying to run and his connections are planning a huge melon cutting. We see where old Dr. Parrish is doing a little limbering up these days at Lincoln Fields and don't think the old boy is too ancient to turn in a winning effort because he will surprise a lot of wise ones in the near future. They tell us he is just acting like a two-year-old in his recent workouts.

MOFFAT HOLDS PETES TO FIVE SAFE CLOUTS IN O. B. A. A. TRIUMPH

Around 2,000 Fans See Lee Outfit Go Down To 2-0 Defeat Before Smart Baseball Of Toronto Grads—Calladine Gives Good Account Of Self.

HOMESTERS NAB PAIR OF TWIN KILLINGS IN DEFENSIVE PLAY—ASH STARS ON FIRST.

(By F.D.C.)

Powerless before the effective five-hit pitching of Norm Moffatt who allowed only four runners to get as far as second and none to reach third, the Petes disappeared out of the senior O.B.A.A. picture here Saturday afternoon when they dropped a 2 to 0 decision to G. and W. Grads, the T.A.B.A. titleholders.

Under a leaden sky that threatened at any moment to send a deluge over the diamond, one of the biggest crowds of the year, around 2,000 fans, saw a game that was entirely worthy of the Ontario senior semi-finals Pitted against a seasoned ball club, to whom the O.B.A.A. play-offs were an old story, Peterborough's young team gave a good account of themselves and went down with their colors flying.

Gives Good Exhibition

Against the veteran Toronto machine, Bill Calladine, youngest of the Petes' artillery corps, who was sent to the firing pit by Manager Knotty Lee in this all-important fixture justified his selection by an exhibition of fine pitching in a hopeless cause for his teammates not only failed to get a run for him but their defence cracked just enough in one frame to give the Grads their narrow margin of victory. It was a tough game for the youngster to lose for he kept the Toronto club's eight hits well scattered and but for the breaks that entered into the scoring of the Grads' two markers would have matched Moffatt's feat of a scoreless nine innings. While Stronach's smash through Konopka which drove in the first run was legitimately scored as a hit, it was nevertheless a play that might have just as easily been converted into a double killing that would have closed the inning. The second run was of course an early Christmas gift with Bud Murray the unwilling Santa Claus.

Toronto Heroes

The Toronto heroes were Moffatt, steady right hander whose effective change of pace and baffling hook had the Petes' attack handcuffed throughout the engagement and the veteran Harry Sniderman, powerhouse of the Grads' clean-up crew who supplied the punch that drove the homesters out of O.B.A.A. competition for the season.

Moffatt had the Petes looking more helpless at the plate than in any game this year and only once did they have a real opening with two on and none out only to fall completely. Sniderman had three hits in four trips—it would have been four for four had not Ash robbed him in the first frame by a circus stop—and it was his ringing double in the sixth that started the Grads on their way to victory.

Stronach, the peppery G. and W. catcher was the only other player on either team to get more than one hit, which tells its own story of the mastery the rival pitchers exercised over the batters.

Both clubs did some smart fielding. Ash's diving clutch of Sniderman's hard smash was the outstanding defensive play, but Calladine fielded his position in expert style. The Petes ripped off a couple of snappy double killings and Sone the Grads' short stop and Verrall and Glen in the outfield earned brackets for their fast work.

How It All Happened

In the Grads' first, both Eisen and Verrall rolled to Calladine and after Glen had walked Ash's sensational diving stop of Sniderman's torrid roller ended the frame.

In the second Harper was safe on Konopka's low throw to first and after Stronach popped to Ash, Stokes singled to right. Calladine bore down on Sone and fanned the Grads' short stop and then got Moffatt on a soft fly to Hollingsworth.

With two out in the Petes' end of the inning Verrall misjudged Burton's fly to left and the blow went for a double but Ash tapped weakly to Stokes for the third hand down.

Eisen started the Grads' third with a torrid single to centre but tried to stretch it and was shot down at second by Foley's rifle shot throw to Murray. Verrall hoisted to Ash and Calladine snared Glen's hot shot to the box with his gloved hand.

The Petes went out in order.

Sniderman got his first hit, a solid smash to right to open the fourth but was forced by Harper on a roller to Murray. Stronach was easy on a pop to Batten and Calladine tossed out Stokes.

Waste Two Hits

The homesters wasted two hits in their half. With one down Calladine singled to centre, the second hit off Moffatt and after Foley had driven a long fly to Glen, Whatley duplicated Calladine's blow with a one-base sock to centre. Burton ended the rally with a foul fly to Stronach.

The Grads had a chance in the fifth when Sone led off with a single to left and was sacrificed to second by Moffatt. Eisen, however, filed to Hollingsworth and after Verrall had drawn a walk Glen bounded to Murray to close the inning.

In their half, the Petes lost their best scoring opportunity of the day. Ash gave them a start by beating out a roller to third and when Moffatt threw badly to first on Batten's sacrifice bunt all hands were safe. Hollingsworth failed to come through with a sacrifice and then lined to Sone, the Petes getting a break when Batten was called safe going back to first after the catch. It meant nothing, however, for Konopka filed to Verrall and Murray's easy hopper to Eisen retired the side.

The Fatal Sixth

Sniderman started off the fatal sixth with a long double to the score board and trotted over to third on Harper's roller to Ash with Calladine covering the bag. Then Stronach crashed a single through Konopka's hands, half turning the short stop around, to score Sniderman with the first run of the day. On a hit and run play Stronach went to second while Murray was tossing out Stokes. Then came another tough break for Sone's lazy hopper toward right field oozed through Murray's hands and when the Petes' second sacker slipped and fell in attempting to retrieve the ball Stronach scored from second on the play. Sone died stealing, Whatley to Murray a second after but the ball game had been won and lost by that time.

Again the Petes got two on without cashing in, Calladine worked his pitching rival for a walk and after Foley had fouled out to Stronach, Whatley was hit. Burton's best was an easy foul fly to Harper and Ash forced Whatley on a tap to Sone.

There was nothing much to it after that. For the first time in the game the Grads failed to get a man on in the seventh and the Petes did little better. Konopka beating out a roller to short with two out only to have Murray fly out to Glen in right centre.

In the eighth with one out, Sniderman slashed his third hit, this time past Batten, but was doubled up with Harper when the latter bounded one to Batten. Murray was the pivot man on the twin killing and the Grads claim umpire Johnston should have been credited with an assist.

The Petes failed to click. Calladine made a good bid with a hard smash to short left but Verrall made a nice catch and the next two were easy.

In the ninth Stronach singled through short for his second hit but was forced by Stokes and then Sone hit into a fast double play, Murray to Konopka to Ash.

Three easy flies in a row in the Petes' half sang the swan song of the 1934 season so far as Knotty Lee's club was concerned. And the Grads were in the Ontario finals.

TORONTO LEAFS DROP SECOND TO COLUMBUS

Redmen Overcome Boone Clan's Early Lead With Rally In Ninth.

BLAKE FALTERS.

TORONTO, October 1. — Columbus Red Birds made it two straight over the Maple Leafs in the Junior World Series by winning Saturday night's game 7 to 4. Going into the ninth inning, the Leafs were leading by 4 to 1 and Sheriff Blake, to all intents and purposes, was doing an excellent job of pitching for Toronto. But the dire doings of the ninth changed all that. When the last three Red Birds had been retired six runs were in and what had been a Toronto triumph up to that time was turned into a devastating rout. The sweetness of victory turned to ashes in the Leafs' mouths in quicker time than it takes to relate it.

Birds Get the "Breaks."

The Birds certainly got the "breaks" in that final frame. Of course, Blake had himself largely to blame for losing the three-run lead. He had held the Birds to seven hits several of them scattered up to that time, and had yielded only one run.

Over the same period, the Leafs had collected six hits, good for four runs off Bob Klinger, and garnered another hit off Clarence Heise, a southpaw, third of the four Columbus pitchers that Manager Ray Blades saw fit to send into the pastime. It didn't seem possible that Blake would falter in the ninth in view of his work in the previous rounds. But baseball has ever been a game of uncertainties.

Players Share In First Four Series Games

Clubs Rely on Extra Games To Pay Heavy Expenses Of Series.

Answer To Series Dough.

Funny, isn't it, how the question of money always enters the picture?

There is hardly a day that numerous telephone calls do not pour into The Examiner sports department. The fans want to know who gets the World Series dough, and who doesn't get it.

To start with, 15 per cent of the receipts in all games is payable to the secretary-treasurer of the National Baseball Commission. From that amount, the salary of Kenesaw Mountain Landis is paid.

Sixty per cent of the total receipts from the first four games is turned into a players' pool. Thirty per cent of this is divided between the two participating teams in the World Series—60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser.

Between Other Clubs

The remaining 30 per cent (of the players' 60) is divided between second, third and fourth-place clubs in this manner: 50 per cent of the 30 to members of the second place club; 33 1-3 per cent to third-place players, and 16 2-3 to the fourth-place team.

Players in the second division are left high and dry so far as a cut in the World Series spoils are concerned.

The players share only in the first four games. If the series goes the full seven games they receive not one cent more than they would get if it ended after four games.

Obviously this is done to prevent any hint of prolongation of a series for the extra money involved.

Club owners of the two teams involved in the World Series receive what is left after the 15 per cent of all games is deducted for the national commission, and the 60 per cent of the first four games is pulled down for the players' pool.

Notable Example

The 1933 World Series was a notable example of how club owners have no control over what happens in a World Series. If the series, which was won by New York after five games, had gone one extra day it would have meant easily $100,000 extra for both Clark Griffith of the Senators and Charles Stoneham of the Giants.

The Senators and Giants would have returned to the Polo Grounds for the sixth game on Sunday. But it meant nothing extra for the players. They ended it on Saturday. This honest foundation upon which rests World Series stability can never be questioned.

Broke Attendance Records

The 1926 World Series, fought between the New York Yankees and St. Louis Cardinals, broke all attendance records. A total of 328,-051 paid to see Babe Ruth hog all honors.

This brought in a total of $1,207,-864. The players divided $372,300.

Exports from Argentina in the first seven months of this year were 22 per cent greater in value than in the same period of 1933, due principally to increased grain shipments.

Dean Blanks Redshirts 9-0 In Final Game

Dizzy Equals Alexander's Record With 30 Triumphs For Season.

GIANTS LOSE 8-5.

Braves Cinch Place In World Series Proceeds By Beating Phillies Twice.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer).

Jerome Herman ("Dizzy") Dean, the major half of St. Louis Cardinals' two-man, one-family pitching staff, stood out to-day as the greatest single figure of the 1934 major league baseball season.

It wasn't merely that Jerome Herman, whose consistent pitching throughout the season offset the popular notion that he is "dizzy" or eccentric, pitched the final 9-0 shutout of Cincinnati Reds that doubly clinched the pennant for the St. Louis club yesterday after the Giants had "blown" themselves out of the race by dropping a 10-inning 8-5 decision to Brooklyn.

In the course of 4½ months of the campaign the elder Dean took part in 50 games for the Cardinals, hurled 36 complete contests and won 30 victories while losing only seven decisions. It's been quite a while since anyone did anything like that.

A search through the baseball records reveals that Dizzy, in winning his 30th triumph with a seven-hit performance and his seventh blanking of the season, became the first National League pitcher to touch that mark since Grover Cleveland Alexander did it for the Phillies in 1916 and the first right handed flinger to make the grade in either circuit since Jim Bagby of Cleveland won 31 in 1920.

Apparently improving as the season neared the finish, Dizzy appeared ready to work in every game and he ended the campaign by blanking the Reds twice in three days. In addition brother Paul Dean had a lot to say about the triumph of the Cards as he won 19 games in his first big league season and turned in the first no-hit, no-run game the senior circuit has produced since 1929.

Almost overlooked in the hullabalioo over the National League race were several other outstanding features of the 1934 season. Two other places weren't decided until the final day of the season.

Braves Cinch Fourth

Boston Braves clinched fourth place in the National and a share of the world series proceeds by beating the Phillies twice, 4-3 and 5-4 while the Cubs belted Pittsburgh over twice, 8-2 and 7-5. The Athletics, who moved out of seventh place in a late-season spurt, finally finished fifth when they split a twin bill with the Red Sox, winning 4-2 after losing 5-0. Roger Hornsby's Browns, who had a chance to beat them, ran up against the champion Tigers the last day and took two drubbings 10-6 and 6-2.

A Dismal Season

Washington, American League titleholders a year ago, wound up a dismal season in seventh place and even though they closed with a 5-3 triumph over the Yankees and the two New York heroes, Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig got most of the cheers.

BELLEVILLE C.I. BLANKED 7-0.

LINDSAY, Oct. 1.—Lindsay Collegiate seniors opened the C.O.S.S.A., Central Ontario section, Rugby football season here on Saturday by defeating the Belleville Collegiate seniors, 7 to 0. The game was fast and exciting, with Lindsay clearly outplaying the Belleville team. Fumbles were instrumental in keeping the score down. Pilton, for Belleville, was the only player who could carry the ball with any success against the winners. Lindsay plungers literally tore the Belleville line to shreds.

PLAY-OFF GAME POSTPONED.

COBOURG, Oct. 1.—The junior baseball game between Belleville, champions of Eastern Ontario League and the junior championship team of Toronto, which was to have been played at Horse Show Park Saturday afternoon, was postponed on account of wet grounds. It will be played on Wednesday, Oct. 3.

FIELD WEAK SIDE.

The Peterborough Cricket Club played their last match of the season on Saturday at Oshawa, thus fulfilling the engagement of the previous Saturday which they had been forced to cancel owing to their inability to raise a team to make the trip.

Oshawa are the champions of their division in the Toronto and District League and three of their players figure in the average of the leaders in the intermediate division of that league. In batting G. Dewberry was 8th with an average 21.40 and G. Mann 12th with an average of 25.08. In bowling, J. Pickup was 4th with 55 wickets at an average of 6.22, and Mann 43 wickets at an average of 7.1...

The match on Saturday resulted in a win for Oshawa, the final score being, P.C.C. 33, Oshawa 76, for six wickets. The locals were only able to send a weak side and they found the bowling of J. Pickup (6 wickets for 13) altogether too much for them and no one reached double figures. On Oshawa going to bat they got the necessary runs with only 3 out; afterwards their high scorers retired in order to give the tailenders a chance to bat.

It will be noted that S. Lorne, acting as wicket-keeper for Peterborough, did not allow a single extra. Later a summary of the season and the averages of both the Peterborough club and Peterborough county will be given.

Lawn Bowling

BY Herb Martin

In A Day or two the secretary of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, Limited, will announce, through the medium of the press, the date setting forth the annual meeting of the shareholders of this company.

—o—

This Meeting has to be called according to law and the business to be transacted is set forth in the constitution.

—o—

The President, no doubt, will give a general review of the workings of the company for the past year; the secretary will read his annual report and the treasurer will present his financial statement, all of which the shareholders entitled to know; but we think that while all this is important, the most important piece of business to come before the meeting is the election of the Board of Directors.

—o—

This Board Consists of seven shareholders elected by the shareholders at this annual meeting. Their nomination papers must be properly filled out and be in the hands of the secretary five days before the date of the annual meeting.

—o—

It Is Therefore the duty of every shareholder who is interested in the workings of this great sporting organization to select men who will run for the election of the board—men who are capable and have the ability—men who will give it their time—men who have the interest of this club at heart. See to it that they are properly nominated; get out and support them, but above all, be out to the annual meeting on October the 15th, and cast your ballot to the best interests of the club.

LOCALS CINCH WIN ON FINAL QUARTER COUNT

Ragged Work in Early Play Features First of Season Contest.

FUMBLES PLENTIFUL.

Peterborough Collegiate's senior rugby squad celebrated its 1934 debut on the gridiron with a hard-earned 6-1 decision over Oshawa Collegiate in Oshawa Saturday afternoon. Trailing by a point from the early minutes of the game, victory came with a kick over the line and the recovery of an Oshawa fumble for a try in the last quarter.

It was a typical first-of-the-season contest. For both teams it was the first formal encounter of the year and stage-fright resulted in some ragged work, particularly in the first half. Fumbles were plentiful. Late in the match the P.C.I. lads, however, got down to work and showed promise of shaping into a powerful contender in the Central Ontario loop during the next couple of weeks.

The Oshawa lads opened up the game with a strong drive down the field; Marks, Barriage, McCullough and Salter doing the heavy work. Getting things under control before damage was done, the Garnet and Gray boys forced a kick, and some mid-field scrimmaging followed. Again the Oshawa men made an advance on the P.C.I. line but, finding the going rough at the 20-yard stripe, elected to try for a safety. Marks kicked to Archibald and several of the orange-sweatered men nailed him while still five yards behind the line for the one-point award, the first counter of the tusale.

Homesters Work Hard.

Heartened by their lead, the Lakeshore contenders worked hard for a touchdown in the second quarter. Two dangerous threats were stopped and Harry Marsh, Ross Pulkinghorn and Drake Jopline were on their way down to the home-towners' goal line in a series of plunges and runs when the half-time whistle called a halt.

The P.C.I. men looked better when they came out for the third quarter. Archibald got away on a couple of nice runs, and Joping and Pulkinghorn and Drake Jopling to the Oshawa tacklers. They still lacked the punch required for a count, however, and several punts were exchanged before the game went into the final session. In the punting business, Young for the visitors proved a good match for Marks and McCullough on the Oshawa squad.

P.C.I. evened up the score when they got within kicking range of the Oshawa goal after a steady march in the final minutes of the game. Young booted the ball over the deadline for a point when the Garnet and Grey men were brought up short on the 25-yard line.

Final Tally Counts.

A tie game seemed likely with the end of the tussle approaching fast. The P.C.I. men worked desperately for an advantage and placed all their hopes on a kick for a winning point. Young lifted a high one which was caught well behind the line by Marks. Marks fumbled when struck by a tackler and Pulkinghorn pounced on the loose ball for a touchdown. The placement kick offered by Young on his attempt to convert the try went wide, and the final score stood 6-1.

Two casualties marked the game. Sedgwick, P.C.I. inside, was taken from the game in the first half with an injured arm; a broken bone was suspected. Salter, Oshawa quarter, was taken out, suffering a concussion after a boot struck him in the face in a scrimmage.

JUNIORS BEATEN IN 9-0 STRUGGLE

Garnet And Grey Seconds Outplayed In First Game Of Schedule.

P.C.I. junior rugby team opened their schedule Saturday by playing Lindsay juniors in Lindsay, the final score being 9-0 for the homesters.

Winning the toss, P.C.I. choose to kick with the wind, Lindsay fumbled the ball and Peterborough recovered on the 20-yard line. Theatening to score with some beautiful running and plunging, they failed to make yards, Lindsay got the ball and kicked out of danger. A lot of fumbles in the first quarter kept the ball out of the scoring zone. Score at quarter time, 0-0.

Score First in Second.

Going into the second quarter Lindsay scored on a rouge. Both teams did some nice plunging, but failed to count.

After the rest period Lindsay came back with new fight to get the major score of the game. P. C. I., trying their first forward, threw short, McLean of Lindsay intercepted the pass and ran 60 yards for a touch. The kick was converted.

Only 2 more points were gained by Lindsay on 2 rouges and the game ended 9-0 for Lindsay.

Running and plunging by Jopling and Kelly, with some nice tackles by Curtain, featured the P.C.I. game. Kirley and Beal went best for Lindsay, making some nice runs

Underdogs Of Pre-Season Pennant Predictions Will Form a Baseball "Natural"

American League champs for first time in 25 years, Detroit Tigers will clash with Cardinals in first of world series games at Navin Field starting Wednesday.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 1.—(AP)—By a startling and highly dramatic sequence of baseball events, two clubs which were picked this year in the pre-season "dope" to finish no better than fourth in either major league pennant race will fight it out for the world's championship, starting this Wednesday in the congested premises of Navin Field, Detroit. It will be the truculent Tigers of Detroit, champions of the American League for the first time in 25 years, against the high-flying Cardinals of St. Louis, heroes of the greatest non-stop pennant flight in the history of the old National League.

* * * * * * *

It's a baseball "natural" if there ever was one, bringing back into the big-money arena not only the elusive war-horse of the Osage country, your old friend Pepper Martin, but featuring the sharp-shooting of the celebrated Dean brothers against the youthful skill of the renowned Schoolboy Rowe and a battle of managerial wits between Frank Frisch and Mickey Cochrane, each rounding out his first full year as a big league pilot.

* * * * * * *

Noteworthy, too, is the fact that for the first time in 15 years the two contending clubs in the big series represent the western half of major league territory. Behind them the Tigers left the thoroughly-beaten remnants of the old eastern power houses of the American league, including the Yankees and Senators, while the Cardinals galloped from behind in the stretch to pass the faltering world champion Giants, victims of probably the most dismal, heart-breaking collapse in the annals of the national sport.

* * * * * * *

Regarless of what the experts thought of them last spring and they didn't give them much of a tumble at the time, the fact is that both the Tigers and Cardinals demonstrated to the satisfaction of all concerned they are the best clubs in either big league. The Tigers had what neither New York team was able to produce in the "clutches" and coasted to victory behind the battering-ram power of an iron-man infield, the spectacular pitching of Rowe and the dynamic leadership of Cochrane. The Cardinals, from a spot where they appeared out of the race barely three weeks ago, slashed their way past the Cubs and the Giants with an all-conquering drive featuring the amazing pitching of the Dean boys.

* * * * * * *

The momentum of this electrifying finish by the Cardinals is something for the Tigers to worry about. It has few parallels in baseball records and means that Frank Frisch's wrecking crew will strike with terrific force from the outset. It's the big reason when the National League champions, marking up their fifth pennant for St. Louis in nine years, already are 7-10 favorites among the Broadway bookmakers.

* * * * * * *

The main question for Cochrane's fiery crew is "what to do about stopping the Dean brothers?" With the exception of Bob Grove and George Earnshaw of the 1929-31 Athletics, no pitching pair in either major league has performed such astounding pitching stunts as these tall, gawky boys from Oklahoma with the smoking fast-ball and lion-hearted courage under fire. Together they contributed 49 victories to the Cardinal charge and shouldered the main burden against all serious opposition.

* * * * * * *

If pitching proves decisive and it generally figures to be at least 60 percent of the world series struggle, St. Louis will have the edge over a Tiger staff, featuring Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, Tommy Bridges, Al Crowder, Elden Auker and Fred Marberry. The presence of the Deans, in fact, may prompt Cochrane to alter his pitching strategy by gambling on the veteran Crowder, a Washington castoff, against Dizzy Dean in the first game and then countering with the brilliant Rowe against Paul Dean. This would be considered "sound" policy by most baseball men and undoubtedly will be the subject of much master minding in the Tiger camp.

* * * * * * *

With a lineup that has batted an even .300 for the season, Cochrane may not feel he has much to worry about, Deans or no Deans. The Tigers slugged the best pitching the American League had to offer all year with Cochrane, Charley Gehringer, Goose Goslin, Hank Greenberg, Marvin Owen and Billy Rogell all sharing in the bombardment. The answer to "Who's going to stop the Deans?" may be another question: "How are the Deans going to stop his wrecking crew?"

Berth Unfilled

DETROIT, Oct. 1. (AP). — Pleased with the spirit and the prowess of his Tigers, Manager Mickey Cochrane mapped a series of workouts to-day to keep the boys on their toes right up until play is started Wednesday. Asked whether he would start Lynwood (Schoolboy Rowe in the opening game Cochrane replied: "I may," and added that Alvin Crowder and Tommy Bridges also were possible choice.

"I will probably pick the one who seems best fitted for the job on the day of the game" he said.

Although the pitching berth for Wednesday's opener remains unfilled, the remainder of the Tiger lineup will be the same as that which has gone through the season.

PACKERS BEAT ELECTRICS IN PECK CUP PLAY

Canadian General Goes Down to 2-1 Defeat After Two Drawn Matches.

BUCHAN ACCEPTS CUP.

After meeting three times in the final of the E. A. Peck Trophy, after two previous drawn matches, the Canada Packers defeated the Canadian General, league leaders, by two goals to one. G. Downer got the winning tally with an unsavable shot.

Immediately after the game, Captain Buchan accepted the cup on behalf of his team and complimented the losers on their sportsmanship, "but a draw would have been an excellent criterion of the game," remarked the C.P. captain.

Ross's Smart Goal

Right from the kick-off, the C.G.E. went into the Packers' area where McPhate, while on the run, sent a terrific drive into the corner of the upright. Chamberlain, Packers' goalie, outstretched himself to concede a fruitless flag kick. A foul against the Packers caused them anxiety when Jones punted into goal; the custodian diverting the ball around the corner. Then, from the resultant kick, Earle missed by inches. The Packers retaliated with long swinging passes that brought ou the good judgment of Blowers, whenever the Packers hovered in sight, to punt clear. C.P. dominated the play to become successful when Colbran, on the right wing, travelled down into the corner, and evaded the defence to centre the ball into goal. Ross beat Curtis at close range, just four minutes before the interval. Half time—Canada Packers, 1; Canadian General, 0.

C.G.E. Lacked Finish

A rearranged front rank of the C.G.E. didn't prove to be a success, through the keen anticipation of play by the Packers' half backs. While A. Mitchell, at inside left, was unfortunate with his efforts that were worthy of a counter and missed the corner by inches from a 20-yard drive. Three corner kicks in favor of the C.G.E. ended up in dangerous scrimmages in front of Chamberlain's charge who punted or kicked clear at the opportune moment, while his full backs in front of him gave him steady support. From a Bolton pass, the C.G.E. gained the equalizer when Burgess made the count even as he travelled in between the defence to pick the corner of the net.

Thirteen minutes to go, the Packers' right wing kept switching their positions, and backed by right half, until Colbran dribbled his way towards goal. Blowers stopping his progress, but he recovered the ball quickly to lift it over his head. The ball travelled from wing to wing until McCracken passed over an accurate shot that George Downer met with a first timer that bulged the net. C.G.E. replied with every conceivable method to get the equalizer, but met a solid defense until the final whistle. Canada Packers, 2; Canadian General, 1.

The teams:—

Canadian General — W. Curtis, goal; J. Mitchell and G. Glowers, full backs; W. Bolam, E. Jones and A. Burgess, halves; J. Bolton, F. Earle, S. Clark, A. Mitchell and T. McPhate, forwards.

Canada Packers.—J. T. Chamberlain, goal; N' Downed and A. Downer, full backs; A. Downer, J. Buchan and F. Todd, halves; G. Colbran, W. McCracken, A. Ross, T. Foster and G. Downer, forwards.

Referee—W. Harrington.

MICKEY COCHRANE PAYS OFF NAVIN'S $1 000,000 GAMBLE

Popular Pilot Answers Trust of Detroit Fans With American League Pennant.

ENJOYS BEING "ON SPOT."

By E. J. Hilligan
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

DETROIT, Oct. 1 (AP).—A flaming, fiery, infectiously enthusiastic baseball player has proven himself a great manager, and paid off a $100,000 gamble to the tune of clicking turnstiles and the roars of fans made baseball-mad in anticipation of Detroit's first world series in a quarter of a century.

Gordon Stanley Cochrane has "come through." He has taken practically the same team which finished in the second division last year to pennant heights, transformed it from a win-a-game, lose-a-game outfit to an aggressive, fighting group of Tigers which clawed to the top of the American League and clung there through most of the season.

It was late one October afternoon a year ago that Frank J. Navin clinched the deal which brought Mickey Cochrane to the Tigers.

Navin borrowed the $100,000 to make the deal. That's how much faith he had in Cochrane, the proven player but untried manager. Navin gave him the go-head signal, and Mickey proceeded to write a colorful, romantic chapter in modern baseball history.

Cochrane was "on the spot" when he came to Detroit.

No Detroit player or manager ever was given so much publicity. Detroit, hungry for a dramatic team after years of drab, half-hearted baseball, set the stage for a $100,000 ball player-manager, and from the start of the training season Detroit fans took it for granted that Cochrane was the Tigers' "man of destiny."

Cochrane liked being "on the spot." Given the managership of the Tigers at a time when baseball in the Motor City was at an all-time low, he imparted color and life and glamour to the game. Detroit, long termed one of the country's best sports centres, took Mickey to heart and roared him a mighty welcome and Mickey didn't let the fans down.

Free Shot Rule Adopted In Coast League Several Years Ago.

JACK ADAMS CLAIMS.

DETROIT, Oct. 1.—The penalty shot rule adopted by the National Hockey League is not new.

It was part of the playing code in the Pacific Coast League some years ago, according to Jack Adams, who played out there and favored its adoption in the National loop

Frank Patrick and Lester Patrick are credited with its introduction on the coast. The penalty provides that any player tripped or otherwise roughly interferred with in attempting to shoot a goal will be permitted a free shot.

Before Boston Bruins come here to open the season, November 11, Adams' biggest task will be to find a goalkeeper to take the place of Wilfred Cude, last year's sensational net-minder who will be with the Canadiens this coming season.

Stratford Reaches O.B.A.A. Final Round

STRATFORD, Oct. 1 (C.P.). — Stratford Nationals captured the semi-final O.B.A.A. senior series from Niagara Falls Cataracts on Saturday by handing the visitors a 4-3 defeat. Nats won the first game in the Falls on Wednesday, 6 to 4.

The two-straight win for Nats gave them the right to meet Toronto G. & W. Grads in the final series for the Ontario senior amateur baseball crown. Grads eliminated Peterborough in two straight to enter the final.

CHAPTER 53

Farley, packing Joan's trunks in hectic haste at the hotel in Barcelona, had come upon the wedding dress.

She has gone to her mistress, "Do you want to take it with you?"

To Joan, the lovely gown had seemed like the ghost of a dead dream. She remembered what Giles had said, "I should like to tear it to tatters." Well, the dream was torn to tatters——

She said, a sharp note of pain in her voice: "I don't care what you do with it, Farley. So that I never see it again."

Farley, being thrifty, had taken the gown back to the famous dressmaker, who, knowing a good customer, had been gracious. "We can use it in the trousseau of a bride who has ordered from Australia. Yet it is a pity your lady is not to wear it. And that she is not to marry monsieur. He seemed charming."

Farley had asked, with some surprise, "You saw him?"

"When mademoiselle came for the last fitting—yes."

Farley, puzzled, had asked Joan when she went back to her, "Did Mr. Hallam ever go when you had a fitting?"

"No."

"Monsieur spoke of the last fitting and of a man with you."

"I met Mr. Armiger . . ."

Joan was not quite sure how she felt about Giles. At times she blamed him for his interference—but this, she knew, was in her weaker moments. She had no wish to see him. She wanted nothing but to get away from this strange world of shadows, and find reality, somewhere.

She did not know where she would find it. She only knew that she would hide herself for a time in the old house in Baltimore. She had written to Penelope, "I can't even come to you, my dear, just now. The moor and the sea and the mists would speak to me of things that happened a year ago. My love for Drew is dead. But the old dream—hurts. I wonder if you understand what I mean?"

Yet when they arrived in Baltimore, the frigidity of the old house almost frightened her. It was spring and there were warm breezes blowing, yet the coldness and emptiness of the big rooms were not tempered by them. "It is dreadful, Farley," Joan said, when they were upstairs, "I don't see how I am going to stand it."

Held in Farley's comforting arms, she sobbed like a child. "Nothing lasts, dear lamb," said the wise old woman, "there isn't any pain that time won't heal. And you know you've done the right thing."

In the ten days that followed Joan fought her battle of loneliness, and won. She knew the very moment that peace came to her soul. It was on a night early in June when she dreamed again that dream of the man with the cloud back of him, his hand upraised, the wind blowing his hair. She had waked to find the moonlight streaming into her room. It showed on a shelf above the fireplace, the little ship that Giles had sent her. She had often wondered why he had sent it. But now she knew. She had been headed for the rocks, and he had wanted to save her. That was what he had once said, that she was a little ship . . . He had tried to help her make safe harbor.

And suddenly she felt that she was safe, because of what Giles had done for her. He had asked nothing for himself. He had not even written. But he had sent the ship!

She fell asleep quietly after that, and when she waked in the morning, it was to a new world—a world no longer tempestuous — nor shadowed with doubts. She could not have told what had made the difference. She only knew that the old dream was dead and the ache of it gone.

She wrote at once to Penelope. "May I come? And may I leave Farley behind and help you with the work? I want to tie on your big aprons, Penelope, and busy myself in your big old kitchen. And are Muffet's kittens all grown up? And are the children still missing me?"

She had talked it over with Farley. "You won't mind, will you, if I leave you here?" And Farley had said, "I know you'll come back to me, and I don't fit in up there with Mrs. Sears. And if you are happy, my lamb, nothing else will matter, my lamb, nothing else will matter."

So Joan went back to the house on the bluff, and to the moor and the sea. She went back, too, to the simple friends who loved her—to the little children, and to old John Leonard and his wife, and to Evelyn.

But most of all, she went back to Penelope, whose strength and sanity were a tonic for her tired nerves. It was Penelope who planned the days for her. There were no other people in the house. Joan had insisted that she would pay all that Penelope would receive if there were other boarders and that they must be alone. She and Penelope did all the work. Joan, rising early, would ride alone on the moor. Sometimes as she rode in the fog, there would be a shadowy figure beside her—a figure like a king . . . But she would shake off the illusion and ride on and on until the shadowy figure fled.

Every day, she bathed in the sea and walked in the wood, and visited the neighbors, and came back to help Penelope with the supper—"Your scrambled eggs, Penelope, I'm simply ravenous—and the tomatoes in the garden are luscious for a salad."

Muffet's kittens were in the lank and lean stage which comes between puff-ball infancy and sleek maturity. They followed Joan everywhere, and were imps of mischief. She fed them and fed the chickens and the doves, and every night Muffet went upstairs with her, and slept on a cushion on the window-sill, and waked her in the morning with a velvet paw and purring presence.

So the days went on—days of serene and quiet living. And it was on one of those days that Joan found herself reading the letter which had come to her in Spain, the letter from Giles Armiger which Farley had found on the floor and had laid away in Joan's desk.

She had discovered it among some papers in a parcel which Farley had put in her trunk. She read it and read it again. Its sentences came to her as freshly as if she had never heard them before:

My dear . . . you are always that in my heart . . . and now that I can say that I love you . . . and you will know I have the right to say it . . . If you are to be happy, love will mean for you constancy . . . gentle living . . . a God in your little home . . . May I come to you, Joan? I could still your yeart as Hallam has not stilled it . . . don't you know this is true? Don't you?

But she had not known it! She laid the letter down and sat looking out of the window. Under her hand the letter seemed a living thing. So Giles had spoken . . . and she had not listened . . .

Yet, in spite of her silence, he had not forsaken her. He had watched over her, protected her by his tenderness, and in the end he had saved her.

She knew now from what she had been saved. Withdrawn from the glamor of Drew's presence, she was aware poignantly of his weaknesses—adventurer, philanderer, what hope could she have had for the future with a man of such a present and such a past?

As she laid Giles' letter away, she told herself that some day he would come to her. She was not sure when it would be, but he would surely come.

But as the summer slipped by she had no word from him, she wondered why? Surely he was still her friend? She thought of writing to him, but dared not. Suppose he had changed . . . all men changed . . . and forgot . . .

Yet she was not unhappy. She spent much time with the children—with young John Alden and Priscilla, and with their little friends and neighbors whom she had taught to dance.

They danced on the beach during the summer—mermen and sea maids, nymphs and Neptunes, gay as grigs and looking upon Joan as a fairy princess.

There came a day late in August when there was to be a picnic on the sands, with the children to dance afterwards to the thin music of reed pipes and the deep bass blasts of conch shells.

Joan, helping Penelope beforehand to get the lunch ready, was tied up in a big apron. As she buttered slices of bread, she said, suddenly, "If Drew could see me now."

"You are still thinking of him, my dear?" Penelope, who was frying chickens, turned from the stove to ask the question.

"Yes. He hated things like this. He wanted me to be a grand lady with my head in the air." She was smiling.

Penelope gave her a keen glance. "You can laugh over it, Joan?"

"Oh, yes. And why shouldn't I wear big aprons and butter bread for sandwiches? I did it for years. And I am the same Joan, even if Aunt Adelaide did leave me more money that I know what to do with."

Saved Months of Suffering

By Taking Dodd's on Friend's Advice

"I am 33 years old, married and have five children," writes Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Strafford-ville, Ont. "My feet and limbs were so badly swollen I was unable to wear my shoes. I suffered with terrible headaches and had no appetite. I finally took a friend's advice and got two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. When I had taken them the swelling had gone down and I felt a great difference in every way. Dodd's Kidney Pills have saved me months of suffering. I also find them excellent for the children." D3

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, October 2

A day of difficult, complicated and probably frustrating conditions and events is the augury based on the dominant lunar and mutual aspects. It will be a day in which it will be hard to surmount perplexing, adverse and devastating situations, or to resist a sudden and disruptive force. Change, travel, disputes and loss as well as denied ambitions seems to conspire to defeat and disrupt. Sign writings cautiously and be alert to fraud and deception. Home ties comfort and compensate.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden and quite unexpected change in the affairs, with possible travel and new affiliations. These may be attended by complications, confusion and doubt, with some elements of conspiracy, or fraudulent methods. Loss, disputes, trouble with writings and disappointed ambitions may be in store but happy compensations will be found in the personal affiliations.

A child born on this day may be talented, enterprising, adventurous and ambitious but may encounter many obstacles to its high success. Extravagance, indulgence and "cleverness" may prove a defeating force.

LIBERAL LADIES IN ASSOCIATION

Large Organization Meeting is Held at Hastings With Mrs. Hay Chairman.

FINE ADDRESS.

HASTINGS Sept. 29. (By Examiner Correspondent).—A ladies' Liberal Association was formed in Hastings at a large and enthusiastic meeting held in the Town Hall on Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. N. Morrison of Campbellford, county organizer, was the guest speaker.

Mrs. G. L. Hay was elected chairman of the meeting and Mrs. T. A. Walsh secretary. Mrs. Morrison gave a very interesting address on Liberalism, after which Mrs. Hay read the constitution and the rules governing a ladies' association.

There was some very keen balloting for the election of the different officers. Mrs. Agnes Dunlap was elected president after Mrs. T. A. Walsh, who was the unanimous choice of the meeting, declined the office. Miss C. Doxsee is vice-president and Mrs. T. A. Walsh secretary-treasurer. These ladies will hold office until March 1st, 1935.

No. 1 ward—Mrs. T. A. Walsh was elected unanimously.

No. 1A Ward—Mrs. Agnes Dunlay and Mrs. G. L. Hay were even. Mrs. Hay withdrawing in favor of Mrs. Dunlay.

No 2 ward had four nominees—Mrs. J. J. Collins, Mrs. J. F. Jones, Miss F. German and Miss C. Doxsee. When the ballots were counted Miss Doxsee was ahead.

The ladies were instructed to get in touch with Miss M. Rooney of Cobourg, county president, if they needed any assistance.

A hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Morrison was moved by Mrs. T. A. Walsh and seconded by Mrs. A. White.

During her visit to Hastings, Mrs. Morrison was the guest of Mrs. T. A. Walsh.

In the evening the men held a special Liberal meeting in the Council Chambers and appointed their officers for the different wards.

Ward No. 1—Chairman, H. G. Fairman; vice-chairman, Walter Whitred; secretary, J. C. Wilson.

No. 1A—A. B. Smith, J. F. McCarthy, William Whitred.

No. 2—J. L. Doherty, J. F. Jones, Walter Buck.

CANADIAN CORPORATIONS PAY $11,000,000 IN DIVIDENDS

September Disbursements Show Improvement—First Nine Months Yield Big Increase Over Same Period Last Year—Oil Stocks Responsible.

By A. D. O'HALLORAN.
Central Press Canadian Financial Writer.

TORONTO, Oct. 1.—Improvement in general conditions in the Dominion, as reflected by dividend payments, is again evident in the September dividends to the stockholders of Canadian corporations. Total distributions, as estimated from official declarations, for September, 1934, fall below the estimates for similar months of 1933 and 1932, but the decrease is entirely due to the policy of Imperial Oil and International Petroleum in making payments semi-annually instead of quarterly as in former years. In September 1933 and 1932, these companies made distributions to their stockholders in excess of $7,000,000, and, after adjustment on this basis, the September, 1934, total is about $3,000,000 above that of a year ago, and $1,000,000 greater than that of two years ago.

Total dividends paid in September, 1934, as estimated from official declarations by Bongard and Company, members of the Toronto Stock Exchange, amounted to $11,281,780, compared with $15,213,556 in September, 1933, and $16,274,030 in September, 1932. The accumulated total for the first nine months of 1934 shows a substantial increase over similar months of the two previous years, $130,267,219 against $102,823,692 in 1933 and $122,678,592 in 1932.

Favorable action during the month outweighed unfavorable. Reductions in dividend rate were confined to a couple of financial institutions, while several industrial and mining companies increased rates, paid bonuses, resumed dividends, or made initial distributions. Photo Engravers and Electrotypers Limited resumed dividends after a lapse of more than two years, and Thayers Limited made an initial distribution on the common stock. International Nickel increased the quarterly rate from 10 to 15 cents a share, and bonuses, in addition to regular dividends, were distributed by Lake Shore Mines, Falconbridge Nickel Siscoe Gold Mines, International Proprietaries and Bonded Corporation.

Following are dividend payments by Canadian Corporations in September, compiled by Bongard & Company, members of the Toronto Stock Exchange:

ROOSEVELT CONTINUES PLANNING FOR RATIFICATION OF SEAWAY

Claims Recent Events Only Deepen Interest in Seeing Project Started.

POINTS TO POWER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1 (CP) — Further indication President Franklin D. Roosevelt plans to renew his efforts to secure ratification of the St. Lawrence Treaty project with Canada was revealed here to-day.

The President, in a telegram sent to Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, of Milwaukee, said that "recent events have served only to confirm my interest in and hopes for the development of deep sea navigation between the Great Lakes and the Atlantic Ocean."

"I am strongly for the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Seaway which, in addition to providing the United States with a great international highway for shipping, will give us a fourth yardstick in the power development projects already started by the Government on the Colorado and Columbia Rivers and in the Tennessee Valley," he said. "The St. Lawrence should be the fourth."

Simultaneously it was learned developments of the American side of the St. Lawrence Valley in a program similar to that being carried forward in the Tennessee Valley under the direction of the Roosevelt administration is projected by the New York State Power Authority.

Plan Inspection

Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the New York Authority, and his fellow trustees will tour the Tennessee Valley from next Friday until Monday. In a letter to David E. Lilienthal, Director of the T.V.A., Mr. Walsh lauded the T.V.A. for "showing the way" to lower electric rates, electrification of rural regions and establishment of "a more stable relationship between agriculture and industry."

It has been suggested from sources connected with the Power Authority that the President may seize the opportunity to bring the St. Lawrence project forward as an essential part of his national program for power and waterway development.

Drew's Statement.

Col. Drew was advised by newspapermen of the Attorney-General's disclosure and then himself prepared a statement:

"The Attorney-General's only reply to my specific charges is to charge me with 'the manners of a boor or the venom of a traducer,' because I published certain statements without first taking them up with him," he declared.

"Expressions of this kind only reflect on his own sense of decency, when it is recalled that the reason for the publication of my statement was the removal from my files of copies of certain correspondence and memoranda and also the fact that I had been unable to see him for two months, and unable to get any reply from him to two letters which I have written to him. Further attempts to deal with him as a man who had even the most elementary idea of business ethics would obviously have been absurd.

"Mr. Roebuck's statement that I asked for a reconsideration of his letter requesting my resignation is another deliberate falsehood. The letter speaks for itself. I merely asked for an explanation of the thinly-veiled insult conveyed in his vague suggestion that my work had not been efficient.

"Mr. Roebuck says he knows absolutely nothing of the disappearance of the document to which I refer.

Unheard of Case.

"I do not believe that statement, as I am satisfied he knows quite well the case to which I refer. On two occasions I was asked to reconsider refusals of registration, something that had never occurred before in the time that I have been in this position.

"In the case in question, his one time partner, Mr. E. A. R. Newson, was acting for the application. I wrote at some length to Mr. Newson, explaining why registration could not be granted. Mr. Newson then apparently recognizing the Attorney General's attitude that he thought he was in a position to dictate to me what I should do, consulted the Attorney General.

"When I was requested to reconsider the matter, I wrote a long memorandum to the Attorney General, setting out the dangerous and chequered experience of the man in question in selling securities, and pointing out that it had been necessary for us to take action in regard to this man's activities on numerous occasions.

"The Attorney General seemed to show considerable interest in this case, as he next got the ordinary copies both of my memorandum and my letter to Mr. Newson off my file. The statement then came to my filing room that these had been lost and the second copies, we always keep were sent down to his office on Aug. 17, with the assurance they would be returned immediately. They have not yet been returned. It was the discovery of this fact last Friday that precipitated my action."

"Mr. Roebuck makes the amazing statement that he has seen signs of approaching public disaster in the Securities Commission, but nevertheless has not "in consequence attempted to interfere with his (Drew's) administration. I have been in the position of an onlooker while Mr. Drew pursued his literary and speaking career.'

Astonishing Statement

"Surely this is the most astonishing statement this astonishing man has yet made. As legal adviser of the Government he has sat on as an onlooker seeing approaching disaster and never once called me to tell me about the threatening storm.

"There is no use mincing words; one or the other is not telling the truth. Mr. Hepburn says it had been decided some time ago to dismiss me as an economy move. Mr. Roebuck says I am to be replaced because of inefficiency. The two statements cannot be reconciled, and I believe that of Mr. Hepburn. If Mr. Hepburn's statement is correct, Mr. Roebuck has sought to besmirch the reputation of a public servant by deliberate falsehood."

Col. Drew ended his statement by saying his quarrel was with Mr. Roebuck alone, and that he had received courteous treatment from other members of the Cabinet with whom he had come in contact.

Mr. Roebuck, informed of Col. Drew's statement, said he was "not very much concerned what Col. Drew says or thinks," and reiterated a previous intention not to enter into any further controversy on the matter.

BIRRELL MINES ARE ERECTING BUILDING

Property Be Brought Into Production Rapidly as Possible.

A progress report just received by shareholders, indicates that Birrell Gold Mines is systematically carrying out a plan of development to bring the property into production as rapidly as possible.

A haulage roadway will be completed this week that will permit the taking in of building and heavy plant equipment.

Plans and material specifications have now been completed for new buildings as follows: Bunkhouse and cookery to accommodate thirty-five men; power house, blacksmith shop and change house; stable; pump-house and powder storage house. The erection of these buildings will proceed in the order named and work will be begun on them next week. It is expected their construction will be completed in six weeks' time.

Birrell Gold is located in a district of large ore bodies—a fact that lends itself to safer mining practice. Beattie Gold Mines, to the north, is running 1,000 tons per day, averaging $6.50 per ton. Noranda, to the east, is running 5,500 tons per day and producing $8-9,000,000 in gold per year, exclusive of copper and silver. Arntfields, south of Birrell, is putting in a 250-ton unit as part of their milling plant. Arntfield ore will average $7 to $8, according to latest report and in some places the ore-body is up to 60 feet wide. Birrell Gold Mines has every indication of large tonnage for big mine-making possibilities. The ore-zone has been proven for 1,600 feet, with both ends open and mineralization at surface varies from 10 to 25 feet wide, with the last drill hole to the east showing 90 feet of mineralization in the core.

Birrell Gold expects to duplicate the experience of some of the other large mines in the Noranda section of Quebec.

DISMISSED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—(AP) — The United States supreme court opened its fall term today by dismissing one of the five cases in which the constitutionality of the new deal is involved—that seeking to punish East Texas oil men on a charge of producing more than the quota allotted them by that state.

The fourth charge is alleged theft of $1,200, the property of His Majesty the King, and is said to be fines paid during a certain period.

Inspector Gurnett was accompanied to the hospital by Detective Sergeant William McCullough of the local detective force. After the warrants had been read, Inspector Gurnett left the hospital and Detective McCullough remained at the bedside of Mr. Judd.

Mr. Sedgwick said bail would likely be applied for at once to permit the removal of the officer from the hospital room. Owing to Mr. Judd's present condition he did not believe the attorney would be taken from the hospital.

"Although Mr. Judd is now improving from his recent accident, he is not believed to be in any condition to be removed from hospital at present," said Mr. Sedgwick.

"I was indeed sorry to have to issue the warrants for the arrest of Mr. Judd," he stated, adding: "He has been a personal friend of mine for some time, but I had to carry out the orders of the Department."

CONTINUATION SCHOOL FIELD DAY REAL SUCCESS AT MILLBROOK

Mary Burnham, Kae Smith Win Girls' Medals—O. McCarthy, R. Edmunds, Boys.

LOCALS LOSE AT BALL.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 1 (Examiner Corespondence). — Apparently the only disappointing feature of the Continuation School Field Day, held at the Agricultural Park on Friday, beginning at 2 p.m., was the comparatively small number of parents and other citizens interested enough to attend.

The weather was perfect for the event, and its marked success was the outcome of efficient planning on the part of the Faculty—Miss C. E. Duncanson, B.A., Miss D. H. Bannister, B.A., and Mr. Danike Fennell, B.A.; a willing co-operation on the part of the school board; and keen interest and competition on the part of the pupils.

Silver medals were offered for first prize winners, and bronze for second, while ribbons—red, blue, and white, adorning the sweaters of competitors denoted the standing attained. The events and winners follow:

Obituary

HUGH GILLEN

(Examiner Correspondence)

MARMORA, Oct. 1—The village of Marmora mourned on Saturday the passing of Hugh Gillen who for two periods extending many years was its dutiful policeman.

Other occupations of a life that throughout exhibited an industrious nature were those of a shantyman, carpenter and teamster. In recent years too, added to his police duties were those of Town Hall and Memorial Hall janitor. The deceased was a man of many tastes, in the gratification of which he was decidedly unselfish.

He loved children and had a way of appealing to the mischievous inclined that counted for much. He was interested in any local team that contributed to the realm of sport and was a staunch believer in fair play. He enjoyed robust health until January of this year when he complained of feeling unwell at times. About three months ago, he was admitted to Belleville Hospital for an operation for an internal disorder. After spending seven weeks there he returned to his home in the hopes of recuperating to undergo a further operation but he gradually weakened until the end.

The late Mr. McGillen was born in Port Kennedy, Montgomery County, Pennsylvania on Oct. 22, 1862, the son of James and Ellen Gillen.

He is survived by his widow and three daughters, Mrs. James Wilson, Campbellford; Mrs. John Doyle, Marmora township and Miss Ida at home. He is further survived by one sister, Mrs. Abe Smith, Marmora, three half brothers, Harry and Daniel Fraser of Ardmore, Pa. and William Fraser of Pennfield, Pa. and two half sisters, Mrs. Peter Kelly Ardmore, Pa. and Mrs. Joseph Kelly, Pennfield, Pa. He was a devout member of the Roman Catholic Church. The funeral left his late residence on Monday for Requiem Mass in the Sacred Heart Church at 9 a.m. with interment taking place in the adjoining cemetery.

MRS. BEATRICE ABEL.

Peterborough County lost a highly esteemed friend in the passing of Beatrice May Norman, widow of James Abel, here Sunday morning.

Mrs. Abel was the daughter of George Norman and Emma Bradley, and spent some years in the vicinity of Norwood before coming to Peterborough. Of a quiet and charitable nature, she made a host of friends. Two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Morrison of Norwood and Lillian Abel, R.N., of this city, will mourn her passing. One siser, Mrs. James Tharby, of Norwood, and two brothers also remain.

During her residence in Norwood, she was a members of St. Paul's Church and, after coming to Peterborough, she joined the congreation of St. Peter's Cathedral. She was a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Resting at the Duffus Funeral Parlors until this afternoon, the remains will be taken to the home of her sister, Mrs. Tharby, Belmont street, Norwood, from where the funeral will proceed to St. Paul's Church at 9 a.m. Tuesday morning. Interment will be made in St. Paul's Cemetery.

Lad Killed In Fall Picking Beech-Nuts

WALKERTON, October 1 (C.P.). —Serious injuries received when he fell some 15 feet from a tree while out beechnut hunting with two other young companions, Howard and Catherine Kramer, on Saturday afternoon, Gerald Blyth, nine-year-old son of Ernie Blyth and Mrs. Blyth, died on Sunday at the Bruce County Hospital. Besides serious injuries to his side and body, the young lad had practically all the teeth knocked out in the fall.

GRANDMOTHERS ARE HONORED

PLAN CEMETERY CLEAN-UP

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 1 (Examiner Correspondence). — Grandmother's Day was observed at the September meeting of Seymour West Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. George Anderson with an attendance of 50, including eleven grandmothers.

Mrs. Walter Brunton presided at the organ. The roll call, "An Historical Event of Our Own Community." A number of antiques such as a butter bowl, a silk handkerchief and a Paisley shawl said to be nearly one hundred years old. Considerable discussion was taken up regarding the cleaning of Clark's and West's cemeteries, and it was decided to start the work in the near future. The Institute will finance the project and will also gratefully accept any donation. It was decided to send members to the Belleville convention on October 9th and 10th. The committee for transportation is Mrs. G. Curle and Mrs. Howard Clark.

The grandmothers had their pictures taken on the lawn, each grandmother will receive a picture.

Miss Reta Longmuir sang an appropriate number, "Darling, I Am Growing Old," accompanied on the organ by Mrs. W. Bunton. Mrs. Charles Macoun gave an interesting address, "It is better to wear out than rust out." Mrs. M. Ctephens gave a reading on "Grandma." Mrs. George Longmuir and Mrs. H. Thompson gave a demonstration on picking and carding wool. A contest, "Guessing the number of beans in a jar" was for grandmother's only, and was won by Mrs. G. V. Orser. The oldest and youngest grandmothers were each presented with a beautiful bouquet—Mrs. A. Rutherford and Mrs. H. Clark.

Flowers were also sent to a number of grandmothers who were unable to attend.

Mrs. George Longmuir, assisted by Mrs. Charlie Macoun were responsible for the afternoon's program. These same two ladies wore dresses of old style, and brought forth much applause. Dainty refreshments were served.

NORWOOD COPS MAJOR HONORS

Captures Five Out of Eight Games in Trent Valley Bowling League.

ON NORWOOD GREENS.

HASTINGS, Oct. 1. (By Examiner Correspondent).—Hastings completed their games in the Trent Valley Bowling League on Friday night when Norwood won five out of eight games played on Norwood greens. Hastings transferred their four home games to Norwood as the local greens are being fixed up. 'Cap' Dean gave the veteran Dr. Sutton a tough battle for eight ends, only to have Sutton pull off a three in the ninth and one in the tenth to win out, 11 to 7.

Huycke had little difficulty defeating Kempt, 13 to 8. The winner took the first four ends to gain a seven point lead, which proved too big a handicap for the Norwood rink.

Lynch and Careton put up a close game, the former getting a pair of fours and a three, only to have Carleton by consistent bowling, square the count on the last end, Lynch winning out in the extra end, 15 to 13.

Gunstone pulled off a four on the third end to take the lead against Wellman and win out, 9 to 6. The Hastings rinks were coupled as Huycke and Dean, Lynch and Wellman.

In the last half of the night's play Dean was easy for Kempt, the former getting only four of the ten ends to lose out, 15 to 5.

Huycke forced Sutton into an extra end before losing to him, 10 to 8. Considerable discussion was raised in this game on the last end when the "kitty" was knocked over the ditch.

Father Comes From Korea For Wedding of Daughter

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (C.P.) — Dr. Robert Grierson of Sung Jin, Korea, was here to-day for the wedding of his fourth daughter, Hazel. Three others had been married, but he had to be content with a written account of the ceremony. Hazel, however, waited a year for the wedding so her father would be home on furlough.

For 35 years Dr. Grierson has lived in Korea. He sent his children to Canada to be educated and here they married. The groom today was Franklin Henry Hall, son of Mrs. V. Hall and the late Edwin B. Hall of Toronto.

JELLICOE.—With the most promising tracts of land in the Sturgeon River gold area all staked by optimistic prospectors and fortune-seekers, interest is gradually turning further westward to the shores of Lake Nipigon. More than 4,000 claims have been staked in the Sturgeon area since the first of the year, over a stretch of land 16 miles wide and some 56 miles long from Little Long Lac to Lake Nipigon.

31 GUN SALUTE GIVEN NEW ROYAL INDIAN NAVY

BOMBAY, Oct. 2. (C.P. via Reuters).—A salute of 31 guns fired by the new navy to-day inaugurated the Royal Indian Navy supplanting the Royal Indian Marine from which it has been built up over a period of years.

Vice-Admiral Sir Humphrey Walwyn presided over the ceremonies held in the dockyard here in the presence of high-ranking naval and military officers and consular representatives.

He read His Majesty's approval of the new designation. The new force will be regulated by the British Naval Discipline Act, as in the case of the naval forces of the Dominions.

The service includes a number of mine-sweeping sloops, survey ships, patrol boats and a depot ship.

SAY $1,500 PAID LAWYER FOLEY FOR DETECTIVE

Hush Money for Spyer Said to Have Seen Them in Hotel With Women.

FRIEND INVOLVED.

Mr. X Claims He Delivered Cash to Foley and Obtained Receipt.

LONDON, Ont., October 2. (C.P.). — Preliminary hearing of charges of conspiracy and theft against Vincent T. Foley, London lawyer, and Mrs. Mae Turnbull, reached the adjournment period to-day after two complainants had testified they had paid Foley $1,500 to ensure silence of a "detective" said to have seen them in a hotel with two women.

A London police detective said the "detective" was an automobile mechanic who had been working for Foley, while Mr. X, a friend of Mr. B. and Mr. C., described his function as messenger in delivering the money to Foley and obtaining a receipt.

Mr. B's Evidence.

Mr. B. was the first witness. He said he met Mrs. Mae Turnbull at a hotel during May, 1933. He said Mr. C. had done previous business with Mrs. Turnbull, and she wanted to do more business. "There were five of us present in the room and we had a drink before one of the men excused himself and went home," he said. "The woman with Mrs. Turnbull said she did not like the liquor. I told her I had a bottle in my room and she told me I had better get it. I got the bottle and returned to the other room, after staying in my room about five minutes. We left the hotel about half an hour later.

E. F. Palmer To Head O.A.C. Horticulture

GUELPH, Ont., October 2 (C.P.).—First definite announcement in connection with reorganization at the Ontario Agricultural College came to-day when Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, stated that E. F. Palmer, for the last 15 years head of the Experimental Station at Vineland, has been appointed head of the Department of Horticulture at the College. He succeeds Prof. A. H. MacLennan, who has been in charge of the work for some years and the appointment serves the added purpose of co-ordinating the work at Vineland, where he will remain in charge and at Guelph.

Reorganization affecting at least 25 persons became effective to-day Hon. Mr. Marshall said, in pointing out that a saving of $100,000 has been achieved. Prof. J. C. Steckley who has been transferred from his post as head of the Department of Animal Husbandry to the position of agricultural representative in Brant County, has not yet been replaced, but the Department is now looking for an outstanding man to fill this position, the Minister said.

Carol May Postpone Trip To London, Paris

By JAMES A. MILLS

VIENNA, Oct. 2. (AP).—Dispatches to Vienna newspapers to-day said King Carol of Rumania has decided to postpone his proposed trip to Paris and London until December.

No reason was given for this change of plans, but diplomats here conjectured that Carol's supposed decision was based on the presence in Europe of the King's former private secretary, Puiu Dimitrescu, who once threatened to reveal to foreign newspapers the details of King Carol's friendship with Madame Magda Lupescu.

It was recalled that Dimitrescu's father, who is a well-known general and the former chief of the Rumanian General Darmerie, is facing courtmartial for alleged misappropriation of government funds.

Drew Fired When He Drew Fire

Col. Geo. A. Drew, $10,000-a-year security frauds commissioner for Ontario, drew down such governmental fire when he publicly accused Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck with not only failure to co-operate, but with removing letters from his (Drew's) files that Roebuck called for a special cabinet meeting and Col. Drew's appointment was withdrawn. Before the firing was done, many harsh words were passed back and forth in the battle royal, among which were "falsehood," "ignorance," "venom of traducer," "ungentlemanly" and many other invectives calculated to arouse the ire of the participants.

IRISH FARMERS TOLD TO GROW EXTRA WHEAT

If Cajoling Fails De Valera's Government Will Try Coercion.

LAND MAY BE SEIZED.

$50,000 Voted for Propaganda—Unpatriotic to Let Land Stand Idle.

By Joseph Dennigan
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

DUBLIN, Oct. 2 (C.P.). — Irish farmers must grow more wheat. If cajoling fails, Eamon de Valera's government will try coercion. A cajoling campaign is now in full swing, the Dail having voted $50,000 for propaganda.

Every one of the 1,600 political clubs in the Fianna Fail Party will pull its weight in the big drive to convince farmers that it is unpatriotic to allow land to lie fallow, and behind the campaign is the veiled threat that landowners who fail to do their part will be deprived of their holdings.

Under a new scheme of rating relief coming into operation at the instance of the department of local government, rebates will be allowed to farmers in their taxes corresponding to the number of adult male persons they have on their farms.

High Price Assured.

The newly-instituted propaganda campaign lays emphasis on the protection of the home market for wheat, estimated as worth $17,000,000 to the farmers. Every barrel of millable wheat grown at home will be assured of a market at a guaranteed price of $6 per barrel—much higher than the world price. The guaranteed price may not be changed except by giving two years' notice to growers.

In 1932 Free State farmers grew only 20,000 acres of wheat. This year they seeded 90,000. The Government is impatient with the delay and says that at the present rate of progress it would take 80 years to reach the 800,000 acres required for the home market. Before the repeal of the corn laws in England, Ireland grew 600,000 acres of wheat but the importation of cheap wheat grown on the virgin soils of North America, particularly Canada, killed the Irish trade almost overnight. This is the Government's answer to critics who say that the Irish climate is unsuitable for the crop.

PICCARD AIMING AT 19 MILES UP

New Balloon to be Higher Than Notre Dame Cathedral, 223 Feet.

TO WEAR PARACHUTES.

PARIS, Oct. 2.—(AP)—A balloon higher than the cathedral of Notre Dame and with a capacity of 113,000 cubic metres (147,000 cubic yards) when fully inflated will be used by Prof. August Piccard in his next stratosphere flight, he says in a copyright article in the newspaper Le Journal.

Prof. Piccard estimated the balloon would reach a record-breaking height of 19 miles. It will weigh more than a ton and will have an aluminum gondola, shaped like a diving bell.

The Belgian scientist and his aide will carry parachutes and the gondola will be fitted with two manholes, enable them to leap quickly if necessary.

Such a balloon would easily be the largest ever constructed. The cathedral of Notre Dame is 223 feet high at the summit of the South Tower.

CASE TIGHTENS AS HAUPTMAN CHANGES STORY

Said He Was Home Night of Kidnapping—Now Claims He Was in N. York.

COUPLE THERE DENY IT.

Give Police Valuable Information in Activities of Suspect and Friends.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2. (AP). — District Attorney Samuel J. Foley left his office shortly before 10 am. to-day for Trenton, N.J., to confer with Governor A. Harry Moore on the Lindbergh kidnap case.

The Bronx prosecutor said before leaving by automobile for the conference that he still regarded the extortion case against Hauptmann in the Bronx as "iron clad."

William Dreissigacre described as an intimate friend of the prisoner, was ordered to return for questioning to-day after an interview that lasted until half an hour after midnight last night.

Dreissigacre said he had known Hauptmann since 1931, described the prisoner as "always thrifty", pronounced him a "nice fellow" and said he thought him innocent of any part in the Lindbergh kidnapping.

The Mystery Woman.

The star said in a story by Rex Collier that one of the witnesses was understood to be the so-called "mystery woman" with whom District Attorney Samuel Foley of the Bronx has held a number of private conferences. The other is her husband.

The paper added:

"Questioned as to his whereabouts on the night of the ransom payment, the stolid German carpenter, after some hesitation, said he had spent all that day and night at the home of a certain couple in New York city.

"Previously he had declared he was working in New York city as a carpenter on the day of the actual kidnapping, March 1, 1932, and that he spent that evening at his home in the Bronx. Mrs. Hauptmann corroborated these statements.

BRITISH PLANE CHANNEL CRASH CLAIMS 7 LIVES

Bodies Picked Up by Steamer Three Miles Off Folkestone.

TWO VICTIMS WOMEN.

Explosion Suspected — SOS Reported Earlier From Unknown Craft.

FOLKESTONE, Eng., Oct. 2. (AP) An aeroplane with seven occupants crashed into the misty English Channel only three miles from shore to-day on a projected flight to Le Bourget Airfield, France, killing all of them. Two of the passengers were women.

Four of the victims were English, and the others were French.

The cause of the crash probably will remain a mystery since no one witnessed it although the captain of the German cargo steamer, Leander, heard the roar of the aeroplane's engines followed shortly by the crash as the plane plunged into the sea.

Suspects Explosion

A dock official said he thought there might have been an explosion although thefe was no evidence to support his theory.

The victims were tentatively identified as follows:

De Sanno, American passenger.

Bannister, British, pilot of the plane.

Ritchie, British, passenger.

Miss Builden, British, passenger.

Mlle. Slabodsky, Paris, France passenger.

M. Bagneux, Paris, France, passenger.

H. Bordaz, Paris, France, passenger.

The cross-channel steamer Biarritz was near the scene at the time. It picked up five bodies and brought them to Folkestone.

It was learned a plane, without giving its identity, or other particulars, flashed an S.O.S. to Croydon Airdrome some time before the wreckage was found.

Later it was established that the machine belonged to a British flying company known as Hillman's Airways and had left an airdrome near Romford, in Essex, northeast of London at 10 a.m. to-day for Le Bourget Field, Paris.

Norwood Prominent In Police Court News

Commenting on the fact that most of the cases with which he was called upon to deal this morning originated at Norwood, Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell of Port Hope, presiding here in the absence of Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., asked "Is Norwood going to the bad? It always struck me as being a nice little village."

Province Assuming All Windsor Relief

WINDSOR, Oct. 2. (CP). — The entire cost of relief administration in Windsor is being assumed by the province, it was announced to-day by Relief Director J. D. Clarke. He said the announcement was authorized by J. D. Malcolm, chief inspector for the Department of Public Welfare.

While the province has been paying 100 percent of relief costs for some time the city has been paying administration costs. The action of the province will save Windsor about $45,000 a year, it is estimated. The city remains responsible for medical and hospitalization costs.

ASK COUNCIL TO REFUSE FIXING ASSESSMENTS

Ratepayers' Association Outlines Views of Fixed Assessments.

OCTOBER MEETING.

Session of the City Council Lasted Only Fifty Minutes.

In the smoothness with which the City Council last night despatched its business, it may not have set a record from the time Alderman Stocker moved that the September minutes be taken as read until the adjournment, which was probably also his motion, but the block showed only a few minutes more than three-quarters of an hour in that performance.

And at that they flicked their memories, before adjourning, to make certain that nothing had been overlooked, especially none of the memoranda referred to in the concluding phase designated in the official form of procedure as "general business."

It was a light session, but the same old chamber has witnessed many another that was strung out to midnight, producing a vast amount of the chaff of verbiage with no more, possibly not as much, weight of corn than last night.

A resolution from the Council of Niagara Falls proposed a petition to the Bank of Canada for the release of credit in the hands of banks and other financial institutions for the encouragement of building; and Kitchener wants the Government to assume a share of the cost of administering relief.

City Engineer Parsons informed the Council that 73 building permits had been issued during the month for a total estimated value of $6,536. Incidentally 63 of the permits were described as miscellaneous, accounting for $4,876.

Kitchener Police Watch For Slayer

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 2. (CP) Police Chief Hodgson said to-day that the local force is on the lookout for Merton W. Goodrich, wanted in Detroit for the slaying of little Lillian Gallagher.

"The last report we have is that he was in the north and that he might be heading this way," the chief said. "As far as a regular search is concerned, however, none has been made as yet."

Provincial police say they have "nothing definite."

DRUNKEN MEN ARE REMANDED FOR ONE WEEK

Two Transients Plead Guilty to Assaulting Constable Isaac Puffer.

VILLAGERS GIVE AID.

Men Had Been Making General Nuisance of Themselves in Norwood.

Suffering from the result of a violent assault by two drunken transients, Constable Isaac Puffer, is today confined to his home at Norwood under the care of Dr. H. G. Carleton.

His attackers given their names as Jack Cameron of Toronto, and Fred Perrin of Ottawa, today appeared before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell here, and were remanded for sentence for one week, after pleading guilty to charges of intoxication and assaulting a police officer.

Remand Asked For

In asking for a remand Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., remarked upon the fact that Constable Puffer, an aged man, was so badly injured that he wished to see what the outcome of the attack might be before sentence was passed.

Constable Puffer, who is 74 years of age, was sitting in his house yesterday afternoon when the two accused men rapped on the door and rudely demanded food and lodging. They had previously visited several other houses in the neighbourhood and had made general nuisances of themselves, it is stated.

The Constable observing that the two men were intoxicated remonstrated with them, and the men then became violent. After Constable Puffer had withdrawn into the house, the two men are said to have thrown stones at the house and pounded at the doors.

Assaulted Officer

Intending to scare the men, Constable Puffer produced his gun, and at that point the two accused attacked the aged officer and threw him to the ground.

Mrs. Puffer was alone in the house with her 5eyear-old grandchild Barbara Brewis, and was powerless to offer assistance to her husband. The child running from the rear of the house, sought assistance at a nearby garage and the Webb brothers and other villagers rushed to the aid of the constable, and marched the attackers to the village lock-up. Later in the day Provincial Constable David Silvester took the men into custody and lodged them in the city lock-up here, pending their appearance before the magistrate.

"He is very poorly indeed", Mrs. Puffer stated to The Examiner when questioned regarding the condition of her husband. She added that she had just sent for Dr. Carleton to make another visit to her husband's bedside.

The injured man is the father of Constable Gordron Puffer of the City Police Department, and is held in wide respect.

Colored revues are still popular in London.

Hornets Stopped Church Service

During morning service at the Anglican Church in St. Andrew's, East Quebec, last Sunday, a nest of hornets descended upon the congregation, and their meditations were brought to a sudden stop, while frantic worshippers fought desperately to ward off the pests. Dignity and reverence were secondary considerations for the time being as the droning hum of hornets filled the sacred building. It seemed as if destiny propelled these instincts into a select pew, for with one accord they decided to settle down and perhaps listen to the Gospel amid the radiating influence of "The Minister's Wife." They swooped down upon her. Fourteen met their death, but one, like the rat in "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" left its mark, in a very painful sting on the thumb of the minister's wife. The remainder of the morning service was conducted in a manner befitting the most decerous worship.

Drew-Roebuck Dispute Unabated

LAWYER-AUTHOR LAYS DISMISSAL TO EX-CONVICT

Claims Attorney-General Ordered Reconsideration of Salesman's License.

HAD 12 CONVICTIONS.

Hepburn Absent When Cabinet Order-in-Council Passed Monday.

TORONTO, October 2 (C. P.). — Colonel George A. Drew, soldier-lawyer-author, is no longer Ontario's Securities Commissioner to-day, but his controversy with Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck raged on as hot as ever. The latest statement in the word-duel between the Minister and Colonel Drew was issued by the former Commissioner a few hours after his dismissal yesterday.

After ignoring the Attorney-General's request to resign, claiming Mr. Roebuck had no authority to ask it, Colonel Drew was dismissed by a Government Order-in-Council, passed by five members of the Hepburn Cabinet yesterday. Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn was not present at the meeting.

The deposed commissioner charged the Attorney-General requested his resignation shortly after Colonel Drew refused to obey Mr. Roebuck's "command" to reconsider the application of a Securities salesman with a record of 12 criminal convictions for a license under the Ontario Securities Act.

Letter From Roebuck.

The salesman, said Colonel Drew, came to his office with a letter from Mr. Roebuck, which he carried in an open envelope. The former commissioner said he presumed it was dictated in the salesman's presence.

The letter asked Colonel Drew to reconsider his decision of refusal to register the salesman. In reply the commissioner said the man had been convicted 12 times of offences ranging from theft to false pretences and had stated falsehoods in an attempt to secure registration.

"And yet Mr. Roebuck says 'I have been in the position of an onlooker,'" said Colonel Drew's statement. "If he hadn't been, it is quite evident that Mr. Roebuck would have permitted Mr. X (the salesman) to handle the savings of the public of Ontario who are seeking protection from just such men.

"These letters show how much reliance can be placed in any of Mr. Roebuck's statements and how little fitted he is to administer the Act which was placed under his control by to-day's Order-in-Council."

No Inquest Ordered Smith Falls Crash

SMITH FALLS, Ont., Oct. 2. — (C.P.)—No inquest will be held into the death of Walter O'Donnell, 26-year-old Merrickville, Ont., resident, who died in hospital here from injuries received in an automobile accident, Coroner W. A. Gray stated last night.

Police investigation revealed O'Donnell was driving a car owned by Thomas McKibbon, Merrickville, and while the owner slept beside him, O'Donnell swerved from the Kilmarnock road near here. Both were thrown into the canal and O'Donnell was rescued from the water by his companion, who then rushed the unconscious man to Smith Falls. O'Donnell was admitted to hospital, and an examination revealed a fractured skull. The accident occurred Sunday and he died a few hours later.

Tough Job

GREENVILLE, O., Oct. 2. — (CP)—Roy Weiland's job of regulating the four faces of the county courthouse clock to keep them within five minutes of each other is complicated by the pigeons which roost on the hands.

He has it reduced to something on an Algeraic equation, figuring the weight of the pigeons, multiply by the number roosting daily and nightly and then subtracting the clock's average accuracy.

The unknown quantity is whether the pigeons are riding up-dial or down-dial.

NEW LOAN SALES HIT $35,000,000

Subscription for First Day Show Offering Well Received.

QUICK RESPONSE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2 (CP)—Complete figures of public subscriptions for the first day's offering of the new $250,000,000 1934 Refunding Loan will be announced to-day. Finance Department officials were busy making compilations of returns received during the night from offices of the Receiver General at various centres across Canada.

Incomplete reports which reached the Finance Department last night indicated more than $35,000,000 had been subscribed yesterday. Officials explained the amount included only business transacted in a few of the larger centres. A heavy volume of large subscriptions of which the Department had been informed was not included in this figure. These subscriptions will not be entered formally until boards of directors and investment committees of financial and other institutions have met, it was stated.

The average investor was responding better than last year, the Finance Department said. Reports of banks and bond dealers in the nine provinces indicated the loan was being enthusiastically received both by way of cash subscriptions and conversion of old bonds, officials added.

FALL PASTURES IN FINE SHAPE

Cattle Will Enter Stables in Best Condition in Many Years.

MEANS FEED SAVING.

TORONTO, Oct. 2. (CP). — Improved pasturage has brightened the livestock situation throughout Ontario, the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture shows. Nearly every county in the province reports beneficial Fall rains that brought new growth to the pasture lands.

Huron county reports sufficient moisture to provide good pasture conditions well into the Fall, resulting in a large feed saving for the farmers. The Fall wheat crop in this area also is in good condition. Similar reports come from Lambton where farmers are busy filling their silos.

Lambton corn crop is described as the best in many years with practically every farmer in the county with plenty of corn. In the Peterborough district livestock are putting on weight and will enter their stables for the winter in better condition than for some years.

Prince Edward, Carleton, Frontenac, Grenville, Leeds and Prescott and Russell have received valuable rains for pastures and late seeding. During the last two weeks growth has been far ahead of recent months, relieving the feed situation.

BRAZILIAN LAW CREATES WOMEN EQUALS OF MEN

May Vote, Receive Same Pay, Accept Any Job in Any Walk of Life.

SNAGS IN ARGENTINE.

Voting Barred, But Coming—Uruguayans More Fortunate.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Oct. 2. — (AP) — Brazilian law says that women were created equal to men.

Women may aspire to the presidency of the republic. They may vote. They may—the constitution of July 16 says "shall"—receive pay equal to that of men for equal tasks or equal accomplishment. They may not be refused any job in any walk of life by reason of their sex, or marital status.

But even the Brazilian Federation for Feminist Progress, which won these rights for women, continues to believe in cooking, mending socks and love.

Dr. Bertha Lutz, president of the federation, said that women appreciate their right to aspire to the presidency, but do not believe a woman will attain that post soon.

Barrier of Egoism

"We would be hard put to overcome the intense barrier of masculine ambition and egoism," she said.

While personally she favors birth control, Dr. Lutz points out that Brazilian feminism, a movement in an immense and largely unpopulated land has no doctrine on the subject.

"Fascism in any form is an outcome of the war and it is an attempt to creat a civilization exclusively for men," she stated. "Italian Fascism, which I saw in 1923, did not impress me favorably.

"German Nazism removed from public life women of the highest rank, such as Gertrude Baumer and Elasabette Liders."

Vote Is Coming

BUENOS AIRES, (AP)—Except in San Juan province in the Andean foothills women of Argentina have not succeeded in winning the right to vote. But they are confident they will get it before long.

In recent years they have made an outstanding legal conquest — a law giving married women full civil rights as to property. It was one more blast at a tradition common in Latin countries which held a husband had a right to direct his wife's property and control her wealth.

Increasing numbers of women have been entering universities. Six percent of the medical students in Buenos Aires are women; 40 percent of the students of Odontology are women, while in the philosophy courses 70 percent of the students are college girls.

All Political Rights

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, (AP)—Uruguay, in area South America's smallest nation, with a population of only 2,000,000, believes it has done better by its women than any other Latin American nation.

A parliamentary act of 1932 gave to women all the political rights held by men. Uruguayan women will figure prominently in the next presidential elections, to be held in March, 1938. They will be eligible to run for any office from town clerk to the presidency.

Uruguay's program for equal rights for women started with the enactment of divorce laws 25 years ago, then revolutionary in South America. Another act did away with much of the Archaic Spanish code which reduced a wife to the role of subordinate to the will of her husband.

At a cost of $3,750,000, thousands of men are laying a cable which will put Scotland in communication with the rest of the world.

Getting Even

CHICAGO, Oct. 2. (CP)—Lee P. Fitzpatrick Sioux Falls, S.D., attorney, appeared in felony court against Miss Katherine Tanis, a fortune teller at the World's Fair.

"I was amazed at her mind reading ability when she laughingly told me I was thinking she was going to steal my watch," said Fitzpatrick.

"Outside the booth I remembered my money, found it was missing and had the fortune teller arrested."

Miss Tanis was sentenced to 15 days.

DURHAM GRITS NOMINATE MAN ON OCTOBER 31

Reeve Cecil G. Mercer is Elected President of County Association.

ELECT OFFICERS.

ORONO, Oct. 2.—Reeve Cecil G. Mercer of Hope Township was elected president of the Durham Liberal Association here yesterday, succeeding Sam Hathaway of Port Hope.

The chairman of the municipal divisions of the riding were named as follows: Lorne Giddy, Port Hope; Jack Bosnell, Hope; Harry Elson, Millbrook; Garnet Shields, Cavan; Chris. Cummiskey, Manvers; R. W. Phelp, Cartwright and John Baker, Darlington.

Bowmanville Liberals will appoint their chairman within a week. H. Mercer, Clarke Township. H. J. Thoms, Newcastle.

It was decided to hold a nominating convention for the next federal elections on October 31.

On the platform were: W. J. Bragg, M.P.P. for Durham; J. J. Duffus, Peterborough, president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association; W. A. Fraser, M.P. for Northumberland; and Hon. Nelson Parliament, Liberal organizer.

The President for 1933-34, S. B. Hatheway of Port Hope, reviewed in detail the achievements of the association during the year, the feature being the vastly increased majority which W. J. Bragg, M.P. P., obtained on June 19, a direct result of efficient organization.

Mr. W. J. Bragg eulogised S. B. Hatheway, and the executive for the part they played in his victory. He was confident that even greater success would attend the Federal candidate.

KILLED OFFICER TO SAVE HONOR

Chicago Girl Nurse Calmly Relates Struggle With Policeman in Car.

BULLET ENDS LOVE SCENE

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 — "I warned him — I warned him twice. He would not let me go. Then I fired."

In these words, Bernadine Dunning, who killed Detective Sergeant Louis Kolb with his revolver, yesterday outlined the defense on which she will depend when she goes on trial for murder.

Sergeant Kolb, married, stepfather of two children, was shot to death early yesterday in a lonely prairie near Seventy-fourth street and Irving Ave., where he and Miss Dunning, a nurse, had parked.

Controls Her Emotions

The girl spoke in a cool voice as she faced inquisitors. Without a sob she described her shattered romance. She said:

"I told him I had to go home—he said I must spend the night with him—he tried to attack me, tried to drag me out of the car—we struggled—I got his revolver—"

The man she killed was the head of a squad from the Chicago Lawn station. He was a star athlete of the police department. As an officer he had an excellent record.

RUMANIAN CABINET QUITS

BUCHAREST, Oct. 1.— (C.P.-Havas)—The government of Premier George Tatarescu resigned today and almost immediately King Carol charged him with the formation of a new cabinet.

Only a week ago the cabinet had re-inforced the decrees governing a state of siege throughout the country.

ARMY PICTURES SOVIET RUSSIA'S FORCE SUPERIOR

Claim Reds Have 3,000 Planes,, U.S. 3,000 Against Nippon's 500.

HITS ECONOMIC SYSTEM.

Future Dark With Manchukuo Border Clashes Nearing Climax.

BY GLENN BABB

TOKYO, Oct. 2.—(AP)—Japan was warned today to prepare for a possible war with Soviet Russia in a bold official pamphlet published by the army, which also said the United States has three aeroplanes to this country's one.

Concern was arounsed in civilian official quarters because the pamphlet went beyond military matters to lash Japan's present economic system.

Some asked if the army planned to attempt the establishment of a Fascist regime. Publication by the War Office Press Bureau apparently was made without the knowledge of civil government officials.

"Soviet Russia possesses 3,000 war planes, the United States 3,000 and China 500," the pamphlet asserted. "If these nations combined, the air forces of the powers surrounding Japan would total more than 6,000 planes.

"Although diplomacy can give assurance that we will meet only one enemy, we must assume that the enemy will have at least 3,000 planes. Japan has only 1,000 planes. Can our armaments be said to be complete with this poor air force?"

Frontier Trouble

"Constant trouble along the Soviet-Manchukuo frontier, the increasingly challenging attitude of the Soviets and Russia's traditional unreliability make the future of Russo-Japanese relations uncertain.

"We must develop military power and equipment sufficient to cope with any change in the situation."

The pamphlet appeared as the 1935-36 budget is being prepared. Army sources have long demanded larger defense appropriations.

Japan's economic system, continued the pamphlet, is "based on individualism, personal profit and selfishness which are not in accord with the interests of the nation and the people as a whole."

TOO TOUGH FOR THE WIDOW.

CRAWFORD, Neb., October 2 (C. P.). — The hand that puts letters in mail boxes is too tough for the deadly black widow spider, if the experience of Clarence Wheeler, Crawford mail carrier, is any criterion.

Bit in the palm while placing a letter in a box, Wheeler suffered only temporary nausea and went back to work the same day. The doctor said the thickness of the skin where the spider struck and immediate attention prevented serious illness.

What's the sensible thing to do about "B. O."?

Plowing Match Is Set For Thursday

Up at Clayton Sanderson's farm, three miles from the city on the Chemong Highway, the sod and stubble stage is all set for Thursday's plowing match.

G. A. Gellespie, C. E. Moore, Mr. Sanderson, Art Runions and J. J. Duffus have staked off the several fields where the plowmen will start from scratch at 9 a.m. in the various classes which should be completed by 3.30 in the afternoon. The directors of the County Plowmen's Association wish to avoid hurrying the competitors, but they are planning to have the chores completed before dusk.

William Doherty of Toronto has been appointed judge, and all that remains for a successful contest is such integral factors as fine weather and a big entry list. The Sanderson farm is comparatively close to the city, and is centrally located in the county.

SAFETY SPEED COMFORT SERVICE

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS

The aspect of railway operation with which the general public is most familiar is, perhaps, that of passenger transportation, and undoubtedly facilities for speedy, safe and comfortable transportation, such as is provided by the Canadian railways, are of prime importance to the whole community. There are, however, other and equally important services rendered by railways — and by them alone. All these services blend into one complete whole, and the support which members of the public give through using the particular service or services they require, determines the extent to which the whole usefulness of a railway system can be placed at their disposal.

One service which at this time of the year invites public attention is that of carrying grain. Without adequate railway transportation the whole country would be placed under a serious handicap and millions upon millions of dollars of new wealth would be lost, for crops which could not be brought to market or to the seaboard would be of little value. This service is, of course, a seasonal one, lasting only through some months, but to perform it, tracks, engines and cars must be maintained all the year round, and on such a basis that even large crop harvests may be adequately handled. When the crop is small, the railway suffers through having less to carry — but the same necessity for it being there to provide transportation remains.

This is only one of the services which railways perform and which go directly to enriching the country and providing employment. In 1933 the C.N.R. carried over thirty-one million tons of freight. Some idea of the importance of this freight to the workers of Canada can be obtained from a glance at its nature. Over ten million tons consisted of coal and mine products . . . over three and a half million tons of forest products . . . almost a million tons of animals and animal products . . . almost a million tons of gasoline . . . and over five million tons of wheat and farm products.

In every department of service rendered by the C.N.R. there is a whole-hearted desire and effort to provide the best possible. That spirit permeates the entire system and the public can confidently use the C.N.R. feeling that complete satisfaction will be obtained.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henderson of Boswell Avenue were host and hostess to members of St. David's Society last evening, when a party numbering about thirty assembled at their home. The purpose of the gathering was to spend a social evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Gwilym Davies, who are leaving the city on Thursday for an extended visit to relatives in England, Wales and Scotland A pleasant evening was spent, the program consisting mostly of songs and choruses in Welsh and English. A spelling bee also caused much amusement. During the evening the presentation of a drinkless "Kay Woodie" pipe with thornwood bowl, also a leather pouch and tin of tobacco, was made to Mr. Davies, while Mrs. Davies received a hand-bag of black calf leather with silver-plated mount. In making the presentation, the Rev. J. L. Hughes, president of the society, referred to the valuable services of Mr. and Mrs. Davies in the St. David's Society. Mr. Davies had held the presidency for two years, and had always been ably supported by his wife. On behalf of the society, the President wished them both bon voyage, and an enjoyable stay and renewed health in the Old Land, also assuring them of a warm welcome on their return. Mr. Alex. Kirkcaldy handed Mrs. Davies a bouquet of lovely autumn flowers. Mr. Davies responded on behalf of himself and his wife, Mrs. Davies being slightly indisposed, and suffering from a severe cold. In thanking the members for their useful gifts, Mr. Davies spoke of the great help given to him by the members during his term of office, and referred to the pleasant times spent together They would carry away with them during their visit across the ocean, in a visit which was of indefinite duration, happy memories of the days spent in Peterborough. Mrs. George Blowers, on behalf of the Welsh-speaking members, tendered a farewell message to Mr. and Mrs. Davies in the Welsh tongue. Translated, it is as follows: "We, the Welsh-speaking members of the Peterborough St. David's Society, extend to you both our very best wishes, hoping you will both have a pleasant voyage, and a pleasant stay on the other side of the Atlantic." Mrs. Blowers then quoted a verse of a Welsh poem, the translation being:

"It pays sometime to become an exile from home
And to wander far away from Wales
In order to return back home to Wales
And to be able to love our home land better."

Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies and the evening closed with the singing of "For they are jolly good fellows," "Auld Lang Syne,' 'and the Welsh National Anthem.

CONSTIPATION ENDED FOREVER

Woman Finds a Permanent Remedy

With perfect frankness a woman correspondent writes:—

"I have suffered from constipation as long as I can remember, and taken all sorts of things—which in some cases seemed to do good at first, but afterwards to have no effect. Then I thought I would try Kruschen in my tea every morning, and I have done so for over a year. I am pleased to say after the first month I had no more trouble with constipation, and I have felt very fit."—(Mrs.) G. M. S.

Kruschen Salts is Nature's recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate the organs of elimination to smooth, regular action. Your system is thus kept clear of those impurities which, if allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system.

TEMPERANCE UNION SEEKS REFERENDUM

Request Open Beverage Room Problem be Placed Before Lindsay Ratepayers.

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 2 (Special to Examiner). — "The beverage rooms are no uplift to the community, no assistance to business, no solution to the unemployment that exists here, no lessening of the need of relief, no strengthening of manhood, no hand maid of the church and no promotion of any worthy enterprise, but they are the source for the wasting of hard-earned, much-needed money, pauperising of families, robbing children of proper food and clothing, introducing citizens to the intoxicating cup," declared the Rev. Gordon M. Holmes, president of the Lindsay branch of the Ontario Temperance Federation, before the Lindsay Town Council last night. Rev. Holmes, with Frank L. Weldon, secretary of the local branch, approached the council requesting that a referendum be submitted to the ratepayers of the town at the next municipal election. Both stated that in the opinion of the Lindsay temperance workers, there was a majority of the ratepayers who were against the open sale of beer and wine in the Lindsay hotels.

Rev. Holmes said the beverage rooms were the cause for the turning back of the clock for some who have been fighting the habit, the producing of drunkenness and a threat to the modesty and purity of our womanhood.

Secretary Weldon pointed out to the councillors that if they did not pass a by-law giving the ratepayers an opportunity to vote on the referendum, the temperance workers were ready to circulate their petition for twenty-five per cent. of the ratepayers' signatures. If we have to do this the council will be forced to pass the by-law for the referendum, he said.

Mayor Frank Armstrong in submitting the question to the council, said that it would cost the municipality a large sum of money to hold a referendum on the matter. The councillors asked for a week to discuss the matter, promising a decision at a special meeting next week.

MONTH'S LEEWAY

GALT, Ont., Oct. 2. (CP)—Feeling a mistake had been made a few months ago when the date for the payment of the second instalment of taxes was advanced from Dec. 2 to Oct. 2, the city council last night voted the taxpayers a months' extension, deciding not to impose the penalty until Nov. 9.

JUST AMONG US GIRLS

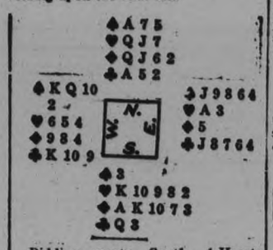
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

A NICE POINT TO CONSIDER.

Until all ordinary features of bidding and playing become almost automatic, followers of contract do not appreciate the many nice points which continually require particular thought. The deal today well illustrates a point which will be new to the great majority of players. It is a point which frequently should be weighed before deciding upon the final call.



Bidding went: South, 1-Heart; North, 2-No Trumps, to show an evenly divided hand of considerably greater strength than average, that may more readily go game at no trumps than at hearts; South, 3-Diamonds, to show his second long suit; North, 4-Hearts, as a two-suiter ordinarily plays better at one of partner's long suits than at no trumps; South, 5-Diamonds, showing slam possibilities. The bidding to date shows North either a single black card or 3 black cards in his partner's hand. Trying only for game North would prefer to play at hearts than to try to win the extra trick required for game at the minor call. Playing for a slam dummy's extra trump in diamonds may make a lot of difference. Wisely North bid 6-Diamonds.

The opening lead was the K of spades. Dummy's Ace won. Three rounds of trumps pulled all opposing diamonds, leaving dummy with a diamond. East won the first lead of hearts. He ruffed the declarer with a spade return. Upon declarer's 2 long hearts dummy let go two small clubs, being thus able to ruff South's last club, and giving the declaring side 6-odd, as South ruffed dummy's last spade with his last diamond, for the thirteenth trick played. The small slam was easy.

Had South had to play the hand for a small slam at hearts he would have encountered two difficulties. First, he would have needed to pull all dummy's trumps to pick up the 3 hearts held by West. Second, only one of dummy's clubs could have been discarded upon the long diamond in the South hand, leaving a losing club in each hand. Five-odd was the best which could have been made in hearts, and North was smart enough to see that possibility.

Players frequently do not realize that 4 times as many games may be made in major suits as in minor suits, on account of having to win an added trick in the minor suit calls, but just as many small slams and grand slams may be made in minor as in major suit calls.

Be Beautiful

The lowly cucumber, which most of you recognize as a succulent vegetable, first originated in northern India many years ago. In those days, the cucumber was considered merely a food substance that was consumed in large quantities by the Indian natives. But today it is recognized as being much more than that. For women have discovered that this fruit possesses distinct skin beautifying properties.

The best use to which the cucumber can be put for beautifying purposes is an ingredient in an astringent skin lotion. There are a good many women who, at this time of the year, need just such a lotion. They find, at the end of the summer months that the heat has tended to make their faces coarse-skinned and large-pored. And they therefore require some effective lotion to counteract and remedy these conditions.

It is the woman whose skin is abnormally oily who has the greatest need for a good astringent. For when the skin is very oily, the pores naturally grow coarse, in an effort to expel the fatty excesses. There are, of course, a good many effective astringents now on the market. But I personally find the cucumber lotion not only effective in refining enlarged pores and correcting skin oiliness, but also most refreshing and revivifying.

To prepare this lotion, place one and a half ounces of strained cucumber juice, one ounce of cologne water and five ounces of elderflower water in a bottle, and shake the combined ingredients thoroughly. Then add to this half an ounce of tincture of benzoin, and again shake the mixture. There may be some precipitation of benzoin, but this can easily be strained out through cheesecloth.

An astringent lotion of this type, of course, is not generally advisable for use on a dry skin. But it is most recommendable for toning up an oily, coarse-pored skin. If you possess this type of skin, try the astringent after cleansing your face.

Do you know how to cook rice properly? The correct method is: First, wash rice thoroughly, stir it in a sieve with water from the faucet run through it several times. Then have boiling water ready—allowing two quarts of boiling water to one cup of rice. When water is boiling in a deep saucepan, add three teaspoons salt, then drop in rice slowly, a little at a time. Allow it to boil until it's done—from 12 to 25 minutes, as may be required. To test, take out a grain and press it with thumb and forefinger; when rice is soft it is sufficiently cooked. Do not stir while cooking; if necessary, to prevent sticking, lift it with a fork from time to time. When done, turn into a colander or sieve. And now comes the important step: Run a little hot water through it, to separate the grains. Then, after water has drained off, cover with a cloth and set over a pan of hot water on back of the range or low flame or in oven.

Today's Recipes

Baked Rice and Cheese.—Three cups cooked rice, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup milk, crumbs, two cups cheese, cayenne, two tablespoons butter or substitute. Put a layer of cooked rice in a greased baking dish, cover with a layer of grated cheese, season with salt and cayenne. Continue adding layers until dish is almost full. Add enough milk to come half way to top of rice. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until crumbs brown, and cheese is thoroughly melted. Six servings.

Cake Frosting

Eight ounces sifted sugar, two egg whites, four teaspoons rose water. Mix the sugar and rose water, then add the egg whites, stiffly beaten, beat until light and fluffy, and spread on the cake.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

The importance of having two living rooms is appreciated in every home, where there are young folk, especially. One man who was building a house rather annoyed the architect by his insistence that there be another living room beside the spacious one which was in the plan.

"Isn't the living room large enough?" queried the architect.

"Yes," replied the man, "but, if the parents aren't crowded out of a living room by the children, the young folk are afraid their company will prove disturbing to the quiet reading, or the games of contract, or whatever the older folk are doing, and their good times are interfered with. If you want to have a happy home where there are young folk in the family, you must have two living rooms." Needless to say there were two in the revised plan.

* * * * * * *

It is not every prospective home owner who can afford to include two separate living rooms in the house planning if building, or to get sufficiently large houses if buying even though by so doing it would forge another link in home happiness and comfort. Since this extra room is so essential, the problem then is how can the homemaker manage to make up the deficiency. One mother solved it by making the dining room also a living room. It is perhaps the easiest solution.

* * * * * * *

It does not take a large dining room to serve this duplex purpose. The dining table must be reduced to its smallest size. A drop-leaf dining table with leaves down fulfils both centre table and dining table uses, or it can be pushed back against the wall as a side table except at meal times. The radio and phonograph give a living room atmosphere to the place. A book case, or a wall lined with open shelves of books, some games conveniently at hand, such things are requisites. The noise of the radio will be diminished by even a little distance, dancing will not be disturbing, and young folk will feel at ease in this their special living room.

* * * * * * *

Where there is a library and a living room, the young folk can have the latter while the parents repair to the former in the evening, or vice versa, whenever two rooms are desirable. A sewing room can be made comfortable for a second living room. There are houses in which halls are spacious and in which there are open fireplaces. One such hall can be used as a living room. In summer a veranda can serve as the place for one of the groups. Parents often sacrifice their own comfort to permit the young folk to have the living room. Sometimes the younger folk go out in order to be out of the way. This is unfortunate. The two living room plan relieves strained situation.

There is no question why Pearl White Naptha Soap beats the clock on washdays. Actual tests by housewives have proved that the rich Pearl suds start to work quicker and stand up longer. Active and brisk, these plentiful suds seek out and loosen even ingrained grease and grime, without hard rubbing and scrubbing. Pearl washes clothes whiter—makes them cleaner and more fragrant. It is more economical, too. These facts are proven. Why not test them yourself next washday?

There are many reasons why you will prefer Pearl White Naptha. It costs so little for a laundry soap of quality and its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in a shorter time.

POPULATION SHOWS GAIN.

The return of the assessment rolls has revealed the fact that Peterborough's population has increased in the last twelve months by 176, from 22,869 last year to 23,044 at the present time.

This gain, while not large, continues the unbroken record of population increases over recent years; it is worthy of note that while there has been no boom growth, the city's population has shown a consistent, if not always large, increase from year to year, and the present gain is welcome because it continues the upward march during a period which has found many other centres marking time or falling back.

Less satisfactory from the viewpoint of civic revenue, of course, is a drop of $225,000 in the total assessment and a decrease in taxable incomes amounting to nearly 50 per cent.

On the other hand, the business assessment shows an increase, and there is a gain of fifty in the number of taxable persons.

On the whole there is ground for gratification in the figures presented in the statement, particularly as they cover a year in which general conditions, while on the way back to better days, were far from normal.

CUTTING DOWN THE ACCIDENT TOLL.

In an effort to reduce the number of traffic accidents, which recently has shown an alarming increase, Chief Constable Draper of Toronto is conducting a safety drive in the Queen City along lines that promise success.

In the first place, he has issued a warning to all parents whose children are found habitually playing on the streets. Certainly under modern conditions of traffic urban thoroughfares are a most dangerous playground for youngsters.

At the same time, Chief Draper has instructed his men to check up on all drivers who show any inclination to disregard traffic rules and cars are being tested as to brakes, lights and horns.

Jay-walking pedestrians and motorists cutting corners and disregarding the rights of pedestrians are alike to engage the attention of the police department.

It is a curious commentary upon mass intelligence that it has become necessary to compel people to protect themselves, but in view of the accident record, it looks as if the strong arm of the law will have to be exerted to make the public do what common sense should have caused it to do voluntarily.

If we as drivers will not obey traffic rules, if as pedestrians we ignore ordinary safety principles, if as parents we do not insist upon our children finding some other place to play than the middle of a city street, and as a result of this common neglect accidents multiply, then there is no other course than to have the police department declare war upon all offenders.

If we have not brains to protect ourselves, then the law will have to do it for us.

A TREMENDOUS BURDEN.

Whether or not they favor anything resembling an amalgamation of Canada's two railway systems—and certainly the vast majority of people in this country are apparently stoutly opposed to any such development—Canadians must admit that the present situation is not very encouraging.

The Citizens' Research Institute in a bulletin just issued stresses the significant fact that the interest charges on the debt of the Canadian National Railways, the Canadian Government Merchant Marine and the Canadian National Steamships, Limited, including interest on Government advances to these concerns was greater in 1932 than in 1922 by 56.3 per cent. and in 1932 amounted to more than the interest on Dominion Government debt for all purposes.

As a matter of fact, it took 3.3 per cent. of the total national income to pay interest on railway and steamship debt in 1932, a percentage almost as great as that required to pay the interest in the same year on the combined debt of the provinces and municipalities in Canada.

That brings up the interesting question as propounded by the Institute, "Is it necessary in order to obtain adequate transportation service in Canada to pay out interest charges through taxation amounting to over $97,000,000 a year, that is $9.25 for each individual in Canada—man, woman, child—or about $40 per family, whether or not the railways are used by the individuals and families concerned—in addition to the millions of dollars paid out directly for transportation service by those who use the service?"

Again, how long will it be necessary to pay, over and above direct charges for transportation service, three dollars and thirty cents out of each $100 of national income for interest charges which are not earned by the governmentally-owned transportation systems, and must therefore be paid by the taxpayer? And how long can it be done?

TIME WILL TELL.

Without discussing the merits of the arguments between Attorney-General Roebuck and Col. George Drew, yesterday deposed from his position as Ontario Securities Commissioner, it may be said that the question that concerns the people of Ontario is whether or not the work that has been carried on by Col. Drew can be as efficiently performed by the Attorney-General's Department to which it ultimately will be assigned.

If the investing public can be assured of adequate protection against fraudulent stock-selling schemes under the plan the Government has in mind by which the office of administrator will be abolished, then the transfer of authority to the department of the Attorney-General will undoubtedly be good business, representing a substantial saving, inasmuch as the administrator himself has been in receipt of a $10,000 salary and the total expenses of his department last year ran to the sizable sum of $38,402.06.

The main thing, of course, is the efficiency of the service, for it is surely of great importance that so far as the machinery of the law can do so that the public should be saved from the sharks who lie in wait for those with money to invest.

When it was passed the Security Frauds Prevention Act was hailed as a measure that would do much to prevent fake stock sales and to give the law a chance to work out to the greatest advantage its administration was entrusted to a separate department.

Now the radical departure is contemplated of abolishing the office and turning over the work to the Attorney-General's Department.

If the experiment proves successful, it will mean a worth-while saving; if it fails, the public may suffer.

Time alone will tell which of these possibilities will develop.

SHIFTING TARIFF RATES.

In a protest which has been lodged by a Montreal importer with the Minister of National Revenue and the Minister of Trade and Commerce in Ottawa, there is a good example of the difficulties under which importers labor in consequence of quick-shifting decisions on the part of officialdom at the Capital.

This gentleman's protest is based upon the facts relating to the duties payable upon Italian fur and felt bodies. It appears that in 1931, the tariff upon the goods in question, although resting at the very respectable level of 130 per cent., was increased to 140 per cent. There it remained until last month, when it was suddenly cut to 70 per cent. A number of Montreal importers, heartened by this cut in duties and considering it profitable to increase or resume their purchases in Italy, immediately placed orders for goods. Their feelings may, however, be judged when they were informed last week that the tariff had again been raised to 140 per cent.

The importer thinks that this protection, granted in the interest of only two concerns officially making these goods in Canada, is abnormal. And he also thinks that people engaged in the importation of merchandise should be given some greater consideration than that which is reflected in sudden and radical shifts of the tariff from 140 per cent. to 70 per cent. and back again to 140 per cent., all within the space of a few weeks' time.

There ought to be some way in which people engaged in the essential business of importing may be protected from sudden and violent shifts of the tariff such as that which has been mentioned.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WHY WAR DEBTS UNPAID?

(From the Argonaut, San Francisco)

A great many American citizens are asking, with commendable realism, why the war debts cannot be paid in view of the fact that our debtors apparently find no difficulty in providing funds for the construction of battleships, forts, great public works and the like. There is, indeed, strong suspicion in the minds of many that failure to pay the so-called war debts is a gigantic plot among our debtors to escape their just obligations.

But when the subject is closely examined, and reason is allowed to replace suspicion, it becomes very plain why this ambiguous situation prevails. If the American people will earnestly consider the obstacles in the way of liquidating these debts, much progress toward international understanding shall have been made.

In the present state of the world there are but three ways by which the war debts can be paid. And there are also three sound reasons why not one of those three available ways can be used. Incidentally, these reasons include consequences which would injure the United States to an extent more than offsetting the benefits derived from payment.

One way to pay the war debts is for the debtor to ship gold to this country. He cannot do this, because he hasn't the gold. And the reason he hasn't the gold is because the United States owns nearly one-half the world's total gold supply, while France owns an additional one-third. Payment by gold transfer is, therefore, impossible.

A second way would be to ship goods over here, sell them and turn the proceeds over to the American Government in payment for the war debts. Our debtors are willing to do this, but we won't allow it. The reason for this is that we have too large a surplus of our own, and too many idle men and women. If we accept cheap European goods at available low prices our own factories cannot compete and will be closed. Therefore, payment in goods is also "out."

The third way, and the final way, would be for the debtor to take his own paper currency, change it into dollars, and turn the dollars over to the treasury. But if this is done it will create an enormous demand in the foreign exchange markets for the American dollar. The value of the dollar would then rise rapidly and American exporters would be ruined.

The reason for this is that with a high dollar, it is impossible for the United States to retain its foreign markets. The seller of an American motor car in London would receive, say, five hundred pounds for his machine, but with the dollar driven to high levels, he would be able to obtain, perhaps, only fifteen hundred American dollars for his five hundred pounds, instead of the $2,500 obtainable before the dollar went up.

One in every six persons in the United States depends upon some phase of our foreign trade for his livelihood. Consequently, it is a very serious thing to destroy foreign markets, and this would assuredly occur were we to force the payment of debts through exchange of currencies. Because of these conditions, the war debts remain unpaid, and are likely to until someone devises a method of payment not involving any of the three outlined herein.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Now perhaps those unstoppable Deans will proceed to make the Detroit Tigers dizzy or daffy or both.

There is to be no formal reception at the opening of the Ontario Legislature. That may be good business, but it is a bit tough for wives of newly elected members who are thus deprived of the thrill of a lifetime.

As a contemporary points out, with the departure of Mackenzie King for Europe the last possibility of an election this year disappears. Mr. King never goes away when there is a chance to make political speeches.

The Roebuck-Drew argument has not been shadow boxing. The Attorney-General and the Securities Commissioner have not spared each other in their red-hot letters.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

CONNAUGHT'S FIRST VISIT TO TORONTO.

On this date, in 1869, Prince Arthur paid his first visit to Toronto. The future Duke of Connaught had landed at Halifax on the City of Paris on August 22nd, and, after reporting to the headquarters of his regiment, the Rifle Brigade at Montreal, had been taken in charge by the governor general, Sir John Young. Towards the end of September he visited London, Ont., and opened the provincial exhibition, after which he went to Niagara Falls, and then entrained for Toronto. His welcome was enthusiastic, almost as much as for his brother, the Prince of Wales, nine years before. There were many "triumphal arches"; there was a crowd estimated at 35,000; there was a procession and the inevitable addresses from the city, from charitable and national societies. The young prince (he was only 19; now he is 84) was a guest at dinner at Government House; there was a dance when matrons and maids vied for opportunity to "Dance with the Prince" and have something to tell their children and grand children, and it was early morning before a very tired prince said good night to the lieutenant governor and Mrs. Howland. Three days later Prince Arthur visited Weston and turned the first sod on the Toronto, Grey and Bruce railway.

When he came back as the Duke of Connaught and governor general in 1911 the duke made it his business to endeavour to get into touch with some of those whom he had met on his first visit to Ontario. He found a surprisingly large number of them, particularly old ladies, and it is said that at his first drawing room in the Senate chamber there was a number of debutantes presented whose grandmothers had danced with Prince Arthur over 40 years before. His royal highness had more opportunity to "mix" in Montreal than in Toronto, for he took his garrison duties there like any other officer. He was keen on snowshoeing and a great admirer of lacrosse which he tried to introduce into England on his return. Queen Victoria in her diary commented several times about the cheery and descriptive letters she got from "Arthur who seems to like the Canadians as much as they like him."

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

U. S. MANUFACTURERS TAKEN BY SURPRISE.

(12)

Until the actual numbers were verified the manufacturers discredited the reported strength of the strikers. Four hundred thousand is the actual count. Since this report, hundreds of other mill workers have joined the strikers' ranks. The unanimity and determination of the Textile Workers is obvious. The manufacturers were convinced that not more than 15 per cent. would walk out.

Previous to the strike, the utmost had been done by the Textile Workers United to settle amicably all the whole controversy. For it was evident that the industrial workers had come to the end of forced delay at the hands of the employers.

Convinced that only a very small percentage of the workers would go out on a strike, the employers waited to use that fact to persuade the President and the National Recovery Administration that the other 85 per cent. of the workers were contented with present conditions.

The cotton capitalists in the United States have founded a Cotton Textile Institute. The policy of the cotton and silk manufacturers is determined by this institution. The officials of the institute have refused unwaveringly to have any negotiations with the representatives of labor. Their insolence angered. They said to them: "Make the most of it".

Four hundred thousand represents seventy per cent. of the Textile Workers United in the nation. What will the employers do now? They have determined to avoid the real issue. The strikers have an irreducible demand. Just rights, as defined in the Constitution of the United States, and nothing less is the minimum. The dispute is not likely to be settled by mutual agreement. The outlook is that a little Socialism will be introduced by Congressional legislation.

POLICY TO DISCREDIT.

To discredit is not an unusual resort. The organization or the individual practising such a policy will soon find themselves discredited. To utter a discrediting word against another is lowdown. We all ought to read the story of the life of Sir Philip Sidney. His name is the symbol of manly honor, of generous scholarship, of the finest nobility, of the spiritual light that most irradiates human nature. Look at his portrait closely; it is no stranger that you see; it is no far-off Englishman. It is your friend, your son, your brother, your lover. Whoever knew Wendell Phillips knew Philip Sidney. It is the same spirit in a thousand forms; a perpetual presence, a constant benediction. Look at his portrait and "The night shall be filled with music,
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like Arabs,
And as silently steal away."
Have you read Arcadia? Sidney wrote this immortal book. Its tone is so pure and lofty, its courtesy and appreciation is so hearty and honorable. Just a book, a letter, a battle. How little to justify his fame!

Why have we written thus about Sidney? For his spirit as revealed in his Arcadia to enter the heart of this raw age the policy of discrediting those, not of us, would stand out in its true colors. In politics, in industry, in society, discrediting another for personal ends is dirty business. British people have put emphasis upon gentlemanliness. Gentleman is a much used word in Britain. When a cause has no foundation in right, and resorts to blurring, or slurring, or bitter inuendo, its weakness is apparent.

The Cotton Textile Institute describes the strike as an "open challenge to law and order". The Textile Workers United reply that they are out for all that law and liberty means. They challenge proof of lawlessness.

CHARGE OF INTIMIDATION.

From the attempt to discredit the Striker movement the mill owners have gone to charge it with intimidation of those who wanted to work. Read what the National Association of Woolen Manufacturers' head has to say: "It is a sad state of affairs when a minority group can intimidate people who want to work." Claiming that the majority of workers involved in the strike area want to work, which is false; the manufacturers have taken the law into their own hands to protect that "majority".

Roosevelt was at first misled. He has discovered that the majority are on strike, and that they have grievances, that must be given a hearing. He is convinced that the employers have used a smoke screen. A Mediation Board was chosen. No progress has been made. Delay has satisfied the great majority of the people that the strikers have cause.

Thousands of special deputies have been sworn in. In some of the great centers the National Guard has been called to prevent picketing. Meddlesome radical agitators, who are not of the strikers, have messed the situation. Gradually these have been ferreted out and expelled. Communists and Nazi and Fascisti and extreme Socialists are thorns in any community. When matters of high importance are at stake, as in this strike, they are sure to complicate the status.

Picketing is questionable. Picketing is taking the law into one's own hands. When a strike occurs the State has the power to order the mills or other industries closed until further notice. The Southern States are completely influenced by the employer and capitalist. Strikes have occurred in the past. The states refused to act. The strike was the only alternative left employees. Some pickets have been shot. Who is to blame? To break up picketing? Yes. By whom? You do not have to be told.

CHINOOK, ALBERTA

This district witnessed the largest rush of homesteaders ever seen in Canada when the area was thrown open for settlement in 1909. In January, the following year, Charles E. Neff came up from Medicine Hat. After settling on a homstead on the present site of the town he opened a store and a post-office, with his wife as post-mistress.

Just before the store was opened a foot of snow fell, then along came one of the famous "Chinook's" and the snow disappeared in eight or nine hours. This gave her the inspiration to suggest to the postal authorities that Chinook be the name of the new post-office.

Eggs were higher in price on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Graded shipments of eggs in car-lots or less were quoted at 29c to 30c a dozen for "A" large, up 1c; 27c to 28c for "A" medium, up 1c; 22c for "B," up 1c; and 19½c to 20c for "C," up ½c. Arrivals were 631 cases.

Fresh No. 1 butter brought 19½c a pound in carlots or less, unchanged from last week. Small lots to retailers were again 20½c a pound for solids, and 21½c for prints. Receipts were 123 boxes.

Cheese quotations were steady, Ontario colored being 10½c a pound, and white 10c to 10½c. Quebec colored brought 9¾c to 9¾c a pound, and white was 9½c a pound. Receipts totalled 833 boxes.

On the potato market, new N.B. Mountains sold at 50c to 55c per 80-pound bag, while new Quebecs were 30c to 45c per 80-pound bag, and old stock brought 20c to 25c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Increased selling pressure that in various quarters was associated largely with President Roosevelt's Sunday night address, led to sharp breaks in grain prices yesterday.

Wheat and rye tumbled extremes of 3c and 3¾c, respectively, with wheat reaching the lowest level since July 27. Before the day was ended all future deliveries of wheat were practically down to $1 a bushel or below.

Wheat closed unsteady at the day's bottom figures, 2¾c to 3c under Saturday's finish; December new, $1 to $1.00½; corn, ¾c to 1⅜c off, December new, 76½c to 76⅝c; oats, 1½c to 2½c down; rye showing 3⅜c to 3¾c loss, and provisions unchanged to 15c decline.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 95c to 96c; otas, 34c to 37c; barley, 52c to 54c; corn, 94c to 96c; rye, 57c to 59c; buckwheat, 52c to 54c; malting barley, 66c to 68c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 2. — Grain traders last night credited the Canadian Government Wheat Agency with imparting steadiness to futures prices in yesterday's session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. In spite of the continued absence of export demand and downturns at Chicago the market closed only ⅜c lower to unchanged.

October wheat ended at 81c, December at 82c, and May at 87c. Firm Liverpool cables were offset by increased hedging sales and quite heavy selling was credited to house with Chicago connection.

Ordinary markekt support was not equal to absorbing all the slack and the Government Agency was reported to have bought all three futures substantially.

Liverpool wheat, however, closed unchanged to ¼d lower, comparatively firm.

Farmers' deliveries totalled about 1,250,000 bushels on Saturday, while there was the addition of October contract deliveries amounting to 3,780,000 bushels.

W. A. Of Millbrook Holds Fall Meeting

MILLBROOK, Oct. 2.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The W. A. of St. Thomas' church held its initial meeting since closing last May for the holiday season, on Friday evening at the home of the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, the attendance and the reports of the officers covering the past three months, being most gratifying.

The Dorcas secretary, Mrs. H. J. Russell, reported requirements for the new bale as an outfit for an Indian girl in one of the northern mission schools, work on this project to be undertaken during the current season. The removal of Mrs. H. W. Jordan made necessary the appointment of a new 'Prayer Partner' secretary, Mrs. L. J. Morton being chosen; the duties include correspondence with a worker on the mission field, and special periods of intercession together for the success of the special station and missionary.

Eleven members of the Auxiliary attended the Victoria Deanery W. A. convention at Omemee last Wednesday, and instead of any formal report each gave what had impressed her as most helpful from the largely-attended gathering. St. John's, Ida, and Christ church, Bailieboro, Auxiliaries were also represented at the Deanery meeting, those going from Millbrook including: Mrs. W. C. Allen, Mrs. John Allen, her guest, Miss Tweedle, of Thornhill; Mrs. J. W. Hilton, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, Miss Rose Macnamara, Miss Margaret Simpson, Mrs. L. M. Bonneville, Mrs. L. J. Morton, Mrs. David and Mrs. Geo. Fowler, Mrs. H. J. Russell, and Mrs. A. J. Scott.

The 'silver tea' which Mrs. Westmacott is giving her home for will be on October 16. Mrs. Bonneville took up the first chapter in the new study book, "Our Goodly Heritage," and Mrs. Westmacott gave some interesting items from the General Synod meetings at Montreal which she had attended. The October meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Bonneville, and during the social hour at the close the hostess, assisted by Miss Macnamara, served dainty refreshments.

TWO SMUGGLERS FINED $50 EACH

Brothers Have Plane and Car Seized After Running Cargo of Cigarettes.

ADMIT GUILT.

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 (C.P.) — Archie Noblett, 35, and his brother, Ross Noblett, 22, both of Rochester, N.Y., formerly of Algonquin, Grenville County, Ont., who smuggled 36,000 American cigarettes into Montreal by means of an airplane and an automobile, were sentenced here yesterday to fines of $50 and costs with the alternative of one month in jail each. Their airplane is under seizure at Ottawa.

Judge O. Marin sentenced the pair and ordered confiscation of contraband cigarettes and the Noblets' car after the brothers changed their pleas and admitted their guilt. Sentence was passed according to the section of the code which calls for a $50 fine in cases where the value of the smuggled goods is under $200.

Following their arrest in their car by Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers here on Friday the accused pleaded not guilty at their arraignment in police court on Saturday morning to the charges of having contraband cigarettes in their possession.

The Noblett brothers, who moved to Rochester, N.Y., from Algonquin about eight years ago, started out from Rochester in a plane and a car. Archie is reported to have flown the plane, carrying the cigarettes across the border to Brockville, Ont., he was met allegedly there by his younger brother, Ross, with the car and the cigarettes transferred to that machine before Archie flew his empty plane into the airport at Ottawa. The brothers then drove here in the automobile to try and sell the cigarettes.

Rhodes Is Honored On New Bond Loan

OTTAWA, Oct. 2 (CP).—Congratulations to Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes upon the prospectus of the $250,000,000 Dominion Government refunding loan and commendation of the issue both as a profitable investment and sound security, were received from prominent business men throughout Canada.

"The success of the loan should be a matter of concern to every citizen of this country," said Sir Charles Gordon, President of the Bank of Montreal. "We must pay our debts and therefore it behooves every citizen of Canada to join in making this loan a success."

Quotations at the various market points were: Hull, $7, down 25 cents; Kitchener, $6.60, unchanged; Brantford, $6.50, down 10 cents; Stratford, $6.60, unchanged; London, $6.50, down 50 cents; Peterborough, $6.50, unchanged.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 2 (CP).—Prices were holding and trading was steady on all classes of livestock with the exception of hogs on the Toronto Livestock market this afternoon. Cattle trade picked up after a slow opening and a fairly good mid-week clean-up was expected. Hogs remained unsettled with packers' bids down 10 cents from Monday.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 930; calves, 630; hogs, 810; sheep and lambs, 1,500.

Good and choice butcher cattle ranged from $4.25 to $4.50 with common to medium kinds mostly at $2.00 to $4.00. Weighty steers brought $3.00 to $4.60. Cows held steady at $2.25 to $2.50 for best. Good bulls made $2.25 to $2.75 and bologuas $1.75 to $2.00. Medium to good fed calves sold from $5.00 to $6.50 with one choice sale up to $7.00. Stocker trade was fairly active at $2.00 to $3.00 per cwt.

Calves continued steady at $6.50 to $7.00 for choice with common vealers down to $3.50. Heavy western calves sold at $3.00 to $3.50, while a few picked lots went to $4.00. Lambs also continued steady at $5.75 for the bulk of good ewes and wethers. A few lots of choice lambs made $6.00. Culls, bucks and heavies changed hands at $4.75. Sheep held at $1.00 to $3.00 cwt.

Hogs were still unsettled with packers' bids lower at $6.50 f.o.b. for bacons, $6.85 off-truck and $7.25 off car.

WHEAT STAGES LATE COMEBACK

Government Agency Goes to Winnipeg Aid Against Chicago Selling.

U.S. MARKET DOWN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2 (CP).—Padded by the government agency against the hammering of eastern and Chicago selling, wheat prices ended today's active session on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange 3½ to 3¾ cents lower.

BELOW DOLLAR MARK.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (CP).—Wheat futures prices were below the dollar mark today for the first time in more than two months as grain values moved sharply lower largely in sympathy with collapse of the Winnipeg market.

General selling here induced by a five-cent break at Winnipeg carried December deliveries as low as 99 cents, a loss of a cent in addition to yesterday's three-cent drop. Other grains were fractionally lower.

Traders showed intense interest in developments in the Canadian market.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (AP).—A mild recovery from yesterday's sharp decline appeared in the stock market today. Metals were rather firm, but improvement in other parts of the list was largely fractional. The late tone was steady. American Smelting, McIntyre and U. S. Smelting were up 1 to 2 points. U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Santa Fe and General Motors ruled slightly higher. Transfers approximated 400,000 shares.

TORONTO MINING.

TORONTO, Oct. 2 (CP).—The mining share market staged a creeping advance today on volume no heavier than its recent average. Buying was active in the big gold issues and these responded with advances ranging up to $1. Silver shares also were in good demand as higher prices and a few narrow gains came out in the base metals. A break from 18 to 13½ for Olga featured the oils. It partly recovered before the close.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS.

TORONTO, Oct. 2 (CP).—Prices stiffened on the industrial section of the Toronto Stock Exchange in substantial buying this afternoon. Ford "A" was a leader, advancing ¼ to 21½ on heavy turnover. Brazilian, Imperial Oil and International Nickel also came out in volume at steady prices for Brazilian and Nickel and a small advance for Imperial.

Man Given 5 Years For Theft Of Silk

TORONTO, Oct. 2 (CP)—John Shea, convicted of stealing silk valued at $10,000 from the warehouse of the Canadian Celanese Co., here, was stenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary by Judge D. O'Connell in County Court to-day.

The silk was stolen last February and Shea was said to have trucked it down to Montreal where he was alleged to have disposed of $5,000 worth of the cargo.

Roebuck Refuses To Answer Col. Drew

TORONTO, Oct. 2 (CP)—Plans for future administration of the Ontario Security Frauds Prevention Act, possibly will be discussed at the regular Cabinet meeting of the Ontario Government to-day.

Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, said he had no desire to discuss the dismissal yesterday of Lieut. Col. George A. Drew, Security Commissioner, nor the latter's statement made public last night with correspondence between him and the Attorney-General.

"I don't know as I want to say anything further," said Mr. Roebuck. "Col. Drew can have the floor as far as I'm concerned."

If Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn returns to his office to-day, said Mr. Roebuck, operation of the Commission will be discussed at the council meeting late this afternoon.

MOST DANGEROUS ENEMY TO U.S. SAID TO BE JAPAN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — Brigadier General William Mitchell, retired, told the President's Aviation Commission to-day that "Our most dangerous enemy is Japan, and our planes should be designed to attack Japan."

Mitchell, who earlier had said 50 dirigibles could destroy Japan within two days if war broke out with the United States, said the United States shoud develop planes with a cruising range of from 6,000 to 8,000 miles.

He said Russia possessed planes with a radius of 3,500 miles, which could be used either against Japan or Western Europe.

HISLOP GOLD MINES.

Hislop Gold Mines which has been shaft sinking on their property situated some two miles north of the big Hollinger development in Hislop Township, is reported to have encountered important ore.

MACFARLANE.

Surface eploration on the No. 5 vein which was recently uncovered in the south-east section of the Long Lac property of MacFarlane Long Lac Gold Mines has opened it up for a length of over 100 feet, a wire from A. R. Farrell, Superintendent, states. The vein shows an average width of about 4 feet of heavily mineralized quartz and sulphides and panning has obtained good showings of free gold. Work on the main vein has indicated a length of nearly half a mile with an average width of some 14 feet. Mr. Farrell has recommended that consideration be given to shaft sinking on this showing at an early date.

Assay results from the No. 5 drill hole on the Little Long Lac property of Jellicoe Gold Mining Company gave a value of $4.50—$35 gold—across a three foot section at a depth of 360 feet. Some visible gold was seen at a depth of 600 feet and the hole is being continued. No. 4 drill hole along the south porphyry gave at 10 feet section and yielded assays from $1.05 to $5.25 over a 1 foot width. Two drills are engaged in exploring the property under the direction of E. F. Creelman.

A Steady Job

CHICAGO, Oct. 2 (AP)—The pay's not high, but at least it promises to be steady work.

Twelve jobs like that are open to-day to men of endurance and good physical condition as the selection of a jury to try the Insull mail fraud case begins. Jurors in Federal Court are paid $3 a day.

The 12 selected probably will be locked up, although that is yet to be decided. If they are, they can hope to be home for Christmas, but not with any degree of assurance.

Ten weeks is the shortest estimate of the time needed to try Insull and his 16 associates.

Many Holdup Victims Are Suspected Fakes

MONTREAL, Oct. 2. (CP). — Charges that many 'victims' of recent holdups committed in the city were not victimized at all but simply made up the hold-up stories to defraud insurance companies, will be fully investigated by city police and insurance underwriters, Inspector Armand Brodeur, chief of city detectives, said to-day.

Inspector Brodeur mentioned no specific cases, but said it was an old evil which had been dealt with here a few years ago.

The 'victim' usually hides money and then rehearses a convincing tale of being held up, giving elaborate descriptions of the holdup men, and in some cases having accomplices bind him and gag him to lend color to the story. The fraud is a dificult one to detect, the inspector said.

Brigands Abduct 3 Teachers, 100 Pupils

TOKYO, Oct. 2 (AP)—Brigands raided two schoolhouses near Fenghuancheng, Manchoukuo, and carried off three teachers and about 100 pupils, all of them Chinese, said a Rengo (Japanese) News Agency dispatch to-day from Antung.

Japanese and Manchoukuan troops set out in pursuit of the brigands, the dispatch added. The section is northwest of Antung (a port in Southern Manchoukua).

1934 Refunding Loan Bonds

Reflecting the solidity of Canada and the honour of her contracts every Dominion of Canada issue quoted in Canada, in London and in New York is selling above its issue price.

Dominion of Canada Bonds have proved a safe investment and, even at the lower interest rates now prevailing, give a higher return than Government Bonds of other leading countries.

Refunding operations, including this 1934 Refunding Loan, when completed, will result in annual interest savings of more than $14,000,000 to Canadian taxpayers.

A subscription to the 1934 Refunding Loan is more than a safe investment—it is an expression of individual thrift and national economy.

To investors desiring to purchase or convert, the facilities of this organization are available. Our representatives will be pleased to discuss personally any features of the Loan. Subscriptions should be telephoned (ADelaide 7111) or telegraphed at our expense. The official prospectus will be mailed upon request.

Campbell Report Plus 50 Per Cent Asked By U.W.F.

UNEMPLOYED SEEK INCREASE IN RELIEF RATE

Ask Council to Consider Full Campbell Report Plus 50 Per Cent.

511 FAMILIES ON RELIEF.

September Relief Amounted to $10,199.66 for 2,380 Persons.

A numerous representation of the Unemployed Workers' Fraternity petitioned the Council last night to implement in Peterborough the schedule of relief recommended in what is known as the Campbell report, with an additional fifty per cent.

The request was made on behalf of members of the U.W.F. by George McCullough, who was introduced to the Council by George Reynolds.

In reply, Mayor Denne stated that new instructions had been received from the Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare and Relief.

"A new letter from the Ontario Relief Board contains all the instructions," Mayor Denne said, "and I would suggest, Mr. McCullough, that you see Mr. Metheral in the morning, and you can read the letter yourself. You will find out who is boss."

From the mayor's brief statement, it might have been inferred that substantial responsibility in local relief matters rests with A. G. Metheral, Peterborough's relief officer.

57c Weekly Allowance.

"The unemployed are asked to live on 57 cents per head per week," Mr. McCullough said in presenting the request of the U.W.F.

"The unemployed in Peterborough have been receiving 65 per cent. of the Campbell report, and the Campbell report is about 46 per cent. below the mothers' allowance for a family. The Ontario Medical Association last December brought out a report of the needs of a family of five persons, two adults and three children.

"Where the children are up to five years of age the minimum in that report is $6.35 per week for food; for children of from five to thirteen years, $6.59; and for children of fifteen to 18 years, $7.07. These figures were based on the prices of 1932, but from April, 1933, to April, 1934, there was a rise of 24 per cent. in the cost of living. This means that the vouchers have less purchasing power for the people who receive them. For every dollar allowed in the voucher they receive about 75 cents of the former value. We are informed that we are talking to the right body when we come to the City Council, and that it is in your power to do or not to do.

"We ask the Council to consider the full Campbell report plus 50 per cent., and also the open voucher (with no restrictions as to where relief orders may be obtained). We would also like to know when we can get an answer. We do hope that you will see fit to consider this, and do what can be done. It is hard on any person to live on 57 cents a week. On that basis what cultural chance has our young people who are growing up? It just leaves them ground down without an opening. Are we not penalized enough by not getting work without having to live on 57 cents a week? We would like the mayor and members of the Council to consider deeply this request, and we would like to know when we can get a reply."

September Relief.

Relief disbursements in the city during September amounted to $10,199.06, according to the report of City Clerk Armstrong.

The details were as follows:

Provisions	$5 809.46
Milk	923.50
Fuel	814.62
Clothing	348.35
Medicine	20.39

Advertise for Wood.

On Old. Tuggey's motion, seconded by Ald. McIntyre, the Council decided to call for tenders for a 1935 supply of wood, especially for the winter of 1935-36.

"Probably relief will be needed again next year," Ald. Tuggey said, "and if we can let the tenders this fall there should be work for some men who are on relief."

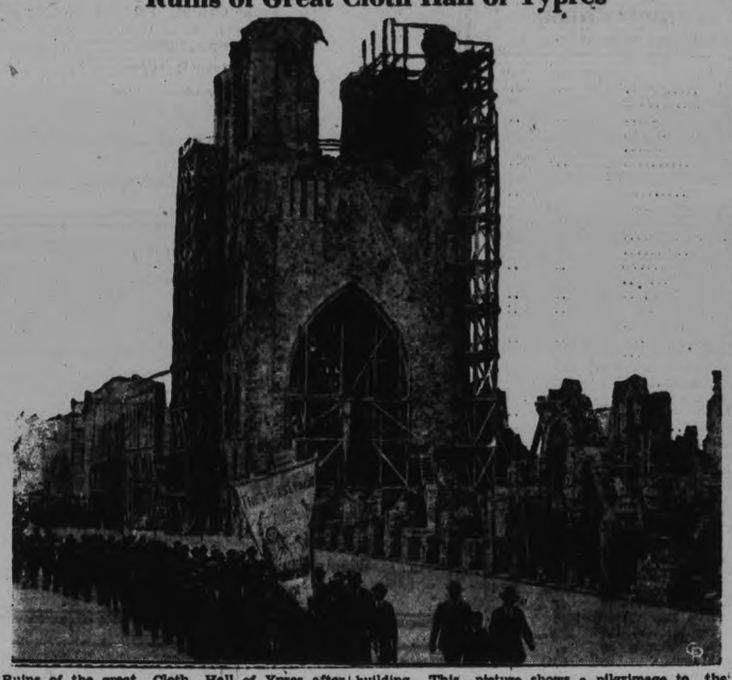
Ald. Ellis suggested that the city might consider the North Monaghan policy of carrying on a wood camp, instead of buying some wood from the township.

"When we call for tenders we stipulate that city men must be employed," Ald. McIntyre said, and Mayor Denne remarked that North Monaghan had met with certain difficulties which the Council should avoid.

Ald. Macdonald's report that the city was unable to collect rent from a house on Louis street was referred to City Solicitor Corkery.

Wave motions are of two kinds: One is the advance of a disturbance into a medium, and the other is its advance along a surface.

Ruins of Great Cloth Hall of Ypres



Ruins of the great Cloth Hall of Ypres after months and months of bombardment by huge artillery had plowed the old city until nothing but a heap of crumbling debris remained of the once beautiful building. This picture shows a pilgrimage to the ground fought over so bitterly, long after the cessation of hostilities, but the ruined skeleton of the hall is still unrepaired.

VISIT TO YPRES BATTLEFIELDS WOULD CURE URGE FOR WAR

Rats Still Swarm, Grow Fat Where Sappers Worked in Icy Mud.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN. Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

YPRES, Oct. 2.—In the old Salient, around Zillebeke and Hell-fire corner, where tens of thousands of men lost their lives in order to prevent the useless dustheap that was Ypres from falling into German hands, the peasants have turned the old concrete pill boxes into chicken coops. I slithered through a rain-sodden plowed-up field to have a look at an observation post and found it swarming with pigeons. Another concrete shelter housed an enormous family of pigs who, mistaking me for the man with the fodder, first grunted with delight, but when they got nothing from me, turned to a kind of grouching which sounded an awful lot like the arguments our ancestors used to put up when they stood around a cursing-stone.

Hill 60 looks much more like war than Vimy. Plenty of rusted Lewis guns still lying around—and cartridge belts and rifles and munition boxes—and this in spite of the fact that tens of thousands of souvenir hunters have gone over these fields 15 years long. Before the war Hill 60 had another name, a Flemish name. I think I had better not give the translation here. It was a sort of lovers' rendezvous for the farm lads and girls hereabouts. Next to Dead Man's Hill, near Verdun, Hill 60 is perhaps the most ghastly reminder of the war on the old western front.

Stopped Souvenir Hunters

On Dead Man's Hill, where the bodies of 50,000 unburied Frenchmen and the bodies of another 50,000 unburied Germans, executed a week's long dance of death—arms, legs, trunks, heads flying in the air—as the two opposing artilleries played their barrage into that mass of flesh and bones, the sight of which furnished a trainload of howling, insane men each day to each combatant army, around that hill the French had to put up a fence a few years ago. Why? Everyday caravans of sightseers used to come up there to pick up skulls and human bones. They dumped them into their automobiles and took them home. Today they stand grinning on mantel shelves, bureaus and book planks all over the world, especially in America. I was out there when the skull craze was at its height and reported the matter in a New York newspaper upon which the French authorities put a stop to it.

On Hill 60 they have custodians around to see that nothing is carried away. To this place they ought to run excursions for those young men who consider that life is drab and monotonous and who hanker for a great liberating event, such as their fathers had. They can see here the tunnels and trenches where British and German sappers were at work for months, standing up to their waists in ice-cold, oozing mud. No bands played here. No flags were waving. No girls came to hang wreaths of flowers around the tips of bayonets. And no politicians ventured down into those dark, stinking holes to tell the boys: "The country is proud of you". The "great adventure" around here consisted in getting a piece of shrapnel to carry off a kneecap or a machine-gun bullet through the shoulder, anything to get away from "the field of glory."

Remembered Too Late

The kids would soon lose their appetite for that great liberating event if they heard one of the custodians say: "Rats? Holy smokes. This place swarms with them. They're still eating themselves fat around here!" That's war. That's the great adventure. Quite different from standing on the sidewalk and seeing the veterans march by to the rumble of drums and the bands playing: "Steadily shoulder to shoulder!" Or in front of the cenotaph with all the people singing: "For all the saints who from their labors rest!"

Those mass membrial services are touching. They are impressive and very fine and the fuss that is being made over the unknown soldiers here and there is highly patriotic, but those unknown soldiers, if they could look down, no doubt wished that a little more fuss had been made over them when they were still known, that is to say alive. In Paris every visiting movie actress has to be photographed in the act of placing a wreath on the unknown's tomb under the Arch of Triumph, but people who want to go to the same place to swear "Never again war!" are chased off by the police as unpatriotic rebels, disloyal elements and Red propagandists!

General Mercer's Grave

Everywhere in the fields around here you see stakes with rusty steel hats hanging on them. German, British and French helmets. They stick up out of the cornfields. They mark the graves of unknown men. The farmers plow around them in springtime. On the cemeteries the crosses are now all small stone monuments. The old wooden crosses have gone. They were rotting away and they were not infrequently used for kindling wood, I was told.

In the cemetery of Poperinghe I found the grave of General Mercer, who was killed shortly after General "Vic" Williams, lay severely wounded in a tunnel in the neighborhood of Wytschaete where the Germans found him and captured him. And then Vlamertinghe and Dickebush and St. Eloi, now rebuilt and neat little towns where life flows along as quietly as if there never had been any war, yet charged with memories to all living Canadians because of the loved sons and fathers who lie there in the flower-laden cemeteries or alone scattered about on the farms in unmarked graves.

Free Visit to Graves

The American government has given every mother whose boy fell in the war a free trip to his grave in France. We have had thousands of women passing through Paris on their way to the battlefields, widows and mothers, under the guidance of competent officers. The last delegation was in France a year ago. It included many negro mothers. When will the Canadian government make a similar move? To the majority of visitors who go to the battlefields now those names on the crosses mean little or nothing. But they mean an awful lot to the widows and to the mothers and to the children of our dead comrades. Too costly? Not half as costly as that huge monument in marble which is now going up on Vimy Ridge for the sake of national prestige!

I wound up today on the Yser river, near the huge column erected there by the Flemish nationalists. On the top are these letters AVV and crossways running through these VVK, which stand for "Alles Voor Vlanderen" (Everything for Flanders) and "Vlaanderen Voor Kristus" (Flanders for Christ).

"If it is only that way," said a Flemish peasant whom I met. "if it is only that way we'll never have war again. Kristus wil geen oorlog," he added. "Christ doesn't want war."

At the bottom of the column appear these words by the distinguished poet-priest Cyriel Verschaave:

"Hier liggen hun lijken als zaden in 't zand Hoop op den oogst, o, Vlaanderenland" which I translate as:

"Here lie their bodies like seeds in the sand
Hope for the harvest, O Flanders-land."

The harvest is to be that world in which there shall be no war.

Institute For Blind Plans City Drive

Plans for the annual Peterborough campaign for funds were discussed at a meeting of the local committee of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind yesterday afternoon. A minimum of $500 to take care of the needs of thirty-five blind persons in this county was chosen as the objective.

Herbert C. Treneer of Toronto, field secretary for the Institute, held the chair. He reported about 25 persons eligible for the Institute's aid in the city and 10 in the county. Further cases are being investigated.

Plans for the money-raising campaign were not settled upon in view of an unusually small attendance at the meeting. The executive of the local committee will discuss matters and recommend arrangements to the committee at the next meeting.

ROBECHAUD NAMED HEAD OF BUREAU

Superintendent of Dominion Government's Bureau of Translation.

OTTAWA, Oct. 2 (C.P.)—Domitien T. Robichaud, Ottawa, was appointed yesterday superintendent of the Dominion Government's Bureau of Translation. His salary will range from $4,800 to $5,400.

A central translation bureau was established at the last session of Parliament. It will supersede the system under which each department had its own translators, not only for French and English but foreign languages as well.

Robichaud was born in Shippigan, N.B., but has resided in Ottawa since 1909. For some time he has been head translator in the public works department. He has been president of L'Association Technologique, president of L'Institut Canadien-Francais, a member of the housing commission of Ottawa, and president of the Ottawa Separate School Board. At the present time he is president of the Association of Separate School Trustees of Ontario, a member of the Professional Institute and fourth vice-president of the Federation of the Civil Service of Canada.

He is widely known as an author, publishing several works on French Acadians and was a regular contributor to Les Annales De L'Institut Canadien-Francais of Ottawa. In 1931 and 1927, he presided at the National Congress of Acadians at Church Point, N.S. and at Moncton, N.B. It was at the latter congress that he presented a motion, which was adopted, for the institution of the Acadian Historical and Literary Society, still in existence.

MONSIGNOR McCOLL DESCRIBES WORK OF THE MONASTIC ORDERS

LEADING MISSIONARIES.

"You hear a great deal about the work of Florence Nightingale in the realm of nursing, but you never hear that she went to the nursing sisters of France to receive her education in the care of the sick....

"When the breaking up of the great Roman Empire sent hordes of barbarians surging over the countries of Europe, it was missionary monks from the monasteries of Ireland and Scotland that made their way down through Germany and France and Spain, to take these barbarous people and convert them to Christianity....

"And it was representatives of the great monastic order of the Society of Jesus that opened up the New World of Canada and converted the Indians to Christianity. The Ursuline nuns, working among the Indian women, not only taught them of Christ but also taught them the household arts of cooking, sewing and the like...."

It was an illuminating and intensely interesting discourse on the work of the monastic orders, down through the pages of history, since the hermits of ancient years were first segregated into communities of monks and nuns by St. Basil and others, that was given last night in St. Alphonsus Lyceum by Monsignor W. J. McColl of Lindsay, Vicar-General of the diocese of Peterborough, speaking to members of the Catholic Women's League at the first open meeting of the society for this season.

The program, arranged by Miss Lillian Hurley, was most entertaining, the speech by the Monsignor, always a favorite speaker to the citizens who remember him so well during his quarter of a century of service in Peterborough, both at the Cathedral and at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, of which he was first pastor, being the highlight of the evening.

In the sixth century, when St. Benedict perfected the monastic and conventual systems of the western world, a working day of five to eight hours in length was imposed on the monks by their superior. Back of the regulations was prominent the idea of the salvation of souls and an increased love of God.

Monastic Contributions

From these communities sprang the culture of the earlier ages and to them also the people among whom they worked owed a knowledge of architecture and kindred crafts, as demonstrated in the magnificent cathedrals which were erected mainly in the thirteenth, which has been termed the greatest of all centuries.

The monks also promoted education for the monasteries always maintained schools and were the nucleus, said the reverend speaker, of the superb university system of Europe. In the 13th century, Oxford University alone had an enrolment of 30,000 students, with as many in Paris and 5,000 more at Prague. In Ontario to-day, the university system of affiliating colleges in one central unit is modelled on the scholastic ideas of the monasteries.

"The Reformation," said the Monsignor, "set the cause of education and advancement in science back about three hundred years, because of the wholesale destruction of the large schools of the period."

The members of monastic and conventual orders also worked among the poor and the sick. "That type of social service work was done through all the early ages of the church and particularly in the Middle Ages, when monks nursed the men of the community and the nuns performed a like office for the women among whom they lived. Nursing sisters were present on the battlefield and the Red Cross Society owes its emblem to a saint who in the early ages of the church adopted that symbol for his community."

Missionary endeavors were carried out by monastic orders also. St. Patrick, although not himself a member of an order, established religious communities in Ireland, and St. Columba did the same in Scotland. Monks from these lands passed down through the pagan lands of Europe and spread the Gospel, as proved by the discovery in Germany of manuscripts written in the Gaelic tongue which was common alike to Ireland and Scotland.

The first martyrs of Canada were Jesuits who Christianized the Indians, and their modern counterparts may be found now in the far lands of Africa, China, Japan and India.

On the conclusion of Monsignor McColl's address, brief speeches of compliment to the speaker were made by the Rev. J. J. O'Brien and the Rev. P. Costello, the former referring to the presence at the Crimean War of a band of nursing nuns, and also to the historical reference to the fact that, after the Reformation, washerwomen of Oxford hung clothes to dry in the deserted lecture halls of the university.

Mrs. B. Law, president of the league, voiced a very appreciative vote of thanks to Monsignor McColl and also to the musicians of the evening: Miss Geraldine Collins, who sang "Angus Macdonald," with accompaniment by Miss Hurley, and Miss Bernice Flynn and Harry McDonald, in piano and violin duets, playing "Danny Boy" and "My Wild Irish Rose."

Mrs. Law gave a brief report of the proceedings of the Diocesan convention of the league, held in Ennismore last week. Miss Norah Shevlin read the minutes and Miss Mamie McCarthy gave the financial statement. It was announced that the first meeting of the Study Club will be held on October 15th, when the Rev. P. Costello will review the Holy Father's Encyclical on Education.

New Vice-President

LT. COL. H. DESROSIERS, D.S.O.

President of the B. Houde Company, Limited, Quebec, and director of Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited, has been appointed Vice President of this latter company.

Colonel DesRosiers has been associated with the company since 1901. He worked at the head office in connection with the Sales Department, and later took over branch offices in St. John, N.B., Ottawa and Toronto. Later again he was appointed secretary to the board, a position he occupied until the outbreak of the Great War, and which he again assumed on his return from overseas in 1919.

In 1920 Colonel DesRosiers was appointed general manager of the B. Houde Company, Limited, Quebec, a subsidiary of Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited, and in 1929 he was appointed president of this company. In 1928 he was elected director of Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, Limited. He is also president of the Quebec Leaf Tobacco Company, Limited.

Born in Vaudreuil in 1880, Colonel DeRosiers was educated at Vandrieuil, and finished his education at the University of Ottawa.

When war was declared in 1914 Colonel DesDosiers immediately joined the 14th Battalion as lieutenant. Winning his captaincy at the Battle of Ypres, he was recalled to Canada in 1916 to raise the 163rd Battalion. This unit became, in England, a part of the 10th reserve. Crossing to France in 1918, Colonel DesRosiers took command of the 22nd Battalion which he brought home at the conclusion of hostilities. Colonel DesRosiers was mentioned in despatches and in 1916 won the Distinguished Service Order. He was an honorary aide de camp to Viscount Willingdon during the latter's tenure of office in Canada as Governor General.

ASK COUNCIL TO REFUSE FIXING ASSESSMENTS

Letter From Ratepayers.

An important communication in the letters read by City Clerk Armstrong was received from the Peterborough Ratepayers' Association respecting fixed assessments. It was signed by E. R. Wilson, and was referred to the Manufacturers' Committee.

The letter was as follows:

"Peterborough, Oct. 1, 1934.

"To the Mayor and Council of the City of Peterborough:

"The recently formed Ratepayers' Association of the city respectfully request your careful consideration of the following data on fixed assessments or tax exemptions, which have steadily increased to the almost incredible sum of over four and one-half million dollars:

"This careless tax exemption policy so long continued has made our city an 'easy mark' for the promoter and bonus-seeker and places Peterborough in a most unethical business position in comparison with other industrial cities of Ontario.

"The following industrial information has been compiled from data furnished by the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, the 1933 Canada Year Book, our own city records and correspondence with other Ontario cities:

"Peterborough has an industrial exemption of $4,697,475. This is more than the combined exemption carried by 22 other Ontario cities, including Toronto, Hamilton and London.

"Kitchener: 'Replying to your enquiry of August 15, Kitchener has not submitted a fixed assessment by-law to the ratepayers for the last fifteen years.'

"Toronto has not granted industrial fixed assessments for a long period and has no unexpired assessments on hand.

"Hamilton: Peterborough carries fifteen times more exemption burden than Hamilton, with seven times our population.

"Peterborough has 78 industries and 70 of them pay their full share of taxes. Why favor the other eight?

"The taxpayers' loss: These fixed assessments add about six mills to our tax rate. Over one dollar in every eight of our taxes goes for the benefit of these favored industries. Is it fair?

"We now lose over $118,000 per year on these exemptions. This is more than twice the average tax for direct relief.

"Why tax ourselves twice as much for the relief of these favored industries as we do for the unemployed?

"Why grant them more tax exemption than would carry the tax cost of our Collegiate and Vocational Schools combined?

"The Ratepayers' Association and the 70 industries that are carrying their full share of taxation regard the continuance of this exemption practice as a direct menace to the general welfare, an unfair burden on the taxpayers and a very unethical business practice.

"This system fosters and encourages four major business evils:

"(1) This relic of the outlawed bonus system acts as a bait for the promoter and bonus-seeker, who in turn get municipalities bidding against each other at the taxpayers' expense.

"(2) The result is that business does not stand on its own feet and pay its own way; either a false bottom is maintained or unearned profits are provided at the taxpayers' expense.

"(3) It encourages and fosters an unfair competition with industries that are paying their way. Why tax a full pay industry to support a part-pay one?

"(4) It is taxing private property to produce corporation dividends.

"We respectfully submit that under present conditions with the city carrying a huge bank overdraft, with a corresponding large arrears of taxes, with many private properties in the city being taken over in lieu of taxes and most of these becoming 'frozen assets' that produce no revenue, the Council should make every possible effort to lighten the burden.

"This can be done by emphatically discouraging any attempt to further exploit the taxpayer by any evasion of the Municipal Act, under the guise of a new assessment amount, or other device.

"Ratepayers cannot consent to or condone any compromise in this matter. The 'square deal' is the only basis of action and special favors cannot be considered.

"We respectfully request the Council to use the special protective powers conferred upon it by law for the protection of the taxpayer.

"The Ratepayers' Association especially opposes the renewal of fixed assessment and such renewal is clearly prohibited by the revised Municipal Act. We have obtained legal opinion that the proposed evasion of the Act is absolutely illegal.

"Replying to our enquiry under date of Sept. 19, Mr. Brittain says: 'In our opinion it would be contrary to the Act, inasmuch as at one time there was in the section a clause reading, 'but may be renewed from time to time for further periods of not more than ten years,' this clause was struck out and the words, 'shall not be renewed,' substituted, which indicates plainly enough the intent of the clause.'

"A stated policy of strict compliance with the purpose of the Municipal Act and the refusal of renewals of fixed assessments or their equivalents when present contracts expire would automatically clear the city of this taxation inequality in the course of a few years."

WOODWORK IS NOW ON DISPLAY

Fine Handicraft of W. Webb to be Seen in Examiner Window.

SKILLED CRAFTSMAN

The Examiner's south display window contains some very fine examples of handicraft which are the work of W. Webb, woodworker of Charlotte street.

There is more than mere handling of fine woods in this exhibit. A touch of artistry is apparent in the craftsmanship and the touch of the true artisan who takes a pride in making everything of the best shines forth from these few pieces.

The tall floor lamp standards have a beautiful turning to their slender pedestals and one has a careful little globe crossed by a diagonal arc, appearing half-way between the length of the standard itself, just a variation in the ordinary type of thing that makes it stand out as a work of art.

Spindle or spool lamps are another variation that is shown in a lovely piece of dark wood in this window and there is an elegant little jardiniere stand with top made of inlaid wood in triangular-shaped sections.

The cheerful note of beer-drinking is emphasized in the light-shaded brown wood that makes a tray with handles, and the tall pitcher and array of beer mugs, resembling steins, that go along with it. The light wood is barred with slender bands of copper.

The whole display is indicative of what can be done with careful and appreciative handling of fine woods, in the hands of a skilled craftsman.

GEORGE SORENSON OPENS GREENHOUSE

Spent $4,000 on Alterations to Greenhouses on Argyle Street.

With the rich background of a lifetime of experience in the realm of horticulture gathered in the old world and the new, George Sorenson announces the opening of extensive greenhouses and florists store at 39 Argyle street, near Nicholls Hospital.

Following the formal opening of the premises to-morrow morning, where $4,000 has recently been expended in alteration and improvements, Mr. Sorenson extends a cordial invitation to the general public to pay a visit of inspection. He also solicits their patronage.

A Norwegian by birth, Mr. Sorenson's wide experience has been gained not only in his own country but also in Germany, the United States and Canada. He has been intimately connected with all branches of the florists business throughout his career, and during the past nine years was with the Peterborough Floral Company.

In his present location Mr. Sorenson plans to conduct a wholesale and retail trade in cut flowers, potted plants, ferns, bulbs as well as floral designs for all occasions.

Winnipeg Futures Probe Is Suggested

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2. (CP). — A flood of selling orders surged into the wheat pit of the Winnipeg grain exchange at the start to-day and opening futures prices were one to five cents lower.

Extreme weakness at Liverpool apparently had something to do with the liquidation but in the stress of the active trading it was hard to determine the source of the heavy selling.

October wheat plunged 1¾ to 3½ cents to 79¼ to 77½ cents; December dropped one to five cents to 81 to 77, and May option was 1⅞ to five cents down at 85¼ to 82 cents.

Now Is The Time To Clean Chimneys

An excited 'phone call brought the entire Fire Department to 416 Mark street this morning shortly after 11 o'clock. A house blaze had been reported but only a chimney fire was found on arrival. Little damage resulted.

At 1.15 p.m. yesterday afternoon, the firemen put out a chimney fire at 560 Water street. At 1.36 p.m. a general alarm brought all apparatus to 156 Lake street. The attic of the house was found full of smoke but no blaze could be discovered. A disconnected flue was discovered as the cause.

Fire Chief Gimblett to-day issued a warning to householders of the city who have been delinquent in the matter of chimney cleaning. The fire prevention by-laws of the city demand the cleaning of al chimneys at least once a year.

Now is the time to have the annual cleaning done, the chief advises.

O'DUFFY SUSPENDS CRONIN AS HEAD OF BLUE SHIRTS

DUBLIN, Oct. 2 (AP)—General Eoin O'Duffy, who recently was supplanted by E. J. Cronin, former ally, as head of the Blue Shirt organization of youth, to-day issued a statement "suspending Cronin and Senator E. J. Blythe from the organization.

The statement provided a comic tinge for those who look to Cronin for leadership.

A previous announcement that he had resigned as leader of the Blue Shirts was denied Sept. 27 by O'Duffy, who said he had relinquished presidency only of the Fine Gael.

Obituary

WILLIAM GEORGE THOMPSON

A lifetime resident of this district, William George Thompson, 601 Water street, died at his home last evening after a short illness. He was 58 years of age.

Mr. Thompson was born in Smith Township, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Thompson. After a long period of farming in Douro, he came to this city 27 years ago. He attended St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

Mourning his loss are five nieces, Mrs. Francis Craig, with whom he resided; Mrs. Herbert Darling; Mrs. Valentine Tully, Mrs. Albert Warne and Mrs. J. E. Lillico, all of Peterborough.

The funeral will take place Wednesday at 2.30 o'clock from the residence on Water street to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. E. J. Millyard will conduct the services.

MRS. ISAAC NEWTON BELL.

The funeral of Mrs. Isaac Newton Bell, whose death occurred on Friday, took place from the family residence, 114 London Street, on Monday, October 1, and was largely attended.

Mrs. Bell was born in Smith Township, daughter of the late Andrew and Ann Braden, and was in her 82nd year. For several years she was a member of Fairview United Church, and since coming to the city a member of George Street United Church.

Besides her sorrowing husband, she leaves to mourn four daughters, Mrs. Ernest Rosborough, Mrs. Fred Bell, both of Smith, Mrs Whitfield Northey of Peterborough, and Mrs. Fred Webdale of Lakefield. Also one son Wilbert of Smith. There are also 16 grandchildren and 4 great-grandchildren, and one sister, Mrs. Letitia Nichols of Smith.

Services were conducted by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of George Street United Church, assisted by Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church. Burial services were in charge of Webster Bros. of Lakefield.

The pall-bearers were Wesley Bell, Alexander Rosborough, Earl Rosborough, Fred Northey, Arthur Bell, and Carmen Bell, all grandsons of the deceased. Interment in Little Lake Cemetery.

Emergency Meeting Called At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, October 2 (C.P.).—An emergency meeting of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has been called for this afternoon as a result of the intense interest created by the suggestion of John I. McFarland, general manager of the Canadian wheat pool, that dealings on the Exchange in wheat futures be investigated.

Council of the Exchange held a meeting this morning considering press reports of Mr McFarland's statement. The council decided an analysis of trading should be instituted and called a general meeting of the Exchange that will be asked to grant council wider powers in connection with the regulation of trading if at any time it was deemed necessary.

LABOR MODERATES OVERWHELM EXTREMISTS AT ANNUAL MEET

Reject Cripps' Proposals for Immediate Steps to Extreme State Socialism.

MOVE TO RADICALISM.

SOUTHPORT, England, Oct. 2 (CP Cable).—By a smashing majority the Moderates overwhelmed the Extremists in the annual convention of the British Labor Party to-day, rejecting proposals of Sir Stafford Cripps, leader of the Left-wingers, to write into the party platform proposals for immediate steps towards extreme State Socialism.

Sir Stafford, a militant member of the House of Commons, has banded his followers within the Labor Party into the new "Socialist League," but the card vote to-day revealed he was considerably in the minority.

When it came to a vote on his amendment to the party platform, declaring Labor should on return to office immediately secure powers to effect a Socialist reorganization of the entire industrial and social system, the Extremists were defeated hands down. The vote was 2,-146,000 to 206,000.

Radical Changes

Sir Stafford's amendment would have have had Labor change the whole existing basis of production and distribution in the United Kingdom. It included steps to socialise the Bank of England joint stock banks, and would place control of land entirely in the hands of the government.

All these measures were brought to the fore by a carefully calculated series of amendments to the draft platform drawn up by the executive, and if they had been approved would have entirely changed the party policy in the direction of radicalism.

The party then turned to discussion of the joint report of the party executive and of the Trades Union Congress, heading the powerful trades union section, on war and peace.

What Steps in Case of War

Arthur Henderson, general secretary of the party for many years and president of the World Disarmament conference, reminded the delegates they were to consider what steps—including a general strike—were to be taken by labor in the event of war, or threat of war.

The whole labor movement must co-operate in such policy, not merely the trades unions, he declared:

'Labor rejects finally and forever the world conception of the balance of power," he declared. "If any government ever seeks to involve Britain in war, it will be opposed by the united strength of the whole labor movement."

A resoution by Mr. Henderson approving Russia's recent admission to the League of Nations was approved by the convention. Mr. Henderson said he did not believe, as some critics suggested, that Russia's entry was motivated by ulterior ideas.

"I believe Russia has been influenced only by a strong desire to assist in stabilizing world peace."

Henderson said he thought Russia's entry, with its peace and disarmament appeals, might also open new opportunities for effective co-operation along economic lines.

Plans for War

Speaking to the War and Peace resolution Jack Mills of Dartford, a former M.P., charged that Japan was making "deliberate preparation for a war which the Japanese consider essential."

He demanded that Labor hammer from the British Government, "the declaration that there shall not, in event of war, be any assistance, financial or physical, from Great Britain to help the state which has outlawed itself in the eyes of the civilized world."

Mills added, "Every trade represented here is slowly being battered out of existence by the slave conditions in the Japanese industrial world."

Growing Lonesome for His Mother 11-Year-Old Lad Hikes to the Border

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 2.—(CP)—Gilbert McTigure, 11, of Toronto was re-united today with his mother in Buffalo. The little lad who lives with his grandmother in Toronto grew lonesome for his mother and decided to visit her.

Arriving here hungry and penniless last night his actions aroused the suspicion of Canadian immigration authorities at the Peace Bridge. They took him into custody as a runaway and phoned Chief A. E. Griffin of Fort Erie police.

Taking the lad to his home, the chief fed him and communicated with the boy's mother who arrived and took him to Buffalo for a visit. The little fellow went, all smiles.

The New Manager of Metropolitan Store

The new manager of Metropolitan Stores, Mr. R. W. Kennedy, since locating in Peterborough recently has been familiarizing himself with local conditions and instituting such operating changes as his keen business instinct realizes will react in the best interests of the store's present and future patrons.

Born in Ontario, Mr. Kennedy has an engaging personality, both socially and in a business way. He has had a wide and successful experience in managing Metropolitan Stores, including stores at Chatham and London, Ontario, and brings with him to Peterborough the confidence of the Metropolitan executive office, together with the high esteem and best wishes of those communities in which he has resided.

Just now, Mr. Kennedy is preparing for a "New Manager's Sale," Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week, a selling event which will feature matchless values in home and personal merchandise—all displayed and serviced with an efficiency that makes selection easy and satisfying.

HAD MOTOR TRIP OF 6,500 MILES

Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Clancy Return From Trip Through Fourteen States.

DRIED OUT AREA.

Accompanied by their sons, Peter and Mark of Battle Creek, Mich., Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Clancy have returned from a motor trip of 6,500 miles to Hayden Lake, Idaho. Incidents of their tour through fourteen States included several days at the Chicago Fair, a long drive through the Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming, and observation of some of the destructive effects of the summer's long drought in the mid-western States.

At Hayden Lake, Mrs. Clancy visited her brother, Owen O'Connor, whom she had not seen in forty years, and in the Englewood Cemetery, Chicago, she visited the grave of her sister, who died thirty-five years ago. Several other members of the O'Connor family, farmers in Ops township, Victoria county, years ago were included in the itinerary which had been planned as an opportunity for the first re-union since a childhood separation in Ops.

260,000 Cattle Bought.

Mr. Clancy said that as an evidence of the destruction of farm wealth in the middle west by the lack of rain this year the Federal Government had bought in three counties of Montana alone 260,000 cattle at $12 a head as a means of relieving stricken farmers. Serious loss in the agricultural States formed a striking contrast with the mining centres where there is unusual activity and apparently an abundance of money.

"With the exception of parts of Iowa," Mr. Clancy told the Examiner, "I didn't see any place that I would trade for Otonabee."

BLACKJACKING OF SWEETHEART LAID TO YOUTH

Pennsylvanian Charges Accused Killed Girl So He Could Wed Another.

VICTIM TO BE MOTHER.

Claim Crime Committed as Pair Were on Night Swimming Party.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 2. — (A.P.).—The Commonwealth summoned more than a score of witnesses to-day in an effort to prove that Robert Allen Edwards blackjacked Freda McKechnie to death as they swam in Harvey's Lake.

It was Pennsylvania's "American tragedy" trial, with the prosecution charging that the 21-year-old mine surveyor plotted one sweetheart's death so that he might marry another. Freda was the home town girl; Miss Margaret Crain, the friend of college days.

Freda's body was found floating in the lake after she and Edwards had gone swimming during a rainstorm the night of July 30.

Harold Flannery, assistant district attorney, told the jury last night that the prosecution will prove Edwards promised to marry Miss Crain while plotting the death of the other girl.

"We will show the intimacies of these two," Flannery shouted. "We will show what was back of this crime. And we demand the extreme penalty—the electric chair."

To-day District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis will open the testimony by calling upon County Detective Richard Howell, a neighbor of the Edwards and the McKechnies.

Go Back Years.

He will trace his investigation back several years when Edwards and Freda met while working in a Wilkes-Barre brokerage office.

Lewis will summon Mr. and Mrs. McKechnie to tell of Edwards' courtship of their daughter and her hope of becoming his wife after a physician told her she would be a mother in a few months.

Pennsylvania State troopers and county officers will lay before the jury reports of their investigation, reaching far back into the life of the youth who called himself a "lady's man."

State's attorneys decline to say whether an effort will be made to obtain a statement from Miss Crain, a music teacher in East Aurora, N.Y.

She has refused to attend the trial and the law will not permit she be subpoenaed.

FIREMEN SAVE FIVE LONDONERS

Carry Trapped Family Over Roofs of Blazing Building to Safety.

TWO ARE INJURED.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 2.—(C.P.)—Trapped in their apartment on Dundas street when thick clouds of black smoke penetrated the building, five Londoners were removed to safety over the roof of the building early to-day and two members of the London Fire Department suffered painful injuries when they slipped and fell while fighting the blaze.

Damage estimated at $1,000 resulted from fire which broke out in the basement of the building jointly occupied by Otto R. Marr, butcher, and Paul Smith, fruit merchant, while smoke ruined the business premises and upper apartments occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Smith and their three children.

Those carried to safety firemen were Paul Smith, his wife and three children, Paul, junior, Donna and Jane. Guided by firemen with gas masks, they were taken through a sky-light to the roof and to an adjoining buildigs.

BY ART MURRAY

EDDIE SEAGRAM was the leading owner during the recent Woodbine meeting in the matter of purse money won. It was a popular win too as Eddie has had bad luck and tough breaks with his horses the past few months. The Smallman Stable from London were in second place but quite a sum behind the leader. It is quite a novelty to see two Canadian owners head the list at this track, as in previous seasons it was usually the large American stables that got all the gravy. In this edition you will find the opening day's entries for Long Branch, and the best horses in training in Canada are on the grounds waiting for the bugle to blow.

The Watson brothers who have been the riding sensations of the year will be doing their stuff at this track. This pair expect to go to the southern tracks this winter and we believe they will be in the headlines frequently. This mare Betty Farrell is a lot better than the general public think and we look, to seeing her cop a few before the season comes to a close. Her race on closing day at the Woodbine was a dandy. Lady Hockberger is another that is in grand shape at the present time, and was a double winner at the spring meeting at this same track. She was under the wing of Lloyd Gentry at that time.

THE LONG season at Detroit comes to a close this week after having been continuously in operation since May. That is a record for any track in America to shoot at, but how they kept going for that length of time is a mystery to everyone connected with racing. We wonder how the fans in Detroit will be able to gather enough dough for the World's Series. Mr. Joe is expected by his connections to turn in a winning effort before the close, and they are counting on a large melon cutting with him. Eveline F. is also there and as this one is strictly a fall horse, you can look for big doings any day now.

We hear that next summer Detroit is going to run a spring and fall meeting with a recess of a month in between, and that the two Windsor tracks will take advantage of this month to each stage a seven-day session. Devonshire did not operate at all this summer and Kenilworth only ran one week early in May, and suffered a huge loss. Next Monday which will be a banner day at Long Branch as it is the last holiday of the year that racing can be carried on, and a lot of the fans will be trying to get the winter's coal. J. E. Smallman made an addition to his already large stable when he purchased the three-year-old Velociter and the two-year-old Chortie. They will probably win first time out at Long Branch.

Cogs Ousted From O.B.A.A. Race at Milton

SECOND FRAME BLOW-UP COSTS COGS THE GAME

Milton Scores Seven Runs in One Inning to Give 9-5 Victory.

MISPLAYS COSTLY.

When they went completely haywire in one inning and permitted their opponents to run in seven runs in quick succession, yesterday afternoon, in Milton, Cognawagas wafted themselves right out of the O.B.A.A. intermediate "B" playdowns.

It was the third game of their series in the provincial semi-finals, Milton having won the first contest and the second here ending in a tie, 4-4, and benefitting fully from the presentations Cogs made to them in that one frame, Milton won by 9 to 5.

Throughout the season Cogs have been jinxed regularly by piling in a bundle of misplays in one inning, and they accomplished the trick yesterday in the second. In that frame they could do little right, and all their opponents had to do was to hit the ball almost anywhere and runners coasted around the bases. After the Cogs finally retired the side and started afresh, they played something of the brand of ball of which they are capable, and it wasn't a bad game thereafter. But the damage had all been done.

Count Two in First

"Casey" Masterson started on the rubber and he struck out two of three batters to face him the first inning. Cogs were playing as the home team, and in their half they uncorked three stinging hits to score two runs.

Two infield errors put runners on with none out to start the dismal second. Then Milton began pounding the horsehide into the outfield. Moore in centre field lost several flies in the sun, and what should have been easy outs went for extra base hits. Milton had scored five runs with only one being retired when Vannest relieved Masterson. Two more hits and an infield error followed for two more counters before the third man was out.

Cogs settled down more or less from then on and tried vainly to overcome the lead. A hit by pitcher, a stolen base and a single by Mein accounted for one run in their half of the second.

But in the third Milton secured three more easy hits to counter twice. Vannest had to whiff three batters on strikes to retire the side.

Stopped by Smart Fielding

Cogs threatened several times to go on a batting rampage, but were stopped by smart fielding. In the sixth they were able to add two runs to their count on a walk, three hits and two stolen bases. Erratic baserunning in the later stages failed to help their cause.

Percy Vannest again showed great courage as a pitcher when he remained in there, hurling nice ball despite ragged support. If Masterson had been given fair backing in the second inning, Vannest would probably not have been needed, because "Casey" appeared to be in fine fettle and showed plenty of stuff until his support failed.

Marsh went the route for Milton. He had little on the ball, the Cogs collecting 11 hits, but he was tendered faultless fielding by his mates. J. Brush led the winners' hitters with three, one a triple, while A. Clement at second had a great day in the field.

Mein and Padgett each had three hits for Cogs, while Crary had a triple.

JUMBO ELLIOTT IS NO MYSTERY TO BOONE CLAN

LUCAS ON MOUND TO-NIGHT

TORONTO, October 2 (C.P.). — A home-bred right-hander, Steamer Lucas, will chuck fireballs at the Columbus Red Birds to-night in an effort to square the Little World Series between Toronto Maple Leafs and Columbus Red Birds at two games each, sending the teams to the home park of the American Association winners with the issue very much in doubt.

The International League representatives, beaten in the first two games of the series, got back into contention last night behind a four-hit pitching display by Al Hollingsworth. The Leafs found their batting eyes to pound out a 7-2 victory and make it possible to even the series before the scene of activity changes to Columbus.

Lucas on the Mound.

Lucas, the only Toronto-bred player on the Leaf roster, will go out to-night to pitch the fourth game of the nine-game series. He has been used mostly as a relief hurler during the season and was a hero of the league playoffs against Newark and Rochester. His opponent may be Ed. Huesser, winning pitcher for Columbus on Saturday night.

With Hollingsworth stilling Columbus bats last night, the Leafs had an easy time building up a big margin at the expense of Jumbo Elliott, veteran right-hander. With two out in the first, the Leafs scored two on McQuinn's walk and singles by Manager Ike Boone and Red Howell.

Bad 4th for Elliott.

Elliott uncorked a wild pitch in the third inning that gave Toronto another run, and he yielded three in the fourth—his last inning of action. Three straight hits, an infield out and another safe blow caused Jumbo's retirement.

Meanwhile Hollingsworth was mowing down the Red Birds and he weakened only in the eighth when Teachout, a pinch-hitter, singled and scored on Myers' triple. Myers crossed the plate on an outfield fly by Riggs.

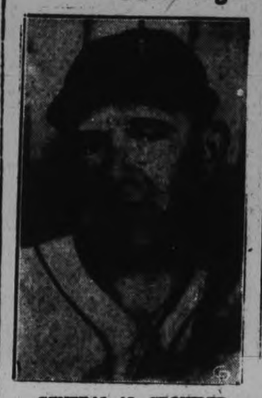
These Tigers Flingers Will Help Schoolboy Rowe



GENERAL AL. CROWDER

Tommy Bridges

FRED MARBERRY

ELDON AUKER

This quartet of Detroit Tiger hurlers, along with the incomparable "Schoolboy" Rowe, will in all likelihood compose the firing line that Manager Mickey Cochrane will send to the mound. Tommy Bridges, whose one-hit feats are past history, is reputed to have the best curve in baseball, while Eldon Auker's sinker ball is deadly when it's working right. Fred "Firpo" Marberry, though his old-time speed is gone, can still make things dangerous on his good days, while General Alvin Crowder, the Washington cast-off, has re-discovered the fountain of youth and is a valuable asset.

World Series Facts

Contending clubs — Detroit Tigers, American League champions, versus St. Louis Cardinals, National League champions.

Starting time — 1.30 p.m., E.S.T., for all games at Detroit; 2.30 p.m., E.S.T., at St. Louis.

Conditions of play — World championship goes to team first winning four games. Postponed games played off in city where originally scheduled on next possible playing date, with entire schedule advanced accordingly.

Seating capacities—47,000 at Detroit; 40,000 at St. Louis.

Rival managers — Frankie Frisch, Cardinals; Gordson S. ("Mickey") Cochrane, Tigers.

Umpires — National League, William J. Klem and John Reardon; American League, Clarence Owens and Harry Geisel.

Weather prospects—Generally fair and warmer for opening game Wednesday at Detroit.

Demand for American iron and lysteel products in Greece is increasing.

DOYLE IS MAN BEHIND SCENES OF TIGER WIN

After 16 Long Years Veteran Detroit Scout Has Seen His Efforts Bear Fruit.

GAVE RICKEY HIS START

DETROIT, Oct. 2.—Through the bushes and up the back alleys of baseball travels Billy Doyle, veteran scout of the Detroit Tigers.

You hear very little of him here in Detroit. But, if the truth were known, Billy Doyle knows more people and has a greater following than any single member of the present championship cast.

It's an event in the tank towns and bush leagues when the world spreads through the stands that Billy Doyle, the Dee-troit scout, is looking over Pitcher Perkins or Outfielder Orville or Catcher Condon of the local nine.

Bill knows baseball men everywhere. That's his business. He gets thousands of "tips" on prospects every season. He is forced to give the same consideration to a "tip" from Hank Sliders of Dothran, Ala., as he would from some former pitching great now residing in New York City.

Covered 21 States

Since 1919 Billy Doyle has been nosing through the canebreaks in search of major league ivory. He has been with the Tigers continuously since 1916.

This season alone Doyle has covered the nooks and corners of 21 States. His journeys naturally carry him off the beaten path. He spreads the gospel of Detroit and the Tigers to spots that metropolitan papers never reach.

You easily can judge just what a proud moment this is in the life of Doyle. In the past he has been forced to give a few explanations, alibis, or what have you, for various and sundry Tiger teams, when questioned along the route that he annually travels.

After 16 long years Doyle, who is an important link in a great baseball chain, has seen his efforts bear fruit. The Tigers stand today on the highest peak of baseball. They survey all before them with the knowledge that there is only one more world to conquer, at least for 1934—a world championship.

More Gospel to Spread

Just turned 50, Doyle can go smashing through the rural precincts and side town with more enthusiasm next season than ever before. There is more Tiger gospel to spread. When he looks over Pitcher Perkins, First Baseman Felix, or Shortstop Sherill of the home town nine it will be still more of an event. They even may declare a holiday in some of the places when Doyle arrives—that is, of course, if he represents the world champs. Which is quite probable.

All the way from Squashville, Mass., to Tanktown, N.C., they are pulling for the Tigers. It's a personal matter with thousands of them—the personal matter being Billy Doyle.

Signed Rickey

Probably the crowning achievement of Billy Doyle's scouting career was the day in 1903 when he signed Branch Rickey, then playing on the sandlots of Portsmouth, O., for the Dallas club. Rickey was a catcher.

Rickey's rise dates from that episode. As president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, Branch to-day is recognized as one of the shrewdest and most powerful inclucnces in the game.

It's a great moment for Detroit and the Tigers. But it's a greater moment for Billy Doyle and his scouting aides, who have stepped from the bushes to back in the glory of this team they helped assemble.

Gibbards Nine Evens Series in O.B.A.A. Playdown Series.

NAPANEE, Oct. 2 (C.P.).—One run in the second frame that their opponents couldn't match gave Napanee Gibbards the verdict yesterday over Aylmer, to deadlock the semi-finals of the O.B.A.A. intermediate A race. Aylmer came to town with a one-game advantage, but they left with a 1-0 defeat to meet Gibbards in the deciding struggle Saturday in Guelph at 3 p.m.

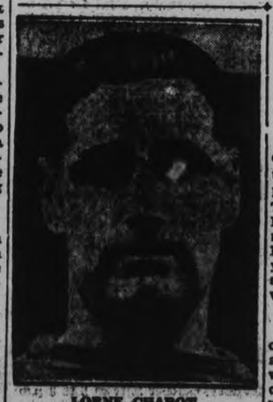
EXPECT BIG TRAIN CONACHER TO PLAY FOR MAROONS IN 1934

Morenz and Burke Mentioned as Joining to Chicago Team.

CHABOT FOR HAWKS.



LORNE CHABOT

MONTREAL, Oct. 2. (CP).—A definite offer by Montreal Maroons to Montreal Canadiens of Stew Evans, defenseman and David Trottier, left winger, in return for Lionel Conacher, the big defenseman, who played with Chicago Black Hawks last year, was made yesterday, it was learned on good authority. It was not learned whether Canadiens would accept.

Deal Pending

It became evident in hockey circles that a deal between Canadiens and Black Hawks, by which Conacher comes to Canadiens, and then will go to Maroons, was either signed or on the verge of being signed. First fruit of the deal was official announcement that Lorne Chabot, Canadiens 'lanky goalbender, will succeed the late Charlie Gardiner in Chicago nets.

Chabot thus joins his fourth National Hockey League team. The former Montreal amateur, goaler of an Allan Cup team at Fort William, broke into the big money ranks with New York Rangers, was traded to Toronto Maple Leafs for John Ross Roach and was again traded to Canadiens for George Hainsworth.

But this was but one phase of the huge deal cooking on the hockey fires—just beginning to blaze with training camps around the corner and the schedule due to be announced shortly. As certain as anything can be without an official statement is the fact that Howie Morenz, Canadiens' speedball centre, will don a Black Hawk uniform. With him will almost certainly, barring last minute collapse of negotiations, go Marty Burke, defense man.

Canadiens Going Out

Johnny Gagnon, left winger; Leo Bourgeault and Albert "Battleship" Leduc, defense men, are expected to figure in trades, possibly heading Bostonward. Canadiens are expected to get from Chicago in the Morenz-Burke-Chabot deal Lionel Conacher, Roger Jenkins, defense men, and Leroy Goldsworthy, forward.

Boston enters the picture with Joe Lamb, Dit Clapper and Babe Siebert as trading material. At least two of these are expected to wind up in Montreal uniforms—whether Canadiens or Maroons remains to be seen.

Odds Favor Cards To Hold Pennant for Nats

CARDINALS MAY SEND HALLAHAN TO THE MOUND

Frankie Frisch Not Certain About Starting "Dizzy" in First Game.

ACE NEEDS THE REST.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 2.—Frankie Frisch's madcap Cardinals, as cocksure of world-series glory as their own great "Dizzy" Dean, headed for the lair of Mickey Cochrane's Detroit Tigers last night.

They were a trifle exhausted, and their nerves were slightly frayed as a result of their dazzling drive past the routed New York Giants for the National League flag. No one of them knew for sure who was going to pitch in the world-series opener, but to a man they were confident of twisting the Tigers tail.

May Give Dizzy a Rest

Manager Frisch was set on the rest of his starting line-up, figuring to use the same team that clinched the pennant Sunday, but he was still uncertain as to the wisdom of sending "Dizzy" to the mound after only 72 hours' rest. He wanted to give his ace the assignment, but wanted him to get his chance at his very best.

Although the starting pitcher represented a problem to Frankie, the wise ones tonight figured "Wild Bill" Hallahan would be sent to the mound for the first engagement against the heavy-hitting Tigers. "Wild Bill" has had indifferent success this season, but he stood the same Tigers on their tails in exhibition games this year at Detroit and Battle Creek, Mich.

At the Detroit exhibition, the one "Dizzy" Dean missed at the personal expense of $486, Hallahan gave but five hits, and the Cardinals won 7-1. Most of the Detroit regulars were in that game.

THREE GOLFERS TIE FOR MEDAL HONORS

Mrs. Vare, Miss Robinson and Mrs. Cherney Score 82 Each.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Oct. 2.—(A.P.)—Playing over a course soft from rains and lashed by a stiff autumn breeze, three members of the United States Curtis Cup team, victorious over a British side last week covered the par-72 White Marsh Valley Country Club layout in 82 yesterday to tie for the medal in the 18-hole qualifying round for the thirty - eighth women's United States golf championship.

The co-medalists were Glenna Collett Vare, five times titlist; Lucille Robinson of Des Moines, sturdy Western champion, and Mrs. Leona Chenet of San Gabriel, Cal. They finished one stroke in front of Molly Gourlat, veteran British player, and Mrs. Carl H. Donner of Short Hills, N.J., who had 83's.

Miss Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, many times Canadian champion carded 43-47—90 to land a qualifying berth. Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, also of Toronto, shot a wobbly 48-47—95 over the trap-studded course and fell by the wayside.

PRINCE OF WALES BEATS QUEEN MARY

By Two Goals to One in League Counter Monday Afternoon.

By splendid combination the Prince of Wales team defeated Queen Mary in the Public School Soccer League, yesterday afternoon, by two goals to one. James Hollingsworth getting the winning counter.

Both Teams Even

Prince of Wales won the toss. In the early stages, Queen Mary carried the attack into their opponents' area but lacked the necessary finish whenever near the goal. Campbell and Patterson, full backs, punting and intercepting dangerous rushes. After 15 minutes' play, Mortimer accepted a pass up the field from Robson and travelled into Prince of Wales' goal to register the first counter. Just before the interval, Easton handled the ball inside the penalty area. Csumerik was trusted with the spot kick to get the equalizer.

On resuming, Prince of Wales were more dangerous through their combination. Exchanges continued even for a while, with the forwards missing many opportunities to take the lead. Eventually Prince of Wales forced the issue when J. Hollingsworth, on an individual effort, beat Queen Mary goalie at close range.

Prince of Wales—H. Jones, goal; A. Campbell and E. Patterson, full backs; D. Leal, S. Csumerik and G. Curtain, halves; B. Leal, T. Jackson, J. Hollingsworth, M. Williamson and R. Whatman, forwards. Subs.—T. McDonald, T. McMillan and R. Killingbeck.

Queen Mary.—A. Neiman, goal; A. Crary and J. Robson, full backs; J. Easton, O. Keller and E. Routley, halves; J. McGregor, C. Nicholls; D. Mortimer, J. Merrit and B. Hamilton, forwards.

By E.A.O.

Any hopes entertained here of having a Peterborough team capture an O.B.A.A. championship this season now must rest wholly upon the shoulders of Herb Ralph and his battling juvenile squad. Cognawagas pushed themselves out of the intermediate B semi-finals yesterday at Milton when they blew up in the second innings and handed their opposition seven runs. Handed such a lead on a platter, the Milton lads were not relinquishing it and riding the wave of success they turned in a brilliant fielding game to effectually smother Cogs efforts to fully redeem themselves.

* * * * * * *

The fact that in the past ten games Cogs have had the unfortunate faculty of crowding a large quantity of bad baseball into one frame has strewn their path with unnecessary difficulties. It seems that in every tangle they have been battling to overcome a lead of runs more or less handed to their opposition. The strain on the manager of such a high strung team has been great. Throughout the season Dorsey Davis has had his dreams haunted by bad innings.

* * * * * * *

Herb Ralph leads his team to Oshawa tomorrow afternoon where the youngsters resume their series with Arlingtons, the Toronto champs. The teams have a win apiece, Terriers having gained a victory in Toronto and Arlingtons won here. Terriers deserve support and fans who have time on their hands should journey to the Motor City and cheer them on.

* * * * * * *

Aspirants for the new Peterborough intermediate rugby team are taking the game seriously and are missing no opportunities in their efforts to improve and strengthen their play. Every evening the squad assembles in the exhibition grounds and toil through hard practises at tackling, ball-carrying and bucking the line generally. After dark they adjourn to King Edward where they hold brisk drills in signals and in timing their plays.

* * * * * * *

Charlie Carson, manager of the squad, has rounded all the football talent in town for the team, which opens its season on Thanksgiving Day by invading Belleville to clash with the strong Quinte crew. The team is being coached by Gordie Young and it is probable that about 20 regulars will be carried throughout the season. Several new players shewed up last week for practise and the squad carries plenty of weight now. Although the schedule has not been arranged definitely it is probable that the first game will be played here on Saturday, October 13.

* * * * * * *

A group of young athletes who are hopeful of becoming middle distance runners is working out several nights a week from the Y.M.C.A. It is hoped that a Harrier Club, such as kept running to the fore here several years ago, may be formed. It is probable that if sufficient runners turn out for the twice weekly practise jaunts and if they display sufficient form and willingness that a road may be held sometime in November.

Rangers vs. Maroons For Gardiner Trophy

MONTREAL, Oct. 2 (C.P.).—The "Chuck" Gardiner Memorial Cup will be at stake in a three-out-of-five game exhibition series between New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey League, it was announced yesterday. The series will open at Winnipeg, training ground for both clubs, on Oct. 27.

News to Winnipeg.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 2 (C.P.).—The Chuck Gardiner Memorial Cup was presented for junior competition only, hockey officials stated here last night when informed New York Rangers and Montreal Maroons would play an exhibition series for the trophy.

The cup was subscribed to by sports associations and business men here to perpetuate the memory of Chicago Black Hawk's ace goalie, who graduated from ice ranks in this city. It was to be awarded the junior player who displayed the most sportsmanlike qualities on the ice during the season.

It was thought possible the Major League teams referred to a second cup of which nothing is known here.

"THE DEANS ARE COMING."

Dizzy vs. Schoolboy Row to Form Hurling "Natural" in Initial Tilt.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

DETROIT, Oct. 2 (AP) — The bustling highroads of baseball's Jungle-town, the lair of Detroit's truculent Tigers, rumbled to-day with a rising pitch of intense excitement, mingled with a note of apprehension among the natives as the enemy's approach heralded the old call to World Series battle and a desperate duel for diamond supremacy.

"THE DEANS ARE COMING"

Through the Jungle-town sounded the warning, calling the battering Bengals to answer the challenge of the celebrated Dean brothers, who have spread dismay and destruction through the ranks of the National League with their slingshot pitching, much as it used to be the habit of the American League's standard-bearers to strike terror with the old threat of the twin bombers, Ruth and Gehrig.

"The Deans were coming"—echoing the war-cry themselves—and with them a swaggering, swashbuckling band of marauders from St. Louis, all looking for trouble and superbly confident of contributing a full share of it in the struggle that starts tomorrow, with baseball's highest honors and greatest spoils at stake.

48,000 Will See Game

From the sidelines, jamming every segment of the arena at Navin Field, close to 48,000 onlookers will let loose the old familiar roar for the send-off to the first Tiger team in 25 years to fight its way into the final round of the major league battle.

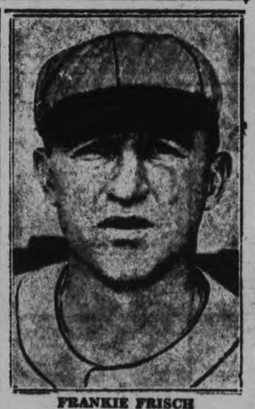
Every available reserved seat, totalling around 28,000, has been sold. By to-night it was assured the long lines would be formed by the hardy seekers of $1.10 bleacher tickets, 20,000 of which go on sale early to-morrow morning.

The American League champions, rested and ready, their confidence by no means shaken by the sudden turn of events that forced them to look West instead of East for the World Series enemy, will be backed by one of the most uproarious rooting sections in the last decade of baseball warfare. They call it the "team of destiny hereabouts, but it will take plenty of base-hits and strong-armed hurling to give Old Man Destiny a decision over the oncoming "miracle men" of St. Louis, heroes of one of the greatest uphill triumphs in the history of the game.

Odds Favor Cards

Betting men to-day favored the Cardinals to pick up where the New York Giants left off a year ago and keep the world championship in the National League. On the basis of the cold figures and all analysis of the comparative 'dope' it appeared likely to be a knock-down-and-drag-out fight, but such was the confidence in the present momentum of the St. Louis outfit that many close observers looked for a short, decisive engagement, with the Dean Brothers in the leading role.

Unless there's more to the prebattle juggling of pitching prospects than seems warranted by logic, it will be Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, elder of the famous brothers, against Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe 22-year-old Tiger ace, in the first game—a hurling "natural" of the year between two of the greatest young right-handers baseball has ever produced.



FRANKIE FRISCH

Their's are the strongest and mightiest firing arms in either camp. The rival chances of victory reset heavily upon what they can do and how often they can do it. Barring unforeseen developments, therefore, it is the better part of strategy and pitching judgment to turn them loose at the outset and stand or fall on the outcome.

Possibilities of Switch

"I may go with Rowe, Crowder or Bridges," said Cochrane. I probably will not decide until just before game time. I may want to see who is going to start for the Cardinals.

"So far as the Deans are concerned, we will take them as they come. These Tigers have shown they can hit any kind of pitching, especially fast-ball pitching. I'm not underestimating the Deans but I dont see how our club can be stopped from one end of a ball game to the other."

CENTRAL DRAWS QUEEN ALEXANDRA

Fail to Score in Public School Soccer Contest—Defense Excellent.

Central and Queen Alexandra school soccer teams battled to a no-score tie in the school league at the Oval yesterday afternoon. Both elevens are well balanced, but lack finish around the goal.

Choice of goals fell in favor of Central, to compel Queen Alexandra to face the sun. The forwards broke away repeatedly to find a stalwart defence nullifying their progress, more particularly King and Staunton, who offset Central's combination outside the goal area. Queen Alex. wing men travelled down the wing to test Bartlett in goal, who held his charge intact.

Half time—Queen Alexandra, 0; Central, 0.

The second half opened up with Central putting on the pressure to find the north end half-backs dominating the issue with clever tackling and feeding their forwards with many openings. Morrow travelling down the wing to centre the ball across the goal mouth awaiting the timely touch, Innis intercepting the movement in the nick of time.

With only two minutes to go, Central scored an offside goal, when Copperthwaite dribbled his way into goal, but his own player touched the ball into the goal when he was in an offside position. They were still pressing when full time arrived.

Queen Alexandra, 0; Central, 0.

Queen Alexandra.—K. Brown, goal; W. Staunton and A. King, full backs; M. Packenham, R. Palmer and J. Elliot, halves; H. Morrow, G. Dundas, R. Parnell, E. Parnell, and B. Beebee, forwards.

Referee—S. Leith.

The New York Giants have begun the sorrowful labor of making refunds for world series tickets, sold when the fate of the pennant was in doubt. Checks are being sent out in the mail. The Giants hope to finish the job before the week is over.

Frosty Temperature For Detroit Fracas

DETROIT, Oct. 2. (AP)—Fair and cool weather is predicted for to-morrow, when the first world series game between Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals will be played here.

The possibility of a light frost to-night was mentioned—bad news for the fans who will stand in line all night to get bleacher seats. Unsettled and somewhat warmer weather was forecast for Thursday, when the second game will be played.

CHAPTER 54

Penelope said, later, to old John Leonard, "She is getting over it."

"Thank God . . ." The two of them were sitting a little apart from the rest of the picnickers. Joan was filling the children's plates with a second helping —"Drumsticks, drumsticks, who wants a drumstick?" she chanted, holding aloft a fork on which was impaled a brown morsel of deliciousness.

"It has been a hard experience," old John stated, "but she has weathered the storm. My heart was heavy when I thought she might marry him."

Just then Joan turned towards them, "There's loads of chicken. May I bring you some?"

She came bearing a heaped-up platter. "How do you like your waitress?" she demanded.

"She's too good to be true," John Leonard told her, "we have a feeling that you'll vanish suddenly, and never come back."

"I shall always come back," she said with earnestness. "Perhaps I shall never go away."

It was at sunset that the children danced on the beach—the water was rosy with reflected light from the west, and the little folk in their sheer garments of green and amethyst and gray seemed to belong to the sky and sea as they skimmed across the sands like birds on the wing, or raced the white-capped breakers singing in time to the triple beat.

Joan was in fluttering blue, her feet and arms bare—a beautiful creature. Her friends, watching her, marveled. "How can she be content among us here," Evelyn said, "with her great loveliness and her great fortune?"

"There are times," said old John Leonard, "when money and beauty do not feed a hungry heart."

After the dance, Joan wandered away from the others. A curve in the beach brought her to a great sandbank and, sheltered from the west wind which blew cold as the night came on, she looked out over the sea. A single star hung in the sky. The world was at peace.

She was soothed by that vast serenity of sky and sea. She felt that it was good to be here after months of restless seeking. A year ago Aunt Adelaide had lived out her discontented days. And now she was at rest. A year ago they had been at Granitehead, and one morning she had walked into the dim book shop, and had met Giles Armiger.

She wondered where he was tonight. She wished that he were here, that she might talk to him quietly on the sands. He was her friend—her more than friend? She did not know. She only knew that she wanted him beside her, to tell him the things which had happened since she had seen him in Paris. She wanted to tell him that she would never marry Drew. That she did not love him. That the last flicker of his fascination for her had died when he had showed her the dark pages of his life's story.

Well, perhaps some day Giles would come to her. If he did not, what then? The winter was close at hand, and she must be making plans for it. What plans? Should she shut herself up with Penelope in the snug house on the bluff? Should she hold these simple friends close to her heart and think them sufficient? Or should she go back to Baltimore, and, opening the great mansion, carry on the traditions of hospitality which belonged to it?

Giles was back in Granitehead. He had left Scripps and Amelie radiant in their new life. Yet his island as he entered it had not seemed lonely. He liked its solitude. He felt he could live there happily with his thoughts of Joan. Since he had known she was not to marry Drew, he had been released from the horror which had hung over him. He was like a man who, sentenced to death, is reprieved at the last moment.

He spent the days in his bookshop. In August there were many people from the hotel who welcomed him back, and who were glad to buy at high prices the rare and lovely books he had brought from overseas. But there were books he did not show them—books which he had bought for the library which was some day to be Joan's. It was, he had decided, to contain a marvelous collection of the great romances of the ages. He began with an exquisite Abelard and Heloise, rebound in violet leather, hand-tooled—"I flattered myself," wrote Abelard, "that when I should see you no more you would rest in my memory without troubling my mind; that Brittany and the sea would suggest other thoughts; that my fasts and studies would delete you from my heart. But in spite of severe fasts and redoubled studies, in spite of the distance of 300 miles which separates us, your image, as you describe yourself in your veil, appears to me and confounds all my resolutions."

So Giles wished that he might write to Joan! Some day, perhaps, when the two years were over! And in the meantime, here was an old Dante, shabby but priceless, to set beside the Abelard. Here, too, were Swift and his Stella . . . were there no romances without tragedy, without sin and sordidness, pain, despair? For stripped of the glamor which the years had cast over them, what of these lovers? Thinking the world well lost—for what? Love?

Oh, not love as he and Joan would know it. On the shelves these old romances would glow with their mad passions—but he and Joan—tenderness and truth, firelight on children's faces . . . constancy, devotion; yes, and a touch too, of the madness in those old books . . .

Oh, he wanted to be with her . . . to hear her voice . . . to touch her hand. Yet—to see her now, would be to show his heart, and Drew had his word of honor!

So back to his books again . . . to his quiet evenings on the island; to Dilly now and then for supper and a chat afterwards while William tended the light.

"Of course."

"And she isn't going to marry Drew Hallam?"

"No."

"Then why don't you marry her yourself?"

"You go too fast, Dilly. Suppose she wouldn't have me?"

"Any woman would have you if you wanted her."

He laughed: "You flatter me."

She knew he was keeping something back: "Where is she now?"

"I'm not sure."

"And you haven't tried to find out?"

"No."

"Why not?" Then penitently, "Oh, Giles, I haven't any right to be asking these things. But I want you to be happy."

"I am happy."

And that was all she could get out of him. After he had gone she talked it over with William. "Perhaps they are engaged and aren't telling anybody."

So August ended and September came, and in a week Labor Day would end the season at the hotels.

Giles, facing the winter, found himself suddenly restless. After all, why should he not travel? Bridge the months between his meeting with Joan with adventure? If he stayed on his Island he would have for company only Jose and Margarida, and now and then Dilly and her William, or the young doctor and his wife.

Yet—what did he need of company, when he had his dreams of Joan? He would read and write and go back and forth to his shop.

So day after day he was busy among his books. Night after night he sat by his glowing fire, seeing in its visions of the future.

Dilly scolded him, "It's no life for a man. What are you thinking of, Giles?"

"What would you have me do?"

"Oh, wake up! There is all the world world before you—you're too young to stagnate."

"Perhaps," he told her, smiling, "I am—hibernating!"

Dilly was getting supper. She had hot biscuits in the oven and now and then she peeped at them. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes bright. November had come, and a light snow was blowing down from the north. Small Susan in blue rompers, crooned a song to old Peter, who sat beside her on the kitchen floor. Old Peter was happy with the lighthouse family. In summer he had found companionship with Dilly's hens. And in winter he sought the warmth of the snug little house, and was adored by Susan.

"It's no way for a man to live," scolded Dilly, as she split the browned hot biscuits and laid them on a big blue platter, alone. "Haven't you any ambition, Giles?"

"For what?"

Dilly turned and looked at him, "To get on in the world."

"What do you call getting on?"

"Making a success of yourself."

"I am a success," confidently. "I have money enough, so why earn more? I have an occupation I love. I have a house . . . which needs only one thing to make it—heaven . . ."

Dilly's busy hands were still. "What does it need to make it heaven?"

"Joan."

For Wednesday, October 3

The planetary configurations bearing rule on the affairs of this day may be interpreted as rather fortunate, favoring those in employment, who may confidently seek favoritism, preferment or recognition from superiors or those in authority. It is also an auspicious time for transacting business with rings, combines and secret organizations or through methods of strategem, intrigue or subtlety.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year in which preferment, favors or other benefits in employment may be sought, with superiors and those in authority kindly disposed. Rings, mergers and secret societies may likewise be approached for advancement or gain, but with methods of tact, strategem, or even conspiracy.

A child born on this day should be clever, hardworking and practical, but may be prone to gain its ends through measures of cleverness, shrewdness or subtlety.

Faster Way Now to Relieve Neuralgia

DISCOVERY ALSO EASES BAD HEADACHES
MUSCULAR PAIN OFTEN IN FEW MINUTES

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Aspirin eases even a bad headache or neuralgia often in a few minutes! An Aspirin tablet begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it. And Aspirin is safe. For Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN, the method doctors prescribe. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet. Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 tablets.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these 2 seconds happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Cochrane to Match Veteran Against Cardinal Ace, Dizzy Dean.

ROWE START SECOND.

DETROIT, October 2 (A.P.). — Mickey Cochrane announced to-day that Alvin Crowder, veteran right-hander, would start the first game of the World Series for the Tigers on Wednesday if Jerome (Dizzy) Dean takes the mound for St. Louis Cardinals.

Interviewed as he sent his players through a stiff batting and fielding drill at Navin Field, Cochrane said that if any other pitcher but Dizzy Dean goes for the Cardinals in the first game he would start his ace, Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe.

"If the Cards start 'Dizzy' Dean—and I don't expect they will start anyone else in the first game—then it definitely will be Crowder," the Bengal manager said after taking his turn in batting practice. "If they start Hallahan or anyone else but Dizzy, I'll pitch Rowe."

One of the large crowd of newspapermen present at the workout, who had just arrived from St. Louis with the Cardinals, told Cochrane that he had the assurance of the Cardinal manager, Frankie Frisch, that Dizzy Dean would draw the starting assignment.

"That means Crowder will start for us," said Mickey.

The Tiger pilot, in making the announcement, showed he is following the strategy he has employed before this year in not putting Rowe against the best hurler of the opposition.

SAY $1,500 PAID LAWYER FOLEY

'This is Mr. Foley, lawyer speaking. I am calling regarding about that matter in the hotel.' He said that can be settled and told me to come over to London. I said I could not make the trip. A few days later I received another call to communicate with Mr. Foley. I called the number and a woman who said she was Mrs. Foley answered. She said Mr. Foley was in St. Thomas."

"The Devil to Pay"

"Mr. C. and I later came to London and saw a friend. By appointment, Mrs. Turnbull came to Dufferin avenue." She said "There is the devil to pay as the other woman's husband had a detective following her and he was going to sue his wife for divorce."

"I went to Foley's office and Mr. C. Foley said this woman's husband has had a detective following her for two or three months and that she was seen going into the hotel and upstairs."

"He said this man can no doubt be bought off so that our homes would not be wrecked. He said he didn't know how much it would cost to get rid of the detective, but thought it would cost a lot of money. He said he didn't think the detective would consider less than $2,000. I said that was out of the question."

The sum of $1,500 was then mentioned, but the detective said it had cost his firm a lot of money as he had been out on the case for some time. He later agreed on that sum.

"The detective gave his name as 'Detective Allen' and said he was leaving the next noon for Toronto," continued Mr. B "Foley said the money was to be in cash and I said the money would not be paid unless a receipt was given. He said a receipt was not necessary. I had $100 which I gave as a deposit. The next day I delivered $650 to a friend from London. Mr. C. turned over his $750, and it was taken to London. A receipt was received dated June 10, and was signed 'V. T. Foley'."

"As a result of a telephone conversation later, I communicated with Provincial Police."

To. Mr. Greer, under cross-examination, Mr. B. said he and Mr. C. were in London attending a meeting. He said Mrs. Turnbull came to the hotel on a business appointment with Mr. C. "She had been to see Mr. C. on a previous occasion and told him the first time he came to London to communicate with her," he said.

"It was suggested to you that the other woman's husband was going to start a divorce action and might name you," continued Mr. Greer.

"Yes."

"Was there any suggestion made by you of your innocence with the woman?"

"You know one can't get a divorce in Ontario over taking a drink."

"I know that. I said I had nothing to fear. I may have said 'All I did was go in and get the woman a drink'. I am not sure of that, however."

"Did you seek out any lawyer to tell your story to and find out where you stood?"

Saw No Lawyer

"No."

"In Foley's office, he told Mr. C. and I that the woman's husband had a detective following his wife. He told us we had better buy the detective a ticket out of the country as this was the first time he had found anything," continued Mr. B., under cross-examination. Foley said it might cost $3,000 or $4,000, but detectives could be "bought" as he had done it before.

"Mr. C. asked me if it would be wise to settle the matter, if he would agree to $1,500, and we might split it. I did not know Foley was representing the husband.

The cross-examination was continued by E. L. Haines, counsel for Mrs. Turnbull.

"If you had been on very familiar terms with that woman on that date, and you knew the detective knew of it, wouldn't it be wise for you to keep that detective quiet?"

"There was nothing of that at all," replied witness.

"Was there any suggestion of adultery?" asked Mr. Haines.

No Suggestion of Adultery

"No."

"What did you think that detective was going to say?"

"I don't know." He was going to report to the husband.

Detective Gavin Monahan of the city detective department was the next witness. He told of conducting an investigation in company with Inspector Cousans of Provincial Police into alleged blackmail charges.

He told of Gordon Erskine being pointed out to him as being "Detective Allan." Monahan said, to the best of his knowledge Erskine had been working for Mr. Foley of late, on investigations.

Under cross-examination, Detective Monahan told Mr. Greer he has known Erskine for a number of years, and saw him at an interview in the police station a short time ago.

Witness said Erskine is about 40 years of age and is an automobile mechanic by trade. He said he is married, divorced, married and divorced.

Single Now

"Then he must be single," said Mr. Greer.

"That must be it."

Witness said Erskine has no criminal record.

Mr. K., the London friend, was then called to the stand by Acting Crown Attorney Norman Newton. He told the court of the day in the hotel when the two women came to the room to see Mr. B. and Mr. C.

"I left the room a few minutes later after I had a drink," he said. "A day or two later I received a telephone call from Mrs. Turnbull and she asked me to go to her house. When I arrived there, she told me to get in touch with Mr. B and Mr. C., as there was going to be some trouble over a detective. I called Mr. C., and told him to get in touch with Mrs. Turnbull. He later met the woman and she told him there was liable to be a divorce suit unless something was done very quickly.

Envelope With $1,400

"I later drove to see Mr. B. and Mr. C., and they gave me an envelope containing $1,400. I came back to London and went to Mr. Foley's office. I told him I had a package for him and asked him for a receipt. He counted the money and signed a receipt which he gave to me. I later gave the receipt to Mr. B."

Witness, under cross-examination, told Mr. Greer he had not been introduced to the women, and to the best of his knowledge one of the men brought the two women into the hotel room.

CITY ASSESSOR RETURNED ROLLS FOR YEAR 1935

POPULATION 23,044

50 More Taxable Persons in City Now Than One Year Ago.

An increase of 175 in the number of Peterborough's residents, with 50 more taxable persons, and a decrease of $225,080 in the total assessment, are salient facts summarized by W. J. Henry, assessor, with the rolls for 1935 which he has just transferred to City Clerk Armstrong.

The municipal population is now 23,044, which does not include the residents of the township suburbs. Taxable income shows a considerable reduction, but the business assessment is considerably higher than last year.

In its general features the assessor's annual statement is appreciably more favorable and gratifying than his reports for recent years, and with payment of 85 per cent of the 1934 taxes already due, according to Tax Collector Curtis, the official figures should be decidedly heartening to Peterborough's ratepayers.

A comparison of the 1933 and 1934 rolls is tabulated herewith:

Taxable persons	7,863	8,012
Total assessment	$28,850,090	$28,625,010

"Investigators succeeded in locating the couple designated by Hauptmann and they flatly denied that Hauptmann had been at their home or in their company at any time of the day or night of April 2, 1932, when 'Jafsie' handed the box of ransom money over a cemetery hedge to a man resembling Hauptmann.

"On further interrogation, it is said, the man and women gave authorities some important information regarding Hauptmann and his friends, the nature of which has not been disclosed. Officials have indicated, however, that his information has a vital bearing on the damaging case being constructed against Hauptmann by the prosecution."

Hunt Associate

TRENTON, N.J., Oct. 2 (AP) — An associate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Lindbergh kidnapping suspect, who apparently knew that the German carpenter was passing "hot" ransom money, was being sought to-day by the New Jersey State police.

Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, at a press conference revealed that "about February 14," Hauptmann and a companion, still unidentified, appeared at the lumber yard of Cross, Austin and Ireland, in the Bronx. Hauptmann ordered a small wood panel, which cost 40 cents.

When William J. Reilly, yard superintendent, Schwarzkopf said, was tendered a $10 bill by Hauptmann, he noticed it was a gold note and hesitated. The second man, without a suggestion from Hauptmann, offered correct change and the Lindbergh suspect immediately withdrew the bill.

Reilly said the two men said they would return later in the day to get the panel, but they never came back for it.

Schwarzkopf said Reilly "positively" identified Hauptmann from photographs, but that he was unable to identify the second man from any photgraphs of others mentioned as friends of the German carpenter.

Alibi Shattered?

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) — The Washington Star said to-day that two secret witnesses had shattered the alibi offered by Bruno Richard Hauptman to prove he was not the "John" of the Lindbergh kidnapping.

FLYING PARTY FOUND.

NEW ORLEANS, October 1 (A.P.) — Walter Wedell, flying brother of the late speed record holder, James R. Wedel, and a party of six friends who had been reported missing on an airplane fishing expedition since Sunday, were found to-day at Last Island, a small isle west of Grand Isle, off the Louisiana coast.

Magistrate's Court

Two Norwood residents appeared before Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell here to-day to answer to liquor charges. [illegible] were represented by E. F. Sheehy.

Charged with consuming liquor in a place other than a residence, the first of the two defendants pleaded "not guilty" and sought one week's adjournment which was granted.

On a plea of 'not guilty," the second of the defendants was convicted of having liquor in a place other than a residence, and was fined $15 and costs.

Constable David Silvester giving evidence in the latter case, stated he was in his house on the night of September 22 when he heard a woman scream. Going outside to investigate he saw a car standing at Prince and George streets. A woman was standing on the running board of the car. "I went over and told the men who I was and as I did so the driver of the car started off at high speed", the constable related.

The second of the two defendants gave the constable a 'shove' and the officer fell flat on the pavement he testified. He secured the number of the car and later discovered it parked on Albertus street. The accused denied having been in the vicinity of Prince and Georgee streets. The officer recovered a beer carton from the rear seat of the car and three empty beer bottles from the front of the car.

Pleading 'not guilty' to vagrancy charges a couple were remanded in custody until Friday when they appeared. Giving their names as Reginald Corkindale, and Catherine Lemieux, the couple were living at a Charlotte street rooming house.

Their arrest, it is stated, was brought about by the unfounded suspicion of the rooming house keeper that the couple might be wanted in connection with the Detroit trunk murder case. Such suspicion was definitely certified to be without foundation, but the couple were nevertheless unable to give a satisfactory account of themselves.

The woman told the magistrate that she came here from Montreal early in September and that she had been earning her living by selling bead work.

SAMUEL INSULL FACING JUSTICE AS TRIAL BEGINS

$143,000,000 Involved in Charges of Gigantic Unexampled Fraud.

COST THOUSANDS SAVINGS.

Government Ready After Two Years on Carefully Prepared Case.

CHICAGO, October 2 (A.P.). — The people of the United States called Samuel Insull to the bar of their justice to-day to answer to charges of gigantic, unexampled fraud.

Insull, whose 74 years span the "electric age" from its early Edison days to a zenith which his own empire of electric power represented, denies that the collapse of that empire was due to any criminal acts of his own.

"We went down, as did so many others, with the depression," he has said.

The case long delayed by illness and by his flight to Greece and to Turkey, was called before Federal Judges James H. Wilkerson

Specifically Insull and his 16 co-defendants are charged with defrauding investors through the sale of $143,000,000 in securities of the Corporation Securities Company. The charges centre on a stock selling campaign in which the public bought huge issues of the preferred and common stock of the Corporation Securities Company of Chicago.

Thousands Caught in Crash.

The venture sank with thousands aboard. Possibly 50 of the buyers will take the stand as Government witnesses, to tell how they invested and lost. U.S. District Attorney Dwight H. Green counts on this testimony to humanize evidence otherwise consisting chiefly of reams of figures on assets, dividends, stock-splits, earnings, and other accountancy.

Insull and his associates sold the stock through Halsey, Stuart & Co., La Salle Street Investment Bankers, and through other Insull companies.

One part of the indictment charges that they assured buyers the company had "great physical properties," when as a matter of fact the security behind the stock was worthless. Another statement that the company holdings were the stock of five big Insull companies was only 65 per cent. true the Government claims.

"Good Sound Investment."

It was also falsely represented, the indictment claims, that the common stock promised attractive yields, and was a "good, safe and sound investment." Actually, it is charged earnings were never enough for dividends.

Insull also inflated the price of the stock, it is charged, by dealing in it on the Chicago and other stock exchanges using money from his other companies.

Another part of the Government's charge is that dividends were paid out of stock, by splitting it.

The Government's carefully prepared case, the result of two years' work by auditors, and investigators, double checked by secretly conducted grand jury investigations, may answer many debated questions about Insull himself.

Civil suits totalling about $100,000,000 hang over his head, as does another Federal charge of bankruptcy fraud and a State charge of embezzlement.

nett in his effort to create foreign markets. The retaliation he caused has placed Canada where she is to-day, he said, with greatly decreased purchasing power and an overwhelming debt.

Hon. Nelson Parliament urged the need of efficient party organization, and predicted that such efforts would place a Liberal administration in Ottawa, when Canada would once again be guided by democratic principles and constructive policies.

W. A. Fraser spoke heatedly of the high-tariff policy of the Bennett Government, which has produced such devastating effects on Canadian foreign trade. He noted that the "Canada First policy had precedent for retaliatory tariff action among the components of the Empire, which were serving to its disintegration.

He characterized the Canadian Manufacturers Association as being the most shortsighted body in the Dominion, and asserted that Bennett had framed his policies at the instigation of the "big interests," disregarding the welfare of the great mass of the population.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE SPURNS $416,000

Father Rejects Contract of $4,000 a Week and $50,000 Cash.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 2 — Shirley Temple, 6-year-old movie star, has been offered and has turned down $416,000 for her professional services for a period of two years.

Her father, George F. Temple, Los Angeles bank manager, tells the story. He said:

"A person whose name I do not wish to disclose said he would pay Shirley $4,000 a week for two years and would bind the contract with $50,000 in cash, payable at once.

"I told him Shirley was under contract to the Fox studio. (Her salary reputedly is $1,200 a week.)

"His plan was to use her in radio broadcasts, personal appearances and boost her earning capacity in the movies."

Temple said he considered himself bound to the present contract.

Weddings

CARLEY—SWAIN

CAVAN, Oct. 2 (Examiner Correspondence) — The marriage took place on Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanford Swain of Blackstock of their youngest daughter, Margaret to Oakley Carley, of Cavanville, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Carley of Bolton. Rev. Harold Bell performed the ceremony assisted by Rev. M. R. Sanderson of Toronto, brother-in-law of the bride.

Autumn leaves and flowers decorated the house and the wedding music was played by Miss Effa Wright of St. Catharines. During the signing of the register, Miss Reta Swain, cousin of the bride sang. The bride given in marriage by her father wore a gown of yellow French organdie with a tulle veil arranged in cap effect with seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath. Following the ceremony a reception was held after which the bridal couple left on a motor trip to Montreal and the Adirondacks. For travelling the bride wore a brown ensemble with matching accessories. They will reside at Cavanville, Ontario.

Nobel Peace Prize For Sir N. Angell?

NEW YORK, Oct. 2 (C.P.).—An Oslo cable to the New York Times quotes President M. Olden of the Norwegian Peace Society as declaring the 1934 Nobel peace prize probably will go to Sir Norman Angell.

Sir Norman Angell, economist, author and former member of the British Parliament, has written several books on international topics, many of them dealing directly with questions of peace and war.

In "The Great Illusion," written four years before the outbreak of the Great War, he developed the argument that war is economically outdated, and that its costs were so great that both victor and vanquished were in reality defeated.

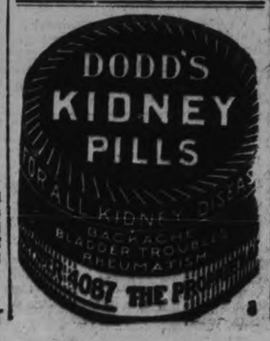
Ted Burns Appointed To Head Office Staff

Canadian General Electric Company announce the appointment of Edward (Ted) Burns to the Domestic Refrigeration Division of the General Merchandising Department at their head office in Toronto.

Mr. Burns, a graduate of the University of Toronto, has recently been transferred from the company's plant in Peterborough where, during the past few years, he has been connected with the Engineering and Cost Accounting Departments.

No mourning was worn by Sir Nigel Playfair's relatives or friends at the cremation of the playwright at Golders Green, England.



JUDGE ALLOWS BOARD CLAIM

Mrs. Agnes Dew is Awarded $627.00 and Costs by Judge O'Connor.

CONGRATULATES PARTIES.

In an action tried before His Honor Judge O'Connor in the Surrogate Court at Cobourg, yesterday, Mrs. Agnes Dew of Hope Township, was awarded judgment for $627.00 and costs against Clifford Skinkle and Leonard Challice, the executors of the Estate of James N. Simpson, deceased.

The late James N. Simpson was an uncle of the claimant, Mrs. Dew, and died on June 16, 1934, at the age of 77 years, and he resided with the claimant for five years prior to his death.

Dr. H. A. Turner of Millbrook gave evidence as to the state of health of the deceased, and of the care and attention he would require during his various illnesses, while living with the claimant.

The claim was for board and lodging and nursing services.

Judge O'Connor expressed confidence in the story of the claimant, and in the evidence of her husband. He also complimented the parties for the good feeling shown by them all in giving evidence and observed that often times in such claims considerable unpleasantness developed as a result of animated feelings. He informed the executors that it was quite proper for them to resist the claim, as they would not be justified in paying such a claim without an investigation unless with the consent of the heirs.

The evidence indicated that the deceased had made 21 wills since January 1st, 1931. When he died he had $3,900.00 in the bank, a Chrysler car and other property, and although originally a Canadian citizen he had become a naturalized citizen of the United States.

A. L. Elliott of Peterborough acted for the claimant, Mrs Agnes Dew, and W. R. Howard of Millbrook appeared for the executors.

Obituary

WILLIAM SCORE

CENTRETON, Oct. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred of Mr. William Score, at his home, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 29. The deceased was in his 83rd year, and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Score.

Mr. Score had been a lifelong resident of the village. He married Miss Selena Davey, who still survives him. They had celebrated their 60th anniversary last fall. He was a Liberal in politics, and was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters.

A short service was held at the family residence on Tuesday afternoon before going to the United Church. Rev. P. H. Neville conducted the service.

Left to mourn his loss, besides his widow, are three daughters, Mrs. Wesley Sherwin and Mrs. Frank Macintosh, Cobourg, and Mrs. C. Turk, Eddystone; three grandchildren, Mrs. J. Tisle, Eddystone, Mr. R. Turk, Dundonald, and Mr. W. Turk, Eddystone, and several great grandchildren.

The remain were interred in the family plot in Centreton Cemetery. Many beautiful floral contributions were given. The service was largely attended by relatives and friends.

Lifford Line Family Get Roof Scorched

LIFFORD LINE, Oct. 2 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hannah, Eighth Line, Manvers, were rudely awakened about midnight on Wednesday to discover that the roof of their home was on fire. Jack Hannah, their son, immediately climbed upon the roof and soaked the spreading flames with water carried with all possible speed by the other members of the household. Although a call for help had been sent out, the family were soon able to extinguish the blaze.

Before retirement a couple of hours earlier, the family had enjoyed the first fire-place fire of the season in their living-room, and it was thought possible that a bird's nest or collection of leaves lodging in the chimney might have caught or fire and spread to the roof without notice.

What "Nerves" Do

To Feminine Loveliness

Worry, and other forms of nerve strain
Are the greatest destroyers of femine beauty.
The offices of many nerve specialists
Are filled with women who are broken by worry.
The evidence is seen in carelines and wrinkles,
And the excessive use of powder and cosmetics,
To disguise the appearance of age.
To retain health and youth and beauty
It is necessary to keep the blood rich and red
And to thereby nourish the depleted nerves
Back to health and vigor.
You can do this by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
This restorative treatment puts iron in the blood.
It enables you to rest and sleep well,
Quiets the irritable nerves
And makes you feel and look fine.

Chime Piano

SIERRA MADRE Calif., Oct. 3. (CP).—A piano that doesn't sound any more like a piano than a piccolo sounds like a trombone is Harry F. Noake's "chime piano," invented in his spare time. This instrument has hammers striking directly on metal tubing. Musicians say it will bridge a wide gap in the range of modern musical instruments.

RESCUE VESSELS COMB POSITION FIND NO TRACE

Both Heave to Waiting Storm to Subside Before Continuing Search.

700 MILES OFF LABRADOR.

Crew of 26 Aboard Ship When SOS Sent Out Tuesday Morning.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. —(AP)— The gale-tossed waters of the mid-Atlantic hid the fate today of the British freighter Millpool as two steamers which answered her "SOS" steamed on their way this afternoon after combing the area in which the Millpool last reported.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. —(AP)—The American freighter Black Gull wirelessed MacKay radio today that two steamers had criss-crossed the last given position of the British freighter Millpool without finding a trace of it. The Millpool sent out and SOS yesterday.

A gale was raging and the searching ships, the Cunard liner Ascania and the Canadian Pacific freighter Beaverhill, were forced to heave to, awaiting less violent seas before renewing the hunt.

Timing its own message at the Greenwich equivalent of 4:22 a.m., E.S.T. the Black Gull reported that nothing had been heard from the Millpool for more than seven hours, and that its last message had been "unreadable."

Another British freighter which sent out a distress call yesterday, the SS. Ainderby, apparently was outlasting the gale. A liner and another freighter were standing by it.

700 Miles Out

In its SOS yesterday the Millpool fixed its position as approximately 700 miles off Labrador. The Ascania, out of Montreal for Plymouth, and the westbound Beaverhill immediately turned to its aid, but the storm prevented them from reaching the spot quickly.

Today at 6:03 a.m. MacKay radio received a brief message from the Ascania confirming its failure to find the freighter. An hour and a quarter later the MacKay office announced receipt of the following wireless from the Black Gull:

"Both Ascania and Beaverhill on position of distressed Millpool, but Millpool last hear 01:58 G.M.T. (8.58 last night, E.S.T.)

Ascania and Beaverhill have been through position of distress twice and signaled to him to send up a rocket without success.

"Both Ascania and Beaverhill now hove to until weather moderates. Foul seas."

Gang Of Robbers Steal Two Safes

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 3 (C.P.) —A gang of robbers or possibly two working in co-operation had a busy time here to-day. They broke into two offices, stole two safes, carried them into the country and pounded them to pieces.

Premises broken into were British American Oil Company and Canadian National Express and Telegraphs. From the former office they carried off a safe weighing 650 pounds. The Canadian National office was entered by means of rear window.

Taking both safes to a side road, they smashed them to pieces with crow bars, heavy hammers and chisels which were subsequently found lying around the wood lot. Oil Company's safe yielded booty of around $176 and C.N. safe a matter of $20.

SET OCTOBER 11 TO OPEN TRIAL OF HAUPTMANN

Judge Barrett Denies Defense Counsel's Request for 60 Days to Prepare Case.

ON EXTORTION COUNT.

Prisoner Appears More Worried Than on Previous Appearances.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.— (A.P.) — County Judge James M. Barrett in the Bronx to-day set Oct. 11 as the date for opening of the trial of Bruno Richard Kauptmann on an indictment charging extortion in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

Hauptmann was taken from his cell in the Bronx county jail today and hurried to the Bronx county building, to the office of District Attorney Samuel J. Foley.

No explanation of Hauptmann's presence in Foley's office was given.

Judge Barrett denied a request of defense counsel, James M. Fawcett, who asked to be given 60 days to prepare his case.

Hauptmann was led into the court room for the proceeding. He appeared more worried than at any of the three previous hearings he has attended.

NEW CUBAN STRIKE LOOMS

HAVANA, Oct. 3 (AP)—The Cuban Government settled one labor problem with the end of a troublesome taxicab strike to-day, but another loomed to take its place.

Shortly after the Cabinet agreed to most of the cab drivers' demands, the Communistic Consideration of Labor called for a 24-hour general strike beginning next Sunday at midnight as a protest against the government's policies.

JOHN GODFREY WILL TAKE POST COL. DREW HELD

Will Hold Conference Immediately on New Duties Says Roebuck.

SALARY $7,500.

Attorney General States More Light to be Shed on Drew Case Later.

TORONTO, Oct. 3. (CP). — The appointment was made to-day of John M. Godfrey, K.C., of Toronto as Security Frauds Commissioner in succession to Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew who was dismissed by order-in-council Monday.

Godfrey is a Toronto solicitor and brother of the late Dr. Forbes Godfrey, Minister of Health under the Henry Conservative administration.

Mr. Roebuck's lengthy verbal dispute with Col. Drew culminated in the calling of a special cabinet meeting to arrange dismissal of the commissioner, appointed three and a half years ago when the office was first established.

The Attorney General said he was going into conference immediately with Mr. Godfrey whose salary was set at $7,500 annually compared with Colonel Drew's $10,000, to discuss stock practices by smaller brokers.

Instructions.

Mr. Godfrey so far, said the Attorney-General had not been given any instructions as to operation of his new department. "Because I haven't even seen him yet. However, I'm having a conference with him right away."

The Attorney-General declined to discuss possibility of reorganizing the department and said the matter would be all reviewed in his conference with the newly-appointed commissioner.

Mr. Roebuck refused to comment further on the discussion between him and Colonel Drew, but when informed it had been suggested "more light should be shed on the matter," the Attorney-General said "they' ll get more light. Yes, there will be more light on all this later."

Order Ward Line Assets Impounded

BROOKLYN, N.Y., October 3 (A.P.). — An order impounding all asset of the Ward Line has been issued by the Admiralty Court in a damage suit resulting from the burning of the liner Morro Castle.

The order provides for the impounding of the Oriente, sister ship of the one which burned on September 8; the Sibony, and the Oriziba, if they are found within the jurisdiction of the Federal Court for the Eastern District of New York.

BRIGANDS ARE DEFEATED TEACHERS, PUPILS FREED

TOKYO, Oct. 3. (AP).—Rescue of three teachers and 100 pupils from brigands near Fenchuancheng, Manchuokua, was reported today by the Antung correspondent of the Rengo News Agency.

He said Japanese and Manchuokuan troops had overtaken and defeated the brigands and rescued all the victims, who had been kidnapped from two schoolhouses several days ago.

Miss All-America

The all-American girl, "Miss America," title was won by Louise Schmaltz, 17 year old blonde beauty of New Orleans in the amateur beauty contest finals staged at the Chicago world's fair. Miss Schmaltz competed against beauty queens from all parts of the United States to annex the title.

FOUR CONVICTS PADDLE DUGOUT FOR 800 MILES

Reach Port of Spain, Trinidad After Trip From French Penal Colony.

AT CAYENNE.

BY J. C. ROWAN

Canadian Press Correspondent

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Oct. 3.—(C. P. Cable)—Perils of their escape from the dread French penal colony at Cayenne were recounted by two fugitives today at the end of an 800-mile sea voyage under the broiling tropical sun in a leaky poorly - provisioned Indian dugout.

Weak from thirst and exposure Jean Petiot and Leroux Maurice reached here a few days ago with two other prisoners who had accompanied them on the long, hazardous trip in the tiny boat. They were permitted to rest in Port of Spain before pushing off again for Haiti in their dugout.

When they decided to attempt their dramatic escape, the Frenchmen had served only short terms of their long sentences. Maurice had completed 10 years of a life sentence for killing his wife; Petiot had served only 10 months of a 10-year term for robbery.

For 150 miles—all the way up the coast of French Guiana—they had to stay away from land and they did not touch shore until they struck the coast of Dutch Guiana. Their food was gone then and the water was exhausted, but they were cared for by friendly natives.

For the rest of the 650-mile journey they clung closely to shore, bailing almost all the way and putting into land frequently to make temporary repairs to the leaky craft. It was weeks later that they finally reached Port of Spain, their clothing in tatters and their bodies baked almost black by the blazing sun.

PRESIDENT RECONSIDERS

QUITO, Ecuador, Oct. 3. (AP).—Ecuadorean politics were confused to-day after President Jose Maria Velasco Ibabba submitted his resignation, only to agree a few hours later to withdraw it. He has been in office but a month. Velasco Ibbarra and the legislature had disagreed over a law for the stabilization of the currency, sponsored by the Minister of the Treasury who then resigned.

TWO MONTREAL BANKS LOOTED IN HALF HOUR

Daring Lone Gunman Executes Coup in Each Case.

TOTAL LOSS $3,500.

Customers Forced to Witness Deed in Both Instances at Gun Point.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3. — (CP) — Within half an hour, two bank branches here were held up today. In each case the robber was a lone gunman. The total loss was placed at over $3,500.

Five persons, including a girl stenographer, were threatened by a man who waved a pistol in the branch of the Bank of Montreal at the corner of Guy and Sherbrooke streets, scooped up several bundles of currency and escaped. A count showed more than $2,000 had been taken there.

Using similar tactics, a gunman invaded the branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale at the corner of Beaubien and Chambord streets half an hour earlier and escaped with $1,500 after compelling two clerks and two customers to raise their hands.

LOAN TURNOVER IS GRATIFYING

First Two Days' Figures Show $78,515,000 Subscribed.

PREMIUM ON BONDS TO 6TH

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 (CP)—Revised figures of yesterday's subscriptions to the $250,000,000 Dominion Government 1934 Refunding Loan, compiled to-day, give the total for the first two days as $78,515,000.

Because of the tremendous amount of work involved in dealing with the flood of communications reaching the Receiver General, progressive estimates of the subscriptions are difficult to secure.

The Finance department was in a position at noon to-day, however, to announce the following new applications: Singer Manufacturing Company, Montreal, $3,125,000; Canadian Kodak Company, Toronto, $600,000; Huron and Erie Mortgage Corporation, London, $450,000; Sterling Products Company, Windsor, $250,000; Continental Life Insurance Company, Toronto, $100,000; Yorkshire Insurance Company, $100,000, and an increase in the subscription by the Royal Liverpool, London and Globe Insurance group to $1,000,000 from the $310,000 announced yesterday.

The department announced today, October 6 was the definite limit on the time in which a premium is available to those who convert their victory bonds into bonds of the Refunding Loan. After that bonds may be converted only at par.

Biting Allowed

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—(C. P.)—A little girl can bite her nurse if she wants to—and her daddy can't be sued for damages, the State Supreme Court holds.

Bruce Butterworth, socially prominent business man, was sued for $1,000 because his three year old child bit Addie Johnson, her nurse, on the arm.

The District Court dismissed the suit, but the Court of Appeals ordered it tried. Butterworth appealed and the Supreme Court agreed with the District Court.

GERMAN WOMEN BUCKLED DOWN TO HOME LIFE

Children, Kitchen, Church is Sphere Decreed Under Nazi Rule.

SPORTS INCREASE.

Austrian Women Have Many Rights, But Live in Dread of War.

BERLIN, Oct. 3. — (AP) — The Nazis believe it is a man's world. And German women, never ardent feminists in the Anglo-Saxon sense of the phrase, for the most part make little protest. Some feminine voices, however, are raised in arrent disagreement. The Nazis have cheered these disputant voices — and then have gone ahead blithly circumscribing women's sphere as kinder, kueche and kirche (children, kitchen and church).

In their restricted field the freulein and the frau have labored with a new enthusiasm. And sports provide an increasing outlet for femine expression.

Limitation to the traditional work of women has restricted them to an intensive application to it. They seek avidly for improved methods of rearing children, preparing food, buying wisely and becoming more congenial companions to their families.

Eugenics and child psychology are being investigated studiously.

Yield To Demands

Thoroughly imbued with Nazism, German women for the most part yield gracefully to the demands made upon them. They seem to be happy and promote with vigor the conception true feminism consists in being 'womanly women.'" They are urged to believe the Nazis, by limiting their sphere, has given women increased opportunities to do what they like.

ONTARIO WANTS DAVID MEISMER

Labatt Called to Toronto for Evidence as Extradition is Pressed.

MRS. LABATT IN HIDING.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 3. (CP)—Indications the Ontario Attorney General's Department is proceeding with its preparations to extradite David Meisner, Labatt kidnap suspect, from Detroit were seen here to-day when it became known John S. Labatt had been summoned to Toronto to give personal evidence. Mr. Labatt it was understood, was examined by a commissioner who is taking evidence in the case.

When and if Meisner comes to trial in Ontario it is expected the case would be tried at Sarnia as it was in Lambton county that the wealthy brewer was snatched from his car and rushed away to the Muskoka hideaway.

In the meanwhile it is learned on good authority that Mrs. John Labatt and their three small children remain away from London, hidden and safely guarded at a place that is being jealously kept secret.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NAVEN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 3 (A.P.)—As advertised, the celebrated Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, foremost flinger in the National League, carried the pitching threat of the St. Louis Cardinals to-day in the first game of the World Series on the home grounds of the Detroit Tigers, American League champions after a lapse of 25 years.

The elder of the famous brothers Dean was opposed by the 33-year-old veteran right-hander, Alvin (General) Crowder, who has staged a come-back with Detroit since being let go on waivers by the Washington Senators. Crowder got the call to duty in preference to Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, 22-year-old ace of the Tiger staff, who is due to oppose Paul Dean in the second game here to-morrow.

Under cloudy skies, with the October breezes more suitable for football than baseball, a crowd of 47,000 spectators flocked into the high double-decked stands and filled all but a few corners of the tremendous new bleacher stands built behind the left field wall.

Dean was the centre of much attention as he warmed up in front of the dugout. The photographers flocked around while he posed in the embrace of Al Schacht, the Washington comedian, who was draped in a tiger skin.

The umpires, with Brick Owens as umpire-in-chief, had a long conference at the plate with Managers Mickey Cochrane and Frank Frisch. They discussed the ground rules and appeared to have a number of knotty problems to settle before taking the field.

Chilly Breeses

The sun came out more brightly as game time approached, but there was still a cool snap in the air, and the majority of spectators were well bundled in coats and furs. There was so much delay caused by the conference between the team leaders and the umpires that Dean, after retiring to the dugout, jumped out and started to warm up again. It was five minutes after the scheduled starting time when Umpire Owens finally dusted off the plate.

FIRST INNINGS

Cards. — Martin grounded out Owen to Greenburg as he swung at the first pitch. Rothrock lifted a high fly to White in centre field. Frisch grounded sharply off Owen's glove and was safe at first on the third baseman's error. Medwick singled to left. Collins lined out to White in deep centre.

No runs, one hit, one error, two left.

Tigers.—White grounded out to Durocher to Collins. Cochrane rolled up, Frisch to Collins-Gehringer drove a short single past Martin Greenberg gounded out, Martin to Collins; the Cardinal third baseman making a pretty stop and throw.

SECOND INNING

Dean grounded to Rogell who tossed to Gehringer for an attempt to force Orsatti, but all hands were safe when the Tiger second baseman dropped the ball for an error.

Martin grounded to Owen and was safe at first, filling the base as Greenberg was pulled off the bag by Owen's poor throw. It was an error for Owen. Rothrock hit sharply to centre, for a single scoring Orsatti and Dean, while Martin raced to third. Frisch grounded sharply to Gehringer, who juggled the ball but recovered in time to throw out the Cardinal manager at first.

Tigers.—Goslin smashed a single

Sopwith Charges U.S. Defender Rainbow Did Not Comply With Cup Specifications

NEW YORK, Oct. 3 (A.P.).—T. O. M. Sopwith, owner and skipper of the defeated British challenger for the America's Cup, Endeavour, today charged as he sailed for home that the successful United States defender Rainbow did not comply with cup specifications.

He did not specify in what manner he believed the rules had been broken.

"We are leaving American with very mixed feelings," he said as he embarked with Mrs. Sopwith on the Aquitania. "We cannot help feeling terribly disappointed by being met over here with a vessel which we feel did not comply with the rules.

"I would not for a moment accuse any official of the New York Yacht Club of acting in any way other than that which he considered to be right. The answer is probably that we do not see eye to eye in the interpretations of some of the important conditions which were agreed on between the New York Yacht Club and the Royal Yacht Squadron.

OTTAWA PARLEY LIKELY TO SEE HEATED DEBATES

Recasting of B.N.A. Act Will Mean Treading on Provincial Toes.

VIEWS VARY WIDELY.

Ontario to Fight Dominion Controlling Industrial Hours, Pay, Work Conditions.

Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, Oct. 3. —(CP)— The fathers of confederation, made dignified and austere by the brush of Robert Harris, will gaze down from the remoteness of their gilded frame in the railway committee room of the House of Commons on a dominion-provincial conference later this month, called to modernize their handiwork—the British North America Act. Before it closes, the conference may develop into a first-class political crisis.

The prime reason for the conference is to recast the B.N.A. Act, Canada's written constitution, in the light of today's social and industrial conditions. This will mean treading on toes, largely provincial toes. Before the fathers of confederation see the last delegate disappear through the door, there may be hot words spoken.

For one thing, the conference may test the "compact" theory of confederation—that the constitution is in the custody of the provinces and that it cannot be modified, even to the extent of deleting a comma, without the consent of all provinces. The Dominion is expected to oppose the theory, claiming the House of Commons has the power to amend the constitution by proposing a change in the B.N.A. Act to the United Kingdom parliament.

Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec has been a militant upholder of the veto power of the provinces and it is not believed he has had a change of heart in recent months. He is sure to find supporters among the provincial delegates but if his theory be accepted and if he puts it in operation, he alone could block any amendment to the B.N.A.

Ontario Opposed.

British Columbia and Ontario have signified their intention to oppose any move by the Dominion to take control of industrial hours, working conditions and rates of pay. Other provinces likely will line up with them.

Another subject to be discussed is overlapping of taxation fields. The provinces, for instance, might be asked to surrender a taxation field to the Dominion and quite naturally would seek compensation. Relating to this general subject is the complex one of Provincial subsidies. I may be interjected, complicating discussions.

Behind any proposal to change the B.N.A. is the timidity of Quebec to support it. French Canada regards the B.N.A. Act not only as a constitution but as its charter of racial concessions and rights. The Quebec delegation is expected to fight any move to obtain power for the Canadian House of Commons to amend the B.N.A. Act without the concurrence of a majority, if not all, provinces. At the present time, amendments to the Act must be passed by the United Kingdom Parliament at the request of Ottawa. With the statute of Westminster and the 1926 Imperial Conference resolution of equal status, there is a demand to transfer this power to Ottawa, turning the theory of equality of status into an accomplished fact.

SUDBURY CRASH WRECKS ENGINE

NONE INJURED.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 3 (C.P.).—A yard engine and a van were badly damaged when an eastbound stock freight crashed into them in the Canadian Pacific Railway yards here about 5.30 a.m. to-day, and westbound traffic out of Sudbury was delayed for almost two hours. No one was hurt.

The yard engine was in reverse, pushing a southbound stock train out of the yards, as the heavy eastbound freight, a double header, hauling over 80 loaded cars, entered the yards on the same track.

Both trains were travelling in the same direction.

A slight curve obscured the view of the eastbound engineer until it was too late for him to stop. He jammed on his brakes, however, and had almost stopped before he reached the pusher.

The freight slowly crunched the yard engine, until it buckled where the cab joins the boiler, while the car of the van was sheared completely off the wheels and both engine and van were shoved across the left track.

Apparently the two engines of the eastbound train were not damaged, but the rails buckled under them so they were unable to move.

No cars of either train were damaged.

An engine had to be brought from Cartier, 25 miles west, to clear the track. Sudbury's main street was blocked. Two westbound passenger trains were an hour and a half late leaving Sudbury.

JAPANESE SEE NEW WAR THREAT

U. S. General Claims 50 Dirigibles Could Destroy Islands in 2 Days.

URGES PROPER PLANES.

By Glenn Babb)

TOKYO, Oct. 3 (AP)—Japanese army propagandists were furnished a text to-day to preach their own gospel of the necessity of an expanded Air Force by the testimony in Washington of Brigadier-General William Mitchell, retired.

(Mitchell yesterday told the United States Avitation Commission, "Our most dangerous enemy is Japan and our planes should be designed to attack Japan. He said 80 dirigibles could destroy Japan in two days.)

The army is demanding increased appropriations for defence in the 1935-36 budget and yesterday published a startling pamphlet in an effort to win popular support.

An army spokesman said, "If Japan fails to take the proper defensive measures with respect to aviation, the dirigible flotilla of which General Mitchell dreams would not require even two days to destroy Japan.

"However, we decline to take General Mitchell seriously."

Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, Minister of War, said to-day at Kanazawa he had not seen the army manifesto which urged Japan to prepare for a possible war with Russian and to reform its economic system.

U. S. ORDERS 900 NEW WAR PLANES

Brig. Gen. Westover Likely to Lead Air Corps Under MacArthur.

SHAKE-UP UNDERWAY.

WASHINGTON, October 3 (A.P.) —Brigadier-General Oscar Westover was mentioned to-day as a possible choice to lead the United States Army's air fighters under the direct command of General Douglas MacArthur, chief of the general staff.

Westover's name figured prominently in the aftermath of a drastic reorganization in which the office of Chief of the Air Corps, now held by Brigadier-General Benjamin D. Foulois, was shorn of much of its power.

Foulois has been the target for attacks by Congressional critics who demanded he be summarily dismissed.

The aim of the shakeup is described as swifter mobilization of the aerial battlers in time of war. Besides transferring the command of the Air Corps from Foulois to MacArthur, the orders moulded 900 combat planes into a new fighting unit.

Colored revues are still popular in London.

GRAIN EXCHANGE BEFORE CABINET

INVESTIGATION ASKED.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 (CP)—Winnipeg Grain Exchange operations are expected to occupy the spotlight at to-day's meeting of Cabinet Council.

What will the Government do to meet complaints of excessive hedging operations lowering quotations? Will a government representative be appointed on the exchange, as suggested subtly in the report of Sir Josiah Stamp, London, England, in 1931 in concluding trading in futures produced some beneficial effects to the wheat farmer? Or will the administration order an inquiry into suspicions the movement of Argentine wheat is being hedged through the Winnipeg Exchange to the detriment of Canadian growers? These are the questions which are being asked.

In the face of the agitation, it was learned last night the request of John I. McFarland, manager of the central selling agency of the Canadian Wheat Pools, for a probe into Winnipeg Grain Exchange operations had not reached the government. Nevertheless, the subject is believed to have been discussed by Mr. McFarland with Premier R. B. Bennett over the trans-Atlantic telephone before the Western grain expert gave his public intimation two days ago he was demanding an investigation.

At the moment, some high officials of the administration profess the belief the situation will right itself and there need be no apprehension relative to government obligations in the market. Should the administration take action, the intimation is it would be in the direction of taking control of the Winnipeg Exchange, throttling gambling and possibly closing the Exchange itself for a time to make remedial readjustments.

Chicago reports the government had withdrawn its support from the Winnipeg market lack any official confirmation here.

GERMAN WOMEN BUCKLED DOWN

possible the marriage of 300,000 girls this year through economic inducements, and his plan for subsidies for large families.

War, Dread of Austrians

VIENNA, Oct. 3. (AP).—Postwar Austrian women were presented with all the rights for which women of other nations struggled. But the thing women prize most, security, was taken away from them.

To-day women of Austria live in dread of another civil war, after experiencing two within half a year. Socialist women joined the fighting last February, and then and in the revolt last July women were killed.

The chief anxiety of women today is for husbands and grown sons belonging to armed organizations. There is hardly a woman in Austria without a relative in the regular or auxiliary forces of the government, or pledged to support some fighting faction.

Under these conditions women take little interest in the social and political status. Politically they have suffered the fate of men. All their human rights have vanished and what little consultative power they will have under the new corporative state will not become effective for two years.

Socially, women are more free than they were before the war.

SAY STATEMENT TAKEN BY FORCE

Counsel for Youth Charged With Slaying Sweetheart, "Ready" for Charges.

LOVE LETTERS STUDIED.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 3 (A.P.).—Pennsylvania's "American tragedy" trial moved like a novel today toward its climax, Bobby Edwards' statement that he slew one love to wed another.

The commonwealth says it will introduce four statements the young coal surveyor made after Freda McKechnie's blackjacked body was found floating in Harvey's Lake after a swim in a thunderstorm the night of July 30.

Charging they were obtained by force, the defence says it is "ready" for the statements.

Medical testimony was expected to take up much of to-day's session. Included in it will be the post mortem report showing Miss McKechnie was a prospective mother.

District Attorney Thomas Lewis consulted with his staff over presentation of a batch of love letters he said Edwards had written to Miss Margaret Orein, music teacher of East Aurora, N.Y. The State charges Edwards had promised to marry her, and therefore killed the other girls who expected to become his wife.

200 W.M.S. Delegates Rally In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3 (C.P.).—Two hundred delegates, representing 90,000 women throughout the Dominion, were gathered here to-day at the 47th annual convention of the Women's Missionary Society of the Anglican Church.

With Mrs. Gilbert Ferrabee, of Montreal, presiding, the convention started with routine work yesterday.

Mrs. Ferrabee, in her presidential address, declared women's work was becoming one of the main streams of church activity. She reviewed missionary work throughout the world and paid tribute to members of the Oxford Group who, she said, were doing splendid work.

Miss A. L. Slater, Hamilton, reported 35 missionaries in the field. Mrs. D. B. Donaldson, Toronto, reported receipts of $250,109 and expenditures of $249,716 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1933.

MISS ABBIE ROBINSON ACCEPTS POSITION AT THE ANSON HOUSE

Appointed Superintendent to Succeed Late Miss A. M. Lancaster.

WELL QUALIFIED

Appointment of Miss Abbie Robinson as superintendent of Anson House in succession to the late Miss Annie M. Lancaster is verified by The Examiner.

Miss Robinson, graduate nurse of New York City General Hospital offered the vacant position following a recent meeting of the Board, has telegraphed her acceptance, and will assume charge of the Home sometime during the present month. She is at present occupying a position in a hospital in New York City.

Since the death of Miss Lancaster, former superintendent at the Home for twenty-one years, which occurred early in May while she was on vacation at Enid, Oklahoma, Anson House has been under the able supervision of Miss Margaret Harrison, assistant superintendent to the late Miss Lancaster.

Applications for the vacancy were invited by Anson House Board early in the summer and during the second week of September, Mrs. Robert Neill, president of the Board caled a meeting at which some eighteen applications were considered.

At that meeting appointment of a successor to the late Miss Lancaster was deferred. Recently Miss Robinson was invited to accept the position and signified her intention of taking over the duties of superintendent about the middle of this month.

She was born in this city and is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Robinson, who are widely remembered as having been among the outstanding residents of this community and for their active interest in the welfare of the Protestant Home as Anson House was formerly known.

Miss Sara Robinson of Weller Street is a sister of the appointee, and has many years of service as treasurer of Anson House Board to her credit.

"Miss Robinson is a woman of highest qualifications with a broad background of nursing and executive experience gained in some of the largest hospitals in New York City ,that commends her as being particularly fitted for her new position as superintendent of Anson House," a member of the Board commented.

Bensfort Couple Are Honored By Friends

BENSFORT, October 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — About one hundred of the friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bebee recently to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Dawson, who were recently married. Everyone enjoyed a program at the first part of the evening, with Mr. W. C. Wood as chairman. The program consisted of:

Welcoming speech, George Bebee; piano solo, Helen Howson; duets, Rev. and Mrs. Cook; recitation, Florence Bebee; speeches, Harold Bebee and Rev. Mr. Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawson were asked to come forward and a beautiful gate-leg table with an occasional chair, cushion, and cut glass were presented to the guests of honor.

Dainty refreshments were served at the close.

Miss Mildred Randall and Mr. H. Hancock of Port Hope called on Mrs. C. Emberson on Wednesday.

Young Omemee Girl Loses Fingers, Thumb

OMEMEE, Oct. 3. — (Examiner Correspondence.)— A very painful accident happened to Beulah, the little six year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Alger, Tuesday afternoon.

Beulah was sent to Mr. Deyell's butcher shop to get some meat. Unknown to the little girl the electric meat grinder was working and the child innocently put her hand in the machine.

Dr. G. Earl was hurriedly called and he in turn called Dr. Hamilton of Bethany to assist him. It was found necessary to amputate all the fingers and thumb of the little girl's right hand.

VICTORIA TORIES BANQUET GUESTS

Over 150 Workers Attend Affair Staged by T. H. Stinson, L. M. Frost.

LINDSAY, Oct. 3 (Examiner Correspondence).—A rally of the two executives of the Conservative party in Victoria and Haliburton Counties was held yesterday to deal with matters affecting the next Federal election. A banquet was tendered last evening to about 150 workers by T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P., and L. M. Frost, K.C., the unsuccessful Conservative candidate in the last Provincial election.

The death occurred Tuesday at the residence of his daughter, Mrs. P. Garvey, of a former well-known resident of Madoc, in the person of the late William Cox. The deceased conducted a harness business in that village for a number of years, and was well-known throughout Hastings County. About two years ago he took up residence in Lindsay. He was in his seventy-third year, and was a member of the Knights of Columbus and Holy Name Society. Besides his daughter, he is survived by two sons.

Eskimo Tells of Age Old Co-operation Scheme in Arctic Village.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3 (C.P.). — Mala, native Eskimo movie actor, pointed to an article concerning a proposed new "co-operative" plan of government which he found in a magazine recently and commented: "Old stuff."

At a village 50 miles in from the rim of the Arctic circle, Mala explained, at Kotzebue, Eskimo folk from a dozen neighboring towns gather regularly to exchange the products of their labors. The plan was inaugurated by Eskimo sages long before the white man came, Mala said.

Questioned closer, he revealed that the village, which lies 300 miles south of Point Barrow, is governed by a council that receives no salary, imposes no taxes, knows no taint of graft, meets weekly and changes its membership every year.

TO SAIL AGAIN AMONG ISLANDS OF INLAND SEA

Motorship Midland City Refloated After Hitting Rocky Ledge.

ONCE SIDEWHEELER

MIDLAND, Ont., Oct. 4.—(CP)—Launched 50 years ago at Kingston as the sidewheel steamboat Maud, for Lake Ontario service; entirely rebuilt some years later and rechristened the steamship America, then in 1920 brought to Midland and re-named for Georgian Bay routes, the motorship Midland City, which piled up on a reef a few weeks ago, will be running as good as ever when the season opens next year, her owners declare.

As steamboat, steamship and motorship the Midland City has had an interesting career in great lakes navigation.

On Aug. 26 last on account of unusually low water the motorship struck a jagged ledge of rock four miles off this port while returning from a Sunday afternoon excursion with 150 passengers board. Despite the hole torn in her bottom and a damaged propeller, the vessel was able to limp across the two miles of intervening water to beach at Midland Point, under the command of Capt. Ed. Mackie. There with all passengers safely removed, her stern settled in 26 feet of water while her prow took a melancholy tilt sky-wards, till her fore-foot was seven feet from the water.

Hole In Hull Plugged

There the Midland City lay for 10 days while divers went down to plug the six-inch by one-foot hole in her hull, and build a cofferdam of planking and canvas round the submerged stern. Then marine pumps were put in place, and a tug nosed alongside to supply the steam power. For 15 hours the pumps worked steadily. The motorship was floated, towed into Midland and put into drydock. There the damage was found to be much less serious than at first thought. Only a few days were required to complete the dry-dock work, although the superstructure is still in course of rebuilding.

Experts said if the vessel's hull had been of steel instead of wood, the reef would have ripped a much larger hole and she would never have reached shore. It is added if the motorship had not been a stout craft she could not have stood the strain of sitting for 10 days with her prow in the air and only 20 feet of her keel resting on bottom.

Damaged Hull Repaired

The Midland City is now riding serenely at her moorings here, her damaged hull repaired, her broken propeller replaced, and her Diesel engines installed two years ago being overhauled. The only visible evidenceof her sinking is the broken-down superstructure at the stern, where the waters of the Georgian Bay warped and burst open the wooden partitions of her cabins.

Her owners say the vessel will be in first class condition for the opening of the 1935 season, to again nose her way through the picturesque but tortuous navigation channels among the reputedly 30,000 islands of Georgian Bay.

The vessel was originally called the Maud after the daughter of the late Charles F. Gildersleeve, now Mrs. Rivers, widow of Colonel Victor Rivers of the headquarters staff, Ottawa, one time with the Royal Canadian Artillery at Kingston. Mr. Gildersleeve was for some years general manager of the old Richelieu and Ontario Navigation Company. Under his direction the company built the present passenger steamboats Toronto and Kingston and other large vessels.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1934

THE EXAMINER WAS RIGHT.

Hon. Peter Heenan's report on his return from investigating the timber workers' strike in the Cochrane district confirms in every detail The Examiner's references to the existing situation.

We pointed out some time ago that there was more involved in this affair than matter of wages and working conditions, and that the strike was under the direction of Red leaders who were more concerned with stirring up trouble than they were in improving the lot of the workers.

Mr. Heenan now states that his mission was successful in securing practically all the concessions from the employers that the workers had demanded, but that the Communist leaders have refused to let the men return to work and have ordered the strike to go on.

In another particular the Minister of Lands and Forests has endorsed The Examiner's attitude on this question.

He had found it desirable, he said, to warn the strikers that if they violated the law it would be necessary for the authorities to deal with the situation.

That warning, while in opposition to the viewpoint of the Attorney-General, who seems to think that no matter what happens his department should hold itself aloof from industrial strife, has been very badly needed.

Mr. Heenan is quite right and Mr. Roebuck very decidedly wrong in their appreciation of this particular point.

Nothing could be more dangerous than to give foreign-born strikers, captained by Red agitators, the impression that they are at liberty to take the law into their own hands, and that the Attorney-General's Department will not interfere with them.

GOOD NEWS FROM THE FARMS.

That the farmers of Ontario will have considerably more money to spend during the next few months than they had a year ago is the decidedly cheerful prediction made by the Canadian Countryman, a source that can be regarded as untainted by political prejudice.

According to a very careful and deliberate estimate made by this well-known farm journal, shows that the value of the ten leading Ontario farm crops at the present time is greater by $33,884,700 than it was twelve months ago, the 1934 value being estimated at $134,473,650 compared with $100,562,950 at this date in 1933.

Furthermore the prospects are, according to the Canadian Countryman, that there will be further increases in farm values in the near future.

That is good news for everybody, for it is impossible to increase the aggregate purchasing power of the farmers of this province by nearly thirty-four million dollars without all classes of people in Ontario sharing to some extent at least in the benefits.

If our farmers have so much more to spend this condition should soon be reflected in increased sales in Ontario stores, and subsequently in more orders for the factories of the province and more work for the employees of those factories.

And, of course, with more people at work and the earning power of those already employed increased, they in turn will spend more, and the cycle will begin all over again.

BROADCASTING CRIMINAL TRIALS.

The Examiner is in full accord with the Ottawa Journal in its opinion that, while democracy has a right to know what is being done in its name, it seems unnecessary that every individual should have the privilege of "listening-in" upon the actual proceedings.

The reference is to the effort that is being made by a United States broadcasting company to place microphones in the court room during the trial of Bruno Hauptmann for complicity in the Lindbergh kidnapping and to send out the whole trial over the air.

The enterprise of this radio concern is not to be denied, nor is there any doubt of the fact that such a broadcast would be the greatest human interest event to go out over the air, but at the same time it is fantastic to suggest that the administration of justice should be turned into entertainment for radio fans.

Perhaps we in Canada are old-fashioned, but we must confess to a strong objection to having the dignified atmosphere of a court of justice destroyed by the presence of a mob of news-reel camera artists and radio "sound" men.

They have gone a lot further in that direction across the border than we care to follow, and the liberty that is given to news photographers and movie technicians to wander about court rooms, police stations and prisons and take pictures at will is difficult for Canadians to understand.

We shudder to think what would happen to a photographer who attempted to take snapshots during the course of a trial presided over by any of our high court justices; certainly he would have a holiday from photographing for some time.

After all courts are for the administration of justice and not radio studios or movie "lots."

CONVERTING ONE BILLION DOLLARS.

When the present Federal Refunding Loan is completely subscribed, as it undoubtedly will be, the Federal Government since it assumed power in 1930 will have succeeded in converting War and Victory Loan bonds amounting to the huge total of one billion dollars.

As a result there will have been effected an annual saving in interest charges of $15,000,000 — which amounts to twenty-five per cent. of the total revenue collected every year under the Income Tax Act.

This material betterment in the financial position of the Dominion, which by the way is being further improved by increased revenues, and helped by the fact that the C.N.R. situation is showing an improvement, gives Canadians some reason to hope that ere long a certain amount of taxation relief may be possible.

The immediate duty of Canadians who are in a position to invest in the new loan or who have Victory bonds they can convert is plain; in order to hasten the country's march back to prosperity they should co-operate with the Federal Government to the limit of their ability, make the 1934 Refunding Loan a triumphal success, and speed up Canada's return to better times.

They are offered an investment that is the soundest in the world, with an assured regular income, accompanied by the satisfaction they are bound to feel from the knowledge that they are contributing to the national welfare at a time when their assistance is most urgently needed.

SHOULD OUR GOVERNMENTS COMPETE?

Premier Bennett, before departing for Geneva, invited the provincial premiers to a Dominion-provincial conference this fall, the conference to discuss, among other things, the following:

1. What steps can be taken to reduce the evils of duplicate taxation and provide a more logical allocation of sources of revenue now available to Dominion and provinces.
2. Are the provinces prepared to surrender their exclusive jurisdiction over legislation dealing with such social problems as old age pensions, unemployment and social insurance, hours and conditions for work, minimum wages, etc., to the Dominion Parliament? If so, on what terms and conditions?
3. Is it desirable to endeavor more clearly to define the respective jurisdiction of the Parliament and Provincial Legislatures with respect to health and agricultural and other matters in which there is a duplication of effort by federal and provincial authorities?

That it should be necessary to ask or consider such questions is, come to think of it, an amazing thing. A Canadian citizen and taxpayer is neither a federal Canadian nor a provincial Canadian. He is just a Canadian. That being so, it matters not a tinker's curse to him which group of his representatives tells him what he must do or refrain from doing, on any particular subject, or whether when, paying his tax-bill, he makes out his cheque to somebody in Toronto, or to somebody in Winnipeg, or in Ottawa. It is what he pays that counts. Or what laws he must obey.

Yet, so extraordinary is human behavior, so strange our notions about government, the things mentioned above seem to make all the difference in the world to the politicians. At any rate, we have two sets of competing rulers, each telling us that what we have to obey is what they say we must obey, each telling us that it is to their till we have got to pay our taxes.

* * * *

In this connection, Sir Henry Drayton has pointed out a curious thing. It is that the same Canadian citizens have been, in effect, plaintiffs and defendants, in some 199 cases going to the Privy Council on constitutional questions, and have paid the cost of both sides no matter who won. It was as though a man went to law with himself, asking the court to decide what he must do as between two of his own ideas, and paying for counsel to argue for the respective ideas.

* * * *

And because of all this contention over which set of politicians should make this law or that for us, what have we got? What we have got, for the most part, is a lot of overlapping, a lot of duplication, a lot of extra taxes.

Also a lot of confusion. We decide to pay people unemployment relief. But in order to do that we must first determine how much of it must come out of what we pay to a municipal till, how much out of a provincial till, how much out of the federal till. And so with health, so with old age pensions, so with several other things. All that actually concerns the taxpayer is the amount he has to pay, but what we really make all the row about is as to whether it comes out of our hip pocket or our breast pocket, or whether what we take out of either or both is handed over to somebody in Toronto or to somebody in Ottawa.

What we do, of course, is to split the payments up, giving one set of politicians so much and the other set so much, with the result that we must add to what we pay the cost of maintaining competing organizations. The broth of so many cooks becomes expensive.

* * * *

We are told we must suffer all these crazy things because of the B.N.A. Act. In other words, because certain wise men thought that certain things were desirable for us away back in 1867, a lot of us now say that the same things are necessary for us in 1934. There were no joint stock companies in 1867, nor power development, nor air lines, nor radio; no such things as old age pensions, nor social insurance, nor minimum wage laws, nor departments of health. There was no income tax. Yet we are assured that the Fathers of Confederation, who did not dream of such things, who could not possibly have foreseen them, gave us an instrument in the B.N.A. Act adequate to deal with them.

It is a species of mild lunacy. Any sensible person, examining the position impartially, realizes at once that the B.N.A. Act, as a constitutional agency of government under existing conditions, is hopelessly obsolete. It does not provide, was never intended to provide, for the hundred and one vital problems that have come with these times, and to argue against changing it is to argue for inefficiency and confusion.

It is not a question of taking from the B.N.A. Act the protection it affords for minorities. No one wants to do that—or should want to. But while the rights and privileges of racial and religious minorities should and must be safeguarded, there is no reason why we cannot do that while at the same time abolishing a competition and confusion in government which is as competition and confusion in government exchange.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As a safe investment with a sure income and as a contribution to national welfare, the 1934 Refunding Loan should commend itself to the people of Canada.

It is hoped that fake stock peddlers will not regard the present situation in Ontario as an invitation to them to launch out into business on a larger scale than ever.

With the world series being fought out, the Dean boys and School Boy Rowe will get more publicity for the next few days than President Roosevelt.

Col. George Drew is one civil servant who evidently does not propose to take his dismissal from office quietly. And the colonel goes far to prove that the pen is indeed mightier than the sword.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

BIGGAR, SASKATCHEWAN.

Frank Hopkins, town clerk, advises that he was among the first settlers who arrived in 1908, shortly after the steel was laid by the Grand Trunk Pacific railway. The railway officials made a practice of naming the new towns along their western lines and this one was named for W. H. Biggar, then chief legal counsel for the railway.

Biggar was incorporated as a village in 1909 and was raised to the status of a town in 1911 and now has a population of 2,456. It is a divisional point on the Canadian National.

ESSAY ON EARS.

Ears grow on either side of the face. . . . Sometimes women hide them, sometimes they don't. Men never do. If they stick out men get nicknames like "Flop Ears" or "Windmill" and they don't like it. But if they wiggle them, that's different. Wiggling the ears is a great accomplishment. Any animal can do it, but if a man does it, it shows he isn't developed as far as other people are. But just the same, I wish I could wiggle mine. It would make babies and children laugh, and the babies, particularly, could concentrate on that instead of swinging on my best necktie or climbing up legs.

If you lose an ear it's very embarrassing. People see it or they see that they don't see it and if they're polite they keep looking at it all the time they're talking to you. If they are not polite, they ask how you lost it and you say it was bitten off and then they feel insulted. . . . Elephants have big ears. Lawbreakers in the old days used to have their ears slit. Puppy dogs have their ears clipped; it is supposed to make them look smart, but I don't see why. . . . All politicians are supposed to keep their ears close to the ground, and that's what gives them that funny look.

Small boys have very convenient ears. If they're playing ball in the lot and their mother yells over the fence for them to come in and practice, they can't hear her. But if she says there's ice cream they're inside the house, with all the gang, before the echoes die away. . . . If a man is reading the paper he can't hear a word his wife says and sometimes that gets him into trouble. . . . Prize fighters get cauliflower ears, but if they got cauliflower ears it would be very much worse. . . . Ears aren't very emotional, but when a human being is embarrassed, his ears get red and if he is standing in front of a light they give a very pretty effect. . . . All little girls used to have their ears "pierced" so they could wear earrings when they were ladies. But they don't do that any more; the earrings have little clamps now, instead. Which isn't nearly so exciting. . . . Some people have hairy ears. . . . When the doctor wants a drop of your blood he takes it out of the lobe of your ear. . . . An earache is very painful. . . . Small boys, when they're swimming, get water in their ears and jump up and down to get it out or put a knife into it. . . . Once I got a burr in my ear, but the doctor got it out and I tried to trade it for an agate but none of the kids seemed to think it was worth that much. . . . If you can't stand the noise you can always put cotton in your ears. . . ' And this is quite enough about ears.

FOUND DEAD IN BARN.

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct 3. (CP) —Louis May, age 60, farmer, living three miles east of New Germany, was found dead in a barn in the village just before midnight last night by John Brohman of the same place.

May's presence in the barn is not explained, but death is attributed to natural causes.

Income Tax Totals Up For 6 Months

OTTAWA, October 3. (CP.) — A substantial increase was shown in income tax collections for the first six months of the fiscal year ended September 30, according to a statement issued to-day by Minister of National Revenue, R. C. Matthews. Net collections amounted to $47,301,458 compared with $46,462,524 for the same period last year, an increase of $838,934. Toronto collections showed the most substantial gains, with a total net revenue of $14,458,096, increase $1,505,278. Other districts showing big increases were: Hamilton, $2,973,561; London, $4,060,381, increase $59,712.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 95c to 96c; oats, 34c to 36c; barley, 50c to 52c; corn, 90c to 93c; rye, 54c to 56c; buckwheat, 50c to 52c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Quotations on eggs, butter and cheese were higher on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

Top grades of eggs advanced 1 cent per dozen Graded shipments in cartots or less were quoted at 30 to 31c a dozen for A-large, 28c to 29c for A-medium, 22c for B, and 20c for C. Receipts totalled 1,143 cases.

Fresh No. 1 butter brought 19¾c to 19¾c a pound in cartots or less, up ¼c. Small lots to stallers were 20½c a pound for solids and 21½c for prints. Only four boxes were received.

On the cheese market, Ontario colored sold at 10½c to 10¾c a pound, while the white was 19¾c to 10¾c a pound, each up ½c. Quebec colored brought 10c to 10¼c a pound, ¼c higher, and white was 9½c to 9¾c, up ½c. Arrivals totalled 1,256 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Wide-open five-cent breaks in Winnipeg wheat quotations, with the Liverpool market smashing the season's bottom price record, pulled Chicago wheat values downward yesterday.

Reports were circulated that the Canadian Government contemplated virtual suspension of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange because of alleged excessive selling there which had cost Canada's treasury an immense sum. It was intimated huge amounts of Argentine wheat had been hedged in Winnipeg, and that undue selling had also been done in Winnipeg, both by British and United States interests, a course made possible owing to the Canadian Government arbitrarily maintaining the Winnipeg market at a big premium over prices elsewhere.

Wheat in Chicago, after a maximum setback of 2¼c, closed nervous, ⅞c to 1¼c under Monday's finish. December, new, 99c to 99⅛c; corn, ¼c off to ⅝c up; December, new, 76⅝c to 76⅞c; oats, unchanged to ⅝c lower, and provisions showing 10c to 15c decline.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 3. — After plunging 4 to 5 cents in initial dealings, wheat prices reacted with the aid of Government purchasing on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday to close 3⅛c to 3¼c lower.

Early liquidation was credited to Eastern and Chicago interests, and came at a time when artificial support was not forthcoming. There was no suggestion of Government purchasing until the 5-cent slump occurred.

Then, as short interests and the Government combined to absorb offerings the panicky selling halted and prices came back to close at 77⅛c for October, 78½c for December wheat, and 83½c for May.

Downturns of 2⅛d to 2½d at effect. Stop loss orders were shaken out by the early break, but the later trading was quite orderly. Export interest was not in evidence.

Coarse grains were easier, wheat and cash grains spreads about unchanged.

Pleasing Program At Warsaw Meeting

WARSAW, October 3. — The Presbyterian W.M.S. met at Mrs. Thompson's home recently with a very good attendance. Mrs. Richard Tedford presided. After the usual routine, Miss Maggie Miller read the Scripture lesson. Alma Tedford read from the Glad Tidings. The Circle of Prayer was by two members, the Study book lesson was omitted as the member who had prepared it was unable to be present and could not send it. The ladies decided to hold their annual social about the middle of October.

Mrs. Henry Clements led the Ladies' Aid. There was some work done, but none to be reported.

Mrs. Ivey spent a few days last week with her sister, Mrs. James Greystock.

Mrs. Hagerman was a guest of Mrs. R. W. Payne last week.

Mrs. Robert Matthews returned home on Saturday (Sept. 30) after about ten weeks absence during which she visited her son, Mr. Kenneth Kidd, and his wife and daughter.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FENIAN RAID INTO MANITOBA

On this date, in 1871, Mantioba was for a few hours the scene of a Fenian invasion. When Riel fled from Fort Garry in 1870, just before the Wolseley expedition arrived, he had as a companion one William B. O'Donoghue. Some time afterwards some of the Metis drew up a memorial to U. S. Grant, then President of the United States, asking him to "use his good offices in remonstrance with the British government against the course of perfidy and oppression pursued by Canada towards the inhabitants of Manitoba'. Thereupon Riel and O'Donoghue quarrelled. The former would have nothing to do with an plan to annex the Canadian North West to the United States; he believed with Bishop Tache that "Time and faith will bring us all we desire". O'Donoghue, however, persisted and launched his annexation propaganda in St. Paul, where he received encouragement from the press and the chamber of commerce which wanted to conserve the Red river trade which had been so profitable. He went onto Washington, where he joined forces with Banks and Chandler, two active proponents of annexation. Banks had in 1866 introduced a bill in Congress providing "for the admission of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Canada East and West and the Territories of Selkirk, Saskatchewan and Columbia into the United States"; while Chandler had, in 1870, introduced a resolution in the United States Senate directing President Grant to open negotiations "with the people of Winnipeg with a view of annexation", but this was discouraged by Charles Sumner.

O'Donoghue had an interview with President Grant on January 28, 1871, but received nothing but courtesy. Thereupon he went to NewYork where he sought to secure the co-operation of the Fenian Brotherhood. But he was out of luck; the Brotherhood had memories of its reception in Quebec and Ontario the previous year and did not want anything more to do with the Canadian militia. "General" O'Neill, however, was an exception. He wanted another try at 'rescuing' Canada from her British "oppressors", and he began recruiting for an expedition into Manitoba. The response was not great, but eventually on October 3, 1871, a party of 35 men, under "Generals" O'Neill and Curley, entered Manitoba. They took possession of Fort Pembina, an unguarded Hudson's Bay Company post, but in less than four hours a squad of U. S. soldiers, acting under orders from Washington, arrived, captured all the "generals" and 10 of their army, and took them back into Minnesota where they were imprisoned. Thereafter there was no more talk of grabbing Manitoba and the Canadian West

INDUSTRY EXPANDS BUT GREAT WORK ARMIES MUST BE ABSORBED

Canada Turns Out Annually About 150,000 New Competitors for Jobs as Factor in Complex Situation.

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 (CP)—The increase in employment in Canada the last year has been very considerable. The latest government statistics show this.

During the same period the number of persons on relief has declined only moderately. This is an anomaly of the current economic situation, a factor in the complex situation regarding relief that awaits a solution in the signing of new agreements between the Federal Government and the Provinces.

But there is another factor, one of great significance in obtaining a clear picture of the situation. That is the continually increasing number of persons in Canada available for absorption into industry—the thousands of young people annually graduating from school. Averaging about 150,000 each year, these new competitors for the salaried jobs industry offers constitute a problem that so far seems to have escaped economists and sociologists.

To gain a comprehensive picture of the current employment and relief situation The Canadian Press has made an authoritative estimate of the total number of young persons becoming potential wage earners during the depression. Adding this factor to the other statistics available, there is obtained an analysis of the present status of the Dominion regarding employment and relief that is both accurate and complete.

Between July 1, 1933, and the same date this year the employment index for all industries of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics rose from 84.5 perf cent to 101 per cent. This is the statistical way of saying that 100,000 or more persons are at work in industry than there was a year ago.

The employment index has 1926 as a base of 100 per cent. To give a clear picture of the rise and fall of industrial employment in the Dominion the last nine years, and the new surge upward that has taken place the last 12 months, the index on July 1, from 1926 to 1934 is tabulated: 1926, 105 per cent; 1927, 109; 1928, 117; 1929, 124; 1930, 118; 1931, 103; 1932, 86; 1933, 84; 1934, 101 per cent.

The available figures on relief, while not so comprehensive, still give a clear picture. The peak was reached in April, 1933, when 284,500 heads of families were on the rolls, with dependents and single unemployed bringing the total number of persons to 1,591,000. Of this number 16,700 families, 75,000 persons, were on farms in the drought area of Saskatchewan. The number of single unemployed in camps supervised by the Department of National Defense was 18,000.

Since April, 1933, the total number of persons on relief declined to 1,300,000 in November, 1933, and to slightly over 1,000,000 July 1, 1934.

The ratio of persons entering employment in the last year to the total number on relief is disproportionate. How is this difference to be accounted for? If employment is going up, why shouldn't the number of persons on relief decline in exact ratio? This is a current economic problem of significance. It presumes the question of whether or not when industrial employment again reaches its maximum, is Canada still going to have a relief problem.

The large increase in employment and the moderate decline in the number on relief is due in part to the exhaustion of financial resources—in the fourth year of the depression—of those who previously cared for relatives or other dependents. Also, that the general wage level on the average has not reached as high a level as was the rule prior to 1930.

Great Army of Youth

There is still another factor that no published record or analysis of employment and relief in Canada or the United States the last several years has taken into consideration. This is the number of new competitors entering the employment field annually from the schools and universities.

That this is a most significant factor is shown by the figure of 641,361 young men and women leaving the schools and universities of Canada from 1930 to 1934, most of them to seek a job in the industrial field or one of the professions. This figure is based on government statistics with 1934 estimated on the average of the three previous years.

The majority of these young people were never on the relief rolls, so when one of them obtains employment there is no corresponding reduction from the total number of persons on relief.

Of the 641,361 young people coming into the industrial field the last four years, 25,371 graduated from universities and 616,000 left the lower schools. Of the university graduates there were 20,810 men and 11 211 women. Those leaving the lower schools were 235,000 young men and 381,000 young women.

These statistics show that the number of persons available for employment in Canada increases more than 100,000 annually, even allowing for retirement of elderly persons. The number eligible each year for old age pensions in those provinces granting this is only a fraction of the number annually entering the employment field for the first time.

Thus, Canada has a progressive total of persons available for employment, increasing year by year. Should industry not expand sufficiently year by year to employ the increase, then it is certain that the relief problem will become a permanent problem in the Dominion.

Chicken Thieves Are Active In Victoria Stolen Car Is Recovered At Sunderland

LINDSAY, Oct. 2 (Examiner Correspondence) — Chicken thieves are becoming active in this district, and the police are kept busy trying to round up the culprits. James McQuade, who resides two miles north of Omemee had 50 Plymouth Rocks stolen on Saturday. S. Henderson, who resides on the Downeyville road, reported to the police the loss of sixty-two chickens. C. Loucks, of Measford, who has been visiting at Kinmount, had his car stolen on Saturday. It was located at Sunderland, where the thieves stole another car.

Magistrate Gee occupied the bench for the first time Monday morning, and gave suspended sentence to a beggar. Chief of Police Lawler welcomed the new magistrate on behalf of the Police Department.

The proprietors of the local beverage rooms have issued a pledge to the citizens of Lindsay of their intention to justify the confidence placed in them. The abuses of a few, they point out, fall on the many, but the pledge to keep their places in such a manner that the fair-minded will have no cause for complaint.

HENRY BILLINGS DIES

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 3. (CP) —An estimable resident of Brockville for half a century, Henry Billings, 72, is dead here following a lengthy illness. In addition to his widow, his survivors are three daughters, Mrs. George Pappas, Kingston; Mrs. C. Alberry and Mrs. John Beechman, Brockville; and two sons, Ernest and Clifford, Brockville.

COCKY CARDS FALL HEAVILY

past Martin. Rogell fanned, on a called third strike and Goslin was thrown out trying to steal second, Delancey to Frisch. The Cardinal manager was caught in the neck by the sliding Goslin and appeared painfully hurt by the impact. The players gathered around him, but he recovered quickly and resumed play. Owen fanned, swinging lustily at a high hard one. For the first time Dean appeared to be having his fast ball under control. He was blazing it through like a rifle bullet.

No runs, one hit, no errors; none left.

THIRD INNINGS

Cards.—Medwick lashed a single past Owen. Collins grounded to Greenberg, whose throw to Rogell forced Medwick at second, but the Tiger shortstop threw wildly in the attempt for a double play, and Collins ran to second on the error.

Delancey's hard smash went through Greenberg for another error, and Collins ran all the way home before the big Detroit first baseman could recover the ball and throw to the plate. It was the fifth error in three innings by the Tiger infielders, and Cochrane called his faltering forces together for a conference.

One run, one hit, two errors; one left.

Tigers—Fox raised a short fly to Collins, who made the catch along the foul line. Crowder rolled out, Dean to Collins. White walked, the fourth ball being low, but Dean and the Cardinals squawked loudly. The crowd was yelling wildly as Dean's control slipped. Dean threw to first and White barely slid into the bag safely. Dean tossed to Collins again. Dean made another snap throw to first, and the crowd booed. He did it for the fourth time. Dean stepped out of the box and used the resin bag. Cochrane singled sharply past Durocher, White stopping at second. Gehringer singled through the middle of the diamond, scoring White and sending Cochrane to third. Gehringer was safe at second on Orsatti's poor throw and the Cardinal centre fielder was charged with an error.

FOURTH INNING

Cards. — Dean lifted a high fly that Goslin caught a few feet from the left field line, near the bleacher screen. Martin fanned, swinging. Rothrock flied to Owen.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers — Goslin grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Rogell lifted a high fly to Medwick in short left Owen popped to Frisch, who ran back for the catch in short right field.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

FIFTH INNING

Cards.—Frisch drove a long fly to Fox, who made the catch in front of the bleachers.

Medwick smashed a home run into the temporary left field stands. It was the Cardinal slugger's third straight hit.

Collins walked, the fourth pitch being wide. Delancey filed out to White. Orsatti singled through the infield to left, Collins stopping at second. Durocher hoisted to White.

One run, two hits, no errors; two

Tigers—Fox fouled out to Collins along the first base line. Doljack batted for Crowder. Doljack flied to Orsatti. White walked, the fourth ball being high and inside. Cochrane grounded to Frisch and was thrown out at first.

SIXTH INNING

Cards.—Marberry went to the box for the Tigers. Dean slashed a long hit to left centre for a double. Martin singled sharply past Gehringer and Dean scored standing up. Martin was kept from trying to make second on the throw-in. Rothrock sacrificed, Marberry to Greenberg as Martin galloped to second. Owen made a fine running catch of Frisch's foul along the boxes off left field. Medwick pounded a single to right and Martin slid home on his stomach. Collins poled another single to right, and Medwick raced to third. The Tiger pitcher was removed from box and replaced by Elon Hodgsett, Indian southpaw. Delancey cracked the first pitch over Goslin's head for a double, scoring Medwick and Collins. Orsatti grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg.

Four runs, five hits, no errors; one left.

Tigers — Gehringer grounded sharply to Collins and was out on a close play as Dean raced over to take the throw from the Cardinal first baseman. Greenberg hammered another long foul fly over the barrier in left. Greenberg lashed a hit to centre and ran to second when Orsatti mishandled the ball. Orsatti was charged with his second error of the game. Goslin poker a single between Martin and Durocher, Greenberg scoring. Rogell bounced out, Frisch to Collins as Goslin reached second. Owen fanned, swinging.

One run, two hits, one error; one left.

SEVENTH INNING

Cards.—Rogell made a nice stop of Durocher's high bounder and threw him out at first. Dean fanned, swinging lamly at the single strike. Martin grounded sharply to Rogell and was thrown out.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers—Fox lifted a high foul to Delancey. Hogsett grounded out, Durocher to Collins. White fanned on a slow ball that was called strike three.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none

EIGHTH INNING

Rothrock dropped a single in right centre. Frisch bunted and was tossed out, Hogsett to Greenberg as he sacrificed Rothrock to second. Medwick drove a long fly to White. Rothrock making third easily after the catch. Collins grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Tigers—Fullis went to centre field for the Cardinals, replacing Orsatti. Cochrane was thrown out on a grounder to Durocher. Gehringer flied to Medwick. Greenberg walloped a home run into the left field stands. Goslin grounded out, Durocher to Collins.

One run, one hit, no errors; none left.

NINTH INNING

Cards.—Delancey lined to Goslin. Fullis drove a single over second base. Durocher grounded to Rogell and Delancey was forced at second, Rogell to Gehringer. Dean bounded to Gehringer, who touched second base, forcing Durocher.

Tigers.—Rogell dropped a single along the third base line. Owen hit a sharp grounder that bounced off Dean's leg directly into Collins' hands. Owen was an easy put-out but Rogell ran to second. Fox hit sharply to Martin who tagged Rogell on the base line, but failed to catch the runner at first as he threw low. Walker batted for Hogsett. Walker fanned, swinging.

ACQUITTED

VANCOUVER, Oct. 3. (CP)—Tom Cockrill, 59-year-old Whonock farmer and former operative for the Richmond police, to-day stood acquitted by an assize court jury on a charge of attempting to pervert the course of justice. The jury last night freed him of the allegation of trying to persuade a man convicted under the Liquor Act from appealing and giving King's evidence against another.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (CP).—Trading slowed down on the cattle and calf divisions of the Toronto Livestock Market this afternoon. Prices on common killing cattle eased off a little, but no actual losses were registered. Sheep and lambs continued steady while hogs firmed to yesterday's level.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 640; calves, 280; hogs, 790; sheep and lambs, 860.

Butcher cattle sold mostly at $2.00 to $3.50 with a few tops at $4.25. Good cows ranged from $2.25 to $2.50 with a few fed calves at $6.00 to $7.00. Bologna bulls went at $1.75 to $2.00. Stockers moved slowly at $2.00 to $3.00 per cwt., and several loads were unsold.

The calf division also slowed down with a few lots of choice vealers at $6.50 to $7.00. The bulk of the supply went from $4.00 to $6.00. Heavy westerns were lower at $2.75 to $3.50.

The hog division, after an unsettled opening, steadied at yesterday's level at $6.65 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.00 off truck and $7.40 off car.

Lambs were also steady, the majority selling at $5.75 while a few choice went up to $5.85 and $6.00. Other grades brought $4.75. Sheep held at $1.00 to $3.00 per cwt.

Hog quotes remained unchanged.

TORONTO MINING.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (CP).—While the high-priced issues dragged in quiet trading today, a number of the penny stocks were hammered quite severely in the afternoon trading on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange. Substantial losses were recorded for Stadacona, South, Tiblemont, Kirkland Consolidated, and Olga Oil. Silvers turned a bit soft and secondary gold issues lost a little ground while the seniors were mainly firm.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 3 (CP).—For the second successive day wheat prices dropped sharply on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Today's downturn was 2⅝ to 2⅞ cents, making the net loss for the two days 6⅛ cents.

October wheat wound up at 74⅞, December at 75¾ to ⅞ and May at 80⅞ cents. A break of three cents occurred at Chicago while Liverpool closed 1¾ to 1⅞ lower. Buenos Aires was off fractionally.

An opening slump of one to 1⅛ cents was nearly all recovered in the first hour with the aid of government support, but a wave of selling hit the wavering values near the close and demoralized the price structure.

DAUGHTERS ARE MOTHERS' HOSTS AT ST. JOHN'S

Most Successful Mother and Daughter Banquet Held.

MISS WORBOY SPEAKS.

Under the auspices of the 'teen-age girls branch of St. John's W.A., a most successful and enjoyable mother-and-daughter banquet—the first event of this nature promoted by the organization—was held in the Parish Hall last evening.

Some 120 guests sat down at the very attractive tables, which were effectively decorated with flowers and comports and silver baskets of fruit. The banquet was served by Mrs. A. J. Eldred and the refreshment committee of the afternoon branch; Mrs. F. Ford, Mrs. R. Ford, Mrs. J. Cridland, Mrs. Moore, Mrs. G. Groombridge, Mrs. C. Campbell, Mrs. F. Graham and Mrs. F. D. Craig. The success of this part of the program being largely due to the work of this committee.

The guest speaker was Miss Dorothy Worboy, who has recently returned from three months' service travelling with a mission van in Saskatchewan in connection with the Sunday-School-by-Post plan. Miss Worboy, who was introduced by the chairwoman, Mrs. H. A. Morrow, gave a most interesting address in telling of her experiences among the white settlers in the drought area of Saskatchewan. Her story of the manner in which some of these people had been brought into contact with religion for the first time in many years and of how Sunday School was held at many isolated places for the first time, was closely followed and thoroughly appreciated by her hearers. It gave a new picture of Western conditions to many around the banquet table.

The program began with the pronouncing of Grace by Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave, after which he proposed the health of His Majesty the King, which was loyally honored.

Miss Betty Castle, president of the 'teen-age branch, proposed the toast of the Mothers, in a neat speech and a graceful response was made by Mrs. Blagrave.

To Mrs. H. A. Morrow fell the task of proposing the health of the Daughters, and a feeling reply was made by Miss Gertrude Lemmings.

A vote of thanks to the guest speaker and to all who had assisted in the success of the evening was passed on motion of Miss Mary Carr of the 'teen-age branch.

The affair was in every way a most pleasing one, particularly as has been said, this was the first occasion upon which the 'teen-age branch had staged an event of this nature.

RELIEF ROSTER NOT COMPLETED

New Registration May be Compiled This Week.

IS NEARLY FINISHED.

Commenting this morning on the request of the United Workers' Fraternity to the City Council, Relief Officer Metheral said that the re-registration of persons on relief as required by Government, had not been completed, and until that preliminary is done he was not in a position to express an opinion as to whether any change would be made in the present relief plans.

Mr. Metheral said he had suggested to representatives of the U. W.F. that Peterborough's policy of paying two days' wages a week to registered men who work for the city might be dispensed with. By this policy men are appointed in rotation from the list, receiving in their turn $6.40 for the week each works. This supplies them with some cash in addition to their relief allowance. The cost to the city is approximately $10.000 a year, and it is understood that Peterbrough is the only city which has experimented with the part cash payment.

Mr. Metheral said that if this form of assistance were terminated, an additional $30.000 would be available for relief distribution, but with no cash payments, this amount being obtained by the Governments' "two for one" contribution.

The new registration of persons on relief will be completed this week. Mr. Metheral said that there is no interference with unemployed men who secure odd jobs.

According to the Government's regulations men may still obtain relief provided their earnings do not exceed one-third of their monthly relief allowance.

Safe Is Dynamited Burglars Get $4,000

SHAWANO, Wis., Oct. 3 (A.P.).—Three men terrorized the village of Gresham, 10 miles west of here, for two hours early to-day before escaping with $4,000 obtained by dynamiting the safe of the First National Bank. Several persons were fired upon, but were not struck.

The robbers barricaded themselves in the bank after cutting telephone wires and extinguishing street lights. Residents were warned back into their homes, and some who hesitated were shot at.

Trees Set On Fire In Jackson Park

At times the duties of the Fire Department include the fighting of forest fires. Well, perhaps not real forest fires but, at least, bush fires in the making.

A tree ablaze in Inverlea Park last evening brought the fire trucks to the scene in a hurry about 9.30 o'clock. Thought to have been started by malicious or careless children, the fire was put out before it could spread to other trees.

It was just a few days ago that a tree afire in Jackson Park required similar attention.

TRUCK DRIVER IS ACQUITTED

BEFORE JUDGE SMOKE.

Frank Driscoll, 29, Canada Packers truck driver was this morning acquitted on a charge of criminal negligence arising from the death of William Sutherland, who was killed in a railway crossing smash in North Monaghan township on September 5, last.

In discharging the accused His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke remarked that the Crown had failed to produce evidence in support of the charge. "It would appear to be that the prosecution must prove that the negligence with which the accused is charged amounted to a criminal act."

"The evidence of the Crown" he remarked, "is that the truck was proceeding very slowly and that the driver asked his young companion on the seat beside him if anything was coming. Receiving the mistaken assurance that there was nothing coming on the tracks he continued over the crossing. In doing so, he probably did what any prudent man might do under similar circumstances."

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., conducted the prosecution and after the case for the Crown had been completed, W. J. Arthur Fair, counsel for the defence moved for dismissal on the grounds that the Crown had not produced evidence to support the charge against the accused. The defence offered no evidence.

Crown witnesses included John W. Pierce, Ontario land surveyor, who submitted to the court a plan of the location of the accident; John Hickey, 17, of Westcott street who was seated beside the driver of the truck at the time of the fatality; Harry Bird and Fred Gilmore employees of North Monaghan gravel pit; and Provincial Constable David Silvester.

NAME COMMITTEES FOR BIG CARNIVAL

Kinsmen Lay Plans for Carnival on Hallowe'en Night.

Plans for the Kinsmen Club Hallowe'en Carnival were drawn up at a meeting of the club executive held last evening under chairmanship of C. Alex Sollitt.

The club anticipates staging a large masquerade carnival probably in the Armouries, and to run a comprehensive program that will appeal to the people of the city and county. While details of the program were left in the hands of Bob Stanley, as chairman of the general committee, the event is to include round and square dancing, old-time fiddlers' contest, and valuable prizes for fancy and comic costumes, and a cash award as a door prize.

Committees were appointed under chairmanship of the following Kinsmen: General, Bob Stanley; Fence, A. E. Chalmers; Booths, J. K. Sheehy; Armouries, Ralph Honey; Refreshments, H. G. Mason and Percy Gray; Transmission, R. Lundy; Finance, H. McClelland; Tickets, V. Selkirk; Advertising, G. W. Craw and A. L. Elliott; Orchestras, C. Rice; Draw Prizes, F. Trimble and H. H. P. Johnston; Dance, E. Riley.

FALL RALLY HELD AT MURRAY STREET

Rev. Franklin Banister of Canton, Will Speak at W. A. Rally.

The Rev. Franklin Banister of Canton, Ontario, dealt with the present situation in world missions, in an interesting and comprehensive address given last evening at the fall rally of the Women's Missionary Society of Murray Street Baptist Church. The Rev. Mr. Banister who was accompanied by his wife, is pastor of the United Church at Canton.

About fifty guests were present at the rally and tea, which preceded it, with Mrs. Bert Jackson presiding. The speaker was introduced by W. G. Shiner. Tea arrangements were in charge of Mrs. E. E. Brumwell and Mrs. H. Graham, and Mrs. Gordon Matthews supervised the decorations, which were carried out in fall flowers and foliage placed in pumpkin holders.

BRANCH WORK UNDER REVIEW

Peterborough Presbytery of Young People's Union Meets in St. James'.

DEMONSTRATION NIGHT.

An unusually interesting program known as a "Demonstration" night, was sponsored by the executive of Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union in St. James' United Church last night.

Representatives from the various Young People's Societies of the city were present in large numbers, forming an enthusiastic group of workers. The aim of these conferences is to promote greater interest and to suggest newer and more efficient methods. During the past year such gatherings have been held at different centres throughout the Presbytery, with outstanding success, under the leadership of the president, Bert Monk, of Bethany, who presided last night in St. James'.

A sing-song preceded the program proper and was led by Russell Lewis, with Ashton Fife at the piano. The president of St. James' Y.P.S., Connie Wagar, welcomed the young people on behalf of her society, and introduced Mr. Monk, the Presbytery president.

In a few words, Mr. Monk outlined the objective of the meeting, and called on the convenors to present their work.

Christian Fellowship

Christian Fellowship was demonstrated in the opening worship service, led by Connie Wagar and was based upon the theme, "Consecration." An opening poem, "The Gospel According to You," was read by Mabel Dulmage, and a dramatized scripture lesson followed. This little act was effectively carried out by Nina Andrus, Dorothy Drysdale and Muriel Moorhouse. Following this, the consecration hymn was sung softly, and prayer offered by Mrs. Anderson, Lloyd May, and William Patterson. Also in keeping with the main theme, was Van Dyke's story, "The Handful of Clay," which was read by Ernest Davis. The worship period closed with a responsive service of consecration in which all joined.

Missionary Work

In a most convincing manner Edith Elmhirst presented the work of the Missionary Department and aroused the enthusiasm of all by her timely and vivid illustrations of the great need.

The Recreation convenor, Esther Thornton, gave an interesting resume of her activities in the year just passed and pointed out the vital importance of this phase of the work, which she demonstrated in group games, at the close of the program.

Speaking on behalf of C.G.I.T. work, Vera Squire made an earnest plea for increased effort along this line for teen-age girls. She outlined the aims of this organization and displayed available material for the organizing of such groups.

Rapid Growth

Cleve Robb, as secretary-treasurer of the Presbytery, spoke briefly of the growth of the Young People's work to its present efficient status, while Fred Barnard of the Bay of Quinte Y.P. Conference executive, brought greetings from the conference and complimented the Presbytery officers upon their fine work.

Standing behind the efforts of their young people are the clergy of the city, who were represented last night by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of George Street United Church, who commended their work, their spirit of reverence, and the high ideals toward which they were striving.

Rev. C. Daniel of Mark Street United Church, was also present, and spoke of the great value of Religious Education, of which department he is the leader in this Presbytery.

The pastor of the Conference church, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, welcomed the visiting societies and wished them all success in their fine undertakings. He assured them that the church was depending upon their leadership to carry on its work in the future.

In closing this part of the program, the offertory was received, and Mr. Monk announced the annual rally of the Presbytery Y. P. Union, to be held on Friday afternoon and evening, October 12th, in St. James' United Church.

After the recreation period, refreshments were served by the hostess' society and an enjoyable social time was spent.

A vote of appreciation was extended to the Presbytery executive and to the entertaining society by Elmer Tretheway, of George Street Y.P.S., which was seconded by Thomas Allen of Knox.

Thanks were also tendered Arthur McLaren, who had charge of the lantern and lights.

Stewardship Paper Read to Group W.M.S

Mrs. J. W. Hales gave an interesting paper on Christian Stewardship at a recent meeting of Group F of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church, held at the home of Mrs. A. Lane, Brock Street. About twenty members were present.

After reports of various committees were given, devotional exercises were led by Miss King, who also gave an excellent account of the work carried on at the Summer School which she attended this year.

At the close of the business session, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Hales, Barrett, Bates, Helson and Flannery. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Lane and her assistants.

TAVERN-KEEPER IN ARMENTIERES SIGHS FOR ANOTHER GREAT WAR

Town Famed for "Mademoiselle" Suffers Depression—Scotch Credit Gone.

DISPUTE SETTLED

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

ARMENTIERES, Oct. 12—"Mademoiselle from Armentiers!" .... I am glad to report that the lady has turned a new leaf since last we saw her. She is a respectable housewife now, has a flock of flaxen-haired Flemish kids around her and goes to church on Sunday. All undue levity is therefore out of the question. However, there is a whole crop of new mademoiselles around here. But they are of an entirely different breed than that curious and somewhat spurious ancestor we used to sing about. For one thing they don't wait with kissing till they are forty years. After church this morning the entire younger generation paired off into couples and took to the lanes and shady avenues outside the burg.

Armentieres sure is an up /and coming town!

The tavern-keeper, the same one-eyed fellow, but now a little more bent and a little grayer, who used to short-change the troops (except the Highlanders, who short-changed him) told me that they had had a building boom and a lot of prosperity in the town in the last decade. Things were not so good at the present moment, but he had a tip, which he passed on to me in great confidence, to the effect that business was going to pick up all over the world after the exposition in Paris in 1937. "Just a little more patience," he cautioned. "Un tres petit peu de patience!"

"But suppose we have another war in the meantime?" I queried.

Wanted—A War

"Sakkreju," he said, "I wished that were true, a war is a darned sight better for business than an exposition. Do they talk of a new war in Paris?" he asked eagerly.

"They do," I said, "but they don't seem to be looking forward to it as keenly as you are!"

"Ah, those Parisians," he sighed, "a pretty stupid crowd, I always said, in spite of their stuck-up manners. I wished this town of Armentieres was in Canada. I always got along fine with the Canadians."

"Especially on pay-days," I interjected.

"What will you have?" he asked suddenly, acting as if he hadn't heard my last remark.

"Same as last time," I said. "Fish and chips and a little 'vin blinc'."

"Une carafe," he called out to the kitchen.

"That's five francs for the wine," he said.

"Three francs more than in Paris?"

"We have a longer haul up here," he explained. "And then, he added as an afterthought, "those sacre Canadians drank up all our old stock when they were here."

"They paid you for it, didn't they?" I asked.

"One fellow got away without paying his bill!" he came back at once.

"What was his name?"

Name Sounds Suspicious

"Mac—son—faire!" the host pronounced with emphasis.

"I thought so."

"Do you know him?" he asked.

"I do," I said, "he's a rich man now and runs a fine automobile!"

"He has an automobile? The ruffian, the miscreant, the lousy dog, he runs an automobile, he plays the fine seigneur on my money?"

"How much did he owe you?"

"Seventy francs. He always insisted on having the best of cognac!"

"I don't blame him."

"I took pity on him," went on the host. "He had a bad cold in the head. I let him have the cognac on credit. Ah, what a loss, what a loss! Ten bottles of first-class cognac."

"Why don't you write to the British government about it? That's a crime against civilians, leaving a bill unpaid, heavy punishment on that!"

"Will you help me write the letter?" he asked.

"You write your own letters, give me my fish and chips!"

"But they don't understand French in the British government!"

"Don't they, though? You just try them!"

"I will, but do you think they'll punish this Monsieur Macsentire?"

"They'll hang him," I said. "They'll hang him high and dry!"

Want Him Hanged

"Good," he replied. "That's what I want. The low-down thief. I warned him enough. This cognac I used to say to him is seven francs a bottle, don't forget, Monsieu Macsentaire. 'It's worth it,' he used to reply. The rascal. Do you know how much I could get for that cognac now?"

"No," I said, "I don't know!"

"Forty to fifty francs a bottle—from tourists!"

"I can see that you are an honest man."

"Tu parles!" (You said a mouthful) he replied. "I wished Monsieur Macsentaire was half as honest as I am and had paid me for those seven bottles of cognac I let him have on credit.

"Seven? I thought you said just now it was ten bottles!"

"I'll have a look whether your order of fish and chips is ready!" he said shuffling off to the kitchen.

"Monsieur Pierre," he said after a while as he sat down opposite to watch me eat, "you could do me a great favor!"

"What is it?" I asked. "Write that letter for you?"

"That you will do anyway," he replied, 'because I think I am not going to charge you the usual ten per cent for the 'service'."

"You can't charge me ten per cent because you served yourself." I protested. "Since when is a guest supposed to tip the proprietor of an estaminet? I never heard of such a thing."

"Don't get angry," he said in a soothing tone of voice, "don't get angry. I want you to do me a favor."

"Well, what is it?"

Dispute Over Harvester

"It's this way," he said. "My brother-in-law, who lives at the end of the town, has just bought a new harvesting machine. It's an American make. But two of his neighbors have similar machines and they are Canadian-made. Now great trouble has broken out over these machines. The commune is split in two parties. The one party says the American make is better and the other says the Canadian make is better."

"Well, what of it? Both are good, no doubt!"

"That's not the point," he shook his head, "you don't understand me. We can't go on this way. There have been fights over the question. The vicar has tried to patch up the quarrel. The mayor has tried. I have done my best, all in vain. What we want is someone from the outside to settle the matter. How about it, Monsieur Pierre? I see you like that wine, 1927 vintage, you know, and only six francs a bottle to you, because you are an old friend."

"Look here," I said, "you said a while ago it was five francs and that's three francs too much. What are you trying to do; hold me up?"

"You come with me to my brother-in-law and act as arbiter and we'll forget about the money," he cajoled.

Becomes Arbiter

"Well," I said, after I lit my pipe with one of the long twisted rolls of paper he kept on the mantelshelf above the big fireplace where the kettle was boiling; "let's go and see!"

"I knew you'd come." He was all smiles.

He harnessed up the pony and we drove to the brother-in-law's place, where I was shown the farm implement. "A MacCormeeck," the owner explained. I looked it over like a connoisseur and nodded. "Now to the neighbor," and we got under way, about 20 farmers following us and arguing their heads off. I didn't say a word. The matter was sub judice, so to speak. We halted aobut ten minutes further up the road. The wife of the owner of the other machine looked at me with ferocity after the tavern-keeper had explained that I was an expert in agricultural machinery from Canada. "Angelica!" she screamed, "go and fetch father!"

Upon this shrill cry a child, about sixteen, came running out, put on her wooden shoes and looked us over. Her eyes were transparent blue porcelain and her hair was the dimiest blonde I ever saw in my life. Here is something for the late Flo Ziegfeld to glorify. I thought, as I stood perplexed with admiration over so much beauty in so small a packet.

Angelica smiled sweetly, showing a set of teeth like pearls, and ran off to get her father. We walked over to a barn to inspect the machine and waited till the farmer came up and unbolted the door of the shed. Then all filed in. Angelica giggling delightfully.

"A Massee-Harrees!" said the owner with a sweep of the hand.

The name sounded familiar enough to me, in spite of the queer pronunciation.

Beauty Wins

I glanced at the machine. I didn't see where it differed in the least from the first one except for the colors and the trade-mark.

"Monsieur Pierre," the proprietor of the tavern, whispered to me in an aside, "it's chicken a la milanaise at my place to-night, don't forget!"

"Don't try your corrupt ward-boss tricks on me," I said gruffly. "I want to give these people an impartial judgment."

I looked at Angelica. She was smiling.

"The Massee-Harrees wins," I said emphatically and strolled out. There was a cheer behind me from the winning group. The matter was settled fairly, I dare say.

"Monsieur," called out the innkeeper furiously, "you owe me twelve francs fifty for the meal!"

"My fee for acting as arbiter is 25," I said. "I never take less."

Lindbergh Suspect

The limelight of the Lindbergh baby kidnap case has turned its rays toward Chicago with the arrest of John Bowen who may prove to be the "mysterious John" in the Lindbergh baby ransom negotiations carried on with Dr. John F. Condon, "Jafsie." He is shown here while being questioned at the detective bureau. He has also been identified as an ex-convict.

HAVELOCK W. I. PLANS DANCE

Committees Are Named For Hallowe'en Affair—Entertaining Program.

SCHOLARSHIP SETTLED.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — Much business was transacted by the Havelock Womens' Institute in session at the Council Chamber Monday afternoon, when there was a splendid attendance of the membership; the president, Mrs. Hoffman, in the chair.

Arrangements were completed for the Hallowe'en dance, and committees to look after the various departments appointed. Mesdames Bedford, Johnston and Hoffman were delegated to look after the advertising, and purchase prizes for the best costumes. Miss E. Wright, Mesdames Jones, Rice and Hubel consented to act on the refreshment committee, and Mesdames McCutcheon and Jamieson will take tickets on the evening of the dance. A reception committee composed of four ladies who will be in masquerade costume was appointed to receive the guests. Mesdames Johnstone, Hubel, Gould and Wilde are on that committee.

The invalid chair, property of the Institute, which was loaned outside the community, has been requested for use of an invalid in this district, and the property committee was asked to procure the same.

A discussion over the disposal of a quilt recently finished, resulted in the decision to give the same to the family for whom it was originally intended. The president reported having placed a layette in a home where twins were born recently, and the material for another having been bought. The latter will be made up and kept on hand for future need.

Mr. Kinnaird, chairman of the relief committee, addressed the meeting briefly regarding the holding of a Poppy Day in Havelock.

Examination Laurels

The matter of the scholarship to the Entrance pupil obtaining highest standing at the midsummer examination was discussed. Mr. Yuill, the principal of the Public School, recommended that instead of awarding the scholarship to the one writing the examination, it be given to the one in the entrance class showing the greatest improvement in the year. A showing of hands on the two alternatives resulted in the scholarship being promised to the most-improved pupil. Donald Rose was winner of the scholarship last term, having obtained highest marks.

A request from Westwood Institute that Havelock branch put on the program for the third Tuesday in October at Westwood, resulted in a committee being appointed to look after talent for the program for that day.

At the conclusion of the business session Miss Seeney, program convenor, took charge and a delightful program was enjoyed. The Roll Call was a "daily courtesy" and was well responded to; the gist of all responses being the importance of starting the day right with a cheery "Good Morning," and doing a kindness whenever possible throughout the day.

A humorous reading, "Joseph's Fall from Grace," by Mrs. Thompson, and a vocal solo by Mrs. D. J. Holdcroft were both much enjoyed. A brief talk by Miss Seeney, who stressed the need for a kindness to everyone, not only to those whom we know and who are good to us, but to everyone with whom we come in contact, was well given and received. A short period of community singing and the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close, after which the hostesses served a dainty lunch.

DETROIT REPORT READ AT LUNCHEON

Work for Underprivileged Children Reviewed at Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 3 (Examiner Correspondence)—The regular luncheon of the Rotary Club was held on Monday, at the St. Lawrence Hotel, when Vice-president Clarence Williams gave a resume of the recent convention of Rotary International, held in Detroit. The gathering was attended by 7,390 representatives of clubs in various countries of the world. This was slightly less than the attendance at the similar gathering of the previous year.

An international dinner for delegates from Canada and the State of Michigan was attended by 1,400 persons, and an address was delivered by a representative from Tokyo, Japan.

The boys' work department of the Rotary organization was ably dealt with by five representatives of different nationalities—the United States, England, China and Germany. In England, the work along this line is not so heavy, owing to the fact that it is pretty well handled by the state. In China there is much to be done, so many require assistance and so few can be handled, progress in this department is difficult. In Germany the situation is largely under control of the state authorities.

Quoting from an address by the Postmaster-General of the United States, the speaker gave some information regarding the working of the N.R.A., stating that from the beginning of the operation of the act until June last, the unemployed who had been engaged on government work had sent to home the sum of sixty million dollars.

Entertainment features of the convention included street dancing, concerts, continuous motion pictures, and over seven hundred motor cars were placed at the disposal of the delegates to assist in providing for their entertainment. The president's ball, the speaker described as a brilliant affair, to which 6,000 persons passed through the doors.

Fitting tribute was paid to the work and worth of the late Rotarian James Davidson of Calgary, who did much in advancing the cause of Rotary in many countries.

A troop of twenty Boy Scouts honored Paul Harris, founder of Rotary, in the presentation to him of a silver buffalo.

Many of the delegates took advantage of a tour through the Ford factory, where the various operations in the production of a motor car were witnessed with much interest.

President Stanley Neale presided at the luncheon, and the business included making arrangements for the conveying of the six cases, recommended by the recent clinic, to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, for examination. Rotarians Dwight Bennett and Charlie Davidson having volunteered their cars for this purpose.

The club decided to enter the Tuckett Tobacco Co.'s cigarette wrapper contest this year, with the object of assisting to provide Christmas gifts for the children.

PROGRESS SEEN W.M.S. REPORTS

Belleville Presbyterian Executive Meeting Held in Quinte Church.

An executive meeting of Belleville Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society was held in Bridge Street church, Belleville, on Monday, September 24th, with an attendance of sixteen.

In the absence of the President, Mrs. Anderson of Newburgh, owing to illness, the secretary, Mrs. D. B. Wilson, opened the meeting, and later, Mrs. Frank Dafoe, of Madoc, was appointed presiding officer for the day. Rev. T. H. Hall of John street, took charge of the morning devotional and a letter of loving greetings from our president was read. The various departmental secretaries, who were present, reported their work to date, which showed progress all along the line, excepting the finances. Two resignations, those of Mrs. George Switzer, and Mrs. C. B. Brethen, were received. The Nominating Committee and the executive were unanimous that Mrs. George Finlay, of Strathcona, be appointed as Vice-President for the Napanee Section, and that Mrs. J. H. Redick of Trenton, be appointed secretary to fill out the balance of the year.

Plans were made to hold the annual Presbyterial in Picton, in March, 1935, and the Branch Conference will be held in Belleville that same year.

Those in attendance were Mrs. F. Dafoe, Madoc; Mrs. F. L. Hooper, Mrs. D. B. Wilson, Mrs. R. W. Street, Mr. C. S. Reddick, Napanee; Mrs. W. Haggerty, Cherry Valley; Mrs. E. L. Fraser, Trenton; Mrs. M. E. Knox and Mrs. Frank Herrington, Mrs. Henry Williams, Picton; Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Stirling; Mrs. H. B. Herrington, Thomasburg; Mrs. Albert Empey, Eldorado; Mrs. G. A. Ferguson, Mrs. G. S. Sharpe, Belleville; Mrs. H. Bailey, Madoc. Corresponding members were Rev. T. H. Hall, Mrs. Farnsworth and Mrs. John Moore, of Belleville.

BAND BOARD TO BE REORGANIZED

Relief Question Again Brought Before Council at Campbellford Meeting.

REVISION DATE SET

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 3.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—Reporting for the Band committee of the town council at the October session of that body Monday night, Councillor P. J. Sarginson stated that it had been decided to re-organize the band and that a meeting of those interested was called for Thursday evening for that purpose. When this was done a further report would be made to the council.

The Legal committee, through its chairman, Councillor F. P. Long, reported progress in the matter of obtaining information on certain questions which had been referred to it at a former meeting.

Relief Work.

Regarding the relief problem, Councilluor J. O'Sullivan, who is in charge of the final end of this work, stated that there was under consideration the proposition of buying a quantity of standing wood, if it could be obtained at a right price, and have it cut by the unemployed who are able. Nothing definite, he stated, had yet been done in this regard.

The chairman of the Relief committee, Councillor J. Battisby, drew attention to the necessity of extreme care in the dispensing of relief, and in this the other members of the council concurred.

Court of Revision.

Court of Revision on the assessment for the current year was set for Friday evening, October 19th, at 7.30 o'clock.

The clerk reported that the list of voters for 1934 had been prepared and was instructed to have the number of copies required by statute printed.

The matter of providing an entrance to the front of the premises on Centre street occupied by Provincial Officer Campbell was left with the Road and Bridge committee to have the same completed.

In the absence of Mayor Carr, the meeting was presided over by Reeve N. A. MacColl.

Xerophytes are plants that are able to grow under conditions of high evaporating power of the air.

TRENT RIVER.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wight and children, Murray and Jean, of Peterborough, were Friday visitors at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. A. Wight, of "Cedar Isle."

Mr. Herbert Robinson held a successful auction sale at his farm, Percy Township, on Friday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson are leaving to take up residence on a farm near Birdsall.

He has trade-marked his place of business

A TRADE-MARK is a good thing for the man who buys as well as for the man who sells. It protects the reputation of the seller and the pocketbook of the buyer.

That's why ten thousand Canadian dealers in gasoline and motor oils have trade-marked their places of business with the red-white-and-blue Imperial oval sign.

It is the dealer's pledge that he will sell gasolines and lubricants of the finest quality only. It is your guarantee of the best value money can buy.

These dealers have chosen to sell Imperial products because they believe no one else in Canada has the equipment and experience needed to make gasoline and oils of Imperial quality.

Wherever you go in Canada you will never be far from one of these Imperial signs. Buy with confidence where you see the red-white-and-blue Imperial oval sign.

Mr. and Mrs. E. McConnell and son Jack, of Toronto spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nettress. Miss Margaret McConnell is visiting her cousin, Mary Burnham for two weeks.

Gordon Davis is attending the Normal School at Peterborough this year.

The sale of household goods at the home of the late Mrs. T. H. Bradley on Saturday was largely attended, and prices fair, everything being disposed of under the auctioneer's hammer, Jas. Roddy having the sale in charge. The house and lot were not sold as the amount offered, $250, did not reach the reserve bid. P. I. Bentley and G. F. Harrington are the executors of the will.

Miss Winnie Lord has taken a position in Peterborough, and left last week for her duties in that city. The marriage of Miss Miriam Lord and Walter Bristow, of Peterborough, takes place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord, on Saturday, October 6.

Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Dawson, and family moved on Saturday to "Ingleside," the former homestead of the Vance family on King street. Mr. J. J. Clarke, Mrs. Dawson's father, expects to give up his apartments at the Waverly building and occupy rooms with the Dawson's for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Bacchus and two daughters, Ruth and Anne of Chapleau, Ontario, have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Ford.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevor, of Timmins were recent guests of Rev. A. L. and Mrs. Sisco, at the parsonage, going on to points east before returning to their home in Northern Ontario.

Mr. R. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Browne and other members of the family have moved to the apartments over the former Steele store, vacating the Vance homestead on King street now the property of Dr. Herbert Young of Peterborough.

The single case of infantile paralysis in the village, that of Kathryn Bigelow, is well on the way to complete recovery, the serum having been promptly administered by the medical health officer, Dr. H. A. Turner. The school was thoroughly fumigated before re-opening on Monday morning, the pupils having a holiday on Friday, and any children who had been in contact with Kathryn were placed under quarantine.

Signalman Forgot; 10 Lives Are Lost

WARRINGTON, England, Oct. 3. (C.P. Cable).—The train wreck here Saturday which cost the lives of 10 persons resulted from a signalman "forgetting" a train.

There was a dramatic moment at the inquest to-day when the signalman, William Bleur, was being questioned. He passed his hand over his forehead dazedly and murmured: "I completely forgot the 8.55 from Warrington."

The coroner remarked the signalman honestly admitted his error, which caused the accident. He added Bleur had been a signalman for 32 years, and had worked in his present box for 21 years. He performed 900,000 operations weekly, and 160,000,000 people had passed his box safely.

It was not indicated whether any action would be taken against Bleur.

JOBLESS MONEY PROVES WORRY

U. S. Officials Find Private Capital Isn't Working Much As It Used To.

DEPOSITS GROW SLOWLY.

WASHINGTON, October 3. (AP.)—The problem of jobless money, of cheque book with cobwebs on them, furrowed the foreheads of United States Treasury experts to-day.

The Treasury's own brain trust—a group of college economists—laid before Secretary Henry Morgenthau an impressive array of new statistics to show that private capital isn't working as much as it used to.

The figures dealt with the "velocity of bank deposit turnover"—that is the number of times a dollar is deposited and withdrawn in a given period. After a survey, the economists found that deposits were being turned over only about half as fast as at the 1929 peak and little more than two-thirds as fast as in 1923-1927.

This contrasts sharply with the fact that the amount of deposits is less than 33 1-3 per cent. below 1929, and is within 20 per cent. of the 1923-1925 level.

Another new development at the Treasury is an announcement by Secretary Morgenthau that hereafter there won't be week'y statements showing the amounts of Government securities. Instead there will be monthly statements giving the net amounts of sales or purchases.

The weekly reports have been watched closely by financial observers, particularly at times when the Government was believed to be supporting the market by buying its securities.

Hall's Bridge

Amongst recent visitors to the village were Joseph Waddell, accompanied by his sister, Helen, and the Misses Anne Retallick, Christina Clarkson and Bertrice Bray. The above are all from Garden Hill. They spent a few days here at a cottage which they rented.

On Tuesday last the St. Matthew's Dorcas met at the home of the president, Mrs. Willis. Part of the business was the appointment of a secretary-treasurer in the place of Miss Iris Willis, who resigned. The members elected Miss Dean to fill the position, and expressed their grateful thanks to Miss Willis for the way she has acted as secretary since the formation of the society. After refreshments had been enjoyed, the meeting adjourned, to meet at Mrs. Archie Fullon's on October 16.

The following were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Armstrong during the past week-end: Mr. and Mrs. Herbert McConkey, of Smith; Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough; Mr. and Mrs. W. Finnie, of Peterborough, and Miss Beatrice McConkey and Miss Luella Elliott.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Yennett have been entertaining Mrs. Windover, Mr. Yennett's sister, and her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Windover, Jr.

On Monday last the weekly meeting of the Community Club was held at the True Blue Hall. Besides nineteen members a number of visitors were also present. After business a short program, arranged by Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Wood, was presented. It was entitled "A Night in Radioland." The first number, as the "Corn Huskers," by Mr. Jim Irwin's orchestra. This was followed by a short play, "The Hitching Post," the characters being as follows: Mr. Jack Harvey, the groom; Miss Dorothy Harvey, the bride; Ted Wood, the twelve-year-old son; Mrs. Hy. Shearer, the bride's mother by a previous marriage; Mr. Thompson, the bride's father; Mrs. Hall, the bride's sister and maid of honor. Ted Wood very ably took the part of Bradley Kincade and sang a few songs. Mr. Wood represented the Gospel Singer. Mr. Jack Harvey, as Jim Hunter, gave a series of local news. Announcer, Mr. Thompson. Mr. Thompson was called to the platform and presented with a purse of money as a token of regard from his many friends at Buckhorn, the Community Club, which he started, and the local ball team. The address was read by Mr. S. Wood and the presentation made by Miss Marguerite Rell. Mr. Thompson, as a student preacher, has done a great deal of good work in this mission field, considering his short stay, and will be greatly missed. He was completely taken by surprise, but replied in a few words, expressing his enjoyment in the work he has been doing in the district, and expressed his desire to come back and see all his friends again. The whole assembly then joined in singing, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The Rev. Mr. Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, of Toronto, the parents of Mr. Ross Thompson, were present in the audience. Refreshments were then served and the meeting brought to a close.

Miss Dewart spent the week-end at Indian River.

In a beautifully decorated church, nearly filled to capacity, the harvest thanksgiving service was held at St. Matthew's Anglican Church Sunday. The service was conducted by the Rev. E. C. Moore, with Mrs. Archie Fulton at the organ. Mr. Moore took for his text, "I am the bread of life," and preached a sermon which held the keenest attention of his listeners and which will be undoubtedly long remembered.

AIM TO TIE UP EVERY N.S. MINE

Workers Issue Threat Unless Strike Settled in Six Days.

ASK BETTER CONDITIONS.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Oct. 3. (CP)—An attempt to tie up every coal mine in Nova Scotia was threatened to-day by Secretary Robert Stewart of the Amalgamated Mine Workers if a strike of miners at the Dominion Coal Company's No. 2 mine here is not settled in the next six days.

Unless the walkout is settled satisfactorily by Monday, Secretary Stewart said, his organization will call upon the province's 12,000 mine-workers to strike in sympathy with the claims of the No. 2 men for higher wages and better working conditions for the Longwall miners.

At the same time Stewart declared Amalgamated Mine Workers would attempt to-day to bar maintenance men from descending into the pit. Since the strike began yesterday, maintenance workers and officials have been allowed entry into the big mine, but pickets strung about the mouth of the shaft have prevented all others of the 1,500 miners from going to work.

No machinery moved to-day in the pit—the company's biggest producer—and a thin line of pickets remained strung around the property. There was no violence, but police kept an eye on the strikers and non-strikers, members of the rival United Mine Workers.

Officials of the United Mine Workers, the older union and the only one recognized by the company, disclaimed responsibility for the strike, though A. M. W. supporters claimed it had been instituted jointly by members of both organizations in the mine.

Rev. P. H. Neville revisited Unionville this week, the village in which he spent his early days to attend the funeral of the late William Caldwell, his cousin.

The Rally Day service at the United Sunday school was largely attended on Sunday morning. Short addresses were given by Mrs. R. McKenzie and Mrs. R. Curtis. A pageant "Sunday Schools Around the World" by ten boys and girls representing different countries was splendidly given. Mrs. McBride took the leaders part. Little Clara Coffey sang a solo.

The Harvest Home Thanksgiving service was held at St. John's Church on Sunday afternoon and was well attended. The church was very fittingly decorated for the occasion. Rev. E. J. Harper, M.A. of St. Catharines was the speaker. Mr. Harper was the first minister after the church was founded in 1868. Rev. Mr. Milman of Grafton ably assisted. St. George's choir of Grafton assisted with the singing. Mrs. Tenovel of Grafton rendered a solo.

HOTEL KEEPERS FINED $50 EACH

Three Chatham Men Fined for Selling Beer to Minor.

ONUS IS ON KEEPER.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 3—Fines $50 and costs were yesterday imposed on J. Beverly Kerr, proprietor of the Chatham Hotel, Harry Pleasance, owner of the Rankin Hotel, and James Doherty, proprietor of the Canadian Pacific Hotel when convicted by Magistrate Arnold on charges of supplying beer to a minor in beverage room, after delivering a judgment which is the first of its kind in Ontario since beer sales in hotels were legalized.

The prosecutions were instituted as a test case after Clinton Walker, 19, of Merlin, on being convicted in city police court on a charge of being drunk on Aug. 25, alleged that he had secured his drinks in the beverage rooms of the three hotels.

The defense stressed that the sales if any were without the knowledge of the defendants, while the nine waiters in their respective employ all denied serving Walker and two friends who were arrested for being intoxicated.

The crown claimed that the onus of responsibility is on the hotel keepers not to supply any one under 21 years with beer in a beverage room. The defense contended there should be knowledge and intention.

Quoting from various legal authorities, the magistrate held that hotelkeepers are responsible for the acts of servants even if unknown to them.

Skeletons Reveal Century-Old Crime

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct 3. (C.P.)—Evidence of a crime almost a century-old was believed discovered here to-day when workmen excavating on the grounds of the Brant Sanatorium found the skeletons of a man and woman.

The skeletons were about 56 to 100 years old, declared Dr. C. C. Alexander and Dr. O. C. Dinniwell who examined them.

On the right temple of the woman's skull there was indication a blow had been struck said Acting Provincial Officer Fred. Baugh.

Further examination led to the belief the bodies had been burned, because the bones appeared charred. Witnesses considered there had been no proper burial, but both the man and woman had been thrown into the same grave.

Before the property was taken over by the Sanatorium 21 years ago it was cultivated farm land, police said.

1,037 STUDENTS AT COLLEGIATE

2,824 Pupils Are Enrolled in Public Schools of City.

GRANTS ARE MADE.

The Board of Education learned last night that enrollment at the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School this term is 1037 students, "aproximately the same as last year," according to Principal H. R. H. Kenner. The average daily attendance since term started was 1009 or 97 per cent.

In the public schools, Inspector A. Mowat's report to the Board indicates there is a combined enrollment of 2824 pupils, which is 26 in excess of the enrollment last year. The average daily attendance has been 2665 or 94 per cent.

The Board granted Inspector Mowat's request for a grant not to exceed $60 for the provision of eye glasses to needy school children. Other grants which the Board awarded were $300 for public school supplementary reading books and $25 to the Public Schools Athletic Association.

A request from the Worker's Educational Association for the use of a class room at the Collegiate for the conducting of a series of lectures was granted by the Board.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser tendered a written report to the Board on the result of his recent inspection at the schools. He recommended installation of improved sanitary conveniences at three public schools, and suggested the necessity of some form of medical examination for pupils at the Collegiate Institute, particularly upon initial enrollment.

The monthly report of Dr. A. W. McPherson, School Medical Officer stated, "The general health of the school children is good."

BOARD REFUSES TO PAY ACCOUNT

Board of Education Offers Eighty Per Cent. of Bill Submitted.

DECLARED "OUTRAGEOUS."

On the grounds that the charge was exhorbitant, Peterborough Board of Education last night declined to pass an account for $237.33 from W. R. Turner for repairs to the eavestroughing at the Collegiate Institute.

In the alternative the Board decided to tender the amount of the bill less twenty per cent in full settlement for the work done at the Collegiate.

W. J. Hancock, chairman of the Property Committee described the charge as being "outrageous" and a hold up."

John R. Marshall who requested to know why work of that nature should have been awarded other than by tender, was told by Dr. G. R. Scott, who was chairman of the Property Committee when the work was undertaken, that it had been originally anticipated that the job was only of a minor nature. After the work had been started, he said, it was discovered that extensive repairs were needed.

E. F. Reid—This account is before us. What can we do with it? "I don't see how we can get away from it," J. A. McKone remarked.

Mr. Hancock—It looks to me like a hold up. There is an item of $180 for taking down less than 200 feet of material.

Dr. J. J. Craig—It was a difficult situation that the workmen were called upon to cope with. Mr. Turner's letter explains that owing to the height of the building two men were required to do a job that might normally be done by one man.

Dr. Craig moved that the account be paid, and Mr. McKone seconded.

An amendment was moved by Mr. Hancock and seconded by Mr. Middleton that Turner's be tendered settlement of their account less twenty per cent. The amendment carried.

Those who voted in favor of the amendment were: McElderry, Middleton, Hancock, Marshall, Patton, Burnham and Reid.

APPOINTMENT OF NEW CARETAKER IS CRITICIZED

Property Committee Censors Chairman for Making Appointment.

RE-OPEN ISSUE.

Chairman Claims Unable to Call Committee Together.

As chairman of the Property Committee, W. J. Hancock came under a mild fire of criticism from his fellow members of the Board of Education last evening, for having engaged a caretaker at Queen Alexandra School without having consulted with his committee.

While there was the general feeling that Mr. Hancock should have placed the matter of the appointment before his committee, the chief criticism lay in the fact that the man already had a job, while there were applications on file from men who were unemployed.

In reply to his critics, Mr. Hancock claimed that on five occasions he had sought to get his committee together to deal with the question and failing to do so he had sought the advice of the chairman of the Board and had received authority to deal with the matter himself. The man had been placed in the position temporarily, Mr. Hancock said, and his permanent appointment was subject to approval of the principal of the school and the public schools inspector.

To Be Reopened

Following some discussion of the matter, it was decided upon motion of Dr. G. R. Scott that the committee should bring in a recommendation at the next meeting of the Board, regarding the appointment of a permanent caretaker.

The matter was opened up for discussion after Isaac P. McNabb had questioned the action of the Property Committee chairman in acting on his own initiative in the matter.

Mr. Hancock told Mr. McNabb that he had chosen the caretaker as being the most likely man after he had made five ineffectual attempts to call his committee together.

Addressing the chair Mr. McNabb replied, "He is not the only committee chairman who has had trouble in getting his committee together. I have experienced the same difficulty myself, but I have never yet made an appointment without getting the approval of the committee."

"On what basis was this man chosen? Was he the only man?" Mr. McNabb demanded.

Mr. Hancock—No.

E. F. Reid, chairman, outlined the circumstances under which the appointment was made stating that after failing to get his committee together Mr. Hancock had sought his advice. "He asked me would it be in order to send this man to Queen Alexandra School temporarily, and I say yes as far as I am concerned."

Not Permanent

"Until he is approved by the principal and inspector however," Mr. Reid added, "he is not permanently appointed."

Asked if it was correct that the man appointed by Mr. Hancock had been taken off another job, Mr. Reid acknowledged that it was so.

Dr. J. J. Craig took the stand that if the man had seen fit to give up his former job he must have been under the impression that his appointment as caretaker was permanent.

John R. Marshall took strong exception to seeing a man given the job who was already employed at the time, when there were so many people out of work. "The principle of the thing is wrong," he exclaimed.

Mr. Hancock disagreed with Mr. Marshall's view, expressing the opinion that it was good recommendation for the man he had engaged that he had been in his former job for twelve years. The Board did not want the type of man who had been out of employment for two years or more.

His remarks brought from Mrs. W. R. Morris the reminder that there were several worthy people who had been out of employment for lengthy periods of time through no fault of their own. Such people she felt were entitled to full consideration when appointments were being considered.

Dr. A. Moir was of the firm opinion that the whole question should be reviewed.

It will be by virtue of Dr. Scott's motion which was carried at the vote.

Weddings

HOLLIDAY—DONLEY.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at four o'clock to-day at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, when Doris Irene Donley, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Donley of Aylmer Street, was united in marriage to Mr. Douglas Harrison Holliday, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Holliday, of Whitby. The Rev. Mr. Irwin of Whitby officiated.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. G. Wilson Craw.

After a short motor trip East, Mr. and Mrs. Holliday will reside in Whitby.

TORONTO, Oct. 3. (CP)—Upper classmen at Victoria College were sporting new shoe shines to-day. They were received last night in connection with stunt night, the glorified name for the modest sort of initiation which now prevails at the college. The freshmen had to start the night's proceedings by shining the shoes of their seniors.

Litvinoff Throws Bombshell Into League

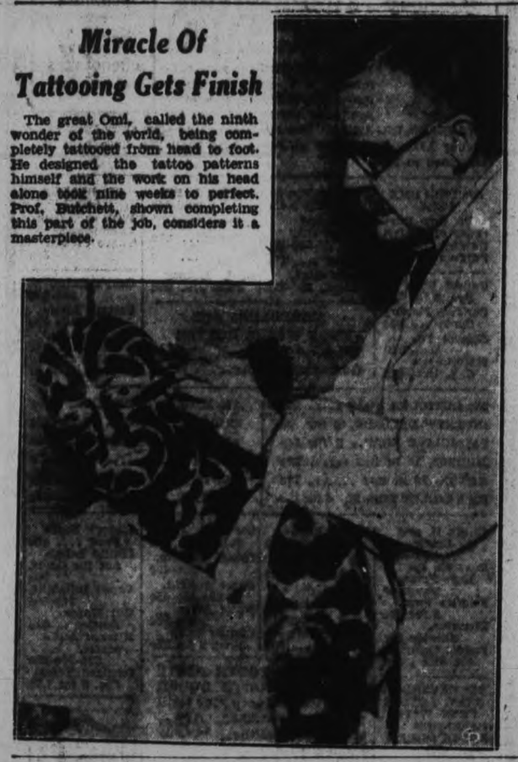
Maxim Litvinoff (arrow) signalizes the victory of the Soviet in being admitted to the highest councils of League of Nations by "capitalist countries" which excluded it for 14 years, by making a speech of pride and conciliation. He followed it up with an unexpected demand that the League make a decision as to the future of the world disarmament conference, now moribund because of League inactivity.

How Police Wrecked Garage Seeking Clues

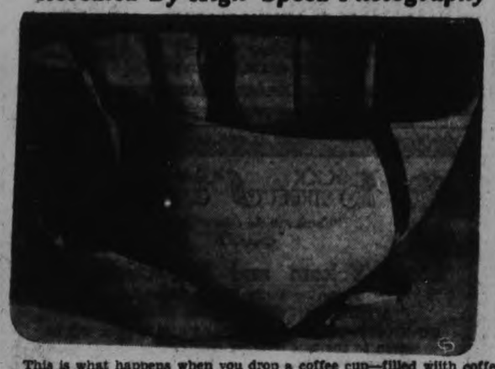
The splintered wreckage shown above is all that remained of garage at the Bronx home of Bruno Hauptmann as the search went on for more Lindbergh ransom money and other clues. In the garage more than $14,000 of the $50,000 ransom was found.

Miracle Of Tattooing Gets Finish

The great Omi, called the ninth wonder of the world, being completely tattooed from head to foot. He designed the tattoo patterns himself and the work on his head alone took nine weeks to perfect. Prof. Butchett, shown completing this part of the job, considers it a masterpiece.



Revealed By High Speed Photography



This is what happens when you drop a coffee cup—filled with coffee—to the floor. Shattering fragments caught by a high-speed camera at the moment of impact. Note the jets of coffee spurting from the sides and centre of the cup as the broken crockery falls away. This photograph was made with an exposure of approximately 1-100,000 of a second by means of electrical circuit developed by Professors H. E. Edgerton and Kenneth Germeshausen at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, Mass. Marvellous pictures are made with this super-speed photographic equipment.

Headed by Donald R. Richberg, CENTRE, labor law specialist, the committee shown above has been granted wide power by President Roosevelt as a policy controlling committee of the New Deal. Known as the "industrial emergency committee," the members are (UPPER LEFT) Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes; (LOWER LEFT) Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins; (UPPER RIGHT) Chester C. Davis, administrator of agricultural adjustment; below, Harry Hopkins, relief administrator.

Brought together at a meeting of the board of directors of United Artists Corporation, for the occasion of declaring a dividend, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, estranged last year when Fairbanks went to England, are shown ABOVE in Los Angeles. They are seated at the conference table with Joe Schenck, CENTRE, producer, who is said to have tried to bring about a reconciliation. Standing, LEFT to RIGHT, are Charles Chaplin, Darryl Zanuck and Samuel Goldwyn.

Police Find Revolver, Money Concealed In Home

After days of literally tearing apart the garage at the home of Bruno Hauptmann, held in the Lindbergh case, United States federal police discovered the gold ransom certificates and automatic pistol shown ABOVE. The money, $840, was packed in holes bored in a joist. The weapon was of German manufacture.

Innocent Victim

Manfred Hauptmann

This youngster is too young to realize the shadow which hangs over his daddy as police grill Bruno Richard Hauptmann in the Lindbergh kidnapping. He is 10-months-old Manfred Hauptmann, son of the Bronx, N.Y., carpenter in whose garage a part of the ransom money was found.

Take Tongue-Lashing

COLONEL BACK

Poland's representative to the League of Nations, Colonel Back made some startling remarks about Poland's place in international affairs. As a result he took a severe tongue-lashing from England's Sir John Simon.

Hauptmann's Friend

ISIDOR FISCH

Sees Conviction

CLARENCE DARROW

Veteran United States criminal lawyer, who, looking over the case built up against Bruno Richard Hauptmann, Bronx carpenter, charged in the Lindbergh kidnapping case, expressed the opinion that "only a miracle" could save the prisoner from a conviction before a court.

Waiting For World Series Seats

If preparedness means anything, these two lads, shown lined up for world series bleacher seats at Navin Field, Detroit, ought to enjoy the annual baseball classic. JUST AMONG US GIRLS

The old fashioned girl was educated at her mother's knee—the modern miss' education would be more effective if given over it.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Grapes are among the most delicate of fruits. The quaint and curious Samuel Pepys in the time of Charles II of England writes in his diary of eating grapes, the first he had ever seen, and indicating them as a novel luxury among table delicacies. To-day we are so familiar with them, from wild grapes through the endless variety of cultivated kinds, that it seems odd to hear of a first appearance of them. Some varieties are made into raisins, some are eaten in the prime of their luscious ripeness, some are good both fresh and cooked thus transforming them into grape juice, jelly, jam, relishes, etc. Wild grapes, because of their full flavor are chosen for cooking. Whatever the kind, for jellies be sure the fruit is not over ripe. It is wise to have a good admixture of green or unripe grapes with the ripe ones. The two recipes given today will add variety to the stock of preserve closets.

* * * * * *

GRAPE CATSUP

6 lbs. grapes, washed and stemmed and boiled in a very little water. They will liquify promptly, but a little water makes burning less likely. If heated slowly they will require the smallest quantity of water. Use a silver or wooden spoon to stir the grapes while boiling. When soft put through a sieve to eliminate seeds. Return to kettle and add

2 lbs. white sugar and 1-lb. brown sugar,
1½ cups cider vinegar and ½ cup tarragon vinegar,
1 tablesp. powered cinnamon,
1 teasp. powdered allspice,
½ teasp. powdered mace,
¼ teasp. salt and also of red pepper.

Boil all together for 1¼ hours or until thick. Bottle and seal. This is recommended to go with white meats especially, veal, chicken, cold turkey, roast pork, and also with cold mutton.

* * * * * *

GREEN GRAPE-BAR-LE-DUC

Green grapes, are chosen because they will not loose their shape nor skins when carefully cooked. The grapes are cut in halves and seeded, then weighed and a lb a sugar allowed for a lb. of grapes. Put washed grapes in preserving kettle with a little water and heat very slowly, and when brought to the boiling point, add the sugar by sifting it in so that the boiling is not interrupted. Then add the juice of 1 large orange and the grated rind of ½ the orange. Boil until thermometer registers 217. Put in small glasses, preferably, and seal. The grapes will have to be stirred occasionally to prevent scorching, but great care should be exercised to prevent breaking the delicate fruit. Bar-le-duc is a delicacy. A few small glasses, 3 or 6, make a Christmas gift welcomed by every homemaker, or college girl.

COSTLY HUNT

YARMOUTH, N.S., Oct. 3 (CP)—It cost Foreman Jacquard of Plymouth $33 more than he expected for his hunting expedition. He was arrested by Mounted Police for shooting a pair of Black Duck and a Great Blue Heron, contrary to the Migratory Bird Act, and was fined in the magistrate's court.

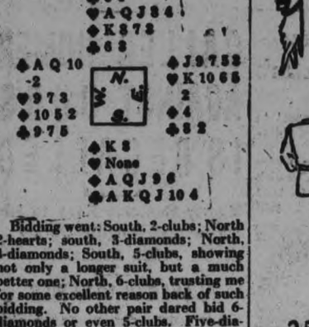
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

AN EASY CONTRACT.

An easy contract to fulfil sometimes makes a declarer drowse, especially if it is one which requires perfect team work to reach safely. I had such an experience recently. The hand gave our pair top score in a duplicate game. Not a soul in the contest noted that a grand slam might be made without in the least endangering chances for the small slam bid. It took the keen eye of Mr. Frank H. Williams, bridge editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, to detect the opportunity which I overlooked entirely. The deal is shown below:



Bidding went: South, 2-clubs; North 2-hearts; south, 3-diamonds; North, 4-diamonds; South, 5-clubs, showing not only a longer suit, but a much better one; North, 6-clubs, trusting me for some excellent reason back of such bidding. No other pair dared bid 6-diamonds or even 5-clubs. Five-diamonds was their limit.

The opening lead was the 10 of diamonds, hoping that East could ruff. I was so pleased with my partner's confidence, daring to contract for a small slam in my suit scoring 150 points for 5 honors, that I missed a great opportunity. In fact, I missed it so widely that at first I did not even take in Mr. Williams' comment. Dummy's K won the opening lead. Upon the ace of hearts I discarded one of my losing spades. The hand was a spread for a small slam. I merely announced: "I will give you one spade trick. The balance are mine."

Play the hand as Mr. Williams suggested. Win the opening lead with South's J of diamonds. Note that dummy's K and 7 of diamonds offer two entries to diamonds for future use, by overtaking declarer's 9 with the K, and his 6 with the 7. Take 3 rounds of winning trumps, pulling all opposing clubs. Enter dummy with the K of diamonds. Lead the ace of hearts. Upon it discard declarer's lowest spade. Lead the Q of hearts.

If East covers with the K, ruff. In case East does not play the K of hearts discard declarer's last spade, assuring a small slam even if West holds the missing K, and yielding a grand slam in case East holds the k and refuses to cover.

If East covers with the K of hearts, ruff, then put dummy in the lead with the 7 of diamonds. Lead the J of hearts. Discard upon it declarer's last spade. I applaud such fine strategy, even if I did overlook it.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A correspondent of this column writes to ask what to do about that let down, sleepy feeling that comes on in the mid-afternoon of a busy day. He thinks he should have plenty of pep all day long.

Well, we thought that question had been settled by our modern economists rather than by the physiologists. What was all this arrangement by the NRA for increased leisure if it wasn't to take up the slack of fatigue?

However, since our opinion has been asked, our contribution to the problem of what to do with increased leisure, is to take a siesta. It may be this California climate where we are at present sojourning, but it seems to us that the only sensible thing to do for that sleepy feeling of which business men complain, is not to take some artificial stimulant to wake you up, but to give way to it and lie down and take a nap.

After all, fatigue is a signal from nature that the body needs some rest. The best thing to do is to obey the signal.

Another correspondent wants to know what to do for sciatica. We have been regaled this week with the experiences of an eminent literary man who has gone through sciatica. He has had a large experience with what he calls osteologists, and his conclusion is that sciatica has to be worn out. He says you can't bluff it.

In the course of his adventures he visited several health resorts. In one of these a spring with some very black and evil smelling water combined with massage was to do the trick. There was a rubber named Pete employed in this establishment. He had been standing waist high in this water for 25 years rubbing the aches out of the victims of rheumatism. One day Pete was missing from his post and my friend, asking as to his whereabouts, received the answer that Pete would not be there that day. He was laid up with sciatica.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

E. W. D. and others: "Is hypnotism a treatment for stuttering or stammering?"

Answer: Hypnotism is not well adapted to the treatment of these conditions. They are much better treated by methods of re-education of the body so that the speech centers work in harmony with the muscular movements of the dominant arm. The most plausible explanation of stuttering that I have encountered is that the person was naturally left-handed, and was taught to be right-handed. When left-handedness is resumed, it frequently alleviates the stuttering.

J. Z.: "I would appreciate it very much if you would publish a list of foods containing vitamin E."

Answer: Lettuce and most of the green vegetables.

Household Hints

Menu Hint

Creamed Vegetable Soup
Whole Wheat Toast Strips
Apple Sauce or Sliced Fresh Fruit
Cookies Milk

This is a menu for the children's luncheon. Crisp wafers may be served in place of the toast strips. Bread and butter or toast is served with the apple sauce in any event.

Today's Recipes

Creamed Vegetable Soup.—Three-fourths cup diced potato, one-half cup diced carrot, one-fourth cup diced celery, two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour, two cups milk. Prepare vegetables, almost cover the boiling water. Cover pan and simmer gently until vegetables are tender. Have a thin white sauce made of butter, flour and milk. Add this to vegetables, cook until thickened and smooth, season well and serve piping hot.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Foamy Wine Sauce

Two eggs, separated; one cup sweetened condensed milk, one-eighth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sherry. Beat egg yolks with sweetened condensed milk. Add salt and sherry. Fold in stiffly-beaten egg whites. Makes two cups.

Fluffy Pie Crust

This is the way one housewife makes her pie crust fluffy: "Instead of chilling my pie crust after it is mixed, I measure the flour into the mixing bowl, add the salt and shortening and set in the refrigerator and set a cup of water in the freezing unit. I usually do this before breakfast. By the time I am ready to make my pastry everything is good and cold, even the mixing bowl. I mix the crust quickly and put it into a good hot oven. My pie crust is always nice and flaky."

If you would have your breads and rolls rise well and evenly, do not allow the baking pans to touch each other, for air must circulate around each pan for best results.

LINER HITS ROCKS

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Oct. 3. (AP) The coastwise freight-passenger ship of the McCormick line, the Point San Pedro, struck the harbor breakwater near the lighthouse early to-day during a heavy fog and was high on the rocks. The vessel, inbound from San Diego, messaged she was in no immediate danger, and that all aboard, including a crew of 30, were safe.

The Point San Pedro is a steel vessel of approximately 3,000 tons.

"I spent a fortune on my feet until I found M. W. Locke shoes"

We'll let the lady tell her own story: "I tried every corrective and orthopedic shoe I could find. Most of them would feel all right in the shop, so I'd take them home. Well, I still have them at home—dozens of pairs lined up on my closet shelf—almost enough to start a corrective shoe shop. Dr. Locke has saved my feet and my fortune. Now I can wear the shoes I buy."

Be Beautiful

The winsome Jean Parker, who is unique in that she was still attending high school while achieving stardom in Hollywood, often adopts a center part when arranging her coiffure. Jean, of course, likes to vary her hair arrangement. But because of the heart shape of her face and the regularity of her features, she finds a center part usually the most becoming.

Of course, practically all screen sirens have rather individualistic coiffures. But if you want to get an idea of how unique the average woman's coiffure is, look around at some of the women you know, and note the way in which they part their locks. You'll probably find very few who do not part their tresses on the side. For most women, once they adopt a certain part, never think of trying a different one.

The center part has been more or less in the discard for quite some time. The demure little Puritan maidens were the babies who first adopted it in a big way. But since our new styles demand that we appear demure and romantically feminine, it would seem that the center part is to be restored to favor once again.

If your features are of the delicate, cameo-like loveliness of Jean Parker's, or the pure, classical beauty of Ann Harding's, you'll be able to carry off that center part to perfection. But if you have a low brow, the middle part will only emphasize it. And it will do the same for the extremely high forehead. Both types of forehead appear to best advantage when the coiffure obscures the hairline. The gal with a long face should avoid a center part, too, as it will accentuate the length of her face. And the tall girl will appear even taller is she adopts it.

The middle part is especially becoming to the girl with a normal forehead, with an oval or heart-shaped face, and with regular features. And if the lass who fits these qualifications and adopts a center part permits a few soft ringlets to curl about her ears and to peep from beneath her hat, she'll appear most bewitchingly demure and feminine.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

TODAY WE see the racing picture shifted to Abe Orpen's palatial lake shore course at Long Branch, and when Tom Clarke releases the webbing to start the first race the last meeting of the year, on a mile track in Canada, will be under way. The stage is all set and the week-end moving activity is over, and the horses have been given a few works in order to acquaint themselves with the strip they will be running over for the next week. The condition book for the meeting has been built around the horses available, and because of this the fans should see plenty of large evenly matched fields parade to the post in every event.

Some of the Hary Hatch performers are going to be seen in action during this meeting and that will be good news for the fans as they have been anxious all summer to witness these good ones in action. If you will look back to the spring meeting at this same track last June you will see that horses from the Hatch stable won at least one race each day for the entire seven days. Some days they won two and one day accounted for three. So you can see why this establishment is so popular at Long Branch.

HAVRE DE GRAS closed on Saturday in Maryland and Laurel in the same state is now doing business, and by the way at this track they have General Lejeune all primed and ready for a killing, and believe you us this fellow will make them all step to town. The racing venue in New York also shifted from Acqueduct to Jamaica and here we find a sleeper by the name of Fingal, who will do the trick before many moons.

Darksini reeled off a mile workout yesterday at Long Branch in 1.51 and was never out of a pull at any stage. The exercise boy reported he was not even breathing heavy at the end, so you can see he is ready for the question. Wee Toddler the 2nd is another that turned in a couple of sensational trials and cannot be overlooked the very first time he faces the starter. Den Claire is a western flash who was made the medium of a heavy play about two weeks ago during the Thorncliffe meeting but he wound up in the third hole. We have reason to believe that his connections plan to get even and Long Branch will be the place. Butch Keeling has his horses in great shape and says he expects them to earn enough eat money in the next two weeks to pay their way all winter, while he will be chasing pucks for the New York Rangers. This horse Union which won the other day at long odds down at the Woodbine is in tip top shape and may make it two straight on his next appearance.

Jim Tierney, club secretary, and Lefty O'Doul will be the only Giants at the world series according to a poll of players and officials. Manager Bill Terry said it would be humiliating for him to attend although he hopes the Cardinals will win.

Morenz Hurt Over Hinted Transfer; Gagnon Traded to Bruins for Lamb

MONTREAL, Oct. 3. (CP).—Hockey observers to-day believed the hockey future of Howie Morenz depended upon the diplomatic handling of Leo Dandurand, acknowledged the greatest diplomat in hockey.

Howie Morenz

Morenz is hurt that he was not consulted in the various discussions which have centred around his intimated transfer to Chicago and declares categorically he will play no more hockey.

But close followers of the game believe that when Leo, part-owner of Montreal Canadiens and Morenz' friend for the past 11 years has an opportunity to sit down with the great centre and discuss the matter that Morenz will return to the sport in which he has distinguished himself for so long.

Johnny Gagnon

Howie appears slated for Chicago Black Hawks in the deal which sent Lorne Chabot, goalie, to that club and which is expected to pull Lionel Conacher, Roger Jenkins and another player to Canadiens, Conacher to be traded again to Maroons.

Dandurand exchanged another member of his front line last night. In telephonic conversation with Art Ross of Boston Bruins a trade of Johnny Gagnon for Joe Lamb was arranged. Both are rightwingers. It was believed to be a straight player trade.

BIRDMEN BLANK TORONTO 4 TO 0

Mickey Heath Plasters Homer in Sixth to Salt Away Triumph.

LUCAS ON MOUND.

TORONTO, Oct. 3.—(C.P.)—The Little World baseball series moved over to Ohio to-day, where the high-flying Red Birds of Columbus, American Association champion, can retain minor league supremacy another year with just two more victories over Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Red Birds took a 3 to 1 lead Nin games here last night, defeating the International League play-off winners 4-0 behind the great two-hit pitching of Ed Heusser, 23-year-old right-hander who joined the American Association team just in time to help in the league playoffs.

Heusser held the Leafs helpless and Mickey Heath, Columbus first baseman, plastered a home run with one on base in the sixth inning to salt away the third triumph. The Red Birds scored two more off Steamer Lucas in the eighth, but they didn't need them at all.

Lucas, home-bred right-hander, baffled the Red Birds thoroughly except for these two innings. He permitted only seven hits. But he weakened in the enght when Cullop and Heath singled and Eugene Moore drove them both home with a lusty triple.

TERRIERS ACCEPT RULING OF C.A.L.A.

Will Face New Westminster in All Three Games at Barrie.

ORILLIA, October 3. — Although they are not satisfied with arrangement, Orillia Terriers have decided to accept the rulings of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, and play Westminster Salmonbellies at Barrie. The Terriers will face the coast team in three games at Barrie for the Dominion lacrosse crown with a fourth game, if necessary, in Toronto and the fifth in Orillia.

Club officials decided to bow to the C.A.L.A. dictum rather than default the series. So the battle that waged for several days has ended after a petition had been passed through Orillia, demanding the C. A.L.A. consider the team's home town before moving the series to Barrie. City Council also took a hand in the affair to support the club's stand.

Rowe Is Better

BILL DINEEN

Dean of American League umpires, and a really great major league pitching star in his heyday, is convinced neither Dizzy Dean nor Schoolboy Rowe is over-rated. In Detroit for the big show, Dineen said:

"Dizzy and the Schoolboy are certain to be outstanding heroes in this series. Both are equipped with everything a great pitcher needs. Of the two, though, I think Rowe is slightly better."

CANADIAN LOSES TO MISS ORCUTT

Wanda Morgan, English Threat, is Still in Running.

PHILADELPHIA, October 3.—The United States women's golf championship became all but a straight home talent affair yesterday as Ada Mackenzie, Canada's former titleholder and all but one member of the British Curtis Cup forces, met elimination.

The Toronto veteran was far below her usual game, as Maureen Orcutt of New Jersey, herself twice wearer of the Canadian crown, overcame her own none too impressive golf to down Miss Ada by 4 and 2 in the first round of 18-hole match play this morning.

Wanda Morgan, 1931 English queen of the fairways, remained the sole international threat to go into to-day's third round. Canada's second entry, Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen of Toronto, failed to qualify.

Marmora Grid Squad Scores Initial Win

MARMORA, Oct. 3 (Examiner Correspondence). — Marmora Continuation School rugby squad opened the season with a win at Deloro on Tuesday afternoon over Stirling School by the score of 21-5. The Marmora boys were early on the aggressive, and had all the downs in the first half save two. Stirling were held scoreless for two quarters, while Marmora amassed the total of eleven points by way of two touchdowns and a safety touch. Stirling had the better of the play in the third when they scored five points. Marmora staged another onslaught in the final quarter and increased their score through clever play.

Following the game, refreshments were served to both teams in Deloro Hall, after which Misses Fay Buskard and Grace Hemphill played for round dancing.

CALLED HOMER AGAINST CUBS IS RECALLED

Mighty Bambino Rose to His Greatest Heights During 1932 Series.

PLAYED IN 10 SERIES.

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—In running the scale of crowning World Series accomplishments the name of George Herman Ruth will bob up most often.

Ten times has the great Bambino stepped on the field of battle in World Series competition. Practically every occasion has seen him enveloped by new glory.

The grand climax came in the 1932 series between the Chicago Cubs and New York Yankees when Ruth went so far as to "call his shots."

The sight of Ruth jesting and kidding with the Chicago players never can be forgotten. He pointed playfully to the fence. There came a wallop and the ball sailed into the home run sector.

Had Ruth collected anything less than a home run he would have been in for some unmerciful kidding. But the super-man of baseball with that one blow left an everlasting monument to his greatness. Calling home runs in a World Series—it seems preposterous, but it happened.

First With Boston

Ruth entered his first World Series with Boston as a pitcher in 1916. He won one game and lost none. In 1918 he pitched again and won two games for the Sox while losing none.

He later went to the Yanks and started playing the outfield regularly. One of his greatest series performances came in 1928 against the Cardinals. He batted a cool .625 for the four games, set five new World Series records and tied two others. This .625 average has never been equaled for a series.

In 1926 Ruth hit three home-runs in one game in a World Series. He duplicated this same feat in 1928.

For individual performances Ruth has led the field. Not in just one series—but in practically all of them.

For a rampant show of brilliance so far as a single series is concerned, it is hard to match Pepper Martin's record in 1931 when the St. Louis Cardinals halted the Philadelphia Athletics.

Besides batting .500, his hits coming at the most crucial moments, Martin stole bases, made impossible catches in the outfield and single-handed took charge of the proceedings for all seven games.

Alex Hero in 1926

Grover Cleveland Alexander in 1926 rose to great heights. He pitched and won the first game for the Cards, setting down 21 Yankees in a row after the second inning.

The following day they shoved "Old Pete" in the situation that made him a hero. The bases were full in the seventh inning and Tony Lazzeri was at bat. Alex took the mound and struck Tony out.

He then went on to win another game that clinched the flag for the Cards.

Christy Mathewson added a record after his name in 1905 that can never be erased. He pitched and won three games for the Giants against the A's. All of them were shutouts—27 innings of scoreless ball.

Hank Gowdy, the old reliable, was the batting hero of the 1914 World Series when the Boston Braves won four straight. His batting record for the series was .545.

The Great Babe Becomes Plain Mr. Ruth

George Herman Erhardt, Babe Ruth to you, is stepping out of uniform into mufti perhaps for good as the season closes. Failing legs won't let him be a regular, and he doesn't want to be just a pinch-hitter and week-end performer, unless he is a manager. No offers have come along yet.

The inevitable scalpers already were at work. They asked $50 for sets of three tickets which originally cost $16.50. Business, however, was anything but brisk, and no actual sales at such outlandish figures were reported. Given a break in the weather, and provided internal revenue operatives don't catch up with them, the specs probably will do a nice business by 1.30 p.m. Wednesday when the first game is to start.

"Pep" Kelly Signs With Maple Leafs

TORONTO, Oct. 3.— Regis ("Pep") Kelly, St. Michael's College right winger, has agreed to the terms offered to him by the Maple Leaf Hockey Club, and will likely attach his signature to a National League contract some time to-day.

Thus the Leafs' gain is St. Mike's loss, and a serious one, to be sure.

Coach Dr. Jerry Laflamme, brilliant Irish mentor, rates Kelly as the best right winger in amateur ranks, and rues his departure into the moneyed field.

With Detroit and St. Louis meeting in the series, it is the first time an all-Western classic resulted since 1919 when nithe Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox were contestants. It is the sixth series confined to the Western half of baseball.

Cochrane to Start Rowe if Hallahan Opens Festivities For Cards.

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer.)

DETROIT, Oct. 3 (AP)—The roar of the faithful, still tingling over the greatest major league finish in years, died to-day in the hush before the break of the annual World Series storm — the crash of the levelling Missouri twister from St. Louis against the husky bulwarks of the Detroit Tigers.

It was the literal meeting of an irresistible Cardinal force that shattered world champion Giants and the rest of the National League in one short final month, and the immovable body of the Tigers, impregnable in the stronghold at the top of the American League through the entire last two months of the season.

Swept from the scene were most of the arguments, the conjecture, the hullabaloo and uproar that go with the preliminaries of the annual climax and in their place remained the tenseness of actual conflict, the brittle battle for baseball's pot of gold, with odds even, the halos for heroes and the horns for goats, hanging overhead.

Game Starts 1.30 p.m.

Only two main problems remained for solution before game time at 1.30 p.m. (Eastern Standard time). The first, and least important, was the struggle of thousands of average citizens to find last minute tickets and join baseball's celebrities and ordinaries, from Field Marshal Kenesaw Mountain Landis down, in the march on Navin Field that holds but 48,000, tens of thousands too few. Speculators, with only a handful of seats, were getting $50 a pair for choice locations normally priced at $5.50 each.

Mound Problem

The possible final outcome of the best four out of seven game duel probably rested on the answer to the second problem, still pinwheeling around in the mind of Frankie Frisch, veteran of seven World series at second base and manager of the Cardinals.

His was the question of leading with his pitching ace, Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, despite the fantastic Oklahoma right hander's lack of rest since shutting out Cincinnati twice in three days, the last time only Sunday. His alternative was to lead from a sneak and gamble on Lefty "Wild Bill" Hallahan, the lattle war worn hero of other days.

The counter of Mickey Cochrane, serving like Frisch his first full year as a major league pilot, was simple enough. He has said, if Dean starts, then his own great right hander, young Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, will not; and the nomination will rest with the veteran Alvin Crowder.

Against Hallahan or anyone else, Rowe was as certain to pitch as anything can be certain in baseball.

Two definite strategical points were involved.

Hallihan, showing signs of a return to top form in relief outings late in the season, twice beat the Tigers in exhibition games this year, the last time when Dizzy, and his li'l brother Paul, braved the wrath of the Cardinal management and incurred $466 worth of penalties for refusing to make the trip here.

Sticks to Early Lesson

Cochrane stuck to the strategy he learned under Connie Mack at Philadelphia. Under no circumstances would he gamble all at the start on the ability of Rowe, winner of 24 games this year, to outpitch the irrepressible Dizzy one. His secondaries, Tommy Bridges, Firpo Marberry or young Eldon Auker, aren't considered even first-game starting possibilities.

WHITTAKER'S ARE BEATEN 10 GAMES

Local Club Successful Only in Two Matches of 12 Played.

The Whitaker's Cricket Club have now finished their season. They played 12 matches, won 2 and lost 10 and the averages of the players are given herewith.

Though in the material result of matches won success seems to have been limited, yet taking a larger view, the season has been quite successful. Matches and practices have been provided for the players weekly which have been provided for the members who have been keen, loyal and enthusiastic and shown admirable team spirit. Losses have been met cheerfully, and in fact the proverbial good cricket spirit has prevailed.

Of course there are the inevitable difficulties of finance, getting suitable fixtures with outside teams and a limited number of players; but if the industrial conditions improve and attractive matches can be arranged, the club should be able to look forward hopefully to next season.

In Archie Hamilton they have probably the best all-round cricketer in the district, and they have other useful players whose records are to be found in the averages.

Defeat of Terry's N.Y. Giants is Big Help to Baseball

DODGERS SQUARE OLD SORES IN BANISHING MIGHTY GIANTS ALTHOUGH OUT OF FLAG RACE

Brooklyn in Playing Out String Cost New Yorkers Plenty of Dough.

SERIES PACKS COLOR.

Despite Fact There Will be No Hubbell or Terry in 1934 Classic.

By BOB MURPHY.

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—New York's loss is the country's gain. I know you are going to start tittering in your cups at this statement. But it still goes.

The dramatic, colorful climax to the 1934 baseball season has been stunning, startling and heart-breaking for the world champion Giant cast. It has provided delirious moments for the St. Louis Cardinals. It has given this pop-eyed baseball population of ours added confidence in the great national pastime.

Baseball is a game that has been handed down through the generations. Abner Doubleday started things in a cow pasture. Such guys as Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, Hans Wagner, Mickey Cochrane, John McGraw, Connie Mack, Miller Huggins and all the others, have brought this thing from the cow pasture to the gay white way.

American Institution.

Baseball is an American institution. People have confidence in the game. They thrill to the heroic exploits of Ruth, Foxx, Rowe and the others. They love, respect and swear by this sport that provides recreation for the rich and the poor the halt and the blind, the distressed and the delirious on the same equal basis. That's baseball.

The New York Giants went home a few weeks ago leading the National League pack. They were the class of the league. The pennant, so the nation thought, was as good as in the sack.

The Giants cracked on that nerve-tearing drive down the stretch. They figured, of course that the Chicago Cubs were their chief opposition. They moved the Cubs out of the threatening position and then leaned back and relaxed.

While relaxing, Mrs. Dean's boys, Dizzy and Daffy, were throwing the hypodermic needle into the rest of the National League.

All of a sudden, Mr. William Harold Terry's Giants awakened to the crisis. They had three games to play. St. Louis had five.

Would End In Tie

If the Giants won all three and the Cards won all five, which figured the Cardinals decidedly on the short end of the odds, the pennant fight would end in a tie.

Then it came up to the last two days. New York had two games left to play with Brooklyn—neighboring rivals. Two victories would have meant a continuation of the Giants' gold and glory.

And that's where this baseball nation of ours became intensely interested. That's where the game of baseball found added strength injected into its solid foundations.

Would Brooklyn, with nothing whatever to gain, ease up and allow the Giants to win two games? Would the Brooklyn players smile and go through the final two games in half-hearted manner? Just what would happen when a baseball club, out of the race, met a baseball club which was batting for a pennant?

Play Out String

The answer has been recorded on the everlasting documents of baseball. Brooklyn played out the string. They received added inspiration from the very fact they could cost their neighboring team a pennant, a possible world championship, and certainly plenty of money and all that goes with it.

You will hear some say to-day that color has been lost since the New York Giants faded from the 1934 baseball classic. That's true, in a way. There will be no Giants no Hubbell no Gruff Terry to bellow at the scribes and photographers.

But where color is lost color also is gained. There will be no Rowe vs. Hubbell. But there may be Rowe vs. Dizzy Dean. There will be Bridges vs. Paul Dean. There will be Crowder vs. Dizzy Dean. There will be Auker vs. Paul Dean. There will be Chief Hogsett vs. Dizzy Dean as a relief pitcher. There also will be Fred Marberry vs. Paul Dean as a relief pitcher.

Don't worry about your color. It will be written all over the premises.

Where Terry fades out, Frankie Frisch, who outside of Babe Ruth has been in more World Series than any other player comes into the limelight.

Still Packs Color

Words of praise have been heaped on the manly figure of Mel Ott. But don't forget Pepper" Martin. He still packs a little color, don't you think?

And there's Pat Collins, and Joe Medwick, and Leo Durocher and the others—the others being Dizzie and Dopie.

The Giants have lost. The Cardinals have won. Baseball has gained—because baseball has proved once again that there is no monkey business where titles and championships and gold and glory are concerned.

You've got to paddle your own canoe in this diamond business. As the Giants can testify, no one is going to plunge through the darkness of night and stick an outboard motor on your little craft. Ain't I right, Edna, honey

Champ Pilferer

PEPPER MARTIN

Pepper Martin did everything but steal Mickey Cochrane's catcher's mitt and shin guards in the 1931 World Series between the Cardinals and Athletics, but he'll find it tougher to steal this series. The Tiger pitchers, carefully coached against base stealing by their boss, should be hard to pilfer bases from.

Lawn Bowling BY Herb Martin

When The Finals in the club singles are played to-night, the bowling season for 1934 will be ready for the moth balls.

—o—

We Would not like to go on record as saying there will not be any more bowling, because we know the committee intends to run a mixed on Friday night and Monday afternoon, weather permitting.

—o—

However, the main thing in bowling along this time of year is the annual meeting of the club on Wednesday, Oct. 10th. We ask every bowler to keep this date open. More later.

—o—

By Virtue of winning three games last night Al Heckman earned the right to play against C. Garrison in the semi-finals; the winner to play Joe Bleakley in the finals at 8 p.m.

To-night's Draw—7 p.m.: A. Heckman vs. C. Garrison; winner to play J. Bleakley at 8.15 p.m.

INTERCOLLEGIATE REFUSE PLAYDOWNS

Notify C. R. U. They Will Not Participate in Canadian Series This Year.

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (CP)—The Intercollegiate Rugby Football Union to-day notified R. W. Hewitson, secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union, their champions would not participate in the Canadian playdowns this season.

The decision was arrived at last week at a meeting of the Board of Reference of the Intercollegiate Union at Kingston, but formal announcement was withheld until today.

As a result of this decision, the Eastern Canadian Senior Football honors will rest between winners of the Interprovincial and Ontario Football Rugby Unions. A similar situation prevailed last year when University of Toronto declined to participate in the playdowns after winning the college honors.

Dizzy and Gehrig Are Most Valuable

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 2. — That dizzy, but superb, Cardinal pitcher, Jerome Herman Dean, was adjudged the most valuable National League player by leading baseball writers of the nation, the Sporting News, conductor of the poll, announced last night.

The ace of the Cardinal pitching staff received 57 points out of a possible 64, while Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees received 51 points, to become the most valuable American Leaguer. Dean was the only player in either circuit to receive the votes of all members of the committee of eight.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

It is much too early to entertain any thought of predicting the quality of Peterborough hockey teams for the coming season, but certainly the fans can be assured even at this stage that the sport will be efficiently guided by a competent management. Supporters and prospective players on the blue and white teams made this a fact last evening at an enthusiastic organization meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms when they re-appointed last year's executive with only a single change.

• • • • • •

Charlie Curtis, who has been actively engaged for years in developing sports here, was unanimously re-elected to the president's chair for a third successive term. Alderman Bob Cotton was returned as first vice-president and Pete King was elected to succeed Eddie Wright as second vice. Mr. King, who still endeavors to play hockey himself, is known to fans as an outstanding lacrosse star and he has been most active in popularizing the old national pastime here during the past several years. If he gives hockey executive the same zeal he tendered lacrosse he will be proven a valuable acquisition.

• • • • • •

Fred Scates was the unanimous choice for treasurer while Ernie Wolfi was re-appointed secretary. President Curtis praised the work accomplished by both these men last year in their responsible posts. The Petes' rotund keeper of the finances was absent from the meeting, being vacationing for the past week in and around Detroit impatiently awaiting the start of the World Series.

• • • • • •

The executive will meet within a few days and appoint a working committee and managers of the teams. The meeting was brief, everything going along very quietly and swiftly, and it was evident that those present had every confidence in the men who have been managing hockey here for the past several years. After the executive gets down to work they may have some surprises for the fans. One of the first decisions the executive must make is upon the suggestion of the O.H.A. that the city enter a Senior B team.

• • • • • •

Ball fans here of every shade and degree will envy three fortunate residents of these parts, Hugh Campbell, Cyril Giroux and Bob Elliott, past president of the O.B.A.A., who set out yesterday for Detroit to view the first two games of the world series. It is safe to say this year's battle for highest baseball honors has fans here and throughout the continent more agog than any series in many years. Everything has combined to wrap color, excitement and thrills about the diamond combat which opened today across the river from Windsor. Fans throughout the world will feel quite slighted if the opposing managers, Mickey Cochrane and Frankie Frisch, do not arrange to have Jerome Herman Dean, the great "Dizzy", and "Schollboy" Rowe doing their brilliant best together in at least one game. Such a pitching contest might settle many arguments, because fans have been fired by long despatches as to the unquestionable qualities of both these stars and they want a real opportunity to compare them.

• • • • • •

The Dean boys started off the season with the Cardinals like stormy petrels, but all that has been forgotten now. Asked yesterday on his arrival in Detroit with his team as to his opinion of the chief factors in the Cardinals' great drive to the National League pennant, Manager Frisch said: "Before I say anything else, I would like to pay a tribute to the Cardinals' ball club in general and to the Dean boys in particular. There is no question to my mind who should be declared the most valuable player of 1934 in this league. There is no candidate in my estimation except Jerome Dean. He deserves the award." And so say all the Cardinals, and fans here may well agree.

• • • • • •

Everything is working out nicely for this city's first entry into intermediate rugby in more than ten years. Lou Brooks, well-known local business man, and a keen sportsman, is playing god-father to the team purchasing sweaters and assisting in other ways to get the squad off to a good start. The sweaters were ordered yesterday and by all reports will dazzle the spectators. Their color combination will be black and scarlet and the design will be the same as that worn last year by theRegina team. Clinton "Mick" Magee was elected captain by the squad during practise yesterday.

• • • • • •

Professional sport is a business and there is little sentiment in it. This fact is proved again by the decision the management of the Montreal Canadiens to sell "Howie" Morenz to Chicago. Morenz, who for years has been the greatest figure in hockey to fans, has played 13 years with Canadiens, but when the opportunity came to sell the aging star, the team's management forgot the past. But Morenz will not go to Chicago. He announced yesterday that he will hang up his skates and devote his full time to the business of managing his cafe in Montreal.

• • • • • •

The fourth game of the lacrosse finals between Dinty's Inn and Millbrook is scheduled for Friday night in Millbrook. These games have been attracting large crowds and certainly have given plenty of entertainment to fans.

• • • • • •

A Toronto senior softball team is desirous of playing a team of local softballers. "Lefty" Sturgeon is making arrangements for the game which will be played at the Bowl on Saturday afternoon. An all star cast will probably be selected to make up the local aggregation.

Waite Hoyt, "Schoolboy Of Other Days," Pays Debts To Giants And Cardinals

SELDOM DOES a ball player—or any other man, for that matter—obtain the opportunity to pay two debts at once.

SUCH OPPORTUNITY, however, came to Waite Hoyt, one-time New

WAITE HOYT

York 'schoolboy' pitcher when he faced the St. Louis Cardinals in the closing days of their dramatic drive for the National League pennant.

WITH THE CARDS but one game behind the New York Giants and the Giants losing to the Phillies, Hoyt was picked by the Pittsburgh management to face the Red Birds in their game that day with the Pirates.

A CARD VICTORY would have given St. Louis a tie for first place with the Giants. A Card defeat would have kept the Red Birds a full game back of the Gothamites—so Hoyt whipped them and thus paid his two debts.

DEBT NO. 1 was one he owed the New York Giants—the first team to give him his big league chance when the late John J. McGraw signed Waite, then a Brooklyn schoolboy, to a contract two decades ago.

DEBT NO. 2 was really a grudge. In the seventh game of the 1926 world series Hoyt, then hurling for the New York Yankees, faced the Cardinals. Waite pitched magnificent ball until the fourth inning when the Red Birds rose and knocked him out of the box and the Yankees out of the world championship.

FINAL SCORE—St Louis, 3; New York 2.

SO, IT WAS a belated triumph for Waite when he licked the Cards the other day. Now he's all square with them.

New Haven, Conn.—Gino Garibaldi, 226, Italy, defeated Floyd Marshal, 214, Phoenix, Ariz., straight falls, 30.30 and 5.20.

Spokane, Wash.—Jim Londos, 205, St. Louis, defeated Joe Malcewicz, 203, Utica, N.Y., after 7 minutes, 11 seconds of third round (Australian rules).

San Francisco.—Joe Savoldi, 218, Iron Mountain, Mich., beat Abe Kaplan, 225, New York, 6.00; "Man Mountain" Dean, 317, Georgia, defeated Jerry Monahan, 235, Stockton, Calif., 3.00.

IRISH BEATEN, 3-2

GLASGOW, Oct. 3 (CP Cable).—The Scottish Football League came from behind to defeat the Irish League in to-day's inter-league soccer encounter by the score of 3-2. The match was played in rain and only a few thousand were on hand. The Irish were beaten, 6-1, by the English League in the first of the season's encounters last month.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

Portland, Ore.—Tiger Fox, 183, Terre Haute, Ind., knocked out Al Marino, 181, San Francisco (1); Leroy Gibson, 124, Wichita, Kas., and Ritchie Fontaine, 123, Montana, drew (6).

New York's loss of the world series was a blow to the Steve Hamas-Art Lasky heavyweight fight slated for Friday night at Madison Square Garden. When Promoter Jimmy Johnston set the fight date he was figuring on world series crowds. However, the fight will go through as slated.

Most Underpaid Star In Big Time Ball Dizzy Dean Receives $35,000 For Year

(By Paul Mickelson)

DETROIT, Oct. 3. —(AP)— Reams have been written about the most "underpaid" star in baseball—Jerome Herman "Dizzy" Dean. Poor Dizzy. He'll make about $30,000 to $35,000 this year. Here's an itemized account of the Dizzy one's earnings this season, real and prospective:

$4,000 to $5,000 for his world series cut.

$3,000 already earned under an agreement with a St. Louis firm for doing some advertising over radio. (The contract calls for 100 for each game won. Dizzy won 30.)

$2,000 earned in exhibitions.

$12,000 to $20,000 to be earned in vaudeville after the series at the rate of $3,000 weekly — less, perhaps, if the Cardinals lose; possibly more and a rich offer from the movies if Dizzy wins his games.

Who wouldn't mind being called "Dizzy" for that financial setup? Not bad for a fellow who earned 46 cents a day picking cotton just 10 years ago.

Soccer Notes

The local soccer league is about completed, and it is only necessary for Canadian General—to win the championship—to win only one of the three scheduled games remaining. There is a possibility of the Canada Packers tieing if they win the six games to be played. Deloro cannot come within the league leaders even if they win the three games scheduled. During the weekend Canadian General will participate in two league matches.

League Standing.

	P.	W.	L.	D.	F.	A.	Pt.
Can. Gen..	13	11	1	1	40	15	23
Deloro	13	8	4	1	27	19	17
Can. Pack.	10	6	4	0	28	16	12
Caleys	12	2	8	2	30	36	6
Lindsay ..	12	2	10	0	10	53	4

Two points for a win; one for a draw.

In all probability, if the Canadian General win the championship for a certainty this week-end, the teams will revert back to cup competitions. The Phelan Charity Cup, White Challenge Cup, and the Spalding Trophy is to be played. The postponement of scheduled games and daylight saving caused the cancellation of many of the games during the season.

Games scheduled for Saturday are: Canadian General in a league game against the Caledonians. Kick-off at three o'clock. W. Harrington, referee. Canada Packers travel to Lindsay in search of league points. Referee, F. Dyer.

On Monday (Thanksgiving Day), Canada Packers meet C.G.E. in a league encounter at 1.30 in the afternoon. Clark United will meet the Caledonians at 3.15. Referee, F. Dyer.

A special meeting of the Caledonian Football Club was held recently, all members being present. President W. Rankin occupied the chair. Arrangements were made for the game on Thanksgiving Day with Clark United from Orono. After the game the visitors will be entertained in the hall and will attend the card party and dance in the Moore Hall with Black's Melody Band in the evening.

DIZZY GOT CONTROL STONING SQUIRRELS

Never Took Diz More Than Two Throws to Knock Squirrel Out of Tree.

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 3 (AP)—A slender, wrinkled old man who was the great Deans' first baseball teacher will board a bus here tonight for St. Louis where, he is confident, he will have the pleasure of watching his pupils stand Detroit Tigers on their respective ears. He is Albert M. Dean, 62, minor league baseball player himself in the long-ago and the father of the St. Louis Cardinal pitching staff's main props.

Dean lives here with his son, Elmer, the ace peanut and soda water vendor in the Texas League and a brother to the base-balling Dizzy and Paul. Strange as it may seem to those who know the loquacious Dizzy, the elder Dean is of a retiring nature. However, he unhesitatingly admits that it was he who taught Dizzy and Paul to throw a curve and thereby started them to become the greatest one-family pitching staff in baseball history.

As for their control, that's another matter. They got that in the Arkansas hills "chunking" at squirrels with rocks, Papa Dean said.

"It never took Diz (who won 30 games in the National League this year), more than two throws to knock a squirrel out of the highest tree," he boasted.

Russia is expected to buy twice as much in the Netherlands this year as last.

CHAPTER 55

Dilly started to speak, but Giles stopped her. "I can't have ner now. Perhaps I can never have her. And I can't tell you why, Dilly. But this is what I think of life. Not as a scramble after vain ambitions, but as a serene and gracious thing, to be spent with the books one loves, with the woman one loves . . ."

There were tears in Dilly's eyes. "I know . . ." and after a moment. "that's what keeps me contented here with William and the light. Our life isn't like yours, Giles. And Joan won't ever have to do the things I do. Cook, and wash and iron, and look after my old hens. But I love doing it because of William and the baby."

They were both rather silent after that, and when supper was served, Giles carried in the big blue platter on which chicken with a rich gravy had been poured over the biscuits, and William joined them at the table and spoke of the storm. "If this keeps up, we shall be shut in by Thanksgiving."

"I'll start back as soon as supper is over," Giles said. But he did not, and when he finally left the lighthouse, the snow was whirling in a wild dance and the wind blowing great guns. All the way home he fought with the elements. But he loved it. He felt young, strong—a conqueror. Nothing could keep him from Joan. She was his . . . and she would know it . . . Some day he would go to her . . . and when at last they were married, they would roam through the world, looking for all the rare and wonderful books which might be found by a man who knew. And then, coming back to the island, he would write a book about these books he had found, and she would sit beside him—a thrilling presence . . .

This mood lasted all through the storm—then when Jose made a trip to Granitehead and brought back the mail, came the reaction. The little Granitehead local paper had copied an item from one of the big New York dailies. Miss Joan Dudley, the paper said, who had been spending some time in Maine, was sailing in February on a trip around the world. She had closed her house in Baltimore and her stay would be indefinite.

Giles was conscious of a raging rebellion. She was going around the world, and he would not be with her! Oh, what would she see of the things he might have shown her? There were old manuscripts in old libraries, old volumes in old monasteries, stories carved on stone before books were written. There were tombs that kings had built to the women they loved, oases in the desert with all the world away—gardens still redolent with the perfume of long-ago romance. Joan must see these through his eyes—see them with him . . .

And he was bound . . . by a promise to a man who wasn't worth it. The scene with Drew in the little grove, as he looked back upon it, seemed mad and melodramatic. Why should he have promised anything, and having promised, why should he keep it? Drew had had no right to make conditions. There was no reason why Giles should not go to Joan and lay the thing before her. He had tried to save her the humiliation which Drew had declared would be hers if Giles did not agree to his bargain. He would have married Rose. Well, if he married her now, it couldn't hurt Joan. And why should he let Joan slip away from him, when he might have her?

Yet a promise was a promise. He knew that he would not break it. He was a prisoner, bound by chains of tradition, by gentlemanly codes of honor. He had always respected the integrity of his word. He must respect it now. The world might call him a fool. But he had to be what he was. And Joan would sail away from him not knowing that his heart followed.

It was Penelope who had suggested the sea voyage to Joan. "I can't quite face the thought of the cold of winter."

Joan had been apathetic. She would not have dared confess to Penelope how she hated the thought of facing anything . . . winter, spring, summer—all the years to come.

"I had thought I might open the house in Baltimore, and that you would stay with me."

"I should hate it, my dear." Penelope had said, frankly, "and I think you would. It would mean a lot of entertaining, and you are not up to it."

"No, I'm not." Joan's voice had broken on that, and Penelope had patted her shoulder and had said: "Well, think about the trip—the sea air and the sunshine would put color in your cheeks."

For Joan was as white as a lily. Penelope, worried about her, had talked the thing over with old John Leonard. "There isn't enough here to interest her. She is putting up a brave fight, but she needs something more than we can give her."

"Do you think she regrets giving up Hallam?"

"No. She's glad. But she doesn't know what to do with her life. She has money—everything—but she isn't knit by any real ties to the people who were Adelaide Delafield's friends. They mean nothing to her—and yet her position demands that she take her place among them."

"She'll find herself in time," the old man said, "a way will be opened."

To neither of the two people who loved her, however, had the truth been revealed—that Joan was longing for Giles Armiger—for proof of his continued friendship—for proof, indeed, of his love. She was not perhaps aware what she wanted—but it was six months since her engagement to Drew had been broken, and in all those months she had not heard from Giles.

She had come, gradually, to a realization of what he meant to her. Her mind had dwelt on the days in the dim old shop, the night when he had sat in the pavilion and had talked with her in the storm. She had leaned then on his wisdom and his strength; she had trusted him absolutely until the moment when Scripps had spoiled everything. Yet, when she had learned the truth, she had been swept away from him by the spell that Drew had put upon her.

And now that spell was broken, she again wanted Giles—for her friend—she would not let herself think beyond that . . .

At Christmas she sent him a note. But no answer came. She had said she would like to see him. Surely if the note had reached him, he would come . . .

So January came and in two weeks she would be off and away. And suddenly one night as Joan lay in bed and the moonlight shone on the little ship so that it seemed to sail on a silver sea she made up her mind.

If Giles would not come to her, she would go to him.

She did much of her shopping in Boston and was to have two days for final fittings. It would be easy enough to run down to Granitehead—to look in on the old shop. To speak to Giles about books . . . She need not tell him why she had come—but when she looked in his face, she felt that she would know if he had changed.

Farley came up from Baltimore to stay with her at the big hotel. The maid was then to go back with her to Maine, to pack trunks and get everything ready. Farley would, of course take the trip with them. She was not anxious to cross the seas, but she would, of course, go anywhere with the child she loved.

It was on the morning of the second day in Boston that Joan said: "I'm going to run up to Granitehead to see Mr. Armiger about some books."

She said it casually, though her heart was beating madly.

"You'd better wear your fur coat," Farley advised, "it will be bitter cold down by the water."

So Joan as she started off was beautiful in silver-colored broadtail, with a wide, warm collar and great cuffs of gray fox, and there was a little violet hat and violet bag, and a soft wool dress of the same color underneath the coat.

She took the train down. The air was clear as crystal. The tide, coming in as they crossed the marshes, deepened the shallow waters until they were as dark as indigo against the red and brown of the coarse grasses

When she reached Granitehead, Joan walked from the station to the boardwalk, meeting few people and none who knew her. The boardwalk was deserted, yet it did not seem desolate, for there was the flash and sparkle of the sea, and the sound of it in a wild and glorious song.

Joan, approaching the shop, was conscious of a thrilling exaltation. In a moment she would meet her friend, speak to him, see his face, and her heart would be stilled.

Yet when she came to the door of the shop, it was shut. A card stuck in the window announced that business was closed for the winter.

So that was that . . .

As she turned away, it seemed to her that the day darkened. The wind blew cold. She shivered in her warm coat.

She walked to the rail and stood looking over the wide stretch of water. Somewhere out there was Armiger's island. She wondered if he were at home—or had he gone far away—so far that she was forgotten . . .

Below her was a floating pier. Now and then a boat came up to it. One of the boats seemed to bring passengers. It was in charge of a red-faced and hearty seaman in a leather coat and cap. If she asked him, would he take her to the island? It would be a mad adventure. But why not? If Giles were there, she could talk to him of books . . .

Oh, but why deceive herself? She would talk to him of more than books. Of their friendship . . . and of his letter. She had his letter in her bag. She would know . . . if he had changed . . . and if he had, she could come away . . . and he need not know what had been in her heart . . .

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 4

A day of great activity, possibly turbulence, agitation and confusion must be presaged from the predominant planetary influences. While there may be much stimulus to enterprise and initiative, with the forces and faculties keyed to a high pitch of excitement, yet there may be difficult situations and an onslaught of definite danger or destruction to be valiantly attacked and vanquished.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of great activity and initiative, albeit with much confusion, turbulence, perhaps violence and disaster to meet, combat and compose, mainly by calmness, self-restraint and cool judgment as well as courage. With evidences of his control wisdom and composure powerful friends may be disposed to lend assistance and substantial support.

A child born on this day may be tempestuous, passionate and aggressive, but adventurous and ambitious.

Stringendo is a term used in music to denote a rather sudden acceleration in the time.

Even grass seed is advancing in price in Northern Ireland, and many farmers are making a large profit by gathering and selling it.

BRITISH JOBLESS PROGRAM.

LONDON, Oct. 2.—(C.P.-Havas).—The Daily Herald said to-day that a cabinet majority had decided on a three-point program for attacking the unemployment problem in the British Isles.

The points specified were:

1. Transfer of unemployed from districts badly hit by the depression to more prosperous centres.
2. Organization of a "back to the land" movement.
3. Active propaganda to convince employers of their duties to their

DOVERCOURT BAND TO VISIT CITY

To Give Series of Religious Musical Festivals for Thanksgiving Week-end.

Thanksgiving week-end at the Salvation Army promises to be interesting to the local corps and to the public in general. Dovercourt Citadel Band of forty-five musicians are to be guests of the local Songster Brigade of the corps, who were recent guests of the band in Toronto.

The band will arrive on Saturday afternoon next and will be tendered a welcome by the local band. At 7.15 p.m. both bands, about 75 strong, will parade George street, after which the Dovercourt Band will render a musical festival in the Temple.

Special open-air services will be held on Sunday in which both the local and visiting bands will participate. A special series of services will also be held in the Temple.

On Monday morning the visiting band will tender a program of music at the hospitals and homes in the city, and in the afternoon will be honored at a function tendered by the guest band.

The final festival on Monday evening will finish the series of week-end services. The band is under the direction of Bandmaster W. Merritt, whose brother is leader of the famous Winnipeg Citadel Band of the Salvation Army. Major F. Riches will accompany the band.

Members of the general public are extended a cordial invitation to attend the services, and it is suggested that musicians particularly should not miss the opportunity of hearing the visiting band.

MAID'S EVIDENCE STARTLES JUDGE

May Make Vanderbilt Hearing Private as Not in Public Interests.

CLEARS COURT.

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—(A.P.)— So startling a turn has the big Vanderbilt family fuss taken that Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew, umpire of the battle, is debating whether it would not be in the public weal to make it a strictly private affair. A Parisienne maid, petite and pretty, was responsible.

The maid, Mlle. Maria Caillot, a witness yesterday in the action brought by Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt to wrest guardianship of her daughter, Gloria, from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, the little heiress' aunt, testified to an incident involving her employer and Lady Milford Haven.

Justice Carew forthwith clamped down the lid on the performance, ordered the court cleared of newspapermen, and announced that because of this testimony he would conduct the remainder of the hearing in private. The public had jammed the court room.

Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, moved swiftly. First, he requested that the trial be kept open since his client had not yet been heard by the public.

Justice Carew said he would consider.

Then Burkan announced that he would send acros the Atlantic for Lady Milford Haven to refute Mlle. Caillot's charges.

SALE OF FARM LANDS IN NORTH MONAGHAN.

Under and by Virtue of the powers contained in a certain Mortgage, which will be produced at the time of the Sale, there will be offered for Sale, by Public Auction, on Thursday, the 11th Day of October, 1934, at the Hour of Two o'clock in the Afternoon, at Hancock's Auction Rooms, 494 George Street, in the City of Peterborough, by W. "I may live too long or not long enough"

"In either case, my Life Insurance will take the place of earnings and provide financial independence.

"IF I LIVE past the time when I can earn, my Life Insurance will give me a sure income for an independent old age.

"On the other hand, IF I SHOULD NOT LIVE long enough to build up a substantial estate for my loved ones, the same Life Insurance will do for them what I had planned."

The London Life has a policy which will give you this twofold service—create an estate for your family if you do not live long enough, or for yourself if you live to retirement age.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 2.—At a farewell party for Robert Benchley, something was bound to happen. Harry Ruby played host and around the tables were Dorothy Parker and her husband, Alan Campbell, Charles Butterworth, Groucho and Harpo Marx, Al Newman, Virginia Bruce, Oscar Hammerstein II, Maurice Riskin, Bert Kalmar, Charles Lederer and Helen Hayes.

Oscar Hammerstein II

The dinner, a sumptuous affair of many courses, finally came to an end, and brandy was passed.

A dignified butler paused at Hammerstein's side.

"Brandy, sir?" he asked.

Oscar looked up.

"Is brandy good on an empty stomach?" he inquired.

MARGARET SULLAVAN has "done it again". And so has Frank Borzage.

These two, star and director of "Little Man, What Now?", the Universal drama which opens an engagement at the Capitol Theatre, Wednesday, have literally excelled themselves. In the second picture of her career Miss Sullavan repeats the success which she gained in "Only Yesterday", and proves that the positive brilliance which she evidenced in her film debut was based on sound and unusual ability as an actress. And this Frank Borzage production is undoubtedly the finest motion picture in the career of this famous director, even including "Seventh Heaven" and "Humoresque".

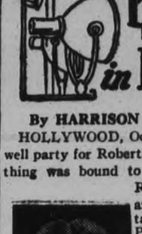
OUT AT PARAMOUNT they're still chuckling over a scene that is best described as an irresistible force meeting an immovable body.



Josef von Sternberg

The irresistible force was Josef Von Sternberg and the immovable body, Bing Crosby.

The crooning star, who can just about write his own ticket on the Paramount lot, came into the studio commissary the other noon-time and sat down at the table always reserved for the German director.

Mack Gray joined him. When Von Sternberg made his entrance shortly afterwards, the air was electric.

The director came up to the star and said: "This is my table."

Bing looked up and said politely: "I came in here and I was hungry, so I just sat down at a table."

Business of terrific tension in the room—then Von Sternberg turned on his heel and went to another table.

KNICK-KNACKS—

Here's one for the book. Hal Rosson, Jean Harlow's ex-cameraman and husband, is seeing the sights of London with Countess Gargan. . . . It's a shame to spoil a good rumor, but George Brent says those stories about him and Garbo are too silly. . . . Keeping his imported car in Hollywood for another year will cost Carl Brisson $1,250. He did have a temporary permit, but now he'll have to pay regular duty. . . . Filmland is THAT intrigued over the way Gilbert Roland is paling around with Gloria Swanson and Herbert Marshall. And, if you're up on your feuds, I don't have to tell you why. . . . Danny Dowling still prefers Blondes. He was at the Cotton club the other evening with pretty Marjorie Bainbridge. . . . Dorothy Jordan and Merian Cooper have been resting at the Arrowhead Springs hotel. . . . And you'll find Gloria Shea and Winslow Felix cooing there almost any Saturday. . . . The Lloyd Bacons threw a Spanish party the other night that was really Spanish—orchestra, dancers and food. Scene was the Bacon ranch house in the valley. Nobody lost their way, in fact, Joe E. Brown found the place twice. It was all very gay.

Shirley Temple certainly is entitled to take a bow for her performance in "Baby, Take a Bow", which opens to-day at the Regent Theatre. The wor of this five-year-old girl is really astonishing. She possesses the grace and intelligence of a grown person and a personality that will carry her far.

The picture is a comedy-drama centering around Shirley Temple and her young parents. Its theme is James Dunn's struggle for happiness in spite of the handicap of a prison record. Claire Trevor is the young wife who believes in him. Little Shirley is their adorable baby daughter who lends merriment to the action and turns a trick in the nick of time that makes her the heroine of the drama.

ROSENEATH CHURCH OBSERVES SEVENTY-ONE YEARS OF SERVICE

Rev. Francis H. Battersby and Rev. E. W. Worrell Are Speakers.

HISTORY OF CHURCH

(Examiner Correspondence)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 3.—Commemorating seventy-one years of active service in God's Kingdom, the congregation of St. James' Anglican church, have had an eventful and successful week. On Sunday, September 23, special services were delivered. In the morning the minister, Rev. Francis H. Battersby addressed the congregation from the Litany, "O God we have heard with our ears and our fathers declared unto us, the noble work thou didst in their days" and for the subject of his sermon he took the word "anniversary."

In the evening Rev. E. W. Worrell of Havelock was the guest speaker and delighted his audience with a sermon full of serious thought provoking material, delivered with vigor and enthusiasm of a true servant of the Master.

The memorable supper and entertainment on Friday night was most gratifying. Choicest viands of all descriptions including a liberal serving of the advertised fowl graced the tables at which all present enjoyed. The tables looked very pretty with their white linens, garden flowers and candles. After all had done ample justice to the good things, Rev. F. H. Battersby, led the "fun makers" to the platform and to whom the large crowd listened to excellent talent given by a chorus of men from Campbellford, with Mrs. James Benor, pianist. The cast consisted of three Negroes, namely (Bill) Hamer, Fred Palliser and "Happy" Runions; others in the cast were Dick Ramsden, Jack Bygott, Alton Dunk, Carmi Runions, Ed Grills, Francis Beaudoin and Marshall Sills. Mr. Sills favored the audience with selections on his guitar and Mr. Beaudoin delighted the audience with his many songs, playing his own accompaniment on the guitar. The proceeds of this anniversary amounting to $97.75.

History of Church

This successful event seems to have linked the past with the present, many things of importance have happened during these seventy-one years. A year ago a brief account was given of some of the first facts of interest of the history of this church and congregation, in addition to this many changes have taken place.

As most of our people already know the land for the building site and cemetery was donated by the late William Nichol, father of John A. and Amos Nichol and Mrs. J. E. Milne. Now the past fifty years have witnessed many more changes, perhaps a short summary of these years would be of interest to our readers.

The first big event was the dedication of a beautiful stained glass window which was placed in the chancel as a lasting memorial by the congregation to the late Rev. John McCleary, their beloved pastor for many years. This window is in three parts and is of the Gothic style. The design is very chaste and cannot fail to meet with the appreciation of all who see it. The figure in the centre piece to the left represents a baptismal font surrounded by a lovely wreath of water lilies, emblematic of purity. In the middle portion is a lamb bearing a white banner on which is a red cross representing. The Lamb of God who meekly bore His cross and dyed it with His life-blood.

To the right is a figure of a chalice with some heads of golden wheat and a bunch of purple grapes representative of the bread and wine of the eucharist.

Across the foot of the whole window an inscription reads "Erected by this congregation to the glory of God and in memory of the Rev. John McCleary, a former incumbent, who died Oct. 10, 1886". It is a real work of art and exceedingly creditable to the congregation of the pretty little church which it adorns.

Memorial Service

On Thanksgiving day, Nov. 9th, 1925, an impressive service was held with the Rev. Mr. Belford officiating. This event being the dedicatory service of several memorial gifts. Among them was a sweet sounding bell which is heard over the countryside every Sunday, and was presented by the Coyle-Drope family in memory of their pioneer fore-fathers who came to Canada in the year 1825 and whose organizing efforts were instrumental in erecting the present church in 1862.

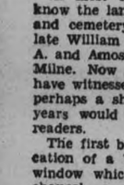
A beautiful bronze tablet was the next memorial to be dedicated to the memory of Sergeant Heber Nichol, who paid the supreme sacrifice in Flanders, and was the gift of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nichol. This is a beautiful piece of work, bronze set in oak and artistically lettered in black and red.

Edward Weir, now deceased, presented a handsome chapel organ in memory of his wife and their daughter, Effie Weir. Another gift which was dedicated was a baptismal font presented by two worthy workers of the church, namely Edward Weir and Frank Nichol, now both deceased.

In 1929, Miss Elisabeth Coyle paid tribute to her parents the late Mr. and Mrs. John Coyle by donating a handsome fumed oak prayer desk. At this service Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCracken presented the church with a lovely brass book rest which stands on the communion table, and their son, Ross McCracken and Mrs. Ross McCracken (now deceased) donated a leather bound prayer and hymn book combined, making in all two very appreciated gifts. Another gift to the church were two oak offering plates and were given by Mrs. Frank Nichol.

Year by year the church is kept in repair. It is very doubtful if its equal could be found outside our larger towns and cities, and those who have been so liberal of time and expense may well be gratified with this grand old land mark, St. James Anglican church near the village of Roseneath.

GAS, INDIGESTION



IF you're troubled with stomach distress, gas, and your blood needs enriching there's nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. W. J. Henderson of 276 Adelaide St., London, Ont., said: "I suffered so badly from indigestion I would double up with pain. I felt miserable and tired out. My mother advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it was not long before I was able to eat without being in agony. When I finished the third bottle I was entirely relieved of the indigestion, also headache."

Rumor Carol, Helen May Be Reconciliated

BUCHAREST, October 3. (C.P.-Havas). — In a city that seethed to-day with rumors of an approaching reconciliation between King Carol of Rumania and his wife, Princess Helen ,Premier George Tatarescu to-day attempted to reconstitute his Cabinet after its resignation early on Monday.

The Rumanian press for the first time since the royal separation carried the rumor of a reconciliation.

The Tatarescu Cabinet resigned following internal disagreement, and while it was precipitated by the resignation of Nicholas Teodorascu, Minister of Commerce and Industry, yesterday, it was subsequently learned that the Rumanian Foreign Minister, Nicholas Titulescu, still in Geneva in connection with the League of Nations, had resigned some days previously.

Stowaway King

Joseph Popfinger, Europe's champion gate and shipcrasher, is known as the king of the stowaways. He has travelled for seven years without paying fare and is pictured here peering at New York from a porthole of the Bremen on his arrival to marry an American girl. This, too, was a stowaway trip.

GOOD ATTENDANCE CHURCH SERVICES

Warsaw Presbyterian and United Churches Hold Special Services.

WARSAW, Oct. 3. (By Examiner Correspondent). — The Presbyterian Sunday School held the Rally Day service on Sunday, Sept. 30. The church was prettily decorated with flowers. The attendance was large. Dr. Munro led the service and followed the Presbyterian Rally program. Trevor Watts presided at the organ. Milo Payne read the Scripture lesson. Mrs. James Greystock gave a carefully prepared and instructive paper on "Our All For God."

There was no service in the Presbyterian Church as they kindly gave way to the United special service. The United Church was filled at both morning and evening services when Rev. Mr. Cleland of Norwood conducted the anniversary services.

The choir, under Mrs. George Taylor's leadership, rendered two anthems in which Mrs. John Brethour had a soprano solo, George Scott a tenor solo, Mrs. Arthur Payne and G. Scott a duet and D. Miler a bass solo.

In the anthems Mrs. Oliver McIlvena took the soprano solo, Mr. Alec Darling and Mrs. Arthur Payne a duet, Mr. G. Scott a tenor solo and Mrs. Arthur Payne, Mr. G. Scott a tenor solo, and Mrs. Arthur Payne, Mrs. Roland Payne and Mr. Alev Darling a trio.

The exchange is subject to approval of the United Church Exchange committee.

LICENSE FEE FOR WINE, BEER AT LEAST $300

Issuing of Separate Authorities Will be Discontinued Odette Announces.

MINIMUM CHARGE.

Graduated Scale of Fees According to Amount of Beverage Sold by Hotels.

TORONTO, October 4 (C.P.). — Ontario consumers of French still wines will eventually pay 20 cents a gallon less for the product as a result of their being placed on the intermediate tariff list following Premier R. B. Bennett's recent negotiation of a trade treaty with France, E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Commissioner, said to-day.

The new schedule will not apply until the Board has disposed of the wine stocks on hand, Mr. Odette added.

A wine and beer authority will cost a minimum of $300 for the Provincial fiscal year which starts November 1, Mr. Odette said, and the present method of issuing separate authorities will be discontinued.

Graduated Scale.

With this minimum charge there will be a scale based upon the volume of beverage a hotel handles, Mr. Odette explained, adding the graduated scale would be calculated upon the amount of beer and wine purchased by the authority holder from the Board, not on the amount sold.

"We don't care if the man gives his beer away," the Commissioner said, "that is his affair but we are concerned with what he buys from us and the purchases will be scrutinized on a quarterly basis."

Mr. Odette held it would be unfair for the Board to charge the small hotel proprietor the same fee as paid by a man doing perhaps 50 times the volume of business.

The $300 fee will be payable on the issue of the authority, November 1, and the supplementary charges must be paid every three months, the Commissioner said.

Search For Boys Is Doomed To Failure

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., October 4 (C.P.). — Search by air and water to-day failed to disclose any sign of three small Crystal Beach boys who went adrift on Lake Erie yesterday afternoon. One United States coastguard cutter and eight small boats joined the search to-day, but most of the small boats returned before noon.

Pilot of the airplane and crews of the boats said they had seen no sign of the boys or their carless, flat-bottomed craft. Nevertheless, Canadian searchers asked assistance of persons in Dunkirk, N.Y., hoping the wind might have driven the boat ashore near that town, which is 14 miles from here.

RESCUE CONSTITUTION.

Socialists if Returned to Power Would Abolish House of Lords.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

BRISTOL, England, Oct. 4 (CP Cable)—After passing with big majorities resolutions demanding strengthening the House of Lords against future Socialist attacks, and building up of the Empire's defence forces, the Conservative party in annual convention this afternoon split down the middle over the policy for India.

Excitement Intense

Debate was heated and excitement was intense as the Indian question was brought to the fore and at one stage closure was applied. But on a ballot after repeated argument, the conference by a majority of 23 votes in more than a thousand, carried an amendment which in effect stopped a decision until the Joint Parliamentary Committee now studying the government's policy for India, has returned its report.

MANY CASH SUBSCRIPTIONS

OTTAWA, Oct. 4. (CP).—In reporting the corrected total of $101,500,000 for the first three days of the campaign, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes, issued to-day an appeal to holders of 1919 victory bonds to exchange them for bonds of the 1934 refunding loan. "It is quite evident," he said, "that despite intensive work by banks and bond dealers there are still tens of thousands of 1919 victory bonds holders who do not now how important it is to themselves, as well as how necessary it is to Canada, for them to exchange their bonds immediately.

"Saturday, Oct. 6 is the last day upon which exchange may be effected and the bonus secured. The bonus is one-eighth of one per cent if exchange is made into the new 3-year bonds, and a quarter of one percent if exchange is made into the new 15-year bonds. After Saturday exchanges will only be made at par.

BYSTANDER IS SHOT BY POLICE

Five Sheriff's Deputies Are Placed Under Arrest in Strike Area.

CITIZENS ANGERED.

BRIDGEPORT, Pa., Oct. 4 (C.P.).—Five sheriff's deputies, arrested on homicide charges after a bystander was shot and killed during a textile strike outbreak, were rushed to the Norristown jail early today for their own protection from a crowd of several thousand angry men.

The shooting was the climax of a violent afternoon outside a textile mill, where state police and deputies tried to take workers from the plant in busses amid a volley of bricks and stones from a crowd of strikers and sympathizers.

Sought Deputies.

After Elwood Quick, 23-year-old tube works employee, died on the operating table in a hospital, another crowd sought the five deputies blamed for the shooting. The effort continued until after midnight with a crowd of several hundred surrounding the Montgomery county prison.

The deputies — Howard White, Joseph Smith, Wilbur Parker, Robert Pinkerton and Harry Hildebeitel—took refuge inside the mill after the pistol shot struck Quick.

They were there when Bridgeport police arrived with homicide warrants for their arrest.

Conscience Money Creates a Problem

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 4.—(C.P.)—The Customs Department here is in a quandary .This morning the collector of customs, J. H. Spence, received through the mail an envelope marked "For U.S. Office." Inside were two five dollar bills with an accompanying note designating them as "conscience money for U.S. customs."

The point bothering the department here is whether the money is for payment on goods brought into Canada (in which case the money belongs to the Canadian department) or for goods taken into the U.S. (in which case the money belongs to the U.S.) Mr. Spence has suggested that the sender of the money get in touch with him via the same anonymous route and make the distinction.

Prime Minister Macdonald Back Home Had Fine Holiday, Recommends Canada

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 4. (C.P.-Havas).—Vastly improved in health and enthusiastic about his holiday trip to Canada and Newfoundland Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned to London to-day to assume his duties after a two months' absence.

He scoffed at rumors that he would accept the Governor Generalship of the Dominion, and said he had liked Cape Breton in Nova Scotia, more than any other spot visited and went into details about his golfing exploits.

The Prime Minister, who was accompanied by his daughter, Miss Ishbel MacDonald, admitted he was "glad to get back."

"The holiday was an enforced one," he said 'and I believe it has done me a great deal of good. I would recommend anyone who has to take an enforced holiday to follow my footsteps. Canada is beautiful, the people most hospitable and most delightful in every way and I, am sure you would come back most refreshed in body and mind.

"I am glad in any event to be back and am ready to begin work again."

Asked if there was any truth in the suggestion that he would likely accept the Governor-Generalship of Canada MacDonald said: "I am always very glad to read the newspapers but I cannot guarantee that I believe anything they say.

Young Doe Is Seen Vicinity Of Hamilton

HAMILTON, Oct. 4 (C.P.). — Scampering across the highway between passing automobiles, a young doe made its appearance at the western entrance of the city today. The animal became frightened at the traffic and bolted into the civic rock garden and disappeared into the wooded valley nearby. It is thought that the doe made its way down from the Beverly district where several deer have been seen this season.

EXPAND PARLEY ON NAVAL ARMS

Conference of Larger Group of Powers Proposed for 1935.

BRITAIN OPEN MINDED.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (A.P.). — The delegations of Great Britain, the United States and Japan, meeting here for preliminary naval conversations about October 17, were said by authorities to-day to be likely to consider a plan for a general conference of a large group of powers in 1935 instead of just those three with France and Italy.

The forthcoming conversations also will decide, it was said authoritatively, whether the political aspects of naval problems will be placed on the agenda of the 1935 conference.

The British Government, it was stated, "has an open mind on both matters." It was explained that negotiations for the renewal of the London treaty do not make the discussion of political matters necessary but, if the powers want the Washington treaty extended, political problems might well creep in.

It was anticipated here that the Japanese and American delegates would seek decision during the coming conversations as to whether politics can be broached in 1935.

Gehringer Scores On Goselin's Hit For 3-2 Triumph

NAVIN FIELD, DETROIT, Oct. 4.—(CP).—Goose Goslin's single to centre in the twelfth inning to-day gave Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, brilliant 3 to 2 conquest of the St. Louis Cardinals and pulled the Detroit Tigers back to even terms in the world series with one victory for each club. The winning run was scored by Charley Gehringer.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NAVIN, FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 4 (A.P.)—Staking their hopes of a World Series come-back on the strong right arm of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, 22-year-old giant from El Dorado, Ark., the Detroit Tigers came out to-day to fight off the rampant St. Louis Cardinals and seek victory that would put them back on even terms with the National League champions.

A cool breeze swept the field, but the sun was out more warmly than the day before and another big crowd, numbering close to 45,000 spectators, was on hand for the second game of baseball's championship battle.

Opposing Rowe was the sturdy southpaw veteran of the Cardinal's, Bill Hallahan of Binghampton, N.Y., a pitching hero of the 1931 series against the Athletics, and one of the best "money hurlers" in the St. Louis ranks.

The Cardinals took the field as heavy favorites, following their easy victory in the first game, during which the Detroit defence collapsed, but home-town hopes of a big Tiger rally ran high. Rowe promised his mates he would be at his best and lasso the big Cardinal clouters, including jarring Joe Medwick.

FIRST INNINGS

Cardinals.—Martin lined to White on the first pitch, and the crowd let loose a wild roar. Rothrock grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Frisch hit sharply down the third base line for a scratch single, Owen stopping the ball but being unable to handle it. Medwick fanned on called third strike and the crowd went wild.

Tigers.—White grounded sharply to Collins and was out at first, Collins to Hallahan on a pretty play. Cochrane grounded to Collins, who made the putout unassisted. Gehringer grounded to Collins and was safe at first when Hallahan fumbled the first baseman's throw for an error. Greenberg grounded to Martin and was thrown out at first on a close play.

SECOND INNING

Cardinals.—Collins drove a long fly to White, who made the catch in deep centre field. Delancey grounded sharply to Gehringer, and was safe at first when the ball glanced off the Tiger second baseman's knee into right field. It was scored as a base hit.

Orsatti tripled down the third base line, scoring Delancey. The ball rolled to the extreme corner of left field. Orsatti was shaken up sliding into third, but quickly recovered.

Durocher popped to Greenberg. Hallahan lined out to Fox in short right field.

One run, two hits, no errors; one left.

Tigers.—Goslin bounced a hit over second base. Frisch stopped the ball but had no time for a throw to first. Rogell fouled to Delancey. Owen fanned on a called third striked. Fox lifted a high foul that Delancey caught in front of the boxes behind the plate.

THIRD INNING

Cards.—Martin singled through the infield. Gehringer made a futile attempt to stop the ball. Rowe tossed to first and almost nipped Martin as he slid back into the bag. Rothrock bunted to Rowe and was thrown out at first. Martin advancing to second on the sacrifice. Frisch lifted a high fly to White, and Martin was stopped from making a break for third base.

Medwick smashed a single past Rogell, scoring Martin. Medwick galloped to second on the throw-in. It was the Cardinal outfielder's fifth hit of the series.

Collins poked a single over Rogell's head and Medwick was thrown out trying to score; Goslin to Cochrane, on a fine play.

One run, three hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers.—Rowe fanned, swinging. White grounded out Frisch-Collins. Cochrane walked, the fourth ball being low and outside. Gehringer drove a long single over Frisch's head, sending Cochrane to third. Greenberg fanned, swinging at a high hard one and missing by a half foot.

No runs, one hit, no errors; two left.

FOURTH INNING

Cardinals—Delancey flied out to Goslin. Orsatti bunted to Greenberg and was out unassisted. Durocher grounded sharply to Owen, who juggled the ball but got his man at first on a close play. Greenberg had to stretch to catch the throw.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers.—Goslin grounded out, Durocher to Collins as the Cardinal shortstop made a sensational stop over second base. Hallahan got an assist as the ball had glanced off his leg. Rogell lifted a high fly that Orsatti misjudged and the Tiger shortstop reached second. It was scored as a two-base hit inasmuch as Orsatti just failed to get his hands on the ball. Owen grounded out, Frisch to Collins, as Rogell ran to third.

Fox hit sharply along the left field line for a double, scoring Rogell. It was a close decision as the ball crossed the foul line as it bounded over the bag at third base, and the Cardinals put up a big protest.

Rowe fanned, swinging at a low curve.

One run, two hits, no errors; one left.

FIFTH INNING

Cardinals. — Hallahan fanned, waving his bat at a fast ball. Martin grounded out, Rogell to Greenberg. Rothrock lined out to Gehringer.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers.—White grounded out to Frisch who was nearly carried off his feet as he speared the ball. Cochrane walked for the second straight time, the fourth ball being low and outside. Gehringer hoisted to Rothrock in deep right field. Greenberg walked, the fourth ball being high and outside. Goslin

Unknown Man While Resisting Arrest Is Accidentally Shot Through The Heart

EDMONTON, Oct. 4. (CP)—Shot through the heart as he resisted arrest by Constable James Miles who chased him two blocks from a store he was alleged to be robbing an unidentified man was killed here to-day.

The policeman said the shooting was accidental, and that his gun discharged in his left hand as he clubbed the alleged robber over the head with a night-stick held in his right.

The bullet which killed the robber was the fourth which the policeman had fired. The first three had been fired into the air.

The shots drew residents from their beds, and one emerged in pyjamas with a shotgun in his hands ready for trouble.

Chief Constable A. C. Shute, called to scene, exonerated the officer for the shooting.

I would'nt have shot him for a million dollars," Constable Miles told the superior officer. The policemen had been known as one of the steadiest on the force.

NO GOOD CAUSE PRESENT SLUMP ON WHEAT MART

Canadian Surplus Will All be Needed For New Crop is Harvested.

NO CANADIAN DUMPING.

Government Asked to Assume Responsibility for Administration of Winnipeg Exchange.

(By the Canadian Press)

Wheat futures were marked six cents lower in price on the Winnipeg market today compared with 48 hours ago despite the active support of the Central Selling Agency of the Canadian wheat pools. 'Dumping' of wheat in the pits of Winnipeg, Liverpool, Buenos Aires and Chicago—the four largest trading places — went on apace.

Downturns Unwarranted

John I. McFarland, general manager of the Sales Agency of the prairie pools, turned the world's eyes on wheat just in time for the world to watch prices go scooting to lower levels. He called the downturns unwarranted in view of the comparatively light deliveries by Canadian farmers.

"Let me reiterate that despite recent pressure on the price structure from abroad, the fundamental conditions of the world grain market are unchanged, and before this cereal season is over all our surplus will be required for food and seed," McFarland said in his second statement in two days, issued last night.

Of the approximately 265,000,000 bushels of wheat the west will harvest this Fall, 95,000,000 bushels have been delivered so far, he asserted. "This is very close to one-half of the deliverable wheat crop and a very large remainder has been damaged by frost, rain or is snow and is not in fit condition to thresh."

The second McFarland statement was made primarily to deny so-called "rumors" the government was dumping its holdings on the market. That was "malicious gossip." McFarland declared the government agency—the pool sales division—would not sell its wheat holdings until the actual consumers want the wheat.

Cabinet Meet

At Ottawa the Federal Cabinet met yesterday without discussing the wheat situation. Later it was brought to the attention of Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Trade and Commerce, by Premier R. G. Reid of Alberta. In London, en-route home from the League of Nations sessions, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett had previously been acquainted with conditions by McFarland.

Premier Reid asked that either the Dominion Government assume responsibility for administration of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange or appoint a wheat board to direct all grain marketing machinery.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND STARVATION THREATEN FIELD

Trainload After Trainload of Work Seekers Arrive at Jellicoe.

(Written for the C.P. by Leslie Roberts.)

JELLICOE, Ont., October 4 (C.P.). — Stark spectres of unemployment and destitution loomed to-day over this gold-rush town although the rush to the new Sturgeon River fields is barely one month old.

Trainload after trainload of workseekers have arrived here and at other points on the railway adjacent to the gold country. Most of those now threatened with hardship rode in "on the rods" of freights or in empty box cars being routed West to handle the Prairie grain crop.

The men have dropped off here as they rode over the Longlac-Port Arthur line because Jellicoe is the principal base town for the district. In most cases they have neither cash on which to live while they hunt for work, nor sufficient mining experience to enable them to find jobs.

Not Organized.

The problem is aggravated by the fact Jellicoe is not organized as a community. It has neither mayor nor council nor anybody that can function as a unit to cope with such a situation. The camp has no police and no apparent need for one, as none of the usual birds of passage seen in frontier towns have appeared here.

Most of the inexperienced arrivals are young men who have left government employment camps or the youths from lakehead cities in search of jobs. Old timers urge a warning be issued employment exists only for experienced prospectors or miners.

Among the arrivals were four hard-bitten Cobalt miners who stumbled off a freight expecting work. They still expect it, as they have been in the mining business for years. They were forced to leave their underground occupations when they were threatened with silicosis, dread disease that petrifies men's lungs.

Detroit Faithful in Gloom as Pennant Hopes Fade After 25 Years' Waiting.

By EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DETROIT, Oct. 4. (AP)—A giant of six feet four inch Arkansas sunshine—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe—shone through the gloom of the Detroit Jungle to-day and to the dumbfounded, bewildered and ashamed Tigers he looked as bright as a full blown noon day sun in the desert.

It was Rowe, the 23-year-old rookie, the big grinning kid from the wild boardlands, to whom frantic Mickey Cochrane and the harrassed Tigers turned for the pitching strength to beat back crafty left handed Wild Bill Hallahan and the St. Louis Cardinals if the world series is to move onto the Missouri metropois to-night in any kind of a balanced condition.

The schoolboy, winner of 16 straight games for the American League champions, was both an omen and a standard bearer with a double duty, for there were rain clouds hovering over Navin Field, threatening to wash out to-day's second game and force postponemen for an extra day of the second phase of the series scheduled for St. Louis Friday.

Big Chance for Schoolboy

It is the fervent prayer and hope of Michigan and the Midwest as well that the schoolboy gets his chance to-day to revenge the one-sided 8-3 walloping J. Police Expect Break In Thompson Case

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—New developments were hinted to-day in the police probe of the murder of Mrs. Viola Thompson, whose body was found under a lilac bush last July.

Inspector Albert Ward and Detective-Sergeant George Luft, concentrating their activities on Guelph, have been attempting to discover who Mrs. Thompson saw when she was in Guelph a short time before her death.

Old friends of the murder victim were queried in Guelph Tuesday, it was reported, when the officers visited that city.

APPLE GROWERS WELL PLEASED WITH MARKETING

Dominion's Supply is Moving Slowly to Great Britain's Markets.

AIDED BY NEW ACT.

British Market is Not Being Glutted—Market Swamped in 1933.

OTTAWA, October 4 (C.P.). — General satisfaction has followed application of the Natural Products Marketing Act to apples, according to L. F. Burrows, secretary of the Horticultural Council of Canada. Canadian apples this year are moving on to the British market, Canada's only export market, in a more limited volume than last year.

Thus the glutting of that market is avoided and the British apple grower is given a chance to market his own apples. All shipments of apples out of Canada are licensed by the Fruit Export Board of Canada which operates the export apple marketing scheme as a local board under the Marketing Act.

In general, growers appear satisfied with working of the Act, Mr. Burrows said.

Market Swamped.

Canada's apple marketing machinery was devised after a conference of Empire producers in London last spring. It is aimed at maintaining the United Kingdom as a buyer of Canadian apples even after the tariff preference granted under the Canada-United Kingdom Trade Treaty expires in 1937. The preference brought apples from the Dominions in such volume last year the home market was swamped with imports and the British had difficulty getting rid of his crop.

At the conference the British producers proposed a complete embargo on apple imports each season until November 1, at which time most of the home crop would be marketed. The Canadian and other Dominion representatives suggested they should limit their exports to apples of the first grade until October 15.

The licensing system has worked well and none but the best grade of apples has moved out of Canada so far this year, it is stated.

Prices have been fairly satisfactory this year, but not quite as good as last year. British Columbia has a slightly better crop, but Ontario and Nova Scotia are away down, Ontario's crop is only 3.1 per cent. of last year's.

Ontario's shipments for the season up to the end of September equalled only 32.9 per cent. of last year's movement up to that date.

English Freighter Is Returning To Ireland

WEST HARTLEPOOL, England, Oct. 4.—(A.P.)—The freighter Ainderby, in distress in the North Atlantic, is making for an Irish port, said a message received from the captain to-day by the Ropner Company, owners of the ship.

"Impossible to reach Newfoundland," the message said. "Water is filling the number two hold, through a defective bulkhead. Pumps working incessantly. Doing everything possible to cope with the situation."

The Ainderby, bound to Montreal from Wales, sent out a call for help Tuesday. Part of ther bridge was carried away by a gale and she was believed to be drifting helplessly.

Later the vessel reported her hatch, which had been stove in, was temporarily secured and two ships were standing by.

ESCAPES JAIL SENTENCE

OMAHA, Neb.—For making faces at a judge, Tom Buckley escaped a jail sentence for appropriating a bottle of milk for the boys at a hobo camp. Buckley said he was good in some ways, especially in making faces. He made some, and the judge laughed him right out of jail.

NEW MAGISTRATE.

India will spend $3,731,000 in developing civil aviation.

BOYS CARRIED OUT INTO LAKE IN OARLESS BOAT

Fleet of Eight Small Boats Continues Search for Missing Lads.

OLDEST IS TEN.

Hope of Finding Them Alive Has Been Practically Abandoned.

CRYSTAL BEACH, Ont., October 4 (C.P.). — Led by Chief of Police J. D. Goodall of Crystal Beach, a fleet of eight small boats went out on the choppy seas of Lake Erie early to-day to scour inlets and coves between Crystal and Crescent Beaches for trace of three small Crystal Beach boys carried out into the lake yesterday in a flat, oarless boat.

The three lads are: Walter McFarlane 10, Lorraine McFarlane 6, William Matthews 10.

Belief was held the wind might have driven the boat into shore. The wind shifted during the night from north-east to north-west.

Until late last night, United States coastguards searched in vain for the missing lads. Chief Goodall said to-day hope of finding them alive was practically abandoned.

Edward Matthews father of William, is in Kirkland Lake, Ont., and it was not known to-day whether he was aware of the tragedy.

The boys left Crystal Beach about one o'clock this afternoon, according to Chief of Police J. D. Goddall of the village. Eye-witnesses declared they paddled the boat with two small flat boards as they moved about the bay.

When last seen the three were moving out into the lake in the little boat.

When the youngsters failed to return the United States coast guard was notified and a search started. A coast guard boat searched the waters in the vicinity of the bay with a strong light. William Matthews, father of Edward, joined the search along the Canadian shore line, but no sign of the missing boys was found.

MADOC FAIR IS WELL ATTENDED

Increase is Noted in Number of Exhibits at Fall Fair.

SHOW IN EVENING.

MADOC, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—Madoc Fair days, though cooler weather, were beautifully bright and clear. Rain threatened for a short time during the morning, but sunshine returned to grace a most successful day.

In the exhibition house every department was filled to overflowing with beautiful and costly articles of home fancy work, making the task of the judges a long and arduous one, ending only at nearly midnight on the first day, only to be resumed at an early hour on Wednesday, and finishing only just in time to let the large crowd of interested people who thronged the grounds view the exhibits. In the art department were several new exhibitors, as also in the domestic manufacture and the cooking departments. The school children's department deserves special mention, and many of the articles shown, especially in the sewing and fancy work, were well worthy a place in any collection. The manual training department was also well worthy of special mention.

Salvagers Will Seek Spanish Galleon Sunk With Treasure In Vigo Bay.

MADRID, Oct. 4 (C.P.)—Nineteen Spanish galleons laden with "treasure from America" are to be salvaged from the bottom of Vigo Bay, according to plans being prepared here.

English, French, Swedish and Italian salvage companies and several Spanish firms have already attempted to bring up the lost ships unsuccessfully, but the latest plans are being prepared by an engineer who feels sure that with equipment valued at about $500,000 he can refloat the vessels.

It was at the moment of Philip V's ascension to the throne of Spain that the galleons, returning from America—then the West Indies of fabulous wealth—were pursued by the British fleet and took refuge in Vigo bay, according to the old story which has been current in Spain for generations.

There they found a much more permanent refuge than they sought when the whole feet was sunk in deep water. Their presence on the bottom of the bay was long regarded as legendary and it was a shock to many to learn they were really there a few years ago when the first salvage attempts were made. The plans being made now call for the raising of the ships—some of which are believed to be of as much as 800 tons displacement—in huge metal cradles.

Hastings

HASTINGS, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's Societies of the three churches—Trinity United, St. Andrew's Presbyterian and St. George's Anglican, held their weekly meetings on Monday evening.

The program for St. Andrew's Presbyterian was as follows:

Scripture reading by Miss Jessie Whitred; topic by Rev. Mr. Hill on the foundation of the year's work.

Haig Brothers Buy Belleville Business

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Messrs. McLean Haig, B.A., and his brother Jack have purchased the insurance business of Sydney J. Fisher of Belleville. Mr. Fisher carried on an insurance and auctioneering business in Campbellford for about ten years prior to 1919, when he moved to Belleville, having purchased the business of the late W. P. Hudson, later acquiring the business of the late Freeman Ketchison. The sons of Mrs. Haig and the late Dr. Andrew Haig, of Campbellford, McLean and Jack, are well equipped for their new duties, McLean being an honor graduate in Arts of Queen's University and a graduate in law from Osgoode Hall, having been called to the Bar in 1927. For the past few years he has been living in Regina, where he held a position on the Regina Leader, while Jack, the younger partner of the new firm, has been on the staff of the head office of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company in Toronto for some time. Both of these young men received their early education in Campbellford, and have the good wishes of the entire community for success in their new venture.

HUNTED CAPTAIN'S VESSEL ARRIVES MINUS SKIPPER

ST JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 3. (CP)—Captain Francis Pine's schooner Mount Pearl reached here to-day without her owner, wanted by Capadian police as a suspect in an international liquor smuggling ring.

Though North Sydney police had heard Pine escaped to a waiting schooner after breaking out of jail Sunday, Acting Captain Arthur Power of the Mount Pearl said he and his men had not seen the Newfoundland skipper. They left Sydney with coal.

Colombia exported nearly 250,000,000 pounds of coffee in the first half of this year.

Get a Strangle Hold on Worry

A well-known doctor has suggested the necessity
Of getting a strangle hold on worry.
If you don't get worry, worry will get you.
Worry robs the system of the vital nerve force.
You become down-hearted and discouraged.
Digestion fails and you cannot rest or sleep.
You lose courage and initiative.
The future is full of clouds and discouragement.
But you can conquer worry,
Along with other threatening symptoms
Of serious nervous troubles,
By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.
Gradually and naturally the enriched blood
Brings back health and vigor to the nerves
And makes you feel fine.
The silver lining of the clouds appears
And you conquer worry.

DELEGATES CHOSEN FOR ANNUAL MEET

Mrs. Sam Nesbitt is Guest Speaker at Hastings Institute Gathering.

HASTINGS, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—One of the most successful meetings of the Women's Institute was held in the town hall on Tuesday afternoon, October 2, with fifty ladies in attendance. The president, Mrs. W. M. Fowlds, presided. As the meeting was a special one, no business was transacted, being left over until the next monthly meeting.

As the Women's Institute Convention is to be held on October 8, 9 and 10 in St. Thomas' Parish Hall, Bellville, Mrs. Fowlds, Mrs. J. A. Brown and Mrs. J. A. MacDonald were chosen to attend as delegates.

Miss Daisy Graham, who won the Institute prize, a book of poems, for receiving the highest marks on the entrance examination in June, was unable to be present for the presentation. Her sister, Miss Evelyn, kindly accepted it.

Mrs. Perrin Rork, of Norwood, an accomplished musician, gave as an instrumental a waltz by Moskowski, with a pleasing encore.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Sam Nesbitt, of Brighton, whose travel talk on Europe proved not only interesting, but educational.

Mrs. Everett Birdsall, of Birdsall's, gave a delightful solo, "Oh, Heart of Mine", with her encore, "I Don't Want to Play in Your House".

Seven little girls from the separate school were present and sang, "Once I Got Into a Boat" and after much applause, sang most sweetly, "Over the Hills to Bye O Land".

After a hearty vote of thanks to the various guests who helped to make the meeting a success, a dainty lunch was served, with Mrs. J. A. McDonald pouring tea, assisted by members of the Institute. Out-of-town visitors were: Mrs. E. P. Cuffe and Mrs. Perrin Rork, of Norwood; Mrs. Nesbitt, of Brighton; Mrs. Waddell, of Peterborough; Mrs. Birdsall, of Birdsalls and Mrs. C. Dainard, of Milford.

Rev. Canon Swayne

BONARLAW, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Isaac Brown on Thursday of last week, September 27, with an attendance of 32. The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. W. J. Barlow.

The minutes were read by the secretary, Miss Kathleen McComb. Mrs. George Bailey, Education Convenor, then took charge of the program. The motto for the day, "Doors of Opportunity are Marked Push and Pull" was very ably taken by Mrs. Thos. Moore.

Rev. Canon Swayne gave a splendid talk on Education.

Mrs. Hannah gave a humorous reading on "Putting up the Stove"; A talk on "Bringing up our Children in the Home" was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Foley; Mrs. Isaac Brown was appointed delegate to the annual convention in Belleville which is being held in October.

Five dollars was voted the relief committee of the branch to purchase clothing for a needy neighbor. It was also decided that each member make a quilt block and bring or send it to the next meeting to be made into quilts for a family who are in need of warm quilts for the winter. A quilt top and batting was also donated by a couple of the members.

A contest was put on by Mrs. Allan McComb, after which a splendid lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The August meeting held at Mrs. J. S. McKeowns was well attended and an exceptionally good program was put on by the girls of the branch. The numbers were as follows:

Motto, Laura Foley; reading, "I Have Changed My Mind", Cora Bailey; solo, Miss Gwen Swayne; piano solo, Phyllis Barlow; reading, "An Old Story", Iva Brown; vocal duet, "Only a Rosebud", Margaret Brown and Verna Baker; piano solo, Evelyn Barnum; reading, "The First Exhibition in Toronto", Evelyn Bailey; demonstration, "Good Dressing", Nellie Webb, Roma Mumby and Kathleen McComb.

Youth Will Explain His School Absence

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Acting on information by Truant Officer Armstrong, a sixteen-year-old lad will appear before Magistrate N. A. F. Campbell to-day and be given a hearing to explain why he is not attending school. The case is creating considerable interest and establishes a precedent in this town.

School Attendance Report Is Approved

CAMPBELLFORD, October 4 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—A regular meeting of the Seymour Township Council was held in the Council Chamber, Ferris Building, on Monday afternoon, Reeve William J. Duncan occupying the chair, with Councillors Frank Lee and William Rowe present. The Council agreed to look into the matter of a road allowance opposite Lot 3, Concessions 14 and 15, in response to a request made by Joseph Harper, who addressed the Council in reference thereto.

School Attendance Officer G. W. Anderson presented his report which was received and filed After the passing of accounts, Council adjourned to meet on Monday, November 5, at 1.30 a.m.

a champion showing off his punch drunk sparring partners.

Not only the athletes but also the faithful who've been waiting here for 25 long years for a World Series, were down out of the rosy clouds that have tinged everything hereabout since the Tigers clinched the American League flag—down with thud of a stratosphere ball that has parted from its gas bag miles in the air. The Tigers realized ruefully only the Schoolboy stood between them and possible headlong rout.

Dean no longer is a circus character in these parts, though always a source of entertainment, and the Cardinals aren't just a bunch of National League farm boys from Missouri doing the best they can. They've seen H. Herman in his serious moments, flinging that fireball down their heroes' throats, allowing eight hits and three runs and grumbling afterward that he was "terrible," that he had pitched his worst game of the year. They saw Joe "concrete" Medwick, also 23, take a toe hold and hammer their starting pitcher, "General" Alvin Crowder and his burly but ineffective relief, Firpo Marberry, for four straight hits, one of them a home run, equalling a World Series record.

Into this situation strode the Schoolboy, the ace Mickey Cochrane wouldn't play against J. Dean in the opeing game of the series. The Tigers can't help but play better ball for him if the weather lets them go to-day.

Infield Blowup

Certainly they couldn't play worse than they did when the haloed iron man infield of big Hank Greenberg, masterful Charlie Gehringer, Bill Rogell and Marvin Owen, cracked wide open in the first three innings under the tension and the pressure. In that brief period this "death battalion" quartette piled up five errors, and sunk Crowder so deep that he had no chance of escaping anywhere but to the showers.

The Cardinals say Hallahan, who won two games in the series with the Athletics in 1931, is hot, and should be stingier with hits even than Dean was. Paul (Li'l brother) Dean will start the first of the three games in St. Louis, and J. Herman will be back to plague the Tigers Sunday, if nothing goes radically wrong.

DRIFT FOUR DAYS ON NORTHERN LAKE

But Hunting Party of Four Brings Down One Buck.

TIMMINS, Oct. 4.—"Anyhow our trip was a success; we got a duck," was the only comment offered by Jack Dewar, a member of the party of four Timmins hunters who were found early last evening after drifting four days on the chilly waters of Nighthawk Lake. Dewar, his brother George, Leo Gagne and Luke Morin left here Thursday for a day's hunting. Their motor went dead and they were left helpless on the lake until located yesterday by a search party.

CONGER McCONNELL

TWEED, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Conger McConnell, 65, a well-known farmer of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon Township, was found dead in bed by a son. He was a member of the Orange Order and of the United Church. Two sons and a daughter survive.

TABITHIA C. McMULLEN

TWEED, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Following a lengthy illness, Miss Tabithia Clisto McMullen, lifelong resident of Sydney Township, passed away at the home of her brother, Frederick McMullen, Trent Road, Belleville. Deceased was born in Sydney Township, and was the youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McMullen.

She was a member of the United Church, and was 86 years of age. Surviving are four nephews: George Vantassel of Belleville; Ernest McMullen of Victoria; Dr. E. Pope, of Edmonton; and Robert McMullen of Otterville; and a niece, Mrs. Lela Bell of Otterville.

JAMES ABEL.

NORWOOD, October 4 (Examiner Correspondence). — The funeral of the late Mrs. James Abel, a former resident of Norwood, was held on Tuesday from the home of her sister, Mrs. James Tharby, Belmont Street. Requiem Mass was said in St. Paul's Catholic Church, conducted by the Rev. Father Kelly of Hastings.

The deceased was a well-known will be sadly missed by all who knew her. She leaves to mourn her loss two daughters, Mrs. Thomas Morrison (Queenie) of Norwood and Mrs. Ryan (Lillian) of Peterborough, one sister Mrs. James Tharby of Norwood, and two brothers. Phineas Norman of Australia and Ashley Norman of England.

The pall-bearers were: Messrs. Edward Doherty, Thomas Morrison, John Weir of Norwood, Jack Finning, F. O'Carol, and A. Joab of Peterborough. Interment was made in St. Paul's Cemetery, Norwood.

DONALD McNAUGHTON.

NORWOOD, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The funeral of the late Donald McNaughton, a former well-known resident of this district, was held Saturday afternoon, interment being made in Norwood Cemetery.

Mr. McNaughton was born in Dummer Township, the son of pioneer settlers, in the Cottesloe district. He lived the greater part of his life in the vicinity of Norwood. Moving to Otonabee Township fifteen years ago. The large gathering of old-time friends and neighbors which awaited the arrival of the funeral cortege was a tribute to the upright and sterling character which had won for him a host of friends. He was a charter member of the Norwood Baptist Church.

Surviving are four daughters: Mrs. Purdy Edmondton, Mrs. Raddon, Sandusky, Ohio, Miss Jessie and Vida, Peterborough; two sons, Maxwell of Toronto and Alexander of Otonabee.

IF YOU EAT STARCHES MEATS, SWEETS Read this:

They're All Necessary Foods—But All Acid-Forming. Hence Most of Us Have "Acid Stomach" at Times. Easy Now to Relieve

Medical authorities now tell us that much of the so-called "indigestion" from which so many of us suffer is really acid indigestion. A condition brought on by the acid-forming part of our diet.

Starches, meats, sweets, too much of such necessary foods form excess acids—felt in annoying pain, "gas" after eating.

But there is now a simple way to relieve this, as your doctor will tell you . . . often in minutes!

All you do is take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. This acts almost at once to neutralize the stomach acidity that brings on the trouble. You have fewer headaches, upsets, and pain. You "forget you have a stomach!"

Try this just once! Take either the familiar liquid "Phillips'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. But be sure you get the Genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia.

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Weddings

CRUICKSHANK—DELI

HASTINGS, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence)—A wedding of interest to Hastings' residents took place on Sept. 20 at Angola, Indiana, when Miss Julia Helen Deli, daughter of Mrs. Mary Deli, of Munroe, Michigan was united in marriage to Kenneth H. Cruickshank, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cruickshank of Hastings. Mr. and Mrs. Cruickshank will reside in Indiana.

TOMPKINS—McGREGOR

MARMORA, Oct. 4.—The wedding took place in St. Paul's Church, Marmora, at 10 a.m. on Wednesday of Hugh Allan Tompkins, son of Mrs. George Tompkins of Marmora Township, and Anne Norma McGregor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. McGregor, also of the same township. Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell officiated. The contracting parties were attended by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Tompkins.

LIVINGSTONE—ANDERSON.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 4 (Examine Staff Correspondence).—At Chesterfield, North-West Territories, on September 26, 1934, by the Rev. W. James, Mabel Gladys, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Anderson of Campbellford, was united in marriage to Dr. Leslie David Livingstone, son of Mrs. and the late Hugh Livingstone of Douglas, Ontario. Dr. Livingstone has been medical representative for the Dominion Government for many years in the North-West Territories.

MRS. FERRABEE RE-ELECTED

Cheap soap flakes take you BACKWARD

Lack of suds compels the primitive washerwoman to beat and scour the dirt out. Thin, skimpy suds from cheaply made soaps make you do more hard rubbing. Hard rubbing wears the clothes out right in the tub.

CHEAP SOAP RISK NO. 2
Faded colors—due to bleaches and strong water-softeners used to speed up skimpy suds.

CHEAP SOAP RISK NO. 3
Weakened threads that tear easily due to alkali let loose on your clothes by crudely made soaps.

CHIPSO PUTS YOU AHEAD ON SAVINGS

Chipso is SAFE even for silks. When you do your wash with Chipso you can use it for everything—it makes all your clothes wear longer.

MADE IN CANADA

EXPERIENCE condemns cheap soap flakes which are made to look like "a lot of soap." But compare the suds you get from this soap with Chipso's thick, lasting suds . . . compare the safety of this soap with Chipso's safety! Your so-called "bargain" looks like an expense when you make this comparison.

"I wouldn't trade this white, sweet-smelling wash I get with Chipso for anything," says Mrs. L. E. Frank. "I don't have to soak the clothes more than 15 minutes in Chipso suds to make even the grimiest places wash out with a little easy sloshing and squeezing.

"Chipso is so rich and sudsy that the water is still bubbling full of thick suds when I let it out of the tub after a big heavy wash."

And here is another experience story about real saving with Chipso. "I feel superior when other women complain that their clothes fade and wear out fast," says Mrs. G. J. O'Brien. "My little girls' Chipso-washed dresses stay bright and new-looking until they are absolutely outgrown. My towels and sheets and table linen wear literally for years. I do my dishwashing with Chipso, too, because Chipso makes suds that cut the grease fast but aren't a bit harsh on my hands. That's a good test for finding a safe soap for your clothes. Chipso is so safe that I can use it for everything—even our nice lingerie and stockings."

THE BABE RUTH OF HOCKEY.

It is a coincidence that in the same week that Babe Ruth, the most colorful and undoubtedly the best loved figure in baseball, played his last game as a regular, Howie Morens, dynamic centre ice player of the Montreal Canadiens and often referred to as the "Babe Ruth" of professional hockey, should announce his permanent retirement from the sport.

Canadians everywhere will regret the decision, for while the country has developed scores of brilliant hockey players, there is only one Morens.

When his game was at its peak there was something in the flashing style, the sheer speed and the elan and dash with which this stockily-built comet of the blades hurled himself through an opposing defence that stirred the blood of every spectator.

Even last winter when his spurts goalward were not as frequent as of yore, there was a hum and then a roar from the crowd every time Morens secured the puck and was in full flight with his first strides. And in the great Bailey benefit game in Toronto when the stars of the National League were gathered together, it was a typical Morens goal, a swerve around the defence and a lightning shot into the top corner of the nets, that stirred the vast crowd to its greatest pitch of enthusiasm.

If this superb player, who during his entire professional career has been a member of the colorful Canadiens, sticks to his decision something will be permanently lost to hockey—for there probably will never be another star to match the brilliance of his best years.

PROTECTING THE PUBLIC.

Probably most Canadians are unaware that the new Companies Act passed at the last session of Parliament came into force on Monday.

This measure represents an almost complete revision of the law hitherto governing the incorporation of companies under federal charter and the operation of such companies.

It is the outcome of two or three years of investigation and preparatory work by the law officers of the Government, and has been inspired by the rather widespread mulcting of the investing and speculating public during the boom years by unsound corporation enterprises, employing high-pressure promotion methods.

It is hoped that the new legislation will prevent a resumption of the exploitation of the public.

Outstanding provisions are designed to protect the ordinary investor from both his own gullibility and the wileness of unscrupulous high-pressure promoters.

Stringent regulations are imposed upon the issuing of prospectuses of stock floatations, and company directors and officers are to be held strictly accountable for carrying out these provisions.

In short, the act gives the Canadian investing public such protection as the federal authorities can provide, within the limits of the constitution, against the recurrence of conditions revealed following the collapse of the pre-depression stock market boom.

It is the hope, of course, that provincial administers will enact corresponding measures, but for the present the restrictions will apply only to corporations operating under federal charter.

CONSTRUCTION SHOWS BIG GAINS.

The construction outlook in Canada, while still far from as rosy as The Examiner would like to see it, is certainly much brighter than for some time, and at present there is more work under way than at any period during the last two years.

The contracts awarded for the whole Dominion during the month of September, as compiled by MacLean Building Reports, limited, amounted to $12,414,600, as compared with $6,386,900 in the same month last year, an increase of 49 per cent.

The total for the year to date now amounts to $66,145,100, while for the same period last year the figure was only $63,430,700, so that there has been registered the very substantial increase of 54.4 per cent.

As a matter of fact, with three months yet to come the total construction last year has been exceeded by the first nine months of 1934, which is a gain that should bring satisfaction to those who recognize the importance of more activity in the construction field as a factor in restoring better times.

Ontario has furnished more than half of the year's total construction up to the present time with a total of $40,848,500, which is more than double the Ontario total for the first nine months of 1933.

Quebec comes next with $25,526,300, which is two and a half millions more than for the same period last year. British Columbia follows with $7,812,500; Nova Scotia, $4,111,800; New Brunswick, $3,775,700; Manitoba, $3,051,200; Alberta, $2,564,400; Saskatchewan $1,114,600, and Prince Edward Island, $316,100.

Contemplated work reported for the first time in September amounted to $14,240,700, as compared with $14,782,700 in August and $12,562,700 in September last year.

GREATER CARE IS NEEDED.

The accident reporting division of the Ontario Department of Highways has deemed it desirable to issue a special bulletin warning motorists that at this time of the year it is particularly necessary that all highway users do a little serious contemplating of the dangers peculiar to the fall and winter months when weather and road-surface conditions and early darkness combine to bring about a toll of accidents relatively higher than at any other time.

During the three months, October, November and December, of 1933, it is a matter of record that on the basis of gasoline consumption the rate of accidents was 60.5 per cent. greater than in the other nine months of the year, and the rates of fatal and "property damage only" accidents were respectively 56.3 per cent. and 56.7 per cent. greater.

At the same time the average estimated property damage loss per accident was less in the three winter months than during July, August and September, which suggests that speeds are generally lower under unfavorable driving conditions.

As the bulletin says, the conditions peculiar to fall and winter which lead to high accident rates deserve special consideration.

One of the most important factors is undoubtedly the lower visability, owing to early darkness. The accident record shows that the fatality rate during dusk or darkness was 37 per cent. greater during 1933 than the rate during the daylight hours.

It should not be necessary, says the bulletin, to amass statistics to show that darkness, rain, wet leaves on the roadway and other unfavorable conditions produce serious driving hazards. These conditions are quite apparent and certainly cannot be looked upon as reasonable excuses for failure to observe rules of common sense and safety. To the real driver they are regarded as warnings of the need of added caution. Under such conditions, brakes should be in proper mechanical adjustment, lights in correct focus, and instead of headlights—except on adequately illuminated streets—is unwise. In fog, lights should be switched on to provide a warning for other persons on the highway.

The fact that a larger-than-average share of collisions with bicycles and with horse-drawn vehicles occur during darkness, points to the need for greater observance and enforcement of laws respecting lights on these vehicles.

Pedestrians, too, should recognize the hazards of night and would be wise to sacrifice legal rights or immediate convenience in the interests of personal safety. This is especially true on rural highways. The pedestrian too often places himself at the mercy of the motorist, trusting that the driver's eyesight will be keen enough and the vehicle lights bright enough to guarantee his safety. But it would be well to face on-coming traffic and to aid the driver's vision by carrying a light, or a white or light-colored object, since even highly efficient lights will not provide enough illumination to disclose a pedestrian in dark clothing, at a distance sufficient to allow any margin of safety.

EMPIRE FACTS BENEFIT BRITAIN.

A quite unique item that came over the wire Thursday stated that for the first time in history the United Kingdom exports for the first eight months of the year were greater to countries within the Empire than to foreign countries. Empire trade is up $60,000,000, and foreign trade up only $13,750,000.

This is surprising and encouraging news. It has so often been said that Great Britain gave more than she received at the Ottawa Imperial Conference, that one began to doubt whether the British Government would renew them when they fall due except with a drastic scaling down. Canada undoubtedly got the better of the bargain, for her exports are many millions of dollars ahead of British imports, so that wherever Britain is getting her increased trade it is not at the expense of the Dominion. When only total figures are given it is impossible to analyse the results, and we will have to wait and see. But it is obvious other parts of the Empire have done their share of reciprocal trade, and if it has not hurt them, there appears to be good reason for Canada behaving more generously to her best customer.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE BORSTAL SYSTEM.

The General Synod of the Anglican Church in Canada has passed a resolution in favor of establishing the Borstal system here, and will officially bring the subject before the Dominion Government.

A few days ago a grand jury in Western Ontario, making its inspection of the local prison, commented on the fact that the largest number of inmates were youths. That experience is probably quite common, for everywhere the growth of youthful delinquency, even in serious crimes, is a local and national problem.

The Borstal system became a part of the English prison system 26 years ago, although it had been experimented with for five or six years before that. It is a method of punishment-reform for offenders between the ages of 16 and 21. It owes its name to the fact that in 1902 a start was made by transferring young delinquents from the ordinary part of the convict prison at Borstal, Kent, and installing them in a special wing where remedial measures were tried out. There, instead of solitary confinement, they slept in open dormitories, worked together in bright workshops, and were trained in various occupations. It was recognized that a large number of young lads drifted into crime because they had no jobs, or only casual labor, and it was believed that if they served a sort of apprenticeship to trades which they were suitable for, they would be reclaimed. The inmates have many privileges, which are added to by good-conduct marks.

So successful were the results that the Borstal system was incorporated in the penal laws. Young offenders, who have hitherto unblemished or only slightly soiled records, and whose home environment is questionable, are sent to a Borstal institution for a period long enough for them to learn a trade, the shortest term being two years, and they not only learn a craft but receive an educational and cultural training as well. When they are liberated there is an organization known as the Borstal Association which takes charge of them, finds them work and generally supervises them until they make good.

The percentage of backsliders is very small, and the benefits derived from the system are proved by the fact that after more than 25 years' experience it is retained as a helpful part of the prison organization. Probably also it has a good deal to do with the comparatively small number of serious crimes in England, and the empty state of so many large prisons.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

As a good investment and as a contribution to national welfare, subscribe to the new Canadian Refunding Loan.

Attorney-General Roebuck says he is not in favor of controlling municipal police from the Legislature Buildings. He means outside of the Toronto police department, of course.

De Valera is forcing the Irish farmers to grow more wheat—the direct reverse of the policy of some other countries where production is being curtailed.

The Provincial Government is assuming the entire cost of relief in Windsor, which may or not be proof that it is not a bad thing for a municipality to be represented in the Cabinet.

Lower prices for Canadian whiskies are announced, and the news will be disquieting to those who have felt that one of the best "aids" to temperance in this country has been the high cost of liquor.

Now that the days are getting shorter, the nights colder and reading is a common practice, what ever has become of the Straight Furrow?

SAYS HABOUSH IS ANTI-ZIONIST

City Editor,
Examiner, Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I read in your worthy paper the article dealing with Mr. Stephen A. Haboush's lecture to the Peterborough Rotary Club.

As one who is interested in the Zionist Movement, I want to inform the people of your community that the lecturer Mr. Stephen Haboush is an Arabian and Anti-Zionist. He has been spreading propaganda about Zionism and Palestine for the last few months. In his talk he never points out the great achievements accomplished by the Zionists in Palestine — the building of roads, plants, sanitation in all communities, power plants, agriculture, Hadassah's work in looking after the sick and in establishing day nurseries and health clinics. All these improvements and institutions are open to and used by the whole population in the country—regardless of race or creed or religion. The Arabian population of Palestine has greatly benefitted by these changes—great malarial tracts have been cleared up, swamps drained, Trachoma Disease combatted and the whole country improved.

On November 2nd, 1917, the British Government issued a declaration, which has become historical and known as the "Balfour Declaration," whereby, "His Majesty's government view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a National Home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, etc." The Jews had both a legal and historical right to Palestine. The Arab claim was one of possession, but the Jews claimed the land on the grounds of possession and historical title. Back in 1877 after the Russian-Turkish War, Balfour made his first contact with the Jewish problem. He saw the rise of Anti-Semitism in France and Germany at the time of the 19th century. He realised the profound need of the Jewish masses in Central and Eastern Europe for a homeland. The upbuilding of Palestine as a National Homeland for the Jews is not merely a Jewish problem—it is distinctly a British problem. The progress made by Jewish energy and Jewish labor in the past decade in the land of Israel is truly remarkable. During the last few years Palestine was the only country (outside of Russia) which did not suffer from the depression—there being a marked increase in exports, imports and trade.

Sincerely yours,
Miss Ella Shats,

SUPPORTS TAXPAYER.

Peterborough, Oct. 4, 1934.
Editor of The Examiner;

Sir,—Over the nom de plume of Taxpayer, there appeared in the Examiner of Oct. 1st a letter, enumerating what may be termed the hidden dangers, that any sane and intelligent person could visualize for themselves, by the establishment of an institution such as a sanitarium in the city of Peterborough, not only in Peterborough, but in any other community where conditions and characteristics are similar to those in which Peterborough exists to-day, and needless to say, as mentioned by Taxpayer in their 'well merited communication.' Whoever the person may be, to my mind they seem well informed on the subject of disease, especially tuberculosis (consumption). Be it preliminary or otherwise. Further, the present writer does not hesitate for one moment in stating that Taxpayer visualizes most accurately the dangers which would inevitably be thrust upon, not only the taxpayers of this locality, but the public in general. However, seeing that space in your correspondence column is of necessity limited, no further comment is necessary, other than your immediate correspondent is in rather a unique position to supply data that probably would require a whole page of the Examiner to set forth in detail. Why the inhabitants of Peterborough should not foolishly entertain the construction of a tuberculosis institution within their midst, it may be of interest to note that the data referred to is the natural sequence of seven years' practical experience and observations, inside and outside, of modern sanitariums. Finally, I would suggest to all readers and citizens in general to remember it is their paramount duty to insist of the Mayor and retiring alderman, if seeking re-election, to state publicly their policy and the stand they intend to take in connection with the proposed erection of a local sanitarium, especially in view of the fact that the matter is of vital interest to all, when considered in the light of public health and welfare.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space alloted for publication of this letter, I am, sir,

Yours respectfully,
Born of Common Sense.

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

KINDERSLEY, SASKATCHEWAN

C. W. Baker, a merchant of this town, was one of its earliest settlers. He arrived in 1907, when it was called the Merrington district and he was the first postmaster. When the Canadian Northern railway came through in 1909, the Mackenzie-Mann Co. threw open the town for settlement, they named it Kindersley for Sir Robert Kindersley, then governor of the Hudson's Bay company. The village immediately east of there was called Beadle, which was the maiden name of Lady Kindersley.

Kindersley is on the famous Goose Lake line, is a divisional point and is one of the most important towns between Saskatoon and Calgary.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

POEM BY A MAN NAMED OPPENHEIM.

I don't know much about Oppenheim. Nearly all that I know about him is that he is a poet, and that he wrote one poem that I like to read.... It means much to me, it may mean as much to others.... Whenever I open a certain anthology I find myself turning to page 2997 and reading this poem that James Oppenheim wrote.... I think he had fun writing it, and I think that all good poems were fun for those who wrote them.... And this poem, which Oppenheim called "Immoral", has fun IN it as well as being fun for the man who wrote it.

"I keep wakinig around myself,
mouth open with amazement:
For by all the ethical rules of life, I ought to be solemn and sad,
But, look you, I am bursting with joy.

"I scold myself:
I say: Boy, your work has gone to pot:
You have scarcely enough money to last out the week:
And think of your responsibilities!
Whereup, my heart bubbles over,
I puff on my pipe, and think how solemnly the world goes by my window,
And how childish people are wrinkling their foreheads over groceries and rent.

"For here jets life fresh and stinging in the vivid air:
The winds laugh to the jovial Earth:
The day is keen with Autumn's fine flavor of having done the year's work:
Earth, in her festival, calls her children to the crimson revels.
The trees are a drunken riot; the sunshine is dazzling . . .

"Yes, I ought, I suppose, to be saddened and tragic:
But joy drops from me like ripe apples."

James Oppenheim, you knew yourself well, O most immoral man! Didn't you know that life is a quince, a bitter fruit, a wrinkled apple, didn't you know that the wise man today is sad and apprehensive, didn't you know that you were out of style and that the poets of the twentieth century have taken Misery for their muse? Didn't you know you were a most deplorable, most reprehensive, most dangerous fellow to be around? . . . You sat in your window and puffed on your pipe and joy dropped from you like red apples—when you might have been improving your shining hours with a distillation of pessimism—and James Oppenheim, outrageous fellow, I wish I'd known you well enough to shake you by the hand!

seeds the number and variety of exhibits excelled that of recent years The live stock in each department was well represented, while the midway with its many devices for amusement and gain was as usual well filled.

The merry-go-round owned by the fair department was well patronised by young and old. The races were one of the chief centres of attraction during Wednesday afternoon.

The new ladies' rest room was much appreciated by the many visitors.

The gate receipts were fully equal to note, larger than last year, with an attendance of between six and seven thousand, and not a serious accident reported during the two days of the fair.

Show in Evening.

The evening attractions consisted of a show at the Empire Theatre, "Toonerville Folks," which was well attended, and a play by local talent, the Y.P.S. Dramatic Club of Trinity United Church, entitled "Wild Ginger," at the Masonic Hall.

The play proved very entertaining and the characters well cast for the parts played. Miss Marion Hamm as "Wild Ginger" proved herself well able to sustain the character first as a wild, neglected child of Squatters Town, then as a shrewd, clever gamin, who was fully a match for a miserly father and the plotting of the scheming, tricky father and son of the upper class and lastly as a college girl, beautiful and successful, with well-won friends. Mr. Alex. Broad, as a spoiled, over-bearing son of the rich, and Mr. Mulholland as Fussy, rattle-pated, generous and friendly, were specially good.

Mr. Cliff Broad, Mr. Pinkham, Miss Jean Phillips, Miss M. Ferguson, Miss Norma Fair and Mrs. Wellman all sustained their parts well, while the two younger men, Mr. John Bristol, as the miserly unkempt father, and Mr. Ralph Martin as faithful friend and lover of the Wild Ginger (Virginia) played their parts very graphically and added much to the charm and naive childish sweetness of the growing girl's search after honesty, education and friendship.

Between acts the ladies' quartette contributed two well-rendered numbers, "Birds of the Spring" and "Rock me to Sleep." Mrs. Abbott gave a very enthusiastically encored musical monologue, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," followed by "Me, too," and during intervals Miss Lamoine West contributed special piano numbers which all enjoyed.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

THE PAISLEY BLOCK BALL.

On this date, in 1832, the first Paisley Block Ball was held in Wellington county, Upper Canada, inaugurating an annual social event of historic value. The ball, held in a log building in Guelph Township, was "the event of the season".

According to a local historian it "grew into fame, waxing beyond the concessions and ultimately died, after a long and brilliant career, through its sheer popularity. On the evening of the event the youth and beauty of the settlement came trooping in, on the four roads, on foot and in buggy, to the quaint little schoolhouse, swept and garnished for the occasion. . . . Need we tell of the floor and its allurements, of music's exhilarating strains drawn from the sweetest violins, of the joy of the hour? Out under the starlight a sugar kettle was suspended over a huge fire, in which water was kept boiling all through the night, for whisky toddy was served. A huge currant loaf was an annual feature, requiring several men to carry it into the room, while country-made cheese and home-made biscuits were in abundance."

Dancing was kept up until dawn gave warning that the night was o'er, and then the weary but happy young folk started off for their homes with wearied feet but happy hearts, some (too many) staggering with their load of liquor, for drinking was then not only not a disgrace but a necessity; he who refused to drink was "not in it". Many a farm's work was but illy done the day after the ball. Milking was a burden to the lassies; ploughing was a penance to the men, but what cared they? They had been to the Paisley Block Ball!

John Taylor, the original settler on lot 13, concession B, Guelph Township in 1836, wrote a ballad about the Paisley Block Ball. It had twelve verses with a chorus, to be sung after each verse to the air of "The Wearing of the Green". Its singing was quite a ritual. There was always a leader and everybody had to sing, or at least join in the chorus, and it was often sung on lonely roads as farmers made their way home. Woe betide the man who attempted to pass the singer of "The Paisley Block Ball"!

Popular Astronomy

Autumnus Pampincus

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

In his second, Georgic Virgil wrote of the vine-leafed autumn. This second Georgic was dedicated to Bacchus. Two political parties have dedicated themselves to this god of wine. And these political parties are not Roman. They are Canadian. This Georgic was sung as well as read throughout the Roman Empire. Two lines indicate the spirit of the whole Georgic:

To thee his joys the jolly autumn owes
When the fermenting juice the vat o'erflows.

Wise and strong drink brought the Roman Empire to ruin. Wine spelled the destruction of modern Spain. Wine threatens the stability of France. Authorized manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors will spoil and degrade any people. A reading of the Georgics will tell the story of why it was that Rome fell. To know what modern science affirms about the waste and deleterious effects of intoxicating liquors is not necessary. An honest study of the history of Rome and Babylon is sufficiently convincing. One class of people will not read to be informed. That class is in the business.

When the Sun arrives at the autumnal equinox, about the 23rd of September, it marks the beginning of autumn in the northern hemisphere. That cold weather is coming is on all lips. There is an autumnal equinox and the foreboding of cold weather in human affairs. Money spent on rum means cold and hunger. The autumnal equinox of 1934 will bring with it hardship and suffering just because a part of our Canadian people are determined to get a slice of easy money by manufacturing and selling that which does not make for health and nourishment. This is a plea that all who are in any way associated with the nefarious business will think of the poor folks who are in rags and hunger because of the curse of wine.

ADDED SPACE FOR FAIR LIVESTOCK

Large Entry List for Annual Roseneath Exhibition Next Week.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, October 4.—The Roseneath Agricultural Fair will be held next week, October 11-12, and to assist the judges, and also a protection to stock, a cattle shed 150 feet long, has been erected by Walter E. J. Mason, and his men which will mean comfort for the cattle and an added benefit to the grounds.

All arrangement for the coming fall fair next week are now under way and the board of directors are in optimistic mood regarding the outcome of the annual event which is one of the outstanding features of the village and township.

Every provision is being made by the president, F. J. Slade, and the Fair Board to make 1934, a record year.

New special prizes should draw the attention of the exhibitors this year, as each year brings new ideas, and makes the prize list more interesting.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

TORONTO, Oct. 4. — Ontario grain approximate prices track shipping point.—Wheat, 94 to 96c; oats, 33 to 35c; barley, 46 to 50c; corn, 90 to 92c; rye, 52 to 54c; buckwheat, 48 to 50c; malting barley, 65 to 67c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 4 (AP)—An avalanche of commission house selling that prompted general liquidation and brought stop loss orders into execution engulfed the grain market just before the close yesterday and prices were swept two to three cents lower. Led by wheat, which incurred net losses for the day ranging from 2⅞ to 3⅛ cents a bushel, all grains broke sharply in the final half hour of trading when apparently there was nothing in the news to account for such tremendous unloading operations.

TORONTO PRODUCE.

TORONTO, October 4. — Prices held at unchanged levels in a quiet produce market yesterday. No. 1 Ontario butter solids were still quoted at 19½ cents with No. 2 grade at 19 cents. To the retail trade No. 1 Ontario creamery prints saw listless trading at 23½ cents.

Demand for eggs continued lethargic and prices to farmers marked time at 26 cents for the A-large, cases returned, with the medium at 24 cents. To the retail trade A-large, loose eggs were 31 cents and the medium were 30 cents. Graded eggs, cases free, were 28 cents for the A-large and 26 cents for the medium.

Toronto dealers were paying 19¼ cents for No. 1 large colored cheese and to the retail trade new large commanded 21¼ cents. Churning cream held steady and butter and poultry quotations showed no changes.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 4. — Breaking sharply in the last half-hour of trading, wheat prices ended yesterday's session of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange 2⅝c to 2¾c lower and 6⅛c down since Monday's close.

Extreme weakness at Chicago and downturns at Liverpool accounted for Winnipeg's slump. Government support, aided by export and commission house buying, previously had held values steady. The late liquidation, however, met with little resistance. All three futures ended at bottom levels.

Losses of 1⅝d to 1⅞d at Liverpool inspired declines of 1½c at the opening, but most of the lost ground was recovered as the Government and export houses stepped into the market.

Powerful Explosive Stolen—Firm Worried

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Oct. 3.—(A.P.).—Twenty pounds of polnol, the most powerful explosive known, still was missing from the Remington Arms U.M.C. Company's reservation to-day, as police resorted to publicity to warn the thieves it could destroy half a city.

As an inducement for the thieves to return the explosive, company officials promised immunity from prosecution if they would return the powder "to safeguard persons in the vicinity where it may be."

MAIL FRAUD CASE TERMED SWINDLE

Trial of Samuel Insull Commences With Attorney Outlining Charge.

CHICAGO, Oct. 4.—(AP)—Samuel Insull's stock sales in his ill-fated Corporation Securities Company were termed a "simple conspiracy to swindle, cheat and defraud the public" by the United States government as it outlined the mail fraud case against the utilities executive today.

United States District Attorney Dwight H. Green, in a calm statement detailing what government investigators uncovered in Insull's financing, charged that the company was set up simply as a "dumping ground" for large quantities of stock acquired in market deals to boost the price of Insull stock.

Insull and the others put into the new company the common stock of another Insull Company, Insull Utility Investments, and a "few dollars in cash." It owed $3,500,000 for the stock. Then on this property, Green charged:

"The defendants falsely represented to the public that the new corporation would commence business with assets of over $80,000,000."

BARRY HOLLINGER

TORONTO, Oct. 4.—Production is continuing at approximately $20,000 per month with mill tonnage around 115 tons per day. Continued development on the 2100 foot level with stoping above this level has shown an ore shoot approximately 130 feet in length with width up to 11 feet and indicated average grade can only be per ton, with sections running up to $30. The gold deposition continued to be somewhat erratic and actual average grade an only be determined by mine results. Recent development on the 2,250 foot level east of the winze has come into ore showing values up to $14 across a width of 7½ feet. his ore is now being opened up and indications are that a further important lens will be proven. Nothing of importance has materialized in the first surface exploration on the Patterson property adjoining on the south and controlled by Barry Hollinger.

STADACONA

A progress report is to be sent out to shareholders of Stadacona Rouyn Mines which will contain the following official information. "Negotiations are now being conducted with the General Engineering Company, the Southwestern ngineering Company and Canadian ineers Ltd. regarding the erection of a 200 ton unit of a 600 ton mill. The crushing end of the mill to be put in for 600 tons a day and the other 200 ton units added as needed. The mine will be opened up with at least another two levels by spring and raises etc., ready to supply ore to the mill and have the mill ready about the time we have the underground ready.

GUNNAR GOLD MINES.

Development work at the Gunnar property is reported by officials to be yielding satisfactory results. On the 375 foot, or third level, there has been established an ore length of 375 feet over drift width. On the fourth level, which was entered not long ago, a seven-foot width of ore carrying reputedly high values has been cut. A cross cut is being run on the third level to intersect No. 3 vein.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP).—Stocks recovered moderately after selling off in the forenoon trading today. Early weakness centres in issues of California Corporation.

The late tone was irregular. California packing and Safeway Stores were down around 3 points each while Standard Oils of California and New Jersey were around a point lower. Case, American Telephone, Chrysler and National Distillers were up fractionally.

Transfers approximated 570,000 shares.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (C.P.) — The oil shares produced some volume to-day but at the expense of quotations, Imperial recording a drop of a half point and the others smaller fractions. Over the board of the Toronto Exchange losses had a margin over gains at the close. Early gains chalked up by the interlisted shares were not held, except in some of the distillery issues and Ford "A".

The brewery stocks were slow and soft and Distillers Seagrams held the only advance in the liquor group. Brazilian held steady at 11½ on good turnover, and Nickel and C.P.R. closed slightly lower. Ford "A" held a gain of ⅛.

TORONTO MINING

TORONTO, October 4 (C.P.). — The mining section of the Toronto Exchange moved in no definite direction to-day and volume, while spotty, bulked mainly in the gold group. Wednesday's late selling of the secondary golds at decided price concessions, was not in evidence to-day and price adjustments were very narrow. Senior golds were quiet but firm and silvers and base metals slow and barely steady.

Gold shares selling at practically unchanged prices included Sylvanite, San Antonio Macassa, Siscoe, Pickle Crow, Little Long Lac, Central Patricia, and Read Authier. God's Lake weakened 5 cents and Beattie 5, while Buffalo-Ankerite dropped 5 cents and Mackenzie 2.

Gains up to 25 cents were registered for Hollinger and Lake Shore and Teck Hughes was bid up a few cents late in the day.

Are There Kings And Queens In Heaven? Asked Prince Of Wales As a Child Of Seven

(By Thomas T. Champion, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP)—"Are there any Kings and Queen in Heaven, or when you are an angel is everybody equal?" asked the present Prince of Wales when, as a child of seven, his portrait was being painted by Mrs. Gertrude Massey, the well-known artist in miniature.

Mrs. Massey replied that all were equal in heaven.

"I think that is quite right, but Great Granny won't like it," replied the Prince. "Great Granny" was Queen Victoria.

This story is given in Mrs. Massey's book, "Kings, Commoners, and Me," just published here.

Another story concerns King Edward's recovery from his operation for appendicitis, an operation which caused the postponement of the coronation. The Prince was taken in to see his grandfather. When he came out he said in a disappointed tone: "They didn't show me the baby." Until then whenever he had seen anyone in bed, and a hospital nurse hovering near, he had been shown a baby.

BROOKS APPOINTED STUDEBAKER HEAD

Becomes Vice-President and General Manager of Canadian Corporation.

The appointment of M. S. Brooks as vice-president and general manager of The Studebaker Corporation of Canada Limited to become effective immediately, was announced in a statement issued to-day at the Studebaker factory in Walkerville. He succeeds D. R. Grossman, who recently tendered his resignation to the company.

The statement goes on to say, "The directors feel that Mr. Brooks is particularly well fitted to aid Studebaker dealers in the development of their passenger car and truck business. He is a Canadian by birth, and has been closely associated with the automotive industry here and abroad for nearly 18 years.

M. S. BROOKS

"During this time he represented Studebaker in various major capacities for a period of eight years. His knowledge of retail operations, which he gained as Sales Manager and Managing Director of The Studebaker Corporation of Australasia in Sydney, Australia, and Manager of Retail Branches in the United States for The Studebaker Corporation of America, will prove particularly valuable to Studebaker dealers throughout the Dominion."

Mr. Brooks was born at Port Elgin, Bruce County, Ontario, and was educated in Western Canada, where he received a practical mechanical training. He became associated with the Canadian Fairbanks Morse Company in Saskatoon as tractor expert, continuing in the tractor and truck business until 1916. During the next five years he divided his time between lecturing on automobile mechanics in technical schools and selling autos and tractors at retail and wholesale.

In 1921, Mr. Brooks joined the Ford Motor Company of Canada in a service capacity, and in 1923 was one of two men sent to Australia to investigate the possibility of opening body and assembly plants in that country. He returned to Canada the following year, and in 1924 was again sent to Australia as General Service Manager of the newly formed Ford Motor Company of Australasia.

He then joined the Studebaker Corporation of Australasia at Sydney, as Sales Manager, and was later made Managing Director. After holding this post for a number of years he returned to the United States and Canada, where he served as manager of Retail Branches in the United States for The Studebaker Corporation of America and as assistant sales manager of The Studebaker Corporation of Canada, Limited.

In August 1933, he resigned to join the Chrysler Corporation of Canada as a sales executive, a position which he has left to accept his new post with Studebaker.

DETROIT WINS THIRD GAME 3-2

lifted a high fly that Orsatti caught in right centre.

No runs, no hits, no errors; two left.

SIXTH INNING

Cardinals—Frisch grounded out to Greenberg unassisted. Medwick lifted a high fly to White, who had to come in fast for the catch as the wind carried the ball toward the infield. Collins grounded to Greenberg and was out at first; Greenberg to Rowe.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers.—Rogell grounded to Martin, who threw wildly over Collins' head, enabling the Tiger shortstop to reach second on the error. Owen bunted to Hallahan and Rogell was thrown out at third, Hallahan to Martin, as Owen reached first. It was a fielder's choice. Rowe fanned for the third straight time on a called third strike.

No runs, no hits, one error; one left.

SEVENTH INNING

Delancey lined to Rogell who made a sensational dambling stab to rob the Cardinal backstop of what looked like a sure base-hit.

Orsatti grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Durocher lifted a short foul that Gehringer caught behind first base on a pretty play. It was the four successive inning in which the Cardinals had been retired in order.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers. — White lifted a high fly that Durocher bagged in short left. Cochrane grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Gehringer walked, the fourth ball being low and outside. Greenberg fanned on a called strike and the crowd hooted.

EIGHTH INNING

Cardinals. — Hallahan hoisted a high one to Gehringer behind second base. Martin grounded out, Rogell to Greenberg. Rothrock bounced out, Gehringer to Greenberg, as the Cardinals again were retired in rapid-fire fashion.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers. — Goslin grounded to Frisch, who made a fine stop on the grass and nipped the Goose by an eyelash at first. Rogell hoisted to Rothrock in right centre. Owen grounded out, Frisch to Collins.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

NINTH INNING

Cardinals. — Frisch flied out to Goslin along the left field line. Medwick struck out on a called third strike. The umpires ordered spectators to move away from the screen behind right field. Collins fanned on a called third strike.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers. — Fox singled sharply to right. The crowd was in an uproar. The Cardinal infield quickly gathered around Hallahan. Rowe bunted to Hallahan and was thrown out at first, Fox running to second on the sacrifice. The Cardinals again gathered around their pitcher for a conference and Walker was sent up to bat for. White as Cochrane decided on a last moment switch. Walker popped along the first base line and the ball fell safe as the Cardinals got their signals mixed, Collins and Delancey both hesitating and then failing to get under the ball. It bounced foul, however, and Walker was called back to the plate. Walker lined a single to centre, scoring Fox with the tying run.

Frisch decided to take Hallahan from the box. Bill Walker another southpaw, was called into action.

Walker threw to first. Umpire Klem went out to pick up loose pieces of paper that were beginning to blow into the diamond from right field. Walker tossed to first. Walker again threw to first. Walker's throw trapped Gerald Walker off first and the Tiger base runner was finally tagged by Frisch after a prolonged and furious chase up and down the base path. Cochrane fanned on a called third strike.

One run, two hits, no errors; none left.

TENTH INNING

Cardinals.—Doljack was in centre field in place of White for the Tigers. Delancey hoisted a high one that Goslin caught in short left. Orsatti grounded out, Gehringer to Greenberg. Durocher flied out to Fox as the Cardinals went out in order for the seventh successive inning.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers.—Play was stopped because of excitement in a lower box where a man collapsed and was carried out by the police. Gehringer grounded to Frisch and was safe when the Cardinal manager fumbled and was charged with an error. Greenberg drove a long fly to Rothrock in right centre. For a moment it looked as though the wallop might carry to the bleachers.

Goslin flied to Rothrock just inside the foul line. Gehringer stole second and Rogell walked, the fourth ball being outside. Owen flied deep to Orsatti, who made a nice running catch.

No runs, no hits, one error; two left.

ELEVENTH INNING

Cardinals.—Walker fanned swinging. Martin drove a double to left centre, sliding on his stomach into the keystone bag. It was the first hit off Rowe since the third inning. Rothrock fanned, swinging at a fast ball inside. Frisch popped to Gehringer.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Tigers. — Fox raised a foul that Collins caught near the lower boxes Rowe fanned, swinging and was a strikeout victim for the fourth time. Doljack popped to Collins near first base.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

INVESTIGATING DEATH OF TWO YEAR OLD GIRL

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (C.P.).—Death in hospital here early to-day of two-and-one-half-year-old Jean McAdams of Orillia is being investigated by Chief Coroner M. M. Crawford.

Hospital authorities said the child was unconscious on arrival in the hospital last night, where she had been rushed from her home.

Authorities hold no suspicion the little girl was an infantile paralysis victim.

LABOR PARTY NOT DEAD.

WINDSOR.—The Ontario Labor Party is not dead, Malcolm Caulley of Walkerville declared to-day.

"When the C.C.F. and United Farmer groups threw the Labor conference out of the C.C.F. Party last spring, they broke the affiliation of the Labor Party, part of the Labor conference, with the C.C.F.," he declared.

The statement was in answer to a protest by the C.C.F. against organization of a Labor Party branch in Walkerville.

BIRRELL GOLD MINES LIMITED

A Gold development rapidly assuming an outstanding position in the Noranda section of the Quebec field.

Commercial gold values from channel and bulk sampling have been secured after eliminating all free gold showings. These ran from $3.80 to $11.40 in channels and .74 ozs. per ton gold in bulk sampling. Diamond drilling shows persistence to depth and with increasing widths.

The property has been under aggressive development over the past year and has now reached the stage where underground work is amply justified. The erection of adequate plant and camp buildings is now in progress and to be followed by the installation of equipment to carry underground work to a depth of at least 500 ft.

Railway, highway and power-lines are only five miles from the property.

To the shrewd mining investor, we recommend the initial Treasury offering of BIRRELL GOLD MINES LIMITED.

END OF YACHTING CLASSIC WOULD MEAN ECONOMIC LOSS

Millions Spent in Challenge and Defence of America's Cup—Gives Many Employment—Tigers Seen as World Series Winners.

(By Damon Runyon. Copyright by Central Press Canadian)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4—Some contemporaries peevishly declare that they hope Tom Sopwith means it when he will never again challenge for the America's Cup, and add that it will be a good thing if no other Englishman ever challenges for it.

The challenger and the American defender, between them, represented the expenditure of at least $1,000,000 in cash for construction and operation.

They gave employment to a large number of men.

Much of the expenditure was distributed here and in England where it is sorely needed.

Thousands Spent

The sight-seeing armada that gathered at Newport for the race contributed to the employment of thousands of sailors and other hands, and scattered huge sums for supplies of one kind and another among the merchants of their home ports and of Newport.

The total sum of money put in circulation by the international yacht race was easily $10,000,000, and it all went to labor and to business. There is no profit in these yacht races for the yachtsmen. It is all loss. No other event in years has produced as much money for general circulation as this spectacle.

The writer is unable to see how anyone can fail to deplore the prospective loss of such an economically useful event, even though it may bore them personally.

These international yacht races have cost $100,000,000 on a most conservative estimate, since the inception back in the seventies, and not one dollar for profit.

No other sport has even been responsible for the circulation of as much money, without an owner or a promoter getting his hooks in somewhere—or even with an owner or a promoter cutting in.

You can lump the big fights or the world's series of the past few years, and all put together they haven't produced as much money to the general public as the yacht race at Newport. Nor have they contributed half as much to the employment of labor.

Tigers Will Win

The writer is asked his opinion of the outcome of the world's series between the Detroit Tigers and the Cardinals.

This opinion is that the Tigers will win the series hands down, even if they played the Giants or the Cards, or both put together, if that situation could be arranged.

The Detroit club is one of those slashing, dashing clubs that comes along once in a blue moon—a baseball blue moon occurring about every ten years. It has that intense spirit of combat that is essential to a real classy ball club.

Tony After Match

Tony Canzoneri will get a match with Barney Ross for the lightweight title if Tony's manager complies with the same exacting terms he imposed on Ross when Ross was seeking a title fight with Tony.

These terms included a guarantee, and an agreement for a return battle in a short time if Ross won.

Hotel Waiters Make No Fortune In Tips

LONDON, October 3 (C.P. Cable)—Those stories about veteran hotel waiters making a fortune out of tips were doused with cold water to-day in the report of an official survey of London labor.

A survey shows only a minority receive tips and these average about $15 a week for men and $6 for women. Porters, however, got more than the others.

But the report strongly advocated the abolition of tipping.

LONDON, (CP) — Pre-Victorian pieces, numbering about 10,000, vlaued at from $2.50 to $100,000, are on exhibition at the first Antique Dealers' Fair at Grosvenor Houpse, London. More than eighty dealers in antiques are exhibiting.

Ten families in Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, have cost the taxpayers $68,500 in outdoor relief, six children having been born to one family while receiving public aid.

F. J. DEYELL HEADS MILLBROOK SOCIETY

Grace Presbyterian Church Young People Hold Annual Reorganization.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, October 4.—The organization meeting of the Grace Presbyterian Church Young Peoples' Society, was held on Friday at 8 p.m., in the Sunday School Hall. The pastor, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., occupied the chair, and upon a review of the work of the past year there was gratitude to the Father for so much accomplished in His name, the chairman urging upon all present the necessity of continued interest, and co-operation.

The election of officers for the current year resulted in the following slate:

President: F. J. Deyell.
Vice-President: Jean Bothwell.
Secretary: Vanita Ingram.
Treasurer: Margaret Armstrong.
Convenors of Committees: Social, J. Bothwell; Missionary, Mrs. Fred Deyell; Membership, Ed. Williams; Devotional, Dick Williams.

After discussion, it was decided to hold the regular meetings every alternate Tuesday, at 8 p.m. The initial gathering will take the form of a social, on Tuesday, October 9.

Previous to dismissal by the pastor it was announced that a rally of the Y.P.S. of the Peterborough Presbytery will be held at St. Andrew's Church, Cobourg, during October, the exact date to be determined later.

St. Andrew's Y.P.S.

The Young People's Efficiency League of the United Church, Lakefield, to the number of more than 50, were guests of the Y.P.S. of St. Andrew's church, on Monday evening, the president of the local Society, B. B. Dawson, taking the chair for the opening business session, and the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, extending the official welcome to the visitors.

Warren Payne, president of the Y.P.E.L., of Lakefield, took the chair for the program, which was provided by the visitors, Bert Monk, president of the Peterborough Presbyterial Y.P.S., speaking briefly and announcing the convention to be held in St. James' church, Peterborough, on October 16, urging a large delegation.

The lesson was read by Miss Mary Webster, the topic, a synopsis of the "Lamplighter," (Cummings,) being cleverly presented by Miss Marian Payne. A seven-piece orchestra, with Miss Nelson at the piano, drew warm applause, the members including Mrs. Hamblyn, Mrs. Payne, Myrtle Armstrong, Messrs. W.Payne, Ralph Darling and Rev. Mr. Archer. A reading, "The Little Preacher," by Virginia Shearer, and a duet, "There's a Little Dutch Mill," by by Muriel Myles and Betty Brown, in quaint Dutch costume, won popular favor. "Puddin' Head Jones" was the recall for the latter number, and the recitation, "Nothin' to Laugh at," by Miss Phyllis Webster, also brought a demand for an encore.

A quartette, Mrs. Hamlyn, Mrs. McMillan, Messrs Payne and Higgins, sang twice to the great pleasure of the listeners, and Betty Brown, with her recitation, "Ma and the Auto," literally brought down the house. The piano duet by Miss Nelson and Mrs. Payne, was an outstanding feature, and the "Hit of 1934," when four young men (Donald Deyell, Earl Robinson, Geo. Tanner and Gerald Northey) came on the platform dressed as "Four Black Crows," and sang the popular air of that title. A solo, "Come, Come Away," by Mrs. Hull, a second number by the quartette, a solo, "The Sunshine of your Smile," by Mildred Purdy, and solos with guitar accompaniment by Ralph Darling, with a concluding selection by the orchestra, continued the enjoyment and interest of the listeners.

Gordon Muspratt moved the vote of thanks to the visiting league for the program provided, Dorothy McDowell seconding the motion which was carried with prolonged applause. A recreational period, with singing, games, under the supervision of Mr. Dawson, and the service of refreshments, completed a most enjoyable occasion. Next Monday, October 8, the Christian Fellowship Committee, Oliver Brock, convenor, will have charge. The accompanists on Monday night included Phyllis Kidd, Mrs. Payne, Miss Nelson and Miss Hendren.

ST. ANDREW'S TO CONFER FIVE HONORARY DEGREES

LONDON, Oct. 3.—(C.P.)—St. Andrew's University has decided to confer the following honorary degrees of Doctors of Law when General Smuts is installed as rector of the University on October 17:

The Earl of Athlone, formerly Governor-General and commander-in-chief of the Union of South Africa and High Commissioner of South Africa; Lord Cochrane, of Cults, a former under-secretary of state for home affairs; General J. B. M. Herzog, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa; General Smuts; and J. H. Thomas, secretary for Dominion Affairs.

1 KILLED 13 HURT IN TRUCK CRASH

Heavy Vehicle Hits Soft Shoulder, Turns Over in Ditch.

IN QUEBEC.

ST. STANISLAS DE CHAMPLAIN, Que., Oct. 4 (C.P.)—One man was dead and three were injured yesterday after a motor truck carrying them had plunged into a deep ditch four miles from here. A coroner's jury held an immediate inquest on Emile Lecours, 22, of Ste. Justine, who was fatally injured, and returned a verdict of "involuntary homicide" against Leopold Chabot, driver of the truck.

Chabot apparently lost control of the truck when the wheels struck the soft earth at the side of the road, the heavy vehicle toppling into the deep ditch.

Romeo Lecours, father of the dead man, Horace Boucard, Wilfrid Picard, Arphini St. Jean, Maurice Lussard and Florian Boucher were seriously injured. Odilon Lessard, Aime Aubert, Albe Picard, Amedee Brouchu, Theophile Chabot, Albert Jacques and David Albert, owner of the truck, escaped with cuts and bruises.

BRIDGENORTH

Selwyn Anniversary Service last Sunday evening was very successful. The church would have accommodated but a few more. The Bridgenorth choir rendered splendid music. The quartette by Mesdames Telford and Sidey, and Messrs. Sidey and Telford being especially pleasing. Rev. Dr. Reddick of Omemee, had charge of the service and addressed the large congregation.

Mrs. (Rev.) C. C. Miller is visiting with friends in Haliburton.

The teachers are attending teachers' Convention this week-end in Norwood.

Harvest Thanksgiving Services will be held next Sunday at Fairview at 9.45, Bridgenorth at 11 a.m. and Selwyn at 2 p.m.

Will the Selwyn people please note the change in the hour from 7 o'clock to 2 p.m.

The largest crowd for some years attended the fowl dinner at Selwyn on Tuesday evening. About three hundred and fifty people sat down to tables laden with an abundance of good things to eat. After dinner the Knox United Church Dramatic Club presented their three act comedy "Her Gloves," to the very large and appreciative audience.

Bridgenorth United Church are holding their fowl dinner on Thursday, Oct. 18th.

SANITY TESTS BE CONTINUED ON HAUPTMANN

Prisoner Very Sullen as Five Psychiatrists Conduct Tests.

TRIAL OPENS OCT. 11.

Special Panel of 150 Talismen Ordered Drawn for Trial.

(By Henry Cassidy)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP) — The calloused carpenter of the Bronx, Bruno Richard Hauptman, presented the same enigma to science to-day he has posed to the law.

Five psychiatrists, after subjecting the Lindbergh case prisoner to a sanity test for more than two hours, left him with the announcement the examination had not been completed and that it would be resumed to-morrow.

Witness is Sullen

A witness to the examination in a windowless room of the Bronx County Courthouse said Hauptmann maintained his sullen silence and inscrutable expression, answering questions in a monotone and rarely looking at the physicians.

Hauptmann went before the psychiatrists yesterday, soon after he had gone before Judge James M. Barrett and heard his trial set for one week from to-day.

A special panel of 150 talesmen was ordered drawn to-day, from which a jury will be chosen for the trial of the German former soldier in Bronx County on charges of extorting $50,000 in ransom from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Set Trial for Oct. 11

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley, however, qualified his request, which Judge Barrett granted over the protests of defense counsel, that the trial be set for Oct. 11. He asked that trial begin on that day, "unless some special rights of the people of the State of New Jersey interfere."

Those rights—to try Hauptmann on a charge of murder of the kidnapped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.—apparently were being insisted upon by New Jersey.

Records Available

The Bronx prosecutor was informed complete details of Hauptman's prison record in Germany would be available to him to-day as a result of the work in Kamens, Hauptmann's birthplace, of Detective Arthur Johnson.

Miss Cecil M. Barr, chasier of a Greenwich village motion picture theatre, said Hauptmann passed her a $5 gold gold note from the Lindbergh ransom money as far back as last Nov. 26.

This contradicted the story of Hauptmann the ransom cache found in his garage was given to him by a friend, Isadore Fisch who died recently in Germany, and that he learned only a month ago that the package contained money.

Miss Barr watched [illegible] as he stood [illegible] unworried court.

"That's [illegible] phatically, cognized [illegible] deep-set eyes.

GORILLA DAVIS SENTENCE ECHO OF PURPLE MOB

Once Trigger Man of Famous Detroit Gang is Hopelessly Mad.

UNDERWORLD RULERS

DETROIT, Oct 4. — An echo of the days when the "Purple Gang" dominated the local underworld was the commitment Saturday of Sam Davis to the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Ionia.

Should he recover he may be brought back to face trial, but three doctors have said that he will grow progressively worse.

Davis, known as "Stinky," "Nit-wit" and "Gorilla," was at the height of his career a typical trigger man of the lowest levels of gangdom. He is 5 feet in height, with thick, blubbery lips, squint eyes, a flattened nose.

He was entirely willing to bear arms in any cause, for money, and was, according to his own statements, "muscle man" for the Purples on occasion.

War on Williams

Davis was arrested in New Rochelle, N.Y., where he was working at a gas station, and brought to Detroit for the killing of Harry Gold in the holdup of a blind pig operated by Gene Williams.

Davis talked freely of the shooting of Gold, also a "Purple," and declared that Abe Axler and Eddie Fletcher, important figures in the gang, engineered the holdup which accidentally resulted in Gold's death.

Williams, who printed his own gin labels, waged a one-man war against the Purples who claimed a monopoly of fake liquor labels. At one time Williams carried a gun by police permit after repeated attempts on his life. Three men were killed in shootings intended to wipe out Williams.

Gold 'Finger Man'

Davis with Axler and Fletcher, both of whom were "taken for a ride" shortly before repeal, went to Williams' place to put him out of business, according to Davis' testimony.

Gold was drinking in the place as the "finger man" of the mob. To make the holdup staged by Axler, Fletcher and Davis seem plausible, Go'd's gun was taken from him when the customers were lined up and opened fire. Gold was carried off, mortally wounded, and the police determined that the bullet that killed him was fired by Davis.

Davis has been arrested many times, and once wounded by a policeman in a store robbery. He is 26 years old. He says that he was offered $150 to get rid of Williams.

GIVES BIBLE PLAY IN MODERN JARGON

London Critic Says Talk in New Drinkwater Will Jar Some People.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (C.P.).—Whether John Drinkwater has not gone too far in "his modern colloquialisms" is the question brought up by a critic of the playwright's new production, "A Man's House," now showing in London. The play deals with the reactions of a family in Jerusalem to the coming of Christ to their city. It is noted Mr. Drinkwater has tightened up the play somewhat since its production in Malvern, and "has sought to give a clearly detached view of the situation."

The critic continues:

"'Gospel me foot' for example, however reasonable an equivalent it may be for the language a hot-headed young business man would use when he found an apparent agitator upsetting the community, will jar upon some people."

Allowing for passages of arid talk, the theme is treated interestingly, the critic declares.

"Mr. Drinkwater lets the miracle of restoring the blind girl's sight produce its own dramatic effect without stressing it by immoderate language," it is stated. "His restraint emphasizes the realism, too, of the last scene, wherein the father of the household—'a month ago a rational contented household,' but now disrupted by the visitation—looks from his window and sees the Nazarene, crucified and buried three days before, following the deserters from his house up the hill to Bethany.

"This provocative if not entirely satisfactory play is extremely well acted.

"Joyce Bland plays the bad-tempered blind daughter who acquires a Christian sweetness after her sight is restored by the healing hands of the Saviour; and Patricia Burke makes a notably good first West-End appearance as her sister.

"Basil Radford gives conviction to the troubled emotions of the head of the family; Reginald Tate is the impetuous dogmatic son who has no patience with these interrupters of business; and Scott Sunderland and Stanley Lathbury are among the others who give admirable performances."

LONDON, (CP)—The British tobacco trade pays $500,000 duty every week on raw material in the bonding houses, it was announced in connection with the recent tobacco exhibition.

DONCASTER, England (CP) — Owing to improvement in the coal industry the miners here took only four days off for the recent St. Leger race meeting instead of the customery week.

SANITY TESTS BE CONTINUED ON HAUPTMANN

Prisoner Very Sullen as Five Psychiatrists Conduct Tests.

TRIAL OPENS OCT. 11.

Special Panel of 150 Talismen Ordered Drawn for Trial.

(By Henry Cassidy)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP) — The callousest carpenter of the Bronx, Bruno Richard Hauptman, presented the same enigma to science to-day he has posed to the law.

Five psychiatrists, after subjecting the Lindbergh case prisoner to a sanity test for more than two hours, left him with the announcement the examination had not been completed and that it would be resumed to-morrow.

Witness Is Sullen

A witness to the examination in a windowless room of the Bronx County Courthouse said Hauptmann maintained his sullen silence and inscrutable expression, answering questions in a monotone and rarely looking at the physicians.

Hauptmann went before the psychiatrists yesterday, soon after he had gone before Judge James M. Barrett and heard his trial set for one week from to-day.

A special panel of 150 talesmen was ordered drawn to-day, from which a jury will be chosen for the trial of the German former soldier in Bronx County on charges of extorting $50,000 in ransom from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

Set Trial for Oct. 11

District Attorney Samuel J. Foley, however, qualified his request, which Judge Barrett granted over the protests of defense counsel, that the trial be set for Oct. 11. He asked that trial begin on that day, "unless some special rights of the people of the State of New Jersey interfere."

Those rights—to try Hauptmann on a charge of murder of the kidnapped Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.—apparently were being insisted upon by New Jersey.

Records Available

The Bronx prosecutor was informed complete details of Hauptman's prison record in Germany would be available to him to-day as a result of the work in Kamens, Hauptmann's birthplace, of Detective Arthur Johnson.

Miss Cecil M. Barr, chasier of a Greenwich village motion picture theatre, said Hauptmann passed her a $5 gold gold note from the Lindbergh ransom money as far back as last Nov. 26.

This contradicted the story of Hauptmann the ransom cache found in his garage was given to him by a friend, Isadore Fisch who died recently in Germany, and that he learned only a month ago that the package contained money.

Miss Barr watched Hauptmann as he stood, fresh and seemingly unworried, in the Bronx county court.

"That's the man," she said emphatically, asserting that she recognized him especially by his deep-set eyes.

GORILLA DAVIS SENTENCE ECHO OF PURPLE MOB

Once Trigger Man of Famous Detroit Gang is Hopelessly Mad.

UNDERWORLD RULERS

DETROIT, Oct 4. — An echo of the days when the "Purple Gang" dominated the local underworld was the commitment Saturday of Sam Davis to the State Hospital for the Criminal Insane at Ionia.

Should he recover he may be brought back to face trial, but three doctors have said that he will grow progressively worse.

Davis, known as "Stinky," "Nit-wit" and "Gorilla," was at the height of his career a typical trigger man of the lowest levels of gangdom. He is 5 feet in height, with thick, blubbery lips, squint eyes, a flattened nose.

He was entirely willing to bear arms in any cause, for money, and was, according to his own statements, "muscle man" for the Purples on occasion.

War on Williams

Davis was arrested in New Rochelle, N.Y., where he was working at a gas station, and brought to Detroit for the killing of Harry Gold in the holdup of a blind pig operated by Gene Williams.

Davis talked freely of the shooting of Gold, also a "Purple," and declared that Abe Axler and Eddie Fletcher, important figures in the gang, engineered the holdup which accidentally resulted in Gold's death.

Williams, who printed his own gin labels, waged a one-man war against the Purples who claimed a monopoly of fake liquor labels. At one time Williams carried a gun by police permit after repeated attempts on his life. Three men were killed in shootings intended to wipe out Williams.

Gold 'Finger Man'

Davis with Axler and Fletcher, both of whom were "taken for a ride" shortly before repeal, went to Williams' place to put him out of business, according to Davis' testimony.

Gold was drinking in the place as the "finger man" of the mob. To make the holdup staged by Axler, Fletcher and Davis seem plausible, Gold's gun was taken from him when the customers were lined up and opened fire. Gold was carried off, mortally wounded, and the police determined that the bullet that killed him was fired by Davis.

Davis has been arrested many times, and once wounded by a policeman in a store robbery. He is 26 years old. He says that he was offered $150 to get rid of Williams.

GIVES BIBLE PLAY IN MODERN JARGON

London Critic Says Talk in New Drinkwater Will Jar Some People.

LONDON, Oct. 4 (C.P.).—Whether John Drinkwater has not gone too far in "his modern colloquialisms" is the question brought up by a critic of the playwright's new production, "A Man's House," now showing in London. The play deals with the reactions of a family in Jerusalem to the coming of Christ to their city. It is noted Mr. Drinkwater has tightened up the play somewhat since its production in Malvern, and "has sought to give a clearly detached view of the situation."

The critic continues:

"'Gospel me foot' for example, however reasonable an equivalent it may be for the language a hot-headed young business man would use when he found an apparent agitator upsetting the community, will jar upon some people."

Allowing for passages of arid talk, the theme is treated interestingly, the critic declares.

"Mr. Drinkwater lets the miracle of restoring the blind girl's sight produce its own dramatic effect without stressing it by immoderate language," it is stated. "His restraint emphasizes the realism, too, of the last scene, wherein the father of the household—'a month ago a rational contented household,' but now disrupted by the visitation—looks from his window and sees the Nazarene, crucified and buried three days before, following the deserters from his house up the hill to Bethany.

"This provocative if not entirely satisfactory play is extremely well acted.

"Joyce Bland plays the bad-tempered blind daughter who acquires a Christian sweetness after her sight is restored by the healing hands of the Saviour; and Patricia Burke makes a notably good first West-End appearance as her sister.

"Basil Radford gives conviction to the troubled emotions of the head of the family; Reginald Tate is the impetuous dogmatic son who has no patience with these interrupters of business; and Scott Sunderland and Stanley Lathbury are among the others who give admirable performances."

LONDON, (CP)—The British tobacco trade pays $500,000 duty every week on raw material in the bonding houses, it was announced in connection with the recent tobacco exhibition.

DONCASTER, England (CP) — Owing to improvement in the coal industry the miners here took only four days off for the recent St. Leger race meeting instead of the customery week.

"GERMANS ARE ALL RIGHT" SAYS RESIDENT OF PASSCHENDAELE

Clung to Cellar While Whole City Pounded to Dust Heap.

DENIES ATROCITIES.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

PASSCHENDAELE, Oct. 3.—The spot where I sit writing these lines, the Mosselmarkt of Passchendaele, was an unrecognisable heap of pulverised masonry when the Canadian troops first entered the town. If ever it could be said that a place was destroyed to the extent that not one stone was left on the other, it certainly was this little burg from which, incidentally, my ancestors took their name. To-day everything is new and spick and span on this Mosselmarkt into which the Canadian artillery blasted the heaviest charges of the war for days and weeks prior to its capture by the sixth brigade (I think it was) which had precisely this Mosselmarkt as its objective. When our infantry finally arrived, where I am sitting now after wading waist-high through that ooze and slime which wounded men sank away to be smothered and which even sucked the jack-boots off the feet of the German soldiers, through murderous machine gun enfilades, flesh-tearing barbed-wire and heavy barrages, sowing dead men every step of the way, when they finally arrived here, not a house remained standing. Everything had been pounded into dust.

"Germans Were All Right"

Only in the mill, in the communal school and in the vaulted cellar of the brewery some resistance was put up. How the Germans, encountered there, had survived the thunderstorms is a mystery. It was not expected that a living creature had come through. And yet besides the crews of those machine gun nests, who were part of a so-called "sacrifice battalion," there was one other man who survived that holocaust. He never left Passchendaele even when nothing remained standing. That man is still alive. I saw him to-day. He is an old citizen, 78 years of age, who was pointed out to me as a curiosity. It took some time to get him to talk, for he turned out to be a grim and dour and bitter old fellow with a thousand-wrinkle face, who, moreover, distrusted strangers, as well he might, and deaf in the bargain. His story was none the less remarkable.

"You have not only gone through hell,' I said when I had finally cornered him, "you actually lived in hell!"

"When?" he asked.

"Three years of German occupation so near to the front, within a stone's throw, so to speak of the Ypres salient, where hundreds of thousands of men perished, wasn't that hell?"

"It was not!" he said curtly. "The Germans were all right. They didn't destroy Passchendaele. They allowed me to stay in my cellar. It was the others who tried to drive me out."

"The others? You mean the Canadians?"

"I don't know who they were. I never asked who they were. I don't care now who they were. They had no business here."

"They were concerned for your safety I imagine," I said. "That's probably why they asked you to save your cellar!"

Opposed to War

"Were they?" he asked cynically, "were they? Well, how nice of them. But I didn't ask them for protection."

"Didn't they chase the Germans out of your country?"

"Did they now?" he mocked. "Well, well, what are you telling me? How kind of them?"

"You are against war and every form of militarism, I take it," I said, ignoring his sarcasm, "but what are we to do when attacked?"

"Read the Evangel, you'll find the answer there!" he snapped.

"I have done that," I said, "I think I know the answer; we are supposed to turn the other cheek, aren't we?"

"Suit yourself," he answered. "Do as your conclence tells you. It's none of my business what you do!"

"I should think that you as a man of Flanders looked upon the war as a defensive war. Your country was invaded."

"Young fellow,' the old man spoke up angrily, "you waste your time around here. Your kletspraatjes (drivel) we have read in all the papers. You had better be on your way wherever you are going, which is none of my business."

"I much prefer talking with you," I said. "How is it you managed to stay in Passchendaele all those years? And how did you eat? Were you not afraid in that cellar as house after house collapsed?"

Trembled When Germans Came

"I was afraid only once," he replied, talking very slowly, and cooling off a little from his burst of anger. "That was in '14, when the Germans were marching into Passchendaele. Nearly everybody had left, but I had a sick cow and I couldn't leave. I had bolted the windows and doors of the house when they arrived. One night I heard the steps of marching soldiers in our street and then I trembled. It was going towards evening. My wife, who was still living at the time, was praying, but I kept watch behind the door. I had a hatchet in my hand. The first man who'd show his head, I thought, I will knock his brains out. So I waited, but I trembled just the same because I had heard all kinds of stories about the Germans cutting the breasts off women and carrying the bodies of little children on their bayonets. The perspiration was streaming over my eyes as I stood behind the door when suddenly there was a loud pounding. I stood shaking in my boots. At last I threw the door open. I was ready to die.

"A man wearing a pointed helmet faced me. 'Guten abend!' he said and he talked some more. I understood very little German at the time, but I understood 'guten abend,' because that is 'goeden avond' in our own language. So I motioned him to come in. He wiped his feet on the mat and came into the parlor. He wanted water. I gave him some beer. He went out later and brought others. After that I had always Germans quartered in my house. I began to know them by name. I began to inquire: 'How is so and so, who stayed with me last month? 'Dead' they would tell me, or 'wounded.' We talked of the war freely. They did not like the war, any more than our own piottekens (little soldiers). Sometimes I met one who boasted that Germany was going to conquer the world. 'You take Ypres first,' I used to tell them, 'and we'll see about the world later.' That used to rile them a bit.

Friendly With Germans

"So the war dragged along. I sold milk and eggs to the soliders and watched them go and come. I saw endless streams of wounded men going right through this town, men with pale faces, who said nothing, others yelling with pain. I saw it all and I said nothing. I looked upon them as victims, helpless victims as much as our own piottekens and the poilus of the French and the lads from England. Poor fellows, all! Cannon-fodder here and heroes at home. But what they are called at home doesn't matter. It's here they died like flies. In the meantime my wife fell ill and she died in spite of the good care of the German doctor.

"Well, then the shells started to come over and whoever had remained in Passchendael left. My house was hit several times. Finally it collapsed. All the cows were killed. The chickens died. The pigs ran away one night when a shell knocked the door off their sty.... and so I was left all alone. I sat in my cellar under the ruins of my house, fourteen months long.

"Then one day, as I crawled out of my hole, to get a fresh supply of water, I ran bang into a German soldier, whose face was streaming blood. 'Ach, Herr Duyne,' he said to me, 'help me!' I recognised the voice. It was the German who had been the first to knock at my door in '14. I did not recognise his face. He had grown a beard. His uniform was in tatters. Later I earned that he belonged to a 'sacrifice' unit which had been ordered to hold on to Passchendaele, or whatever was left of it, at all costs."

"'Help me!' he moaned. 'I can't go any further. All the others have been bayoneted at the brewery'....

Helped Wounded Enemy

"I dragged him into my cellar and helped him wash. He had a gaping wound in the chin and I helped him clean it with his small package of iodine and bandage. When the 'others' came and went poking into every heap of ashes with their guns they came to my cellar. If they had found my German they would have killed him. They were in a killing mood. They brushed me aside shouting that I was a Flemish spy. That left me cold, because they didn't know what they were saying. All I worried about was my German under the bricks and stones where I had hidden him. Fortunately they didn't find him. They left me for a time, but then came back to tell me that I had to get out of my cellar.

"I told them: 'You may own the British Empire but this cellar is mine and I will stay where I am'."

"In what language did you speak, do you know English?"

"No, I don't know English, I spoke to them in Flemish."

"Did they understand that?" What did they answer?"

"They just laughed."

"But you stayed?"

"Yes, I did, they forgot about me no doubt."

"And the German?"

Still Visits Town

"He lived. He's still living. Here's a letter from him." He pulled a wrinkled piece of paper from his pocket and gave it to me to read.

"He says he is coming up to visit you in November?" I said glancing over the epistle.

"Yes, he comes every year. We all like him in Passchendaele!"

"Now," he spoke up, "tell me what you are doing here!"

"Visiting the old places," I said. "The battlefields, the rebuilt towns and villages."

"Wished I could go with you," he replied.

"Why not come along?"

"I can't come," he said. "I have two cows and some chickens and pigs.... but I tell you what you can do. If ever you meet a woman whose breasts were cut off by the Germans or someone who has really seen a little child, seen, I mean, not just heard about a case like that, for we have all heard stories of that kind, carried on a bayonet by a German soldier, write me about it and give me the address!"

You seem to doubt the old atrocity stories?" I said. "Still the late Cardinal Mercier himself said...."

"Never mind what he said, tell me what he saw!"

"I don't know what he saw," I had to admit.

"Well, don't come to me with old wives kletspraatjes (drivel)!"

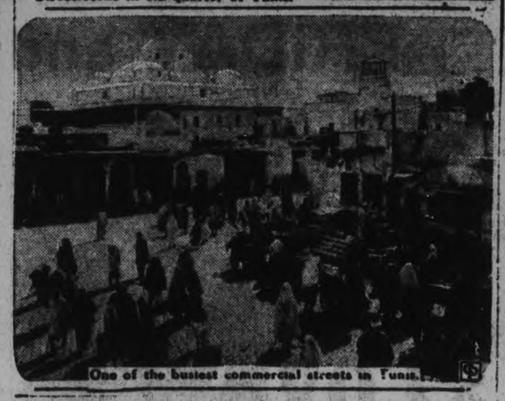
"I could see that he was starting to boil again. So, I wished him "Christ be with you," in the Flemish style.

That mellowed him again. "And with you, and with you," he replied in a friendly tone, and as a parting shot he added: "You need it!"

KNOW YOUR WORLD

TUNIS

Street scene in old quarter of Tunis.



One of the busiest commercial streets in Tunis.

By Central Press Canadian.

DESCRIPTIVE—Tunis, capital of the French protectorate of Tunisia, Africa, is near the Lake of Tuns, about three miles from the ruins of ancient Carthage. The lake communicates with the Gulf of Tunis, an inlet of the Mediterranean. The population is 202,405, of which 33,647 are French and 46,467 Italians.

HISTORICAL— In ancient days the city was known as Tunes, and it was a Carthagian city, mentioned frequently in connection with the Punic wars. The city was successively under the rule of Rome, Byzantine, the Arabs, France, Turkey and again France.

COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY—Tunis is the commercial centre of the state, and carries on important trade with Europe and central Africa. Shawls and silk and wool tapestries, mantles, burnooses, caps, turbans, colored cloths, leather, soap, wax and olive oil are manufactured articles. These are exported, as are grain, fruit, cattle, fish, ivory, gold dust, coral and phosphates.

POINTS OF INTEREST — The bazaars are well furnished, though the streets are narrow and dirty. The palace of the bey, who now happens to be Sidi Ahmed, is the finest building in Tunis. The mosques, particularly the Mosque of Yussuf, are splendid. The citadel, begun by Charles V and completed by Don John of Austria, has a good collection of old arms. There are a Mohammedan university and a national museum of arts and antiquities. An ancient aqueduct, restored, furnishes the city with water.

LIFE NOW HARDER FOR MIDDLE-AGED

Younger Women Preferred to Experienced in Domestic Service.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (C.P.).—Jobless women of 40, though of proven ability and in good health, find it very difficult to get employment these days, it is pointed out by Mrs. M. Renshaw, superintendent of the Sheltering Home here.

The middle-aged woman may have raised a family and run a household for 20 years but even in the domestic field she finds her logical place filled by younger women. Employers sometimes say they prefer the younger woman as domestics because "they can train them in their own ways." More and more, the calls are coming in for the younger woman for household work.

"It would almost seem," said Mrs. Renshaw, "that the work of the Sheltering Home is becoming that of an Old People's Home. Last year there were 15 admitted of more than 50 years of age, eight were more than 60 and four were more than 70. It is becoming increasingly difficult to find any satisfactory arrangement for these women."

Older women may have children who refuse to support them. "The war ruined the morale of a lot of men," Mrs. Renshaw said. "The depression, too, has contributed to the distress of the older woman. Many of them have been well-to-do, have capably run their homes and brought up families." To-day, without means, they look for jobs which they cannot find."

Hauptmann—Before And After Grilling

1,000 Free Bicycles To Be Given Away

Joe E. Brown, the star in the forthcoming Warner Brothers' picture, "6-Day Bike Rides," and the Quaker Oats Company are giving away 1,000 free bicycles to children.

All the boys and girls have to do is to write 25 words or less in answer to the question, "What mothers thinks of Quaker Oats," and send it in to the Quaker Oats Company, Peterborough, with two trade marks cut from Quaker Oats packages. The best answers in the opinion of the judges get the bicycles free.

This contest, which closes November 15th, is open to everyone, and the entries will be judged purely on merit and not on fancy writing or big words.

JAPANESE WOMEN ARE EMERGING FROM SPIC AND SPAN HOMES

See More Distant Horizons in Fields of Commerce and Industry.

WOMEN OF THE FAR EAST.

TOKYO, Oct. 4 (A.P.).—Japanese women are emerging from their spic and span houses of wood and paper, and to-day they see more distant horizons in the fields of commerce and industry.

They have jobs. The traditional restrictions on their social lives are loosening up to a marked extent. In this mighty little empire, where formerly all marriages were "arranged" by parents, there are now an increasing number of marriages in which love does all the arranging.

But in such matters as concern the feminism of other lands the little women of Japan are far behind, and seemingly make no progress.

Suffrage Movement Dead.

The movement to obtain the vote for women has been suspended—forgotten in the great surge of nationalistic emotion which has swept the empire. Since the conquest of Manchuria three years ago, Japan has been too busy to get excited about women's rights.

The change in the mind of Genji Matsuda, an astute politician who is Minister of Education, illustrated the set-back suffered by the suffrage movement. He is a leader of the Minseito, the more Liberal of the two great political parties, and up to 1931 was one of the warmest supporters of a movement to grant a modified suffrage to women. But a change has come over the nation and Mr. Matsuda recently said:

"Japanese women should stay at home and look after domestic affairs. It is out of the question to give them the vote. Women are simply hideous these days. They get their hair bobbed, and many even bleach it and look like foreigners."

But Mr. Matsuda's reproving words do not stop the hair bobbing and standards of dress, beauty, taste and mental attitudes are changing inexorably. Deep social and economic forces are driving towards emancipation.

Working in Mills.

Nearly a million women have left their secluded homes to work in textile mills. Half a million more women are in other forms of industry.

Thus far, in spite of feeble beginnings of a birth control movement, it has not been necessary for the war lords to teach women that their highest duty is to produce sons to serve the Fatherland. The birth-rate, although declining, is still higher here than in the principal Western Nations.

Still Man's World.

Nanking, in China, for the most part, it's still a man's world. But here in the national capital women have made a real beginning in shaking off the shackles of tradition. As a consequence of the sponsorship of the women's movement by the Kuomintang, the National Party, women in increasing numbers are entering fields once monopolized by men.

Most significant is the feminine touch being imparted to government. Once denied the privilege of even talking about national affairs, women to-day are holding jobs in every department of justice.

Shanghai, an imported phrase, "Ladies first," is making an impression in this section of China.

The Chinese women of the old school still walks a few feet behind her husband on the street. But the modern woman is abreast of him, on the street and socially and intellectually.

Chiang Kai-Shek, China's Dictator, is appealing to the nation's women to take more prominent parts in all phases of the nation's life. True, in launching his "new life movement," he instructed them not to split their skirts, smoke cigarettes or powder their faces. But this admonition apparently has had little effect.

Women in China may not vote, but it is said that the person who exerts the greatest influence on Dictator Chian Kai-Shek in all things is a woman, his wife. Mme. Chiang formerly was Mei-Ling Soong.

(The next article of this series, to be published to-morrow, will sketch the status of feminism in England, France, Spain, Ireland and the Netherlands).

Diamond is Found Embedded in Heel

BLUFFTON, O., Oct. 4 (CP)—Mrs. Charles Montgomery lost the diamond setting, valued at $350, out of her ring the other day.

Josephine Klay, 16, went to a shoe shop to have a shoe repaired. As she took off her shoe and handed it to the repair man, she found Mrs. Montgomery's diamond imbedded in her rubber heel. Josephine received a substantial reward.

REBEKAH LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS

Mrs. Lily Wilson is Installed as Noble Grand of Local Lodge.

Installation of officers for the Rebekah Lodge of the I.O.O.F. took place in the lodge rooms on Monday evening, with ceremonies in charge of the District Deputy President, Mrs. Hazel Heckman, and her staff. The new officers, who were conducted to their places by the District Deputy Marshall, Mrs. Flossie Holston, are as follows:

Mrs. Lily Wilson, Noble Grand; Mrs. Nellie Beatty, Vice Grand; Mrs. Effie Morton, P.G., recording secretary; Miss Leta Booth, financial secretary; Mrs. Flossie Mowry, P.G., treasurer; Mrs. Harry Zacks, pianiste; Mrs. Sybil, Inside Guard; Mr. C. Wylie, D.D.G.M., Outside Guard; Mrs. Rita Holgate, Past Grand; Miss Irene Throop, Warden; Miss Leona Wright, Conductor; Miss Blanche Hamilton, Chaplain; Mrs. Hazel Heckman, P.G., Right Support of Noble Grand; Miss May Caird, P.G., Left Support of Noble Grand; Mrs. Watson, Right Support of Vice Grand; Mrs. Emily Blade, Left Support of Vice Grand.

At the conclusion of the business and installation ceremonies, Mrs. Heckman was presented with a beautiful silver flower basket, in appreciation of her work and loyalty, Mrs. F. Martin making the presentation with an address by Mrs. Londerville.

Mrs. Rita Holgate was presented with a lovely white gold necklace, in appreciation of her work, and also received a collar and jewel from Mrs. Heckman, District Deputy President.

Mrs. Heckman, making a suitable reply, thanged the officers for their support during the past year and asked for the same loyalty to the new Noble Grand.

A visitor to the Lodge was Mrs. Dowd of Crystal Star Lodge at Watertown, N.Y.

At the close, dainty refreshments were served in the dining room.

Tonight, Mrs. Hazel Heckman and her staff go to Havelock, to instal new officers there.

OTONABEE CHAPTER OF I.O.D.E. MEETS

Mrs. Bert Jackson Gives Account of Provincial Convention of Order.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. held on Wednesday afternoon in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A., the Regent, Mrs. Bert Jackson, gave a very interesting review of the proceedings of the Provincial convention of the Order, in Hamilton. At its close, an appreciative vote of thanks was tendered the Regent.

It was decided to place a wreath, as usual, on the Cenotaph on Armistice Day.

A letter of thanks was received from the Peterborough Health Association, for donation for cots at the Children's Camp at Jackson Park.

The Chapter is assisting several pupils to attend the Collegiate Institute this year and will also assist with the tag day for the Shelter.

Mrs. W. A. Davern and Mrs. A. E. Dryland were appointed as councillors for the month of October, and will be in charge of two bridge parties which will be held at the home of Mrs. Davern, Maitland Avenue, on October 24th and 25th.

Mrs. Kerr Re-elected President of W.C.T.U.

STRATFORD, Ont., October 4 (C.P.). — The Women's Christian Temperance Union of the Province of Ontario re-elected Mrs. F. T. Kerr, of Ottawa, as president at this morning's session of its annual meeting. Other officers elected to support Mrs. Kerr are: Mrs. L. L. Reddick, Toronto, vice-president; Mrs. J. S. MacLean, Ottawa; Mrs. S. R. Davey, Chesley, recording secretary; Mrs. John Wright, Brantford, treasurer. These were also re-elected. There were 152 registered delegates present, according to the report of Mrs. MacLean, corresponding secretary. The appropriations submitted by Mrs. J. H. Rowe of Peterborough were recommended.

Bright Orbs Need Reconditioning In the Autumn, Claudette Opines

Claudette Colbert

The glamorous Claudette Colbert, whose dark, velvety orbs are considered just about the most beautiful in the whole of Hollywood, claims that at this time of the year, most gals' eyes need a bit of reconditioning. According to Claudette, girls too often neglect to give their orbs proper protection during the summer season. And they find, when this season ends, that they have reaped a crop of very unlovely little lines about their eyes.

Claudette's perfectly right about that, of course. The summer's heat dries up the sensitive tissues about the eyes. The bright glare of the summer sun causes squinting. And squinting draws up the skin into a thousand creases and wrinkles. If the skin is supple and well nourished, these lines will disappear when the face is in repose. But if the skin is dry and undernourished because of over-exposure to sunshine, each time that you squint, the lines will become more deeply etched, and will leave a most unattractive network of wrinkles about your eyes.

Such lines can be erased only by improving the condition of the tissues themselves by daily nourishment. La nolin is an excellent cream for this purpose. A good, rich cold cream or nourishing cream may also be used. Either type of cream may be applied several times a week or, if preferred, nightly before retiring. And the chosen cream should be permitted to remain on the delicate skin about the eyes over night.

If you've acquired a crop of wrinkles about your eyes during the summertime, begin at once to repair the damage. Use your chosen lubricant with unfailing regularity. And be careful of the manner in which you apply the cream. The chosen cream should be patted very gently on the under-eye skin with the tip of one finger. And care should be taken that this delicate skin is not rubbed roughly, else it will be come loosened and stretched, and the wrinkles will become deeper and more numerous. The proper use of a rich cream on the sensitive under-eye skin, however, will restore the oils that give the skin elasticity, and will bring nourishment to the worn and impoverished cells.

MATRONS! MAKE YOUR OWN HOUSE FROCK

Quick! You can make it in about two hours. What is more, it's a model that adapts itself to almost any of the new cottons, linen prints and tub silks.

Twin prints in novelty pique in blue and white were responsible for this charming and inexpensive slenderizing dress.

Yellow linen with brown trim, cloud-pink tub silk, pink and white candy strike seersucker, etc., are other fascinating schemes.

Style No. 2693 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ¼ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

NEW LOAN TOTAL IS $101,500,000

Mr. Rhodes, "is that we are finding an unusually large number of cash subscriptions in proportion to conversion subscriptions received. The exact opposite should have been the case. This leads me to wonder whether perhaps the masses of the people holding victory bonds understand as do experienced investors, bankers and bond dealers and business men. What is meant by 'converting bonds and what is meant when a government 'refunds' a loan.

"I wish to offer this explanation. When the Government refunds a loan, it means that instead of paying off holders of maturing bonds in cash, they re-borrow the money for another period, that is, in the case of this year's refunding loan for two, five, eight or 15 years. To 'convert' 1919 victory bonds simply means to exchange them for bonds of the new loan—to refend the capital to the Government."

Large Subscribers

Among the large subscriptions recorded to-day were: Great West Life Assurance Company, Winnipeg, $500,000; National Fire Insurance Company, Hartford, Conn., $100,000; Law Union and Rock Insurance Company, Montreal, $90,000; Parke Davis and Company, Walkerville, Ont., $50,000 and Henderson, Barwick, Company, Limited, Montreal, $20,000.

CONSERVATIVES ASK FOR REFORM

form of an official White Paper under consideration by the joint committee pending Parliamentary action. He introduced a resolution declaring that while the Conservative party was prepared to support proposals for a greater measure of self-government in the provinces of India, step by step, in recorded "its emphatic opinion that the partnership between Britain and India in the Central Government of the Indian Empire must not be dissolved."

Amendment Moved

Alderman Inskip of Bristol moved an amendment, that the conference should not express an opinion until the Joint Select Committee had reported.

Page-Croft warmly refused to be "muzzled by an amendment." It asked them, he said, "to put our consciences in the hands of the Joint Select Committee."

After more speeches, closure was moved, and carried. Then, on a show of hands Miss Regina Evans, who presided, declared the Inskip amendment was carried, but she admitted the voting was very close.

Lord Wolmer and Sir Henry Page-Croft, backed by a large number of die-hards, demanded a ballot, and the conference finally agreed to this.

The ballot resulted in this vote:
For the Inskip amendment 583
Against 520

The amendment was declared carried; a decision on India in the party platform was deferred; and opponents of the White Paper policy wildly cheered the result.

BRISTOL, England, Oct. 4.—(C.P. Cable)—The double menace of socialism and war dominated today's opening sitting of the annual conference of the Conservative party.

By a resolution adopted with a majority so large as to constitute virtual unanimity, the conference called on the government to submit proposals for reform of the House of Lords to parliament "at once" and recorded its "grave anxiety" over provisions made for imperial defence.

The Lords reform contemplated is the strengthening of its control over socialistic legislation. The resolution as moved by Viscount Wolmer and adopted by the party confines itself to such reform of the Upper House and amendment of the Parliament Act "as may rescue the constitution from its present dangerous position, before dissolution takes place."

Buttress Against Socialism

But it was of the House of Lords as a buttress against socialism that successive delegates spoke. Lord Wolmer declared the socialists had made clear that if they were returned to power, their first act would be to abolish the House of Lords. They had made clear, he said, that they would not use the cumbrous methods of the Parliament Act to secure passage of their legislation they would use the royal prerogative to swamp the second chamber.

"To leave the constitution in its present position," Lord Wolmer argued, "is to put the monarchy and the nation in an impossible position."

As the constitution stands today he continued, the socialists "can effect a revolution with perfect legality. It is our duty to see that the law is such that no fundamental change can be made unless the will of the people really demands it. "It is the duty of the government, and the government alone to frame a plan . . . to give the second chamber an effective voice, to see that the will of the people is not side-tracked."

Henry Purser, from Monmouth, Wales, envisaged the Labor program as bringing the Crown into the melting-pot. There was a deep feeling of dissatisfaction that the Government had not tackled the problem before now, he said. Apathy would become bitter resentment unless something was done.

On Brink of Volcano

"We stand on the brink of a volcano" commented another speaker. If the people elected a Socialist Government, it would be no case of Socialism "with a teaspoon." (The Labor party convention at Southport this week was promised by the executive the next Lebor Government would be very different from the last one).

W. A. Ball of Deritend, Birmingham, had an amendment declaring the electorate showed little interest in the future of the House of Lords "which as at present constituted is functioning very well," urging it was better for the peers to submit their own proposals for reform. "We have no right to saddle the National Government with so controversial a measure," Ball argued. But his amendment accrued less than a dozen votes and the main motion passed with slight opposition.

Defence Resolution

Lord Lloyd, celebrated die-hard, who was formerly High Commissioner for Egypt, moved the defence resolution. As submitted, it read, "That this conference desires to record its grave anxiety over the inadequacy made for imperial defence.

Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, suggested the addition of these words, used at a previous conference by Winston Churchill: "and assures the Chancellor of the Exchequer that heavy as are its burdens, it prefers the security and safety of our native land above all other benefits.

Lord Lloyd accepted the addition and the motion, as amended, carried with only one dissentient.

Lord Lloyd declared that mastery of the seas had been "cozened out of us at successive conference." Britain's naval position, both actually and relatively, had become worse even than a year ago, he said. She now had a paltry 50 cruisers, many of them old and outworn. Yet she had scraped barely through the Great War with 127 cruisers.

Want No London Treaty.

If the Government sheltered itself behind the London navy treaty, then "our reply is that we want no London treaty, nor any treaty which precludes our power to defend ourselves," he said.

Mr. Chamberlain revealed that the Government with the assistance of the authorities best able to judge, had already examined the whole position of defence. "We have not made public the details of our plans," he said; "indeed, they may have to be modified as time requires.

"But we believe we have struck a balance between undue and excessively panicky haste on the one hand, and apathy which may lead to dangerous consequences on the other." (The Government recently announced it would add 50 squadrons to the R.A.F.).

Another resolution which was adopted, expressing confidence in the National Government, brought pleas for a vigorous and progressive policy. "I am afraid that if we went on the Conservative ticket alone," said Alderman Timberlake of Watford, "that we should lose."

A further resolution on agriculture asked for tariffs on foreign livestock in addition to the present import restriction. Major S. E. Harvey of Devon, a Member of Parliament, moved the resolution with the declaration the position of the land-owner as well as the farmer and the farm laborer should be improved.

"Those who have inherited land, or have invested money in land, thinking it good security," he argued, "should not be excluded from any benefits in agriculture."

Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, supported the resolution, declaring the agricultural laborer for one should have a 'fair whack' out of what the agricultural industry could be made to pay.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

A seven-year-old negro girl, unconscious following a series of convulsions, was brought into a Baltimore hospital. Not long after another child aged ten, with similar symptoms, entered another hospital not far away. In tracing the cause of these two attacks of illness, one of the most pathetic of the depression stories was revealed.

The first step was to determine the diagnosis, which was not easy because the stuporous condition of the patients prevented obtaining a history of the first symptoms and of activities which might have been the cause. But finally, by blood tests and examination of the spinal fluid, it was determined that the cause was lead poisoning.

Lead poisoning, especially in children, causes changes in the brain and meninges resulting in convulsions and unconsciousness. In children the usual cause of lead poisoning is eating the paint of the bed, crib or toys.

A visit to the home of one of the patients failed to show any evidence of the usual sources of lead. Several members of the family were sick also, however, and a neighbor who helped the doctors investigate every room and article of furniture in the house finally made the suggestion that led to the true solution.

He wondered if they could get sick from burning pieces of old batteries. "The smell was bad, even made the food taste; maybe they got sick from breathing in the vapors."

Storage battery casings, it was found, were used as fuel all over the neighborhood—in fact all through the poorer districts of the city. It had been customary for junk dealers to give poor people the casings of discarded storage batteries after their lead plates had been removed for salvage. These casings carried a considerable deposit of lead salts. They burned well, and in doing so gave off fumes that were saturated with lead, and which, on being inhaled, allowed the absorption of lead through the respiratory tract. This is the most frequent port of entry of lead into the body—the other two being by way of the digestive tract and the skin.

There is every reason to suppose that this form of fuel will be used widely again this winter. Boards of health in most cities are controlling it by stopping it at the source—by informing junk dealers of the danger and obtaining their cooperation in preventing the sale or, as was more usual, the free gift of these battery casings.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

F. S. S.: "Is the avocado a fruit high in fat content or oil? What is the food value of the avocado?"

Answer: Avocado has three and one-third per cent. fat, which is quite high comparatively for fruits. It yields a hundred calories for every one and one-half ounces.

R. M. D.: "What causes the nails on my thumbs to split in layers?"

Answer: Probably ringworm infection of the nail bed.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

PRACTICAL SCHOOL WORK

CHATHAM, Ont. Oct. 4. (CP)—While Agricultural training has been supplied in the public schools of Chatham for many years, no attempt has been made to instruct the children through practical work. The separate school board however is now seeking the purchase of a plot of land in order to provide practical demonstrations in agriculture and horticulture for the pupils of the St. Joseph's and Blessed Sacrament schools.

YUKON TRAILERS HOLD RE-UNION

Memories of Gold Rush of 1898 Are Recalled.

MEET AT ST. MARY'S.

ST. MARY'S, Ont., October 4 (C.P.). — Veterans of the Trail of '98 returned home to-day after their first re-union in Western Ontario. They are members of the "Yukon Club," whose membership embraces men who participated in the Yukon gold rush in the closing years of the nineteenth century.

These men gathered here last night for a re-union banquet, guests of John Lind, veteran of the Yukon who went into the country back in 1892. All the men knew each other in the old Yukon days. Now many of them are leaders in the business life of Ontario.

Chairman of the banquet was Dr. J. N. E. Brown of Toronto, president of the club this year. Those who registered were: John Lind, St. Mary's; Carman Brown, St. Mary's; R. A. Rumsey, Toronto, assistant to the general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce; Major Lorne Cosby, governor of the Wellington County Jail at Guelph; Dr. J. E. Tyrrell, Toronto, president of the Kirkland Lake Mining Company; D. M. Sanson, Toronto; Allan Marks, of the Toronto Stock Exchange and secretary of the Yukon Club; Rev. R. J. Bowen, F.R.G.S., London; Dr. H. W. Anderson, Toronto; J. C. Hess, Toronto; A. G. Scougale, Cobourg; F. H. Jones, Toronto; Hugh Rose, Toronto; George I. MacLean, Toronto; J. R. Irvine, Cobourg; Richard Wigmore, Toronto; Rev. J. R. Warren, Long Branch.

Home and School Association News

QUEEN ALEXANDRA SCHOOL

The regular monthly meeting of Queen Alexandra Home and School Association was held on Monday evening in the kindergarten room, with the president, Mrs. E. Telford, presiding.

During the business routine, several items were discussed and it was decided to hold the annual autumn tea on Oct. 26th, making it a

Mrs. Bradshaw, representative to the Home and School Council, gave a report on the recent tea and handicraft exhibit which the council sponsored and also made mention of the convention of Home and School Associations to be held on Oct. 12th in the Sunday School hall of Murray Street Church. Mrs. Telford urged very strongly that as many members as possible be present at the sessions of this convention.

Other conveners to report were: Mrs. R. Parnell for relief, that a number of second-hand articles and also new shoes had been given out during the month, and Mrs. G. Kingdon, for the flower committee, reported having sent several bouquets to shut-ins.

The president announced there would be a paper collection early in November. Mrs. H. H. Graham read a very fine magazine article pertaining to parent education and child psychology.

A special feature of the musical part of the program was the initial appearance of a group of mother singers whose two selections were very greatly enjoyed by the audience. Mrs. F. A. Rathbone also rendered two enjoyable vocal solos. Mrs. Purdy presided at the piano for the song accompaniments and also for the singing of the National Anthem with which the meeting closed.

Hallowe'en tea. Standing committees were asked to take care of all arrangements.

Reports were received from representatives and conveners of committees. Mrs. S. Touchburn, recreation convener, announced that everything was in readiness to begin the bowling, the first game being scheduled for next week.

Press May Be Banned Divorce Evidence

TORONTO, Oct. 3 (C.P.).—Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, said to-day he was awaiting a report from Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey regarding practices of private detectives in investigating divorce information, and on its arrival would give consideration to a move to bar publication of evidence at divorce hearings.

The Attorney-General said he had noticed a Toronto judge had admonished two detectives for their activities in obtaining divorce evidence, and Mr. Roebuck said he considered publication of their evidence as unnecessary to public interest.

WEATHER SIGNS FOOL AMATEURS

Science Has Yet to Find Method to Forecast Weather Over 36 Hours.

NO FOUNDATION

VANCOUVER, Oct. 2.—(C.P.)—Amateur weather prophets may guess correctly sometimes, but generally their prognostications are inaccurate in the opinion of E. B. Shearman of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau here.

When a chipmunk is seen busily storing up a pretentious larder while the last traces of summer are disappearing, it doesn't mean a hard and severe winter necessarily, Mr. Shearman said. In fact, the little fellow is only being prepared and actually he doesn't know what the winter months will bring.

"At this time of the year, there are always amateur weather forecasters who come forth with bold predictions of a mild or severe winter," he said. "Don't take those who read the weather signs too seriously; they are harmless."

So it would appear ambitious bushrats in British Columbia, who have been making hay at least a month earlier this year, are only taking precautions and the fur-bearing animals' extra thick coats are only evidence of fair feeding during the summer.

Mr. Shearman said science has yet to discover a method to forecast accurately the weather for more than 36 hours. He believed, however, that research now under way by students of science will disclose a method to this end.

LONDON DOCKET PROVES HEAVY

Alleged Crimes Range From Blackmail to Manslaughter, Theft to Arson.

LENGTHY ASSIZE.

LONDON, Ont., October 4 (CP) —Acting Crown Attorney Norman Newton announced to-day the criminal docket for the Fall Assizes Court, opening here on Tuesday before Mr. Justice Makins. It is the heaviest in recent years, and includes alleged crimes ranging from blackmail conspiracy to automobile manslaughter and from theft to arson.

Mr. Newton estimates hearing of the criminal cases alone will take at least two weeks. This would leave little time for the heavy list of civil actions.

Of major public interest will be the so-called blackmail trials when five accused will be tried for alleged extortion. These include Mrs. Mae Turnbull, charged with three offences, and Vincent T. Foley, local lawyer, Frank Taylor, Jr., and his wife Rose, and Frank Taylor, Sr., first husband of Mrs. Turnbull, each facing single charges. There are three manslaughter cases, all arising from accident cases.

Charges of theft, conspiracy, and fraud against Senator E. S. Arthur and Walter Little, traversed to this court, will also be heard.

BENNETT'S FUTURE SALES DECISION IS UNKNOWN

OTTAWA, Oct. 3 (CP)—The decision of Premier R. B. Bennett as to suggestion of John I. McFarland that the futures selling in the Winnipeg Grain Pit be investigated has not yet been received by his colleagues here, it was stated yesterday. Mr. McFarland communicated direct to the Prime Minister.

Meantime the opinion of prominent officials in Ottawa is that the present situation is only temporary and that the Government will continue to steady the market. "Everything is coming Canada's way," one official said, and took the view that the present fall in prices was due to bear raids. He looked to the council of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange itself to regulate the selling. He was convinced the government would continue its present policy of supporting the market.

The world wheat situation, he claimed was very favorable to Canada.

Should an investigation be decided upon, it would disclose what interests have been placing the large selling orders on the Winnipeg Exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Spooner and daughter Annie and Mr. and Mrs. S. Spooner and daughter Betty visited on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Johnston of Coxvale.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Fleming and little son Joey returned to their home in Trenton after visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Faux, Mrs. Annie Fleming and other relatives.

A very large congregation was present for the special Rally Day services held at Trinity United Church on Sunday, Sept. 30th. The church was most beautifully decorated with a profusion of flowers. At the morning service Iden Bonds, Sr., superintendent of the Sabbath School presided. Rev. F. W. Newell, B.A., B.D., gave a most inspiring address on "A Call To Service." Special music was provided by the scholars of the Sunday School. The evening service was a rally of the young people with the pastor presiding. Bert Monk of Bethany, president of the Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union delivered a challenging and thoughtful address to the young people of the congregation. The choir rendered two special numbers.

District Notes

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS.

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water, a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy, and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

Obituary

Succumbing to an illness of almost a year's length, Harry John Hanwell, 425 Rogers street, passed away at his home yesterday. He was in his 63rd year.

Mr. Hanwell had resided in Peterborough four years. He was born in England, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hanwell. In Canada, he spent some years at Port Arthur. Employed with the King-an Hardware here, he was a member of the Ancient Order of Foresters and a Mason, attending Mark Street United Church.

He is survived by one son, Edward Hanwell of this city.

MRS. HENRY PADGETT

The funeral was held on Monday, Oct. 1, at Millersmith Church of the late, Mary Jane Ashmore, widow of the late Henry Padget, who died Saturday last in her ninety-sixth year. There are left to mourn the loss of a kind and loving mother, five sons and three daughters: James Padgett, George Padget and Bob Padget of Emily, William Padget and Bert Padget of Peterborough; Mrs. G. A. Thompson, Mrs. C. R. Nixon of Peterborough and Mrs. William Gertley of Toronto.

Funeral services were held on Monday. A short prayer service at the house preceded the public service at Millersmith Church in the township of Emily, where an impressive funeral was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Wilson of United Church, Dunsford. Interment at Millersmith Cemetery.

The pallbearers were the six grandsons of the deceased: Austin Nixon, Cecil Gertley, Charlie Padget of Peterborough, Clifford Padget, Percy Padget of Emily and Earl Gertley of Toronto.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 4. (CP).—Synopsis: An extensive area of high pressure covers Eastern Canada while pressure is relatively low over the northwest portion of the continent and a storm is developing off the Straits of Belle Isle. The weather has been fair and cool from the Great Lakes eastward but light showers have occurred in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, though it has been for the most part fair in Alberta. Moderate temperature has prevailed throughout the west.

Lower Lake Region and Georgian Bay.—Fresh easterly winds; mostly cloudy and cool to-day and Friday.

Northern Ontario: Moderate east to southeast winds; fair to-day and Friday; not much change in temperature.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Moderate to fresh northeast winds; fair and quite cool to-day and Friday.

RELIEF DROPS AT NORTH BAY

Fewer Families Registered, But Transients Increase.

AUGUST REPORT.

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 4. (CP) ecrease in the number of families on relief here was noted in the monthly report issued by B. G. Gosse, city relief officer. The total for August stood at 361, but had dropped to 333 during September.

Relief costs for September, a four-week period, were $8,997, compared with $12,305 for August, a five-week period. Altogether there were 1,556 relief recipients in the city in September.

Alarm was expressed over the increase in transients entering the city. The report showed 4,528 meals served at the old jail in the five-wee period in August and 5,717 in the shorter month of September.

FIND ROAD MAP SOURLAND AREA

Police Search Trunk of Bruno Hauptmann, Finding Map and Dictionary.

FISHED IN SECTION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4. (AP). District Attorney Samuel J. Foley announced to-day that investigators had found in Bruno Hauptmann's trunk road maps of the Sourland Mountain section of New Jersey where the estate of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is located.

Faley also stated that Hauptmann "is able to reproduce certain sections of the Hopewell (N.J.) territory from memory, even down to the esmallest intersecting forks of road."

"We also found in this trunk," Foley also stated that Hauptdictonary of the 1,000 most commonly used words. The more difficult words appearing in the ransom note were in the dictionary and this, to some extent, confirms the theory that Hauptmann misspelled a number of the smaller words, that the more difficult words were written correctly, an indication that he looked up the spelling of the harder words in the dictionary."

Fished Those Sections

"We know now" the Bronx prosecutor said, "that he fished in these sections. He also had road maps covering the entire territory around Gay Head, Buzzard's Bay, Elizabeth Island and Martha's Vineyard. We are also able to show that Hauptmann fished there also."

The Bronx district attorney has consistently refused to discuss a possible New Jersey kidnapping or murder case. However, he did say that "We have never contended that the baby was ever in New England, in fact we are now going to prove that it was not."

Foley said Hauptmann's road maps covered whole sections of interest in the kidnapping and ransome investigation.

The prosecutor said he knows of no witnesses to be brought to his office to-day for questioning. "We are concentrating all our energies on preparation for trial," he said.

Foley also said he had received no official notice of the calling of a Hunterdon county, N.J., grand jury to meet a week from to-day to consider charges against Hauptmann. The extortion trial in the Bronx is scheduled to start the same day.

IN MEMORIAM

STEPHENS—In loving memory of our dear Mother, Mrs. Beatrice Stephens, who departed this life Oct. 4th, 1933.
What is home without you, Mother?
What are all the joys we meet
When your loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet?
You were very true and patient
Through the years you struggled on;
And those dear hands now resting
Made a home that now is gone.
No length of time, no lapse of years
Can dim our Mother's past;
For treasured memories hold her dear
And will, while memory lasts.
Sadly missed by her four daughters, Alice, Beatrice, Edna and Vera.

RELIEF REBATE WAS DEMANDED GROCERS CLAIM

Preliminary Hearing on Relief Fraud Charges Adjourned in Midland.

BAIL IS RENEWED.

Numerous Items Improperly Charged to the Province as Relief.

MIDLAND, Oct. 4.— With the preliminary hearing on the Midland relief fraud charges adjourning at 5 o'clock yesterday until 10 o'clock Friday morning, there is promise of further sensational evidence in the case against Ralph R. Wilson, Town Clerk and Treasurer; Stanley Wilson, relief officer, and David A. Patchell, tax collector. Mr. Joseph Sedgwick of the Attorney-General's Department at Toronto, who conducted the prosecution, indicated that six witnesses remain to be called for the Crown, some of whom may give important evidence.

Bail Is Renewed

The three accused men were granted the same bail as before the hearing by Magistrate Compton Jeffs.

Grocers were told they could either pay a rebate to the town of 5 per cent. of all relief business given them, or get no further orders, and one merchant was actually cut off the list for two weeks until he made a $50 "donation" and promised to pay further instalments as money was available, it was revealed in evidence given this afternoon. Grocers, milk dealers, bakers and some clothing merchants were included among those who received relief orders on the understanding that a rebate of from 5 to 10 per cent. be returned to the town.

Numerous items were improperly charged to the Province as relief. A safe for the relief office was purchased for $400 and charged to the Province as 'clothing'; printing of relief vouchers and forms was included in the "food" accounts, on which the Province paid 80 per cent., and shelter relief was charged against vacant lots and empty houses, Arthur T. Bosanquet, Government relief inspector, in the course of a two and a half hour examination by Mr. Sedgewick, testified this morning.

William Finlayson, ex-Minister of Lands and Forests, was defense counsel, assisted by his law partner, George S. Dudley, the town solicitor, and Arthur Patchell, son of the accused tax collector.

Mr. Bosanquet, the Crown's first and key witness, stated that he made an investigation of the relief transactions of the Town of Midland, during the period from June, 1933, to July, 1934. It was the practice for Ralph Wilson and Stanley Wilson, the Clerk and Relief Officer respectively, to both sign the forms which accompanied the accounts sent to the Government for payment, certifying that the accounts were proper, he said. The list of property holders and tenants made out for shelter relief purposes was prepared in the town office, presumably by Mr. Patchell, the tax collector.

The two Wilsons are not related.

Scout Leaders From Provinces Meet In Ottawa

His Excellency the governor-general, chief scout for Canada, appealed to provincial presidents and provincial commissioners of the Boy Scout movement gathered in conference at Ottawa to co-ordinate their efforts across the country in bringing the Canadian Boy Scout membership up to 100,000 from the present figure of 65,000 as the most fitting kind of tribute to pay to the chief scout of the world, Lord Robert Baden-Powell, who visits Canada early in 1935. The two-day conference of provincial presidents and provincial commissioners was called for the purpose of discussing the scout movement's financial condition and membership standing. Photo shows provincial presidents: James Leightizer, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island; W. C. Nickerson, Halifax; Brig.-Gen. F. W. Hill, Fredericton (provincial vice-president); Wm. Copeland Finley, Montreal; J. W. Mitchell, Toronto; E. W. Lowery, Winnipeg; S. J. Latta, Regina; Col. J. H. Woods, Calgary; A. McCreery, Vancouver (member provincial commission board).

COIN COLLECTION IS STOLEN FROM HOME

T. Eaton Prize Winners Announced for Hastings County School Fairs.

TWEED, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—Frank Goulah, resident near Stoco, reports to the police that thieves ransacked his home during his absence, destroying two trunks, stole a valuable coin collection and took a number of smaller articles.

Advertising Called Part Of Industry

MONTREAL, Oct. 4 (C.P.).—An inferiority complex which permeated everything Canadian advertising men said and did should be replaced by a feeling of those in the business "advertising is a definite arm of industry," J. E. Sampson, Toronto advertising executive, stated in an address here yesterday.

There was always the thought of presenting something forceful and strong in advertising copy, Mr. Sampson stated, but it seemed there was a tendency to misconstrue strength for statement of fact. What was needed, he thought, was to create an appreciation of the product to be sold, and thus develop public taste in a cultural way for things in general.

There was no doubt, he concluded, that Canada was advertising conscious. It would be more successful, however, "if it had a more direct bearing on the business of the Dominion."

HALFWAY MARK NEARLY REACHED IN HUGE LOAN

Subscriptions Now Total More Than $100,000,000—Ontario in Lead.

LARGE PURCASES.

OTTAWA, Oct. 4.—With Ontario leading the van, subscriptions to Canada's refunding loan had approached the halfway mark last night, the total for the entire Dominion having exceeded $100,000,000. In giving out this total Hon. Edgar N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, said that the influence of subscriptions from industrial and commercal firms was begnnng to make itself felt. Numerous buyers of this type were included in the list yesterday, though the subscriptions of some of the largest organizations in the country have not yet been included in the official totals.

The largest industrial subscription so far received was made yesterday by the Singer Manufacturing Company, Montreal. It was for $3,125,000. The Canadian Kodak Company of Toronto subscribed $400,000; Melady, Zellers & Company of Winnipeg, $500,000; Sterling Products, Limited, of Windsor, $250,000; Canadian Fairbanks-Morse Company at Montreal, $60,000; Carter, Halls, Aldinger, Limited, of Winnipeg, $60,000; Montreal Coke and Manufacturing Company, $50,000. The Royal Liverpool, London and Globe Group of Insurance Companies raised their subscription from $310,000 to $1,000000. The Yorshire Insurance Company, Montreal, raised their subscription from $50,000 to $70,000. The Huron & Erie Mortgage Corportation of London took $450,000; the Continental Life Insurance Company, Toronto, $100,000; the International Fidelity Insurance Company, Montreal, $136,000

JUNIOR ATHLETIC DAY FOR SCHOOL

Successful Sports Events Held on Lakefield Public School Grounds.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 4 (Examiner Correspondence).—The "tiny wees" of the Public School held their annual Field Day on Monday afternoon, with Miss Kidd and Miss Madill in charge, assisted by some of the senior Public School girls.

The little tots did not need any urging to enter their events, and they took a lot of pleasure whether they figured as winners or not.

There is a great charm about the spontaneous pleasure of little children. A number of "mothers" were present and formed an interested and appreciative audience. The following are the results.

Miss Kidd's Girls' Sack Race—1, Betty Hill; 2, Dorothy Bullock; 3, June McClure.

Miss Madill's Girls' Snowshoe Race—1, Betty Bullock; 2, Doris Young; 3, Marie Allen.

Miss Kidd's Boys' Sack Race.—1, Alfred Watts; 2, Keith Montgomery; 3, Jackie Hudson.

Miss Madill's Boys' Sack Race—1, Everett Charles Peters; 2, Jimmie Tully; 3, Jack McManus.

Running, Miss Kidd's Girls—1, Jean McClure; 2, Dorothy Bullock; 3, Betty Hill.

Running, Miss Madill's Girls—1, Barbara Hunter; 2, Luella Hockaday; 3, Mavis Birch.

Running, Miss Kidd's Boys—1, Jack Hudson; 2, Hastings Wong; 3, Gregory Knox.

Running, Miss Madill's Boys—1, ack McManus; 2, Bernard Coughlin; 3, George Birch.

Miss Kidd's Girls, Hopping—1, June McClure; 2, Mary Spencer; 3, Betty Brown.

Miss Madill's Girls, Hopping—1, Lenore Morin; 2, Shirley Ogilvie; 3, Barbara Hunter.

Miss Kidd's Boys, Hopping.—1, Hastings Wong; 2, Jack Hudson; 3, Gregory Knox.

Miss Madill's Boys' Wheelbarrow Race.—1, Lawrence Coughlin and Everett Peters. 2, Jack McManus and Clare Hill. 3, Cameron Payne and George Birch.

The unfinished pole vault in the High School Sports Day was concluded on Tuesday afternoon, as follows:

The following are the champions:

Junior Girls.....Mary Blewett
Senior Girls.....Jean Kingdon
June Boys..... Donald Hurl
Senior Boys.....Dominie White

Mr. and Mrs. Al Spenceley of Monaghan Road lent their home on Tuesday evening for a very pleasant euchre party held under the auspices of the Show Committee of the Peterborough Horticultural Society. This committee, under the able leadership of Mr. J. A. Smith, have already opened a campaign to raise funds for the prize list in connection with the annual flower show of next year. A large number of friends enjoyed eight tables of euchre, followed by supper. Winners of card prizes were Mesdames F. Dummitt, S. T. Harris, J. Spenceley, and Messrs. F. Spenceley and E. Walker. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the hosts of the evening, moved by Mr. J. A. Smith and seconded by Mr. F. Dummitt, and included also the ladies who assisted with arrangements for supper, also those who generously contributed euchre prizes: Messrs. H. Boyle, Doxsee and Hughes, the Nut Krust Bakery, and Campbell's Dairy. The pleasant evening ended with the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. W. A. Logan is spending a few days with friends in Prescott and Waddington, New York.

Mrs. Ted Nash of Cricket Place entertained on Monday evening at a miscellaneous shower held in honor of Miss Dorothy Irons, a bride-elect of this week.

Colonel J. W. Miller of 212 McDonnel street, who is ninety years old to-day, is the only survivor of the company of young men, two hundred and twenty in number, who marched from Peterborough seventy years ago with the Peterborough Rifle Company, to fight the Fenian Raiders at Ridgeway. And, before that, Colonel Miller was a cavalryman in the American Civil War. He was wounded twice, taken prisoner at Gettsburg, lay in a rebel prison at Richmond for two months and was later exchanged and rejoined his regiment, to continue in the front rank of the fighting, until President Lincoln was assassinated. Colonel Miller has drawn a pension for many years from the American Government. He was one of the 30,000 Canadians who enlisted in the conflict between the blues and the greys, which finally gave the slaves of America their freedom. Born in Bowmanville in 1844, he came to Peterborough with his parents at an early age.

A very successful euchre party was held last evening by the Woodmen of the World, in their hall. Seventeen tables of cards were played, prize-winners being Mrs. E. Robinson, Mrs. J. Dwyer, Mrs. J. Higgins, Mrs. B. Parker, Mrs. T. Collard and Mrs. W. E. Robinson. An honored guest of the evening was Mr. Clare Jarvis of London, Ontario, Head Council Commander, who made a brief address.

Miss Dorothy Irons of Water street, whose wedding takes place this week, was presented with a handsome silver tea service by her associates of the office staff of the Bonner-Worth Company.

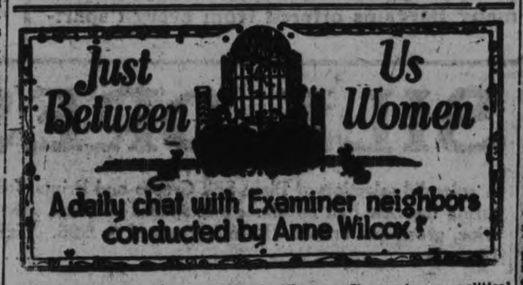
Mr. Harry Long has closed his summer home, "Golden Glow," at Chemong Park, for the season and will spend the winter in the city.

Imports of American automobiles into Argentina now averages 1,000 a month.



The word party has a flexible significance. It may be a political group, or a social assembly, or any one of many things, but as a home word it means a company invited to come at a certain time on a specified day with entertainment as the object. There is an interesting question which arises in connection with such an assemblage, although the above is appreciated as explanatory. What do you expect of a party? This is the question. Little children expect games as a minor feature, with food as the major one. The question of the child who was belated in arriving has become classic. "Is the party over?" he asked, and was delighted it wasn't when he found the refreshments had not been served. Almost every child would agree that the real "party" was the refreshments.

* * * * * *

There are adult parties which proclaim that food is the main feature such as a dinner party, luncheon, supper party, tea party, theatre supper, etc. And although there is no mention of a meal in an after the theatre party it is as well recognized as one for refreshments, as if it were called a theatre supper, the latter, however, suggesting more of a meal than the former.

* * * * * *

While food is one element expected of a party, it does not in itself provide the gaiety needed. A group of persons eating food, however excellent and elaborately served and prepared for the guests, fails of its function as a party unless the persons are entertained. Brilliant and witty conversation is pleasing diversion in itself, and when accompanied by a "dish of tea" or more elaborate dishes, it provides the required merriment and good cheer. It develops upon the hostess to invite congenial people for such an occasion. Nothing is more depressing than a dinner or supper party without laughter and gaiety. No amount of edible delicacies can make up for such a lack. On the other hand simple food with a happy group has the necessary elements of a party. There is entertainment.

* * * * * *

This matter of entertainment is more important than food. Ask any bridge expert whether it is the food or the games of contract which he looks for at a card party. All persons who go to a party whatever its kind, unless actually hungry or over-fond of eating, hope to have a good time apart from the taste of the viands. Laughter, gaiety, companionship, absorbing entertainment, these are wanted something which takes them out of themselves, which makes them forget their usual engrossing work, their perplexities or possibly physical pain, and which makes life even more worth living. A hostess who can instill any or all of these pleasant elements into her parties has successful ones, whatever the refreshments. Parties need not cost much, since merriment, happiness, gaiety, good cheer are apart from monetary values. This is a period when parties are heartening. Happy events lend cheer to perplexed spirits.

Weddings

VICKERS—PUTTICK.

A lovely house wedding took place yesterday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Puttick 592 Gilmour Street, when their only child, Marion Jean, became the bride of Mr. William Hedley Vickers of Montreal, formerly of Peterborough, son of Mrs. Edith L. Vickers of 738 George Street, and the late Mr. W. H. Vickers.

The officiating clergyman was the Rev. Dr. C .V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church. The ceremony took place at one o'clock in the afternoon, in the prettily decorated living-room. Miss Helen Ross played the wedding march as the bride entered on the arm of her father, and Mrs. E. A. Ware of Huntsville sang "All Joy Be Thine" during the signing of the register, with accompaniment played by Miss Helen Burns of Oshawa, formerly of Peterborough.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown. It had a foundation of ivory satin with an overdress of cream chiffon, patterned in all-over style with motifs of tiny golden beads in solar-ray design. The bodice was tight-fitting, with little puffed sleeves. The Moyen age skirt was fashioned in modified bustle style, with white taffeta panniers.

The veil of white tulle was caught in cap effect with orange blossom clusters over either ear, and the bride wore slippers of ivory faille and long white kid gloves. Her bouquet was of cream Joanna Hill roses and lily of the valley.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Hannon of Hamilton, cousin of the bride, wore a gown of electric blue velvet with matching velvet hat and slippers of blue crepe. She carried a bouquet of shell-pink Butterfly roses.

The groomsman was Mr. Ivison Walker of Peterborough.

After the ceremony, a reception was held and dainty refreshments were served from a flower-decked table. Assisting in receiving were the parents of the bride and bridegroom. Mrs. Puttick wore blue velvet and Mrs. Vickers was in black velvet. The former's corsage bouquet was of golden Talisman roses and the latter's of medium pink Briarcliff roses.

Mr. Vickers and his bride left on the afternon train from Port Hope, en route to Montreal where they will live. The bride traveled in a swagger suit of brown tweed with brown hat and matching accessories.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR GENERAL FEATURES

By E. V. SHEPARD

WHAT IS THE NORMAL SCORE?

"South played the deal at 6-hearts. What is the normal score?" Knowing none of the players nor how bidding went, nor even what card was led by senior, the question is not a simple one. Look the hands over. See what you think.

Against an old fashioned lead of the 4th best card from one of the black suits, South may fulfill his contract. That may be done in this way: Suppose the 3 of spades is led, stamping it as the lowest of 4 of that suit. The declarer should win all 3 tricks in that suit. If he takes them at once, then takes his 2 diamond tricks, before leading trumps, nothing can prevent a small slam. When West enters with his lone ace of hearts neither declarer nor dummy has another spade or diamond. West has no more trumps. He must lead a club, or allow one member of the declaring side to discard, while the other member ruffs a spade or a diamond. The sole outstanding trump may then be pulled. Declarer must win all remaining tricks, fulfilling his contract.

An opening lead of the 4th best club also will give the declarer a small slam, by running off the suit led, taking his 2 diamond tricks, then giving West a single trump trick.

The hand may be defeated 2 tricks, by super-defence. Have West lead his ace of trumps, to avoid having to lead either black suit later on. Next have West lead a diamond. The defenders than will win one trick in each black suit, by forcing the declaring side to lead both of those suits. This will put down the contract 2 tricks.

There is no reason to presume that West will make such an abnormal opening lead as his ace of hearts. He should, however, make an opening lead of his diamonds. Either a 4th best card from J-10, or the J of that suit, averages to be a better opening lead than a 4th best card from a suit headed by a Q. If South is careful to take both his diamond tricks before leading trumps, West will be forced to lead one of the black suits when he is put in the lead with his top trump. This normal play will allow South to win 3 tricks in the black suit led by West, but the declarer will end by going down a single trick, as he must some time lead the other black suit, and lose a trick therein.

I would say that one down is the normal score on the hand, not played double-dummy.

Baked Hash of Rice and Beef
Buttered Beets
Carrot and Raisin Salad
Orange Pineapple Sponge Coffee

Here is a new kind of hash. Get into the habit of using rice occasionally in place of potatoes in your menus. It is a nice change.

Today's Recipes

Baked Hash of Rice and Beef.—One cup cooked rice, one cup cooked beef, one cup milk, two tablespoons butter, one teaspoon salt and pepper, one egg. Into a stew pan put chopped beef, cooked rice, milk, butter, salt and pepper. Stir for one minute, then add a well-beaten egg. Turn the hash into a baking dish and bake, in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until done—about 20 minutes. Add a minced onion or a clove of garlic if desired. Four servings.

Orange Pineapple Sponge.—Two tablespoons gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one-half cup pineapple juice, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half cup orange juice, one tablespoon lemon juice, two egg whites, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes. Dissolve in pineapple juice which has been heated to boiling. Add sugar and stir until gelatin and sugar are dissolved. Cool. Add orange juice and lemon juice and cool until mixture starts to thicken. Then beat with a rotary beater until light and frothy. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites, to which salt has been added.

If desired, one-half cup whipped cream may be folded in; or the mixture is delicious served with a soft custard sauce which gives a richness of flavor that is enjoyed.

AT THE CAPITOL

"LITTLE MAN, WHAT NOW?"

This is a picture quite out of the ordinary. It has the metaphysical slant that is becoming popular, both in literature and on the stage. It is seldom that the silver screen essays to delineate so faithfully the raw emotions of its people, but this feature goes in for just that thing. Startling, white-etched photography and even, in one episode, a return to an older technique which brought the actors' faces right out to the audience, in very large outlines, make its presentation different from the usual run.

Margaret Sullivan has the main feminine role, Lammchen, and Douglass Montgomery is her somewhat lackadaisical husband. The picture doesn't need to try to explain just why Hans Pinneberg can't keep a job. The audience can see it all too plainly. But the character is splendidly drawn, weak though it may be.

An aspect that is intriguing is the fact that you never know what is going to happen at any moment. Something is always just around the corner, as it were.

The unfeeling, rude type of Germanic nationalism is brought out beautifully in the role of the old, pig-like employer, Kleinholz, and there is a great deal of interest also in the queer types pictured so well by Mae Marsh and Alan Hale, as the pair of adventurers with their weird menage. An element in the picture that appeals is the refreshing sincerity of the dialogue, which is typical at all times, and appears to have not the slightest suspicion of being hackneyed or made to order. It is as if each person said exactly what he, or she thought at the moment, and that is certainly different also from the ordinary run of pictures.

A nudist appears in this feature (don't be alarmed, he wears clothes while talking about his liking for the 'altogether', as painters term it). And there is a delightful old gent with a horse who takes the place of the addle-pated husband at a critical moment that is talked of throughout the piece and that makes the closing episode.

AT THE REGENT

"BABY, TAKE A BOW"

Here is the enchanting little Shirley Temple acting with the man for whom she is said to have such a genuine affection in real life, Jimmy Dunn, who was her partner also in one of her first successes, "Stand Up and Cheer."

The delightful little star whose mother is said to have started her out in life with the command, "Sparkle, Shirley, Sparkle," and who certainly does that very thing with the greatest ease and success, has a nice support also in Claire Trevor, as her screen mother, a blonde lady who marries Eddie Ellison (James Dunn), after his exit from Sing-Sing.

Then the villain (Alan Dinehart) still pursuing, tries to pin on Eddie and his pal a jewel robbery and that is where Shirley enters and proceeds to gum up the works in her own charming fashion. (By the way, this is said to be Mr. Dinehart's thirty-ninth role in as many months, most of them of the 'heavy' variety.)

'Baby, Take a Bow' owes its interest to the winsome ways of the small starlet, and it will hold your attention right to the end. It is a good argument in favor of those who maintain that the public likes a clean picture. This is absolutely spotless, and yet never loses a bit of interest.

It has a gay young cast, the always popular theme of innocence emerging victorious from a trap set by malice, and, of course, the precocious talent of the little Shirley. It makes a good mixture and is entertaining throughout.

—Jeanette.

Poisonous Mushroom Was Cause Of Death

BRANTFORD, Ont., October 3 (C.P.). — Eating a poisonous variety of mushroom was the chief factor in the death here yesterday of Mrs. Frank P. Baumgart, it was stated this morning by Dr. A. J. Craven, who attended Mrs Baumgart. The lady was taken to the Brantford General Hospital on Tuesday, September 25, and had been confined there since. Dr. Craven said she had suffered nausea, diarrhoea, and partial paralysis to which she succumbed.

Other members of Mrs. Baumgart's family were victims of the poisoning, but they recovered satisfactorily, Dr. Craven said. A warning has been issued by medical officials here that citizens exercise all care when buying or picking mushrooms.

World War Brings Wide Changes in Land of Silken Pantaloons.

RIGHT VOTE NEXT

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—From harem slavery to the freedom of the ballot box in five swift, tradition-shattering years is the goal of Turkish women.

Princess Lulu Sabry, 17-year-old member of a ruling Circassian family, who is a visitor in Chicago, has seen the rapid emancipation of her sex and hopes that by the time she returns the final victory—equal suffrage—will have been achieved.

Educated on the continent and in English schools in her native Stamboul and Constantinople, the princess is a pretty, subdebutante representative of the New Turkey that arose from the war under the leadership if the dictator, Mustapha Kemal Pasha.

Posing in the native costumes of her country, Princess Sabry said:

"The charsaf, or street dress, is fast being discarded for tailored suits, and Paris gowns are replacing the shalvar and other ornate costumes of the harem. English is being taught in the schools and there are a multitude of outward signs of the change in my country.

TACTICAL TEST FOR REGIMENT

Rangers Parade at Full Strength to Rifle Ranges.

ON THE HOLIDAY.

Comprehensive in its scope, Peterborough Rangers are to undertake a tactical scheme on Thanksgiving Day, which commences with a parade at the Armouries at eight o'clock in the morning, followed by a march out of the unit to the scene of "battle", at the Rifle Ranges.

According to Lieut-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., Officer Commanding, the unit is to undertake a battle scheme in cooperation with detachments of the Machine Gunners and Dragoons. The operations will be directed throughout by Capt. G. R. Melton, and will be witnessed by Colonel W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., District Officer Commanding, and Lieut.-Colonel C. E. Connolly, A.A. Q.M.G., and Major Salmon, G.S.O. from district headquarters.

The day's operations are part of the annual district infantry competitions upon which the efficiency of the unit will be determined, along with the showing which the unit made in the annual musketry tests, and on the parade ground throughout the training season.

Headed by the band and drums the men will march the three miles to the ranges. Orders for the day call for the men to be attired in "battle order".

Four Persons Hurt Head-On Collision

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP) — Four persons were injured in a head-on automobile collision on the Capreol Road yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Alex MacAtee of Capreol, driver of one of the cars, is in St. Joseph's Hospital here, suffering from shock. Her husband received only slight injuries.

Andy Gilmour of Sudbury, passenger in the front seat of the other car, was thrown through the windshield, and his face and legs are badly cut.

Mrs. Gilmour, in the back seat, was bruised.

James L. Dixon, North Bay, driver of the car in which Mr. and Mrs. Gilmour were riding, was uninjured.

The two machine collided on curve near the Stobie Mine.

CIRCULATING PETITIONS

CHATHAM.—Friends of Frederick Turner, convicted of murder, and sentenced to be hanged in the county jail yard here on December 3, are circulating petitions in Chatham, London and Windsor asking for commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment. The jury which found Turner guilty recommended mercy. The petitions will be forwarded to Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

Kemal May Wed Sister Of King

MUSTAPHA KEMAL PRINCESS RUHIE

From Vienna come reports that Mustapha Kemal, 57-year-old dictator of Turkey, may choose a bride from among the four marriageable sisters of King Zog of Albania. Princess Ruhie, shown above with Kemal, is the second youngest and most beautiful of the sisters. Kemal was divorced by his own decree in 1925 from Latife Hanoum, daughter of a wealthy merchant of Smyrna.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

No. 2—Murder of Blanche Garneau

By CAMPBELL CARROLL

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

(Copyright, 1934, by The Canadian Press)

(By Campbell Carroll, C.P. Staff Writer.)

(Copyrighted, 1934, by C.P.)

QUEBEC, October 4 C.P.). — No crime in the police annals of this city aroused more indignation than the shocking death of Blanche Garneau, a quiet and comely shop girl, whose body was found in Victoria Park, July 26, 1920.

Throughout the years which have elapsed the Quebec police have not ceased to hope that some day a solution of the case will be found.

The young woman, who was only 21 years of age, was in charge of a store. One of her duties consisted of opening the shop in the morning and closing it at night. She was an orphan and had lived with her adopted parents since the age of three.

On Thursday, July 22, 1920 Miss Garneau closed the store as usual and began her walk home with a friend. The pair separated after entering Victoria Park and Miss Garneau continued on alone to her death. Her body was hidden in a clump of bushes.

The girl's disappearance caused no alarm until the following day as she frequently spent the night with her adopted father's family in another part of the city. When, however she failed to turn up for work on July 23 her employer notified her foster parents and they called in the police.

Six days later Miss Garneau's body was found by a young lad picking berries. It was covered with a large piece of white cloth which was identified as a covering for a counter in her employer's shop which the girl was in the habit of taking home every night to wash.

Evidence given at the inquest indicated the girl had been attacked and after a brave struggle had been felled by some blunt instrument and then strangled to death. Fingermarks still showed on her neck a week after death.

The father testified his adopted daughter was a model young woman and kept the best company. "It has a mysterious side," he said of the killing.

The police were inclined to believe that a man or men had watched Miss Garneau walk through the lonely park for several nights in succession and had lain in wait for her.

FIRE DESTROYED SCOTT SAW MILL

Loss is Estimated at $3,400— Cause of Blaze Unknown.

DWELLINGS THREATENED.

Fire razed completely a saw mill of the Scott Coal and Lumber Company at King George street, just south of the city at a late hour last evening. A loss of $3,400, of which only a small part is covered by insurance, was sustained.

The origin of the blaze is a mystery. One of the mill men passed through the building after ten o'clock and found all in order. At eleven o'clock the entire interior of the building was found a roaring inferno. Despite a three-hour battle of the Peterborough Fire Department, during which a stream of water pumped from the river through fifteen hundred feet of hose was used, the structure with all machinery was destroyed. Prompt formation of a bucket brigade by mill hands before the arrival of the firemen saved the engine and the boiler of the mill.

A considerable crowd was attracted by the spectacular blaze. Sparks threatened nearby dwellings but the danger was avoided.

The machinery loss amounted to approximately $3,000, H. R. Scott estimated. A frame structure 60 feet by 30, the building was valued only at $200. Shingles worth about $200 were lost. Neither the building or contents were insured but the stock loss was covered.

Mr. Scott said it was questionable whether or not the mill would be re-built on the same site.

DEMAND DEATH FOR "TRAGEDY" SLAYER OF GIRL

Youth Who Played Main Part in Real "American Tragedy" Fights for Life.

STORY OF ROMANCES

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 4 (US)—A defence lawyer who never lost a case and a brilliant young district attorney determined on conviction will fight grimly for the life of Bobby Edwards, 21, who went on trial yesterday for the "American Tragedy" murder of his backyard sweetheart.

Although the State contends it holds three signed confessions by the young mine surveyor, Defence Counsel Frank A. McGuigan announces:

"We will demand complete acquittal."

And District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis says:

"Nothing but the death penalty will satisfy the State."

McGuigan is silent as to the outlines of the defence. He merely says:

"Edwards will tell his story to the jury and will prove that he is not guilty of the murder charge."

Young Edwards is charged with murdering Freda McKechnie, the girl who was to bear his child, while the two were swimming on the night of July 30 in lonely Harvey's Lake.

The mining town of Edwardsville, named after the young defendant's family, is divided against itself on the trial.

On one side are the school friends of young Edwards. They cannot believe that the good-looking, popular youth, could be a murderer.

On the other are those who knew Freda McKechnie, who heard her adoring eulogies of Bobby, and who knew of her happiness over their forthcoming wedding.

They are bitter against the youth who, the State charges, murdered his humbler love to clear the way for his marriage to a girl of a social scale, 23-year-old Margaret Crain, music teacher of East Aurora, N.Y.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—Prevent Cutting—No Salves.

When sore and painful Piles distress and upset you, and salves give insufficient or only temporary help, and wish is to avoid operation; isn't it best to at once try HEM-ROID—the internal remedy for piles?

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was convinced early in his career that the cause of Piles was internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel—the hemorrhoidal veins filled with stagnant blood—and that the right and safe way to get freedom from Pile agony was to remove the cause with an internal medicine. Immediately the doctor set to work to find a remedy He succeeded and called his prescription HEM-ROID.

Pile sufferers everywhere are benefitting by Dr. Leonhardt's internal treatment, so why doubt or delay longer when McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Store and other good druggists say, "No matter what kind of Piles you have, one bottle of HEM-ROID tablets must show you the safe clean way to get rid of your pile misery or money-back."

Thanksgiving Day At the Post Office

On Thanksgiving Day, Monday, October 8, the wickets at the Post Office will be closed all day. The lobby of the Post Office will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be no delivery by letter carrier or by the rural route couriers, and no mail will be handed out to the public at the Post Office.

All outgoing mails due for despatch will be closed at the regular hour.

There will be one collection only made from the street letter boxes, commencing at 8 p.m.

LABOR DEBATES ITS NEXT MOVE

Federation Undecided Whether to Organize on Industrial or Craft Lines.

MORE WALKOUTS.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 3 (A. P.). — The American Federation of Labor Convention faced probably its most important battle to-day—whether the Federation should organize the labor of the United States along industrial or craft lines.

Bringing to the convention the most important question of its present sessions, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, of Springfield, Ill., arrives to-day with 3,000 votes, which he can use on the convention floor to support his militant attitude toward organization of the Federation along industrial lines instead of the present plan of craft unions. Several resolutions have been introduced dealing with the "horizontal" or craft unionization and "vertical" or industrial unionization of American workers.

Lewis, according to Ellis Searles, spokesman for the United Mine Workers and editor of their publication, believes industrial organization of unions would eliminate a great amount of jurisdictional disputes and be far more effective in case of strikes.

Meanwhile five hundred San Francisco members of the Upholsterers' International Union of North America walked out, while another 400 in Los Angeles voted to do likewise on Monday. Portland, Seattle, and Tacoma upholsterers were reported willing to quit work, bringing strikers to 2,000, in furtherance of demands for pay of one dollar an hour and a 35-hour week.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng.—"Contrasted with the last occasion I was in Canada I find a very different spirit," said Lord Elibank today as he returned from a long tour in the Dominion and the United States. There was a much greater feeling of confidence at present, he said.

--:--

KITCHENER—Mrs. Ricka Gerbig, who is facing 17 charges in police court here, one of obtaining relief by false pretences and 16 of receiving stolen goods, was remanded until Oct. 10 today. The Crown stated that the remand was in order that her two daughters Margaret and Edith can be charged with additional theft charges. They already have pleaded guilty to the theft of fruit and are on remand.

--:--

BRIDGEPORT, Conn.—Bridgeport breathed easier today as 25 pounds of poinol—an explosive capable of levelling half the city—was recovered from a swamp where thieves evidently had cached it. The chocolate brown granular fulminate, stolen in ten cans Monday night from the Remington Park, was found last night beneath a ledge, 600 feet from the magazine from which it was taken.

--:--

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont.—Hon. H. A. Bruce Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, was the speaker at the joint forenoon session of the Welland East Teachers convention held here today and the Hamilton Women's Press Club. Dr. Bruce spoke of the high reputation of Ontario Teachers and suggested the school and the press are "of course our greatest educational forces."

--:--

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—Four years in Kingston penitentiary was the sentence imposed on Leo Guidon, Ottawa, by Judge F. Stone in District Court this morning while his brother, Henry, was sentenced to two years in Burwash prison. Both were found guilty of the theft of goods valued at $85 from store of D. McCrae, Thessalon on Aug. 23.

--:--

OTTAWA—Extension of the Old Age pension Act to include blind persons, 40 years of age or older, will be proposed in the House of Commons next session by Dr. I. D. Cotnam, Con., North Renfrew. It would necessitate companion legislation by the provinces who administer the Old Age Pension Act.

--:--

LONDON, Eng. — Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald definitely improved in health as a result of his long holiday in Canada and Newfoundland, it was said authoritatively to-day. The Premier, who returned only yesterday, today had a two-hour medical examination by Lord Horder, one of the King's physicians, and also an ocular examination by Sir Duke Elder. The Premier's general health was considered extremely good. His eyes have also improved but it is understood it will be necessary for Premier MacDonald to continue to exercise the greatest care against undue eye-stran.

--:--

DETROIT, Mich.—"Looks like I'm a pawn for the British," said David Meisner in protesting over to-day's adjournment of his hearing in which the Canadian authorities seek to extradite him in connection with the John Labatt kidnapping. Federal Commissioner Frank Quinn adjourned the hearing until Oct. 12 on request of F. W. Seitz, representing the British consul, on a plea that the case was not ready.

--:--

LONDON, Ont. — Blaming fallen farm prices as the cause of his financial downfall, Clifton Gillespie Vanslyke, at present serving a two-year term in the Ontario Reformatory for stealing Westminster township tax funds, today filed a petition in bankruptcy. Among his liabilities, the former tax collector lists "over $5,000" which he was short in his collections.

Tigers Fail to Hit In Pinches—Pepper and Collins Scores St. Louis Runs.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 5 (AP)—Slightly battered but nontheless confident as they moved into the home grounds of the National League baseball champions, the Detroit Tigers tackled the St. Louis Cardinals to-day in the third game of the World Series.

It was a duel of right-handers as Tommy Bridges, brilliant Tiger speed artist, opposed Paul Dean, younger of the famous Cardinal brothers and a major league freshman.

A crowd estimated at 36,000 or more fans took advantage of the balmy weather to see the rival pennant winners battle for the 2-1 edge that will go to the victor today.

FIRST INNING

Tigers.—White lifted a high foul fly that Medwick speared with his gloved hand, making a sensational catch just in front of the boxes off left field.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Cardinals—Martin hit against the screen in right field for a triple. Pepper slid head first into third. Rothrock smashed a long fly to White and Martin scored standing up. There was not even an attempt for a play at the plate. Frisch singled sharply to right. The Tigers went into a conference with Bridges in the box, but Cochrane decided to keep Tommy on the job. Medwick fanned and Frisch was thrown out trying to steal, Cochrane to Gehringer.

One run, two hits, no errors; none left.

SECOND INNING

Tigers. — Goslin bounced a hit over Frisch's head and ran to second as the ball got past Rothrock. It was a single and an error by Rothrock. Rogell flied to Medwick, Goslin holding second. Owen was hit on the back by a pitched

TORIES PROPOSE TO RE-ORGANIZE ALL INDUSTRIES

Main Object of British Party is to Raise Standard of Living.

NO CAPITALIST PARADISE.

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRISTOL, Eng., Oct. 5.—(C. P. Cable)—By a close vote the Conservative party in annual convention here this afternoon declared for wide "reorganization" in British industry with safeguards for the public, for producers and for consumers.

Schemes of reorganization, it was stressed, should originate from industry itself and must command a substantial majority in the industry concerned. The main object must be to raise the standard of living.

The resolution endorsing this step was passed by a close margin on a show of hands after some warm debate during which a delegate attacked it as proposing a "General Johnson" for British industry, declaring it would stifle competition.

As Gov't Sanction

Moved by Ker Lindsay, Member of Parliament, the resolution requests the government to introduce legislation "which would give statutory sanction to schemes of reorganization which will have the support of a substantial majority of an industry, subject to proper safeguards for the public interest, for all those engaged in the industry and for consumers of its products."

Lindsay declared an industrial policy aimed at the creation of a "capitalist paradise" was inherently doomed to failure. It should be

A Dog's Love

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP)—Thomas D. Hobbins of Springfield, well known radio tenor at Windsor, has a blind playmate when he is home on vacation. His blind playmate is a terrier named Dixie, and she sits at his feet while he sings at the piano. Recently Tom went back to Windsor to resume his regular broadcasting. Dixie was disconsolate. But one morning this week, the radio was turned on in the home and the terrier pricked up her ears.

She listened, then with that sense that seems to belong to the blind, Dixie made for the piano, stood with her front paws on the bench and looked up as if expecting her master to stoop and pat her head.

Tom was not there to pat her, but she remained thus transfixed with joy and admiration until the song was ended. She was happy to have heard her master's voice.

BOY IS DROWNED IN SCUGOG RIVER

Three-Year-Old Child Wanders Down to Water's Edge And Falls In.

BODY RECOVERED

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence) — The first drowning of the year occurred yesterday afternoon when little Billy Barjerow, three-year-old son of Lorne Barjerow who works at the Kawartha Lumber Company, was drowned in the Scugog River near the old chemical plant. It is not known how the little lad came to fall in the water but the screams of his mother drew the attention of Thos. Cochrane, a Hydro lineman, who was working near the scene of the tragedy and Roy Head who was at the Shell office on Lindsay street north. These men with the assistance of Stan Henderson pulled the little lad from the river into a canoe and brought him to shore where artificial respiration was at once undertaken.

The sympathy of the entire community goes out to Mr. and Mrs. Barjerow, who suffered the loss of an infant child only a short time ago.

MACKENZIE KING DENIES VOYAGE FOR HIS HEALTH

Expresses Amusement at Suggestion Deep Significance in 2 Weeks' Visit.

ARRIVES IN LONDON.

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 5. (C.P. Cable) Expressing amusement at suggestions there was deep significance in their visit, William L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, and Ernest Lapointe, one of his chief lieutenants, arrived in London to-day after a voyage from Canada.

Mr. King was in high spirits as they arrived at Waterloo station to be greeted by a little crowd of welcomers, including Sir Edward Harding, permanent secretary to the Dominions office, Col. G. P. Vanier, of the High Commissioners office and L. J. Lemieux, Quebecs agent-general in London.

The Liberal leader looked rather pale, which he attributed to recent sleeplessness, but he told the Canadian Press in answer to questions that his voyage was certainly not for reasons of health, as suggested in some quarters.

"I have really nothing to say," said Mr. King. "I am always glad to come to England, but I do not know how long I shall be staying. I am giving no newspaper interviews," he added genially.

Like Mr. King, Mr. Lapointe professed no special significance was to be attached to their journey.

Rumors in Canada

He was told of rumors in Canada that they had made the trip on invitation to discuss questions of Imperial defence, supposedly with the approval of Prime Minister Bennett, now in London also.

RADICALS TAKE SPANISH TOWNS IN BITTER REVOLT

22 KNOWN DEAD.

Government Troops Go Into Action, Recapturing Six of Fallen Cities.

(By Rex Smith, A.P. Foreign Staff. Copyright, 1934, by Associated Press.)

MADRID, October 5. — At least 22 persons were killed and more than 100 wounded as virtual civil war between the Extremists and Government forces threw Spain into bloody turmoil to-day.

Six villages and cities, including the important firearms manufacturing town of Eibar were captured by the Extremists, who compacted into their forces anarchists, Communists, and Socialists. All six of the localities were recaptured in gun battles by soldiers, police, and Spain's famous Civil Guard.

Airplanes roared into the fray, despatched from government flying fields at Madrid to bomb the rebels into submission.

No one knows how many were killed by the airplanes. They flew over the Pyrenees across the Land of the Basques, with orders to direct both bombs and machine gun fire at strongholds of Extremists.

By 6 p.m. the village of Medina had been taken by Extremists and recaptured with death to two.

"We are facing a well organized revolution and are ready to take all measures against it."

President Alcala Zamora declared martial law in the Province of Asturias and a nation-wide decree of martial law was prepared for promulgation at any moment.

Lines Cut

All communications between Madrid and Santander were cut, but before the wires went out the city reported it was paralysed by a general strike and that an unknown number of casualities had been suffered in the street battles.

Aeroplanes rained a heavy bombardmemnt into Asturias.

One wounded man died near Valladolid. One civil guard was killed as the Extremists took over the village of Medina on the Rio Seco

Immediate attempts to obtain a complete estimate of the casualties were pure guesswork because of the breadown of communications and the quantity of unverified rumors.

400 Arrests Made.

More than 400 Extremists were arrested in Madrid between midnight and dawn.

The Anarchist-Syndicalists announced they would throw in their lot with Socialists and other Leftists, solidifying the strike front. Radical circles were bitter because of the Rightist and Centrist Cabinet formed by Lerroux.

Demonstrators cut several trunk line telephone wires in Barcelona, partially crippling international service. Repair crews were hurried to the scene. A strict censorshpi was clamped down on all news despatches. Only one Madrid newspaper published this morning — workers on the others went on strike.

A Flop

PITTSBURGH, Pa., October 5 (C.P.). — The party that Howard Childers, 29, gave turned out to be a pretty cold affair, no doubt.

In the first place, the guests had to assemble on a bare floor, and in the second, Childers wasn't there.

He spent the party night in a police station cell, charged with stealing a rug and an automobile to haul it away. He explained that the rug was only borrowed to cover the bare floor for the party.

SHORT SELLING OF TECH HUGHES TO BE PROBED

Can't Overlook Complaints States J. A. Godfrey, New Commissioner.

DIVIDENDS REDUCED.

Announcement Held to Give Insiders Chance to Get Out—Value Down Millions.

TORONTO, Oct. 5—(CP)—A public inquiry into "recent short-selling" of Teck Hughes stock, will be opened shortly," J. M. Godfrey, K.C. newly appointed commissioner of the Ontario Securities Department, announced today.

Mr. Godfrey said the inquiry would be opened at the Legislative building here just as soon as a preliminary investigation was completed. He was not prepared to say how long the preliminary investigation would last.

The investigation was being undertaken on his own initiative said the commissioner and the probe woud consider whether there was any "withholding of the announcement of reduction in dividends in order to give insiders an opportunity to sell stock short."

"I don't know what is in it," said Mr. Godfrey, "but I'm giving these fellows a chance to explain." Value of the stock has dropped "two or three million dollars."

Mr. Godfrey will serve as a commissioner in the inquiry, instituted under Section 10 of the Ontario Securities Act, into what he termed a "very serious complaint which I can't overlook."

Cary Grant Saved From Poison Death

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—A man identifying himself as Cary Grant, and said by police to be the film star, was given emergency treatment at the Hollywood Hospital early to-day for poisoning.

The man was able to leave the hospital unassisted after treatment. His physician, Dr. C. E. Cornell, said a stomach pump had been used to save the man's life.

Grant, located later at his home, refused to comment other than to say the physician would have to do the talking. Dr. Cornell, who admitted the man was Grant, said the actor was suffering from a deadly poison.

London and the Prince of Wales, who has been setting the styles for years, are reported to be surprised over announcements of men's fashions being issued from the Riviera.

DR. FAULKNER'S MOTHER-IN-LAW DIES OF WOUNDS

Harold Vermilyea, 49, of Ontario, Cal., is Charged With Mother's Murder.

SEEK CALIFORNIA CAR.

Woman Brutally Assaulted in Dark Outside Faulkner Home in Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Aug. 5.—(CP)—A warrant was issued today for arrest of Harold Vermilyea, 49, of Ontario, Cal., charging him with murder of his 76-year-old mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea. The aged woman, mother-in-law of Hon. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, died today of wounds inflicted last night by an assailant who attacked her with a hatchet.

Vermilyea was sought after provincial and city police learned he had visited his mother last night for a short time. Officers said he arrived here Monday and sought his mother but failed to find her at home.

Mrs. Vermilyea, her head battered and her right hand almost severed from the wrist, did not regain consciousness to identify her assailant, but police swore out a warrant for his arrest after learning of his visit.

No one identified the man who attacked Mrs. Vermilyea last night although a neighbor saw a man flee in the darkness as he rushed to the street on hearing the woman scream.

Police of Ontario watched all highways leading from Belleville and border points kept a careful check on persons passing their inspection.

Inspector W. H. Lougheed and Inspector Hamer Gardner of the criminal investigation department of the Ontario Provincial Police arrived in the city to-day from Toronto and have taken charge of the case.

Visit By Stranger Monday.

A man came on Monday to the home of Dr. J. J. Farley's widow, where Mrs. Vermilyea had been living. Told she was not at home, he departed. Whether it was the same man who saw her last night has not been established.

Mrs. Vermilyea herself answered the door last night and took the man to her room. They remained there about 10 minutes and departed for the home of Mrs. Faulkner.

They entered the walk leading to the house and as they reached a clump of bushes a scream was heard. The man attacked her with a hatchet. Apparently the woman tried to fend off the blow with her right hand because the member was nearly severed.

She was knocked down and struck over the head several times with the blunt end. Her skull was almost crushed and she suffered a severe cut on the forehead.

A next door neighbor, V. P. Hunt, saw a form disappearing between the two houses.

Finds Body on Lawn

Mrs. Faulkner dashed out of the house and saw a form lying on the grass. Thinking the woman an automobile accident victim she picked her up to carry her into the surgery.

She recognized a broach the woman wore, dropped the injured Mrs. Vermilyea and almost collapsed.

Dr. R. M. Gibson was summoned, along with Constables Clarence Arnott and William Ewan and Detective-Sergeant Fred Isard of the local police force. The two constables rushed Mrs. Vermilyea to hospital.

In a dishpan at the rear of the house the detective found the blood-stained hatchet.

CONSERVATIVES APPROVE OF NATIONAL LOTTERY

BRISTOL, England, Oct. 5 (CP Cable).—By a large majority the Conservative Party in convention here to-day approved the establishment of a national lottery, similar to the huge Irish Free State sweeps.

Sir William Davidson, M.P., submitting the resolution, said that between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000 left Britain for foreign lotteries in the last five years. He suggested the sale of $2.50 tickets, through post office branches; half the proceeds going for prizes and the other half to the State.

Britain Recalls Ex-Officials' Documents After Finding Many In Used Book Store

LONDON, Oct. 5. (C.P. Cable).—Discovery of important state documents floating around second-hand bookstalls in London was said today to be the cause of the Government's order requiring ex-ministers to return any state documents in their possession.

Reports the call went out because of continued publication of memories by former members of the British cabinet were scoffed at. It was explained former cabinet ministers would always be given access to the records if they so wished.

Apparently derelict documents originally in possession of ministers now dead, have turned up in odd places lately and in order to prevent possibly dangerous material circulating around, the Government asked all ex-cabinet ministers to co-operate.

The majority of former ministers have already expressed agreement and a government spokesman said this afternoon that so far no one has refused to return documents in his possession.

Godfrey Stands By Decision Of Col. Drew In "Mr. X" Case—Issues Warning To Frauds

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(CP)—Three days after assuming office as Ontario Securities Commissioner, J. M Godfrey today declared: "Dishonest and fraudulent brokers or salesmen will get no mercy from this department."

The new commissioner revealed the "Mr. X" mentioned in a dispute between Col. George A. Drew his predecessor, and Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck, had applied for reconsideration of the former Commissioner's decision to deny him a brokerage license.

"I refused to change the decision of the previous commissioner," Mr Godfrey said, "because I don't think Mr. X is a fit and proper person to have a brokerage license."

As far as he is concerned, Mr Roebuck said, "there is no change in the act and Mr. Godfrey can decide whom he shall give licenses to and whom he shall not. Mr. Godfrey has the same powers as Col Drew and will carry on his administrations unchecked and unrestricted by me."

DOURO YOUTHS CAPTURE CUPS FOR PLOWING

Annual Conuty Plowing Match on Sanderson Farm Big Success.

34 CONTESTANTS. ..

Ollan Leahy Wins Burnham Cup, Brother Robert Royal Bank Trophy.

Two Douro township youths, Ollan and Robert Leahy, sons of Reeve Frank Leahy, carried home the two silver cups of the Peterborough Plowmen's Association from the annual plowing match which was held yesterday on the farm of Clayton Sanderson, three miles north of the city on the Chemong Road.

Ollan Leahy won the Burnham Cup for the highest scoring land in any class restricted to plowmen resident in this county, and his brother Robert turned in the best work in any class for youths under twenty-one years to win the Royal Bank trophy. Both these young farmers were awarded second prizes in their respective competitions last year. They have been knocking at the door of primary plowing honors for a number of seasons, and yesterday they accomplished their ambitions by capturing the two classes in which they entered, and also the special trophies that are awarded as extras to high ranking plowmen.

Father Wins From Son

John Medd and his son Ray of Port Perry renewed their duel of last fall, reversing the order of their work yesterday. In this sod class open to jointer plows Harold Collins of Keene won first place a year ago with Ray Medd second, William Hooton of Ida third and John Medd fourth.

Yesterday John Medd took first prize with his son second and Mr. Hooton third, in an exceedingly close contest.

Thirty-four Contestants

Conditions for yesterday's match were perfect, and the quality of the work was excellent, although the number of plowmen was slightly less than a year ago. The match was held two weeks earlier than usual, and another factor that affected the number of entries was their employment on No. 7 highway, and at other work.

The Sanderson farm was ideal, the ground in prime condition, and the committee's arrangements had overlooked no detail. In fact the

BRITISH WOMEN HAVE ATTAINED MAJOR RIGHTS

Feminism(as an Issue Stirring Crusading Zeal, Now Petering Out.

LOT IN SPAIN IMPROVED.

French Women Don't Vote — Majority Don't Care To.

LONDON, (AP).—Feminism, in England, has shoved the ball across the goal line.

The campaign for women's rights is a movement which has achieved most of its objectives. So Feminism, as an issue stirring a crusading zeal in women, is petering out.

A mop-up squad of alert women is still active ironing out some slight inequalities.

An effort is being made to win for women the right to enter Great Britain's diplomatic service, and feminists foresee the day when England will send its women to foreign lands to serve His Majesty's Government. On another front women are campaigning for abolition of the present law under which English women who marry foreigners lost their British nationality.

House of Lords Barred

Women may, and do, sit in the House of Commons. One woman has served in the Cabinet. The House of Lords still sticks to the ancient tradition of being a man's institution. But apparently women are satisfied to allow the House of Lords to cling to its hoary tradition because so many powers are being stripped from the dignified Upper Chamber that feminists do not care to crash its august gates.

The average British woman is well satisfied with her lot, politically and socially. But to make triumph for their sex complete the so-called "Six Point Group," founded by Lady Rhondda, carries on for the attainment of equality politically, occupationally, socially, morally, economically and legally.

Last Real Battle

ROEBUCK REPLIES.

Claims if Any Wrong Done Drew Would Have Investigated Long Ago.

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario today had before him a suggestion from Col. George A. Drew, former Securities Commissioner, that a Royal Commission investigate the affairs of Diversified Investment Trusts Limited, a firm Col. Drew claims was headed by Attorney General Arthur W. Roebuck. The company is no longer in operation.

In an open letter to the premier, Col. Drew who was dismissed from the Securities Commissioner's post by Order-in-Council after a controversy with the Attorney General, also suggests that he act as counsel without charge if the premier decides a Royal Commission inquiry should be held into the firm's affairs.

"I shall also be pleased to bring before the Commission important evidence in regard to other companies which had their birth and being in Mr. Roebuck's office," Col. Drew said in his letter to the premier.

Would Not Have Delayed

"You may be sure that if Mr. Drew and the Conservative party could have destroyed me by investigation, Col. Drew would not have waited until he had lost all power to investigate before taking action," was part of the Attorney General's reply to Col. Drew.

New Comer To Radio

With the introduction of Horace Lapp on the 'blue coal' program, to-night over CFRB, at 9.00 p.m., the radio audience of Canada will welcome a new comer to radio whose reputation as a musical genius is far reaching.

Horace Lapp is known to many thousands of people through his connection with the Uptown and Imperial Theatres in Toronto, where, for many years, he gave enjoyment to theatre goers. With the advent of talking pictures, the theatre, only a few months ago, finally dispensed with this orchestra. Mr. Lapp then associated himself with the D. L. & W. 'blue coal' program which will be his first presentation over the Canadian air. It is anticipated that this program will be a treat for the radio audience.

To-night's program will include special arrangements by Horace Lapp for the orchestra, amongst which is included "Album of Old Songs," a concert arrangement of "Love in Bloom" with Mr. Lapp at the piano, and "Star of Eve" featuring Tim Maurice and his tenor saxaphone. Other features of the program will be a specially selected male chorus who will combine with the orchestra in several presentation numbers.

BRITISH NAVAL CIRCLES STIRRED WITH DENUNCIATION OF POLICIES

Former British Officer Scoffs at Threat of Prolonged Attack.

WEATHER STOPS PLANES

By ROBERT ANGUS
Central Press Canadian Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—The security of the British Commonwealth can be maintained by a smaller navy at great reduction of present cost; dreadnoughts are useless because their size precludes their use of dry and floating docks at distant naval bases; submarines should be excluded from future British naval programs because of torpedo inefficiency; the mission of the British fleet is not the patrolling of trade-routes; increased aircraft building should be curtailed because anticipated bombing and gas-attacks by air will not reduce survivors to panic and demands for peace.

Such trenchant statements are unique when it is remembered that Canada has been visited this summer by a number of naval experts who have depored the fact that the British navy is far behind in strength, that empire trade-routes would be ill-protected in time of war because of present lack of battle-ships, that Canada should build a navy to protect her coasts and convoy troops.

Credit the opening-paragraph contentions to Captain Bernard Acworth, D.S.O., R.N., who left the British navy three years ago to become high-seas correspondent for "The Observer" and "The Morning Post." What makes his suggested abolition of the submarine more surprising is that Asworth served for four years in the torpedo division of the naval staff, subsequent to serving most of his career, in MILLBROOK, Oct. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence).—"I am pleased to be here at an honest-to-goodness agricultural fair," declared J. B. Fairbairn, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in opening the Millbrook Fall Fair on Wednesday at 2 p.m. The guest speaker was introduced by W. J. Bragg, M.P.P. for Durham, who spoke of him as "an old Durham boy," and also mentioned Ontario's Lieutenant-Governor, the Honorable Dr. Herbert Bruce, as "another from this historic county who received outstanding honor."

Continuing his address, the Deputy Minister said; "I have seen today some of the very best specimens of livestock shown at any fall fair this season, and I wish to compliment the officers and directors of the Agricultural Association, for I believe this Fair undoubtedly excels not only in livestock but in fruit, vegetables and other departments as well."

Dad Tells His Son Why He Is Going To Convert Victory Bonds

"... In 1919, when you were nearly ten and beginning to sit up and take notice, I invested $2,000 in Victory Bonds. The war was over, business was booming, and Canada floated the final Victory Loan to pay off post-war obligations. It was one of the most successful of all the war loans. Everyone was enthusiastic about it, and subscribed to the limit of his (or her) ability. I was one of 800,000 persons who bought the bonds. But at that time I didn't realize what a good thing I had in my Victory Bonds. They have been the best investment I ever made.

"On November 1st I shall receive my final interest payment and get back my original $2,000. Now consider this,—on the original $2,000 I have received $110 in interest each year for fifteen years—$1,650 in all. I put the interest in the bank every six months and have let it compound itself. My original $2,000 has now grown to over $4,000. So, of course, I am reinvesting the whole $4,000 in the new Refunding Loan.

"True, the interest rate now isn't so high. But times have changed. Money is far cheaper today. And I have learned that it does not pay to try to get better than the going rate. I've been in and out of a number of things since 1919—I've sometimes gone after high returns rather than safety, and I've been sorry. Experience has taught me that Dominion of Canada Bonds are the finest nest-egg for your mother and me. If we happen to need the money we can always sell them. So far, we've been able to get along without touching either interest or principal, and, of course, I've bought other Dominion Bonds since.

"The way I look at it, my boy, is that if Dominion of Canada Bonds were an excellent investment in 1919—and they were—they are an even better investment today. Canada has weathered some pretty tough times during the past few years, and come out on top. So I'm going to stick with my investment.

"This Refunding Loan, my boy, is a great thing for the country as well as for the individual. It's going to help business. I find that most men of my age, whom I know, are thinking as I am and are converting their Bonds. I know you haven't any Bonds to convert, but, if I were you, I'd subscribe for a thousand or two of this new Loan—as much as you can buy. I don't think you can do better..." 99 peace and war, in submarines. He bolsters all his charges and explodes some falacies in "The Navy and the Next War" (Musson's Ltd., Toronto), which is creating considerable stir in England and abroad and may exercise considerable influence on naval policy.

Scoffs Air Scare

Acworth scoffs at the present "terror of the skies" scare. Anton Fokker, aeroplane designer, may claim that every capital in Europe is in peril from aerial destruction; Sir Philip Sassoon, under-secretary of state for air, may state that Britain will spend in 1934 a total of $1,250,000 for new machines to match the largest air-fleet in the world; but Acworth staunchly maintains that aeroplanes must remain slaves to the weather except in short flights and that London has nothing to fear from bombing aircraft at any distance beyond the French or Belgian coasts.

Popular conception of the next war is a confused and lurid mixture of indiscriminate bombing and poisoning of men, women and children from the skies. Acworth still places his faith in the British navy as first defence. He says: "Strict limitations of air-craft are attributable to complete instability of the atmosphere. If the geographical distance from one point to another is 3,000 miles, a ship sails 3,000 miles. But so moderate a wind as 30 miles per hour reduces the speed of an 80 m.p.h. air-craft to 50, but because the aircraft maintains her own proper speed of 80 m.p.h. through the moving air, she has to fly between two points not 3,000 miles but 4,800. Speed of wind increases progressively with height. A surface wind of 30 m.p.h becomes 50 m.ph. at so low a flying height of 2,000 feet so that the aircraft, to negotiate the actual distance of 3,000 miles at 2,000 feet, must fly a distance of 8,000 miles."

Weather Stops Aeroplanes

A striking example was afforded of the utter dependence of aircraft upon favoring breezes when, during glorious July weather, the Italian "Air Armada" after days of waiting at Londonderry, was wafted with a southerly wind to Iceland, while Mr. and Mrs. Mollison, to whose machine bound west to New York the same wind was less favorable, lay day by day, inexplicably to the waiting world, on Pendline Sands.

It is apt to be overlooked, Acworth points out, that in short London-Paris flights, planes are refueled, a facility hardly to be expected in the event of war if the aircraft were hostile bombers. In admiralty exercises with ships and aircraft, the targets are brought within easy flying range of aircraft, unembarrassed by anti-aircraft fire, he says. The targets are deliberately accommodated to the needs of the bomber, a condition that would not prevail in war. Despite an occasionaly German bomb attack on London during the Great War, shipping was never inconvenienced. German bombing of Dunkirk occurred twenty times a week but never stopped the unloading of munitions from British ships. Nor was a single lock or submarine at Zeebrugge damaged by a French or British bomb.

Returning to the navy, Acworth shows how, without any increase in total tonnage of the present fleet and at greatly reduced cost, it would be possible to provide that security which, he feels, the present navy fails to provide. He deplores the installation of fantastic horsepowers and the craze for excessive speed in British warships.

Submarines Almost Useless

Increased cruiser fleets are advocated by Asworth for convey and blockade purposes. The primary mission of the British fleet in time of war is the decisive destruction, incapacitation or capture of the enemy fleet; or the enemy fleet may be bottled up, offsetting the necessity of protecting trade-routes and preventing invasion.

As regards submarines, Acworth maintains that fear of the torpedo was not based on its merits but on "pictures of its potency." The devastating effect on isolated merchant ships and liners could have been obviated by convoy if the admiralty had earlier approved of this. Later, in 1917, when America entered the war, this policy was carried out with no loss of transports. He calls for abolition of the dreadnoughts; post-war construction of higher cruiser quotas; substitution of coal for oil as fuel; lessened speed rates because the means of compelling action depends on strategical and not mechanical means, as Jutland proved: greater armour-plating of battleships; limited gun-range, where the target may be seen, rather than too long-range where guns are simply drooping shells by guess without positive trajectory calculations.

Toronto Livestock Review

TORONTO, Oct. 3. (CP)—Prices on calves and hogs were lower on the Toronto Livestock market this week but other grades—cattle, sheep and lambs—held steady on average runs.

Calves dropped 50 cents on Monday and failed to regain the loss in the next three days, while hogs, unable to stem the tide which has sent the division down more than $2 in little more than a month, lost 35 cents.

The cattle run was slightly heavier than the previous week but the holdower was cut from 400 to 200 head. The supply included about 1,000 head of western stockers and killing cattle, all going at steady prices. Good and choice quality cattle were scarce and the plainer kinds met little response from buyers. Two hundred and forty head were exported to Great Britain while around 1,400 head of stocers were shipped to the country. The holdover will have to wait until Tuesday for movement, the market being closed, Monday, Oct. 8, Thanksgiving Day.

Weighty steers of common to medium quality sold at $3 to $4.50 and two loads of choice heavies made $5.50 to $6. Handyweight butcher cattle went mostly at $3 to $4 with a few top steers at $4.26 to $4.50. Common boners sold as low as $1 cwt. Cows moved within a range of $1 for canners to $1.75 to $2.50 for butchers. Good butcher bulls made $2.25 to $2.75 while bolognas brought $1.75 to $2.

Good and choice quality fed calves sold steady at $6 to $7 with a few going at $7.25 early in the week. Store cattle trade was fairly active with prices moving within a narrow range of $2 and $3. A few good feeders got as high as $3.25. A few loads of common stockers remained unsold at the close. Milkers and springers held steady at $40 and $45 for tops.

Calves slumped 5 cents Monday afternoon and then held at the lower level for the balance of the week. The 3165-head run included 700 westerns. Choice vealers closed mostly at $6.50 with the odd sale up to $7. The bulk of the vealers closed from $4.50 to $6. The majority of heavy calves went to killers at $3 to $4.50. In an effort to clear the heavies, last sales were made to farmers at $2.75 to $3.50 but some were still unsold at the close.

Hogs started the week off miserably, losing 40 cents on opening day. The only bright spot came Tuesday when salesmen held their supplies for the greater part of the day and finally got a five-cent increase. Closing prices were $6.65 f.o.b. for bacons, $7 off truck and $7.40 off car. Selects, as usual, brought $1.00 premium while sows were at a discount of $3.00 and stags sold at $2.50 to $3. Unofficial cables from England stated the bacon market there had dropped lower.

While lambs showed signs of advancing prices at times, the general level remained unchanged at $5.75 for good ewes and wethers and at 4.75 for bucks, culls and heavies. Throughout the week picked lots of lambs made $5.85 to $6. Sheep closed unchanged after a steady week at $2.50 to $3 for good, light ewes, at $2 to $2.50 for good heavies and at $1 to $1.50 for culls.

MILLBROOK FAIR HIGHLY PRAISED BY J. B. FAIRBURN

tury, and who is standing nearby." Particular reference was also made of the Boys' Foal Club, the point being well illustrated by the fact that the eleven entrants, with their fine young animals, were at that moment lined up in front of the grandstand, the prize ribbons having been put in place a short time before. "I believe there is not any one thing that augurs more for the future of this province than these activities, and I hope these lads will branch out and attend some of the larger exhibitions.

"While conditions have been at an extremely low ebb, I am confident that we are entering upon a new era, and that greater prosperity is before us than we have witnessed for a number of years. If prosperity is to return we must have encouragement in industry, and in that category agriculture holds the chief place."

Stressing the point that "the farmer must have the opportunity of borrowing and using cheaper money than has been the case in the past, because before other industries flourish agriculture must regain the position it formerly held," the Minister added: "I believe that within the next twelve months it will be possible to get cheaper money for the industry in which you are engaged.

"I am delighted to see all these excellent flowers, fruit, vegetables and other exhibits and I say to the president and the directors of this show that if it is possible to give greater assistance to fairs of this kind they may rest assured they will have my support one hundred per cent."

Federal Member Speaks.

Applause followed the Deputy Minister's address, and the president, J. L. McCamus, called upon F. W. Bowen, M.P. for Durham, who declared: "Millbrook is noted for its good fair, and why? Because you have good farmers. It is the show window of this community, and the primary reason for holding fairs is for educational purposes; that the unskilled may learn and the skilled may improve. I am pleased with your Boys' Foal Club. There are not too many horses being raised today, and a good horse still brings a good price. You have my best wishes for your every success." Applause.

Exhibits reached a high mark both in quality and quantity, as is always the case with the local Fair, but while the weather was favorable though cloudy and somewhat cool, the attendance and gate receipts were below par—the result, it was frequently heard stated, of a rumor that gained wide credence to the effect that the village has an epidemic of spinal meningitis. As a matter of fact there has been but one case, a mild one, with the patient quite recovered.

Exhibits in the main building induced keen interest, a notable fact in the fancy work section being that all articles shown were clean and new looking, and the art entries were also attractively displayed. Miss Sybil Brown of Port Hope, judged these, and Miss M. E. Needham the domestic products, Mrs. Wesley Brown taking first on the ten-pound crock of dairy butter and Mrs. John Armstrong the special by F. W. Bowen for the best ten-pound crock. In spite of the recent heavy and unusually early frosts, the section for flowers and house plants was well filled and blooms were beautiful, particularly those entered in the "basket" section. David Jordan, of Peterborough, judged these, and as usual Cardwell's exhibit of gladiolas took high place.

Local Prize Winners.

Among local prize winners were Mrs. J. W. Hilton, Mrs. H. C. Lord, Mrs. H. McLeod, Mrs. John Armstrong, and several others, Mrs. Ira Lowe of Mount Pleasant, who took a total of 23 firsts and 26 seconds out of a total of nine entries in the latter section. Other large exhibitors were Mrs. A. E. Bogue, of Lakefield, who had fifty-one firsts from entries in ladies' work, art, plants, etc., and Mrs. A. J. Carnegie, of Port Perry, whose record was forty-one red tickets in the same classes.

In a year when apples are so scarce some fine specimens were shown in a number of classes—James Dixon of Camubellcroft, and F. W. L. Tamblyn, of Orono, taking many prizes. W. J. Oke was the judge. Mrs. H. Seney, of Cavan, took first on the collection of vegetables, and Mrs. Bogue second. The jars of canned vegetables shown by the Girls' Garden and Canning Club, judged by Miss Edith Hopkins, attracted much interest. Winners will be announced in the near future from the office of the Department of Agriculture at Port Hope, as eighty per cent is for garden standing, and twenty for the canned product. The handsome silver casserole given by the Robert Simpson Co. for the best collection of baking was won by Mrs. N. Belch. Clarence Allen, of Newcastle, and Jas. Brown of Bowmanville, judged the sheep and swine, pens being practically all taken. In Yorks, L. C. McNeil, of Cavan, swept the sheet; in Berks, Mark and Son, of Little Britain, and in Tams, J. R. Kelsey, of Woodville. In sheep, J. W. Batson, of Hampton, took the major number of firsts; in Leicesters and Lincolns, W. R. Robbins, of Hampton, and in Shrops, H. Skinner, of Tyrone.

The cattle showing was up to the usual fine standard, J. H. Nelson being the judge, and among exhibitors were: Bagshaw of Uxbridge, who had five firsts in Herefords; J. E. Leask, of Seagrave, with a similar record in Shorthorns; and Kennedy Bros. with their Polled Angus. The special in swine, for best pen, went to R. Matchett and Son, of Cavan.

Horses, as usual, were outstanding at the Millbrook fair among exhibitors being S. S. Staples, I. M. Nattress, Scott and Blewett, (Peterborough), Bowles Bros., J. Whittington and Son, D. Tinney, H. Farrow (Orono), H. A. Fallis, G. Fair and Son, R. J. McKnight and Son, and many others. Judges were Scott, of Sunderland, Maher of Cobourg, and McAdoo, of Kingston. The three boys who took highest standing with their colts were: 1, Fred Brown; 2, Elmer Douglas; 3, Gerald Larmer.

Speeding in the ring results were

Class 'A'

Bud Mocco	1	1	1
George McKinney	2	2	2
Tod Grattan	3	3	3

Class 'B'

Peter Patch	1	1	1
Lady Dale	2	2	2
St. Peter	3	3	3

Judges—J. McMillan, Cobourg, and A. E. Juby, Peterborough. Timer—M. J. Fallis. Starter—T. Cowan, Orono. Clerk—T. H. Collins.

Exhibits in the poultry building were limited to production classes, judges being M. Brimstin and Allan Courtice, of Port Hope, and exhibitors including Marks' Bros. of Little Britain who had nine firsts in the White Leghorn class; M. McDowell; A. B. Mann, Peterborough; M. McKenzie, of Oshawa; W. Widdis, H. Morton, E. L. Armstrong and Lloyd Sutton.

The usual games of chance and booths lined the midway, the tent with the 'largest horse in the world, weighing over 2,400 pounds and owned by a farmer of Fenelon Falls, attracting many patrons.

Entries at the fair totalled 1,697, including horses, 204; cattle, 169; sheep, 73; hogs, 57; poultry, 53; grain, 37; roots and vegetables, 123; fruit, 148; plants, 90; domestic and cheese etc., 51; ladies' work, 388; arts, 90. With a lowered gate receipt the difficulty facing the directors and officers is to meet the heavy prize list with insufficient funds as an outcome of the labor, time, and expense involved.

Tuesday and Wednesday evenings the Bailieboro Softball Club, under the direction of Miss Jean Stinson, presented the play, "Here Comes Charlie", winning many expressions of appreciation for their clever impersonation of the several roles; and on Wednesday night, in the Armouries, a dance was held with music by McManus' orchestra, of Lakefield, completing the fair day program successfully, so far as these events were concerned.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake Up Your Liver Bile and Get A New Lease of Life. No Calomel Is Necessary.

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels, every day of your life.

Without that bile, trouble starts promptly. Your food just won't digest. Gas sours and your bowels are sluggish. Food decays inside you and your entire system is undermined by this poisonous waste matter. You have indigestion—the discomforts of gas, sleeping, heartburn and sourness. You are apt to get headaches. Have a tongue like cotton-wool, a nasty taste in your mouth, bad breath and ugly skin. You haven't anything like the pep a healthy person should have. In fact you are generally wretched.

How can you expect to clear up a condition like this completely by taking mere bowel-movers like salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing-gum, or roughage? They can't take the place of your liver bile!

Avoid calomel (mercury). Buy yourself a box of old reliable Carter's Little Liver Pills. All vegetable, sure, gentle, safe. They'll make up your liver, without upsetting you. Bring back the glad-to-be-alive feeling, once more.

Don't waste your money on substitutes. Be definite. Ask for Carter's by name and get them. Look for the name, Carter's, on the red label. Refuse all druggists.

INVEST IN CANADA.

Holders of Victory Bonds which mature on November 1 who propose to exchange them for bonds of the 1934 Refunding Loan should not fail to notice that in order to qualify for the extra cash allowance promised for the conversion of these bonds they must be exchanged on or before Saturday of this week; after that time Victory Bonds will only be converted on a par basis.

There is every reason to believe that thousands of Canadians who own these bonds will take advantage of this opportunity and keep their money invested in a way that is absolutely safe, guarantees a regular income and at the same time provides quick marketability in case cash is desired.

At the same time it will undoubtedly prove to be the case that large numbers of new investors will be glad to subscribe to the loan, regarding the new bonds as the best investment open to Canadians to-day.

This opportunity to invest in Canada and profit by her progress, while assisting a great national undertaking and hastening the return of better times to the Dominion, is one that should appeal not only to the patriotism but to the common sense of the Canadian people.

As the Department of Finance so aptly asks, "Where can you find better use for your money?" and it is to be imagined that the majority of Canadians will answer "Nowhere" and proceed at once to take advantage of this opening.

JEOPARDIZING THE CAMPAIGN.

If the attitude expressed by J. F. Marsh, Deputy Minister of Labor, in regard to the Workers' Unity League is maintained when the Ontario Government sets up its industrial codes and minimum wage legislation, the new administration will be simply asking for trouble.

Mr. Marsh, according to newspaper reports, has declared that the Workers' Unity League has never been proved illegal, and that it is entitled to recognition as a trades union.

That opinion will be rejected by the employers of Ontario, and it will be spurned by organized labor, the leaders of which have no illusions as to the Workers' Unity League and its real purpose.

Tom Moore, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, has condemned the organization as "a Canadian section of the Red International of Moscow whose sole purpose is to stir up strife and foster the aims of the Communist party," and his views are shared by all sane labor leaders in the country.

If, therefore, the recognition of the Workers' Unity League is insisted upon by the Government in its campaign to bring about better wages and working conditions in the province, the whole plan will be jeopardized, for employers cannot be expected to greet with open arms an organization that is openly and frankly Communistic in its viewpoint, and that is seeking by every means in its power to upset existing institutions, and to foment as much unrest as can be stirred up by insistent and persistent agitation.

Industrial codes that compel the recognition of that kind of thing will never be popular in Ontario.

MR. ROEBUCK SHOULD EXPLAIN.

One of the most potent factors in the overwhelming defeat of the Henry Government was the apparent belief of the members of its Cabinet that the public desire for information in regard to important issues could be ignored.

Premier Henry and his lieutenants refused to be frank with the electors, declined to give explanations in answer to charges made against the administration and, in short, displayed such a the-public-be-damned attitude that when the people of Ontario got a chance they lost no time in turning the Government out of office.

It might naturally be expected that the fate of the Henry administration would have proved a warning to politicians in general, but here we find Attorney-General Roebuck falling into the same error.

Up to the present he has declined to give the public any explanation of the serious charge made by Col. George Drew that the Attorney-General interested himself in trying to secure a review of the case of an applicant for a stock-selling license, who had been refused such a license by the Securities Commissioner because he had a record of twelve criminal convictions against him.

When the protection of the public against fraudulent stock schemes is so urgently needed it is surprising to learn that the man in charge of law enforcement in the province would even suggest a second chance for an individual with a very bad record.

The Globe, a staunch supporter of the Hepburn Government, and its most powerful ally in the election, has been doing some plain speaking on this issue.

It declares that to leave the Attorney-General's letter asking for a review of the application "without reply or explanation cannot be considered satisfactory from any point of view."

"Ignoring the charge," says the Globe, "invites the interpretation that it is well founded, and that Mr. Roebuck has no defense to offer. This sort of attitude will not inspire confidence in the Attorney-General's administration or make the path of the new commissioner, Mr. John M. Godfrey, K.C., any easier."

The Globe is doing the new Government a service in this straight-from-the-shoulder talk. Mr. Roebuck is drifting perilously near the same rock that helped to wreck the Henry Government, and the warning is both timely and necessary.

OUTPACING UNCLE SAM.

Evidence of the manifest improvement in conditions in Canada continues to come from every hand, and the latest proof is furnished by Canadian Business, the official organ of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, which declares that for four months Canadian business activity has shown a sturdy resistance in the face of unsettling contractions in the United States.

August, in the matter of business volume, exceeded the July showing, and was the best month, after seasonal adjustment, since recovery set in. Even more encouraging is the fact that preliminary September figures suggest even further betterment with weekly car loadings making the best showing in four years.

"The improvement in our economic position," says Canadian Business emphatically, "is digging deep into many industries. Twice as many automobiles will be produced this year, at least twice as much steel, while construction should be up about 40 per cent.

"Retail trade has been spotty. In Montreal, summer business was disappointing, but the outlook for the country as a whole is soundly encouraging. Our wheat crop will be approximately as large as last year, but the harvest is being marketed at prices 20 per cent. higher. In the opinion of certain observers, the volume of business in many country districts gives promise of surpassing that for the last three years.

"Newsprint production in August was the best August on record (with the exception of 1929), and although some scepticism is being expressed that the output is running ahead of advertising linage and actual consumption, stocks on hand, while increasing, are far from dangerous.

"Dominion revenues continue to reflect the underlying improvement. Ordinary expenditures have been cut, and despite the precarious position of many municipalities and a few provinces, healthier 'income accounts' are being presented. For the first five months of the 1933 fiscal year, to August 31, ordinary expenditures about equalled ordinary receipts. This year there was a surplus of 22 million dollars.

"In accordance with previous forecasts, the public works campaign may amount to only 25 million dollars, instead of 40 million as previously announced, but in Ottawa circles a certain broadening of the Government's unemployment plan is believed to be inevitable."

"SOMETHING FOR NOTHING."

An interesting experiment was tried recently in Texas. A Democratic primary election was being held, and the State Election Bureau decreed that the returns should be made available for publication in the newspapers and for no other use. They were not announced by radio stations, not even shown on newspaper bulletin boards.

After this primary a vote of newspaper publishers was taken, and a large majority approved of the system. Therefore, a second primary was handled in the same way, and a writer in Editor and Publisher remarked that "the expected flood of complaints from the public did not materialize," from which he draws the conclusion that the people

". . . . apparently realized it was poor business for a newspaper to give away, often to its competitors in covering the elections, information for which it had paid considerable money, and with consequent injury to newspaper sales."

Canadian newspapers face the same problem, not only when an election is to be reported but in the common run of news. If the radio stations are permitted to do their own reporting, to find and select the news they broadcast, very often they make a frightful mess of the job. They send out wild rumors, vague speculations, because they have neither the experience nor the facilities for competing in this highly-specialized field, and the public mind is set in a turmoil. On the other hand, if the newspapers give them a service—as Canadian papers give a service to the Canadian Broadcasting Commission—the newspapers are making a free gift to a competitor of a commodity which represents the expenditure of a great deal of money.

Curiously enough the public has come to expect this sort of benevolent generosity from the newspapers. News is its stock in trade, its marketable product, and it is expected to—and usually does—hand out this information freely to all who apply. There is no such expectation of any other business.

The boat races are a case in point. Every day the Journal's telephone wires, needed for the regular activities of the organization, are blocked by calls for information about the progress of the race. So are wires of every other daily paper in this country. The newspapers pay money for this news, buy it for publication in the only article they have to sell—and then give it away freely and cheerfully. It is a generosity unknown in any other business.

Sometimes one wonders whether the public appreciates the degree to which the newspaper plays the part of a kindly uncle. "Something for nothing" usually is considered of small value. The fact is that modern newspapers, which have to be run on strict business lines or they do not run very long, inherit the tradition of a free-and-easy time when the editor was an unofficial public servant and all he had and knew was at the disposal of everybody. The present conception of news as a property which the courts will protect against theft is not reflected in the attitude of the press towards telephone calls, bulletin boards and radio competition.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Victory Bond holders must convert them this week if they want to get the benefit of the special cash offer. Better act now before it is too late.

Dizzy Dean won the opening game of the world series, but it must be admitted that it was the Detroit infield that contributed most of the dizziness.

Up to the present the NRA authorities have failed to draw up a code for the American football players now playing with Canadian teams.

The Ontario Legislature does not meet until January, and in the interim the new administration seems to be setting up a few talking points for the use of the opposition during the session.

CARE OF UNEMPLOYED

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: In the columns of your paper of late there appear many distressing stories of the unemployed, and of those on relief. The deputation who appeared before the city council begging relief was carried out more in a spirit of dictatorship than that of an appeal for help; the greatest influence that that class of people can command from the public in general lies in their efforts in helping themselves.

Wonderful results has been had from the gardens this year and those who spent their spare moments in this line, in trying to provide for the future have been amply rewarded. Mayor Denne seems jubilant over the idea that neither he nor his aldermen are responsible for the welfare of their citizens, this belonging entirely to the relief officer, Mr. Metheral. This was evidenced by the Jewish attitude he took on receiving the deputation the other night, when by a shrug of the shoulders, and throwing his hands open, exclaiming mine money. Apart from the responsible side of the argument, it has its human side, which should have first consideration.

"See yonder, poor o'er-labor'd wight,
So abject, mean and vile,
Who begs a brother of the earth,
To give him leave to toil,
And see his lordly fellow-worm,
The poor petition spurn,
Unmindful, though a weeping wife,
And helpless offspring mourn.

MORRO CASTLE.

Charges have been lodged with the United States government that the owners of vessels of the merchant type have instructed the officers not to ask help until the latest possible moment, so as to avoid the payment of large salvage sums of money.

Fire and boat drills are required by law on all merchant vessels. Officers of many vessels have been instructed not to be overscrupulous about the enforcement. Laxity has taken the place of faithful performance of highly important safety requirements. This matter should be thoroughly investigated. Owners should be brought to justice. The plea has been made in defence that the drills have the effect of making the passengers nervous and panicky. This is all bunk. The drill gives a feeling of greater safety in case of disaster. The owners also declare that passengers on vessels where the drill is enforced are likely to seek out vessels on which drill is not a fixed imperative. Such a plea is the voice of greed. A long passenger list more important than the safety of each passenger is unthinkable.

Another grievous charge is made against the owners of merchant vessels. So eager are these men for profits, in a time of great unemployment, that advantage is taken of the crews. Wages ridiculously low are offered to seasoned seamen. They can accept them or leave. Many of the crews have homes and families. What can they do but accept the wages offered. This is a crime. The charge is made that inferior food is rationed them. Inferior quarters are provided. Intolerably long hours are demanded. The discovery has been made that the crews of many vessels have been hired at the last moment before sailing. Then read this. With the exception of a skeleton organization, they have been dismissed at the end of the voyage. How have discipline on a vessel under such conditions? Investigation of seamen working conditions without fear or favor will alone meet with public approval. The navigation laws make specific provisions for working hours, and wages, and even methods of payment. The navigation laws provide that seamen shall be paid one half of their wages at any port where cargo is handled. The same law provides that a certain assignment of pay shall be made to families ashore at a specified time. The Bureau of Navigation Officials are charged with turning down complaints by saying: "Give us a signed statement, with names, date, etc. We cannot act without that". The seamen, knowing a formal complaint would mean dismissal, have to stand and take it. Abominable!

GASTONIA, NORTH CAROLINA. (15)

For months the mind of the American people was centered upon the outlook for recovery. Many were optimistic. Some severely criticised the domineering spirit of General Johnson, the head of the NRA. Propaganda from the White House told the people that everything was working as well as anticipated. Supporters of the Administration swallowed all that was told—whole. An earthquake could not have been more of a surprise to the country than was the news of an impending strike in the textile mills. The people were told that the NRA would remedy all the wrongs suffered by the textile workers.

And why should it not do so? Child labor had been abolished. Wages in many of the mills had been increased. Working conditions had been improved. The right of the workers to organize into unions, for a long time, had been refused. But in the NRA it was written into the constitution. Then why kick up a rumpus now? The hum of machinery all through the Southland was heard. Prosperity had come to the mills. For a few months a second-hand automobile for sale was an unusual occurrence. When second-hand automobiles go off the market, business is sure to be brisk. As long as there are many men engaged in the buying and repairing and sale of second-hand automobiles, write it down that the times are not as good as they might be. Such a condition is sign of a continued depression.

Gastonia, North Carolina, is a good example or illustration of this business order of things. The city was full of business confidence. The up-trend was only temporary. Business in brief time began to slump. Both workers and mill owners became restive. Their problems are approached from different view points. A study of their difficulties, separately, will follow in another article.

FIRST AMERICAN YOUTH CONFERENCE.

The United States has more than the recovery problem to solve. Fascism has lifted itself up and will not be disposed of easily. The movement is strong enough to be termed an issue. Fascism in America had its birth in the First American Youth Conference ever held in New York City, in the month of August. At that largely attended conference Fascism was the major issue. The youth in the conference were representative of the whole nation. As was to be expected, there was division in the conference from the first session. The delegates were chosen from 1,700,000 youth. The conference was the largest ever held in America. And it was representative. Delegates from Communist organizations to Boy Scouts were there. The delegates numbered four hundred. Half of the number came from National youth organizations. On the agenda were topics for discussion and action from war to "spiritual renaissance".

In the month of May preparations were begun for the conference by the self-styled Central Bureau for Young America. The title was catchy. Young America became interested immediately. Alertness is a characteristic of American youth. Who started all this? Well, it was a very young woman. She is only twenty-three. Her bewitching name is Lima, Viola Lima. During the year 1933 she travelled. She met while journeying Baldur von Shirach, the Nazi youth fuehrer. Bertrand de Juvenal was another notable visited. She hopped over to Spain and met young de Rivera, the former Spanish dictator's son. Each of the visited ones could fill her mind with dreams if not with sound common sense. By what told she was captivated. How make visions over into concrete accomplishments? But she has the courage of adventure. On her return to America and after time sufficient to digest her travel gleanings, the decision was reached to publish a magazine entitled Modern Youth. The rest of the story of Viola Lima reads like fiction. This is our first article.

Pleasing Program Campbellford Y.P.S.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 5 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Y.P.S. held their regular meeting recently, with Mrs. Long, the president, occupying the chair. The literary convenor took charge of the following program; Mrs. H. Turner gave a very interesting and educational study of the Bible; solo by Mrs. Wynn; a reading, "Hoping," was given by Aylmer Haig, and encored; instrumental and solo my Miss Susan Atkinson and encore; "A Lazy Boy's Excuses," monologue by Mrs. Percy Locke, encored twice with "The Lisper" and "Watching the Sparking"; a reading by Mrs. P. MacMillan was given, after which ensued a business period. Mrs. Long was in the chair. Representatives to Cobourg Rally were chosen—R. J. A. McGregor and F. Kennedy.

The meeting of October 8 was postponed, due to Thanksgiving Day. A committee of four, composed of Mrs. F. Long, Mr F. Kennedy, Mrs. A. Stephens, and R. Dunk was appointed for each ward to look after transportation to the Rally.

CARDIFF, Wales, (CP)—In competition with Polish and German mines, Welsh firms are tendering on contracts for 150,000 tons for Egyptian railways.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE BIRTH OF OUR HISTORY.

On this date, in 1731, Hocquart, the Intendant, at Quebec, urged the erection of a fireproof building for the preservation of the archives of the country which had already begun to accumulate and were in danger of destruction by fire or careless building.

The first historians of Canada were the Jesuits. Immediately after the arrival of the first priests of the Order in 1625, the writing of the Relations, the very foundation of our history began. Each missioner wrote his daily record of happenings. These were sent to France and published in Paris by the provincial of the Order. They are invaluable as a record of the conditions in Canada in the 17th and 18th centuries and have been used by many writers as sources beyond dispute. Parkman took much of his material from the Jesuit Relations.

Hocquart's advice was not taken. As the country grew the records grew, but there was no strict supervision of them until comparatively recent years. Some of the governors and governments saw that the archives were preserved, but it was not until the beginning of the present century that fireproof buildings were provided at Ottawa, Quebec and Halifax, for the care of the archives.

In Ontario there has been a slight improvement by transfer of the records from a firetrap in the old building to the new wing in Queen's Park, Toronto. There is danger that the usefulness of the archives of Upper Canada would be largely lost should their care be entrusted to men enthusiastic, but lacking the knowledge and experience that is needed.

An independent, non-political commission, to see to it not only that the records now at Toronto are catalogued and arranged as they should be, but that the Papers of Upper Canada, taken by the Province of Canada in 1841 and then kept by the Dominion, should be restored to Ontario is required, and a systematized plan adopted by which the papers of the various provincial societies and the hundreds of priceless records in private families be secured and preserved.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

THAT GUEST TOWEL.

I've been watching one for six months and it's as immaculate as when it first came from the wash and the ironing-board.

Perhaps it isn't the same Guest Towel, or perhaps the Lady of the House takes it down occasionally and sends it to the laundry and puts it back again . . . But that doesn't alter the cases. The point I'm making is that no uncouth brute ever comes into that bathroom, runs the water over his hands, scrubs them vigorously, reaches up for that prim.little white towel and USES it.

And yet it isn't a formidable-looking object at all. It isn't a bit fancy. Even though it IS so obviously what it is supposed to be—a Guest Towel.

But there's something about the thing that makes cowards of people. After all, it IS a Guest Towel. And guest towels, although I admit I never used one, don't look absorbent. They have a starched and stiff look that is primly repellant . . . When a friend is in my home and wants to wash his hands, I go to the linen closet and pick up a little rough family hand towel and say, "Here". And he uses that thankfully. And when I'm in his house he does the same for me.

He knows better than to pull down the Guest Towel for me—his wife wouldn't mind, I suppose—but he doesn't do it, that's all. And neither do I. We know our stuff.

But some day I intend to break all precedents . . . I'll be in one of those spotless, speckless, don't-touch-a-thing households tyrannized over by one of those Perfect Housewives. . . . And I'll go into the bathroom and wash my hands—and I won't wash them too clean, either—and with a grim look I'll reach out for that pretty towel with the embroidery in high relief or whatever you call it—and I'LL USE IT. And I'll rumple it and I'll throw it in the dirty clothes receptacle . . . And the heavens will fall in on me . . . And the windows will rattle . . . And the cute little pink statue down on the parlor table will lift his eyes in astonishment—and the sky will darken and thunder will roar from peak to peak and back again—and all the terrified guests that ever looked furtively around a bathroom and then used their handkerchiefs will raise great shouts of triumph—and I'll be sitting in the midst of all the wreckage I've made—with the most self-satisfied expression on my face that any of you ever saw on a man . . . Just see if I don't.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

VANDERHOOF, B.C.

One of the delightful little towns on the Canadian National Railway, 69 miles west of Prince George. The first colonizing was done in 1914 by a man named Vanderhoof, who laid out a townsite and began to sell land. He named the town for himself in the early stages of colonization and succeeding settlers saw no reason to change the name. The place was incorporated as a village in 1916.

Officers Elected St. George's Club

The annual meeting of the Men's Club of St. George's Church was held in the church basement on Tuesday evening. E. C. Styles, president, occupied the chair for the opening proceedings. The chief business of the evening was the election of officers for the coming season and appointing teams for entry in the Carpet Bowling League. Rev. J. L. Hughes was chairman while the election of officers took place as follows: President, A. Sims; vice-president, A. Cuff; secretary, E. Williams; treasurer, A. Knott. Past president C. E. Styles and Messrs. D. Leether and D. Macfarlane, with the above officers, form the executive of the club. The new president presided for the remaining business.

Four teams will enter the Bowling League, the skips being A. Sims, E. Williams, D. Leether, and W. Harrington. Several matters concerning programs for the season, speakers, etc., were discussed, but were left to the executive for decisions.

Britain's increasing prosperity in the last fiscal year is indicated by the enlarged receipts of its cities, Liverpool, England, street car system showing a profit of $775,000, that of Leeds, $140,000, while Edinburgh, Scotland, reports earnings of $1,060,000 by its gas and electric systems.

England's annual consumption of bread has dropped 15 per cent since 1930.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Prices were unchanged on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was again quoted at 19¾c to 19¾c a pound in cariots or less. Small lots to the retail trade sold at 20¼c a pound for solids and 21¼c for prints. Receipts totalled only five boxes.

Graded shipments of eggs in cariots or less were 30c to 31c a dozen for A-large, 28c to 29c for A-medium, 22c for B and 20c for C. Arrivals totalled 918 cases.

New Brunswick Mountain potatoes were 40c to 45c per 80-lb. bag and new Quebecs brought 30c to 40c per 80-lb. bag. Old stock sold at 20c to 25c per 80-lb. bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Big buying of cash wheat in domestic and foreign markets did much to restore confidence in grain values yesterday and prices scored material net gains.

Export purchases of more than 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were announced and enlarged domestic business was evident in flour, especially at St. Louis and Kansas City. During temporary violent fluctuations, however, wheat in Chicago registered now low price records for the season.

Wheat closed firm, at virtually the day's top level, ⅞c to 1⅝ over Wednesday's finish. Dec. new, 96⅜c to 97c; corn ½ to 1 cent up. Dec. new, 74⅜c to 74½c. Oats, ⅝c to ¾c advanced, and provisions at 2 cents to 15 cents decline.

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 94c to 96c; oats, 32c to 35c; barley, 46c to 48c; corn, 94c to 96c; rye, 50c to 52c; buckwheat, 46c to 48c; malting barley, 65c to 67c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 5. — With 2,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat taken for export account, futures prices snapped out of their spell of weakness on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday and registered net gains of 1 to 1¾ cents.

Consensus among the grain trade credited the Canadian Government's assurance it would not dump its wheat holdings, with restoration of confidence in the market.

October option advanced to 76¼c, December to 77¼c, and May to 81⅛c. The export business proved sufficient to absorb all hedging sales, and only in the opening stages was there any evidence of artificial buying.

Volume of trade through the pit was quite appreciable. All markets responded to the better feeling and gains were marked up at Chicago, Liverpool, and Buenos Aires.

Statistics on the week's export movement revealed the prospect of 3,750,000 bushels moving from Argentina, with 376,000 bushels from the Black Sea ports, of which 232,000 bushels originated in Russia.

Cash and coarse grains advanced with wheat.

GOLDS ADVANCE SELECT BUYING

Lake Shore Sells at New High and Hollinger Returns to $21 Mark.

BASE METALS FIRM.

TORONTO, Oct. 5. (CP).—Selective buying boosted the prices of a number of the gold shares moderately to-day imparting a firm appearance to the whole board. Lake Shore sold at a new high price and Hollinger returned to the $21 mark for a net advance of 50 cents. Base metals closed firm to strong in quiet trading and the silvers appeared a bit soft.

Bralorne and pioneer also remained steady while Wright Hargreaves weakened a little and McIntyre gained 1.25 to 24.50 and Lake Shore added 50 cents.

Higher prices ruled for several of the secondary gold group, including Gunnar Gold, God's Lake, San Antonio, Little Long Lac and Howey. Noranda closed at $38 for a gain of 30 cents.

GAINS GENERAL TORONTO TRADE

Advances Predominate in Foods, Construction and Utility Shares.

VOLUME HEAVY IN FORD.

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(CP)—A little extra buying gave the industrial share market a more buoyant tone today and net advances were general in the interlisted group at the close. In the domestic listings gains predominated also in the foods, construction and utility shares. Volume was heavy in Ford A, Brazilian, Nickel, Distillers Seagrams and International Petroleum.

While the distillery shares moved up the brewery stocks closed narrowly lower. Walker's Common added a point, Distillers Seagrams ¼ and Canadian Industrial Alcohol A ⅛. Accumulation was sufficient in Imperial and International Petroleum to lift those issue ⅝ to ⅞ and British American and Canadian oils had small advances. Ford A, Brazilian and Teck added fractions and Nickel lost ¼.

RUSSIAN HUNTED IN HUGE SWINDLE

Charge Polish Count's Agent Was Friend of Late Stavisky.

$3,420,000 MISSING.

By Marylla Chrsanowska
(Associated Press Foreign Staff).

WARSAW, Oct. 5 (AP).—Charges that at least 15,000,000 zlotys (approximately $3,420,000) of the estate of the late Count Jacob Potocki were embezzled by his secretry and two agents led the Polish Foreign Office to-day to request the French Government to arrest Alexander Rosenberg, a Russian emigre.

Newspapers here said Rosenberg was a friend of the late Serge Stavisky, whose operations created a huge French financial scandal.

An investigating committee reported bonds and huge landing holdings of the Potocki estate had been sold without his knowledge and that the funds were unaccounted for.

(Count Potocki, member of a famous Polish family, died last Saturday, leaving a fortune estimated at $10,000,000 for a foundation to combat tuberculosis and cancer).

Rosenberg, with his brother, Vladimir, acted as Potocki's agents abroad.

Secretary Nabbed.

Police Monday arrested in Warsaw the count's secretary, Baron Stanislaw Nolken, a son of the last Russian police head, as he was boarding a train. They accused him of shielding Alexander Rosenberg long after Potocki suspected irregularities, asked Vladimir and Alexander to return from Paris and had the latter's power of attorney cancelled.

If Alexander Rosenberg has obtained full French citizenship Polish authorities will ask an injunction against his property, but if he is still a Russian, they will seek his extradition.

Coming here from Odessa, Rosenberg married into a prominent family and had connections with high Russian emigre society circles in Paris. His business ability made a favorable impression there on Count Potocki.

Although he was investigating the matter before his death, Count Potocki asked police to keep it quiet.

Ponzi Being Deported Demands First-Class

BOSTON, Oct. 5. (AP)—Charles Ponzi, whose scrambled financial activities several years ago, lost $10,000,000 for somebody else and got him 11 years in jail, is going to pay part of his passage back to Italy, under deportation order, he said to-day.

When the government planned to send him to his native land by third class passage, Ponzi demurred. He agreed to spend nearly $100 of his own money to make up the difference between third and first class, so will therefore, occupy a first class stateroom on his enforced journey.

Ponzi's international reply coupon scheme caused world-wide amazement. For five tumultuous months, money rolled in. His promise of high profits attracted the rich and the poor. Then came the crash. Ponzis luxurious home in historic Lexington, his automobiles and other outward marks of prosperity, vanished from his wife. Jail doors clanked behind him.

Bicycles have just invaded Uganda.

RAILWAY TIES COST $7 A CORD

Preliminary Hearing Continues in Midland Fraud Cases.

REFUSE WOOD SOLD.

MIDLAND, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP)—At the adjourned preliminary hearing this morning of the charges against three Midland municipal officials charged with conspiracy to defraud the Ontario Government in connection with relief payments, Mr. Joseph Sedgwick recalled Inspector A. I. Bosanquet, before County Magistrate Compton Jeffs. W. Finlayson, K.C., and his partner, G. S. Dudley, are acting for the accused officials.

The morning session was devoted to a consideration of the price of wood for which the province was charged $7 per cord. All loads of drift wood, railway ties and refuse wood from elevators were charged at the $7 rate though some, with cartage included, had not cost over $1.50 per cord; but the defence is endeavoring to establish the fact that $7 per cord did not cover the cost where a bush lot was purchased and it was necessary to cut roads.

The amount involved in connection with the wood deals is $4,669.

MACKENZIE KING DENIES VOYAGE

Authoritative sources here have already declared there was nothing whatever to this suggestion.

After saying there was no deep mission behind the visit, Mr. Lapointe laughed heartily as he was told that Canada appeared to think otherwise.

"Ah, then," chuckled Mr. Lapointe, "the mystery will only deepen."

Mr. King was asked whether he expected to have any conversations with Premier Bennett while here, and he replied, "I really don't know."

Mr. King said he thought his visit would last not more than two weeks, while Mr. Lapointe explained he would stay in London for ten days and then spend five days in Paris before returning to Canada.

Among those at the station were also representatives of the Empire Parliamentary Association.

Safe Bandit Trial Leads To Toronto

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 5.—(CP)—A supposed clue to the double safe robbery in St. Thomas on Wednesday led today to Toronto and to a blind alley. A young woman reported that as she was going to work she was almost run down by a car coming out of a place leading to the British American Oil Company's office from which the 680-pound safe had been stolen.

Because of nearly being run down she noted the number of the license plates and after the robbery reported to police. Subsequent inquiries show the car had been stolen in Toronto.

Dark Horse Enters Race for Half Million Left by C. V. Millar.

LEADING COMPETITION.

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (C.P.).—Race for the half million dollars left in the will of the late Charles Vance Millar, Toronto's lawyer, capitalist, and horseman, for the Toronto mother who gives birth to the largest number of children from October, 1936, to October, 1936, received new impetus to-day with the announcement by Mrs. Matthew Kenny, who gave birth to 13 children in the past 11 years, she was assured by medical authorities she would be the mother of twins next month.

Of Mrs. Kenny's children, 10 were born since 1926. This puts her ahead in the race. Other runners-up are: Mrs. Grace Bagnato, 22 children, eight qualifying; Mrs. Florence Brown, 21 children, seven since Charles Millar died; Mrs. Clarence Kitts, nine children, six qualifying; Mrs. A. Harrison, 12 children, seven qualifying; Mrs. William T. Casper, 10 children, seven since 1926; Mrs. Beatrice Hilton, 11 children, five since 1926; Mrs. Stefano Darrigo, 18 children, seven qualifying.

Three Sets of Twins.

Three sets of Mrs. Kenny's children are twins. Asked why she did not make public the fact she was leading the competition, Mrs. Kenny said she was of French-Canadian descent, and "I do not read English, although I talk it well. I did not know of the Millar will until I met Mrs. Bagnato. Her family has been on relief a long time. If she wins the prize she wants to buy Mary Pickford's old home on University Avenue and display her centennial handicraft.

Mrs. Kenny married when she was 19. Her mother, who had 22 children, had married at the age of 15.

Hatchet Bought In Toronto?

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (C.P.).—Toronto police said to-day they believed the hatchet with which Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea of Belleville was slain last night was bought yesterday at an East End Toronto hardware store.

They said a man entered the hardware store and asked an attendant for a hatchet, paid for it, and left, carrying it without wrapping paper.

Inquest Ordered.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 5 (C.P.).—Dr. R. W. Tennent, coroner for this city, ordered an inquest into the death of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, victim of a hatchet man to-day, while B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown attorney, requested a post-mortem.

After empanelling the jury, the body was viewed, identification evidence taken and the enquiry adjourned for one week. The result of the post-mortem will not be disclosed until the inquest takes place.

Check All Ferries.

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 5 (C.P.).—Check up of car ferry records here this morning revealed that no automobiles had crossed over from Rochester or departed from here during the past few days.

Police were asked here to see if a 1930 maroon car, said to have been used by the Belleville hatchet man, had come across on the ferry.

Police also checked hardware store sales to learn if a number six lathing hatchet had been sold recently, corresponding to the description of the one used in the attack on Mrs. Vermilyea, but enquiries showed no hatchet had been bought.

MOSHER LONG LAC

Mosher Long Lac are busy diamond drilling their surface showing, three holes having been completed with favorable showings. It is rumored the mineralization zone was cut in each of the holes. Permanent buildings will likely be erected this Fall.

BIDGOOD KIRKLAND GOLD MINES.

Favorable results are being obtained from development work, according to a report by Oscar L. Knuteon, mine manager. The south cross cut has entered the zone cut by diamond drilling and this appears to be one of the strongest breaks so far encountered in the mine. Sections sampled returned assays ranging from $2.50 to $33.50 per ton in gold. Slashes will be taken from the vein on each face to permit drifting and the cross cut will be carried forward to a point where diamond drilling can again be resumed.

Operations on the Moffat-Hall lease are being rapidly advanced in grade ore sections of the upper levels.

ball. Fox popped to Martin back of third base. Bridges fanned on a called third strike.

No runs, one hit, one error; two left.

Cardinals—Collins drove a single past Greenberg. Delancey hit against the screen in front of the right field pavilion for two bases. Collins stopped at third. Orsatti was hit in the back by a pitched ball and dropped to the ground. The bases were full as Orsatti went to first. Durocher popped a high foul to Greenberg. Dean hit a long fly to Fox, scoring Collins and sending Delancey to third. Martin lined to White.

One run, two hits, no errors; two left.

THIRD INNING

Tigers.—White lined to Rothrock. Cochrane walked, the fourth ball being outside. Gehringer hit to short right centre and Medwick barely missed the catch, Cochrane running to third and Gehringer to second as the Tiger second baseman was credited with a scratched two bagger. Greenberg fanned swinging at a high hard one. The Cardinals decided to pass Goslin intentionally and he was walked on four straight balls; filling the bases. Rogell flied out to Orsatti in deep centre.

No runs, one hit, no errors; three left.

Cardinals.— Bridges remained in the box for the Tigers. Rothrock flied to White, who misjudged the ball and barely got back fast enough to grab it over his shoulder in deep centre field. Frisch lifted a high foul to Cochrane, who made the catch near the third base coaching box. Medwick singled past Rogell. Collins lifted a short fly to Goslin.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

FOURTH INNING

Tigers—Owen grounded out, Durocher to Collins. Fox lashed a single past Martin. Bridges walked, the fourth ball being low. White fouled to Delancey near the plate. Dean was using the resin bag frequently. Cochrane walked, the fourth ball being inside and the bases were full. The bat boy brought a towel out from the dugout for Dean to wipe his perspiring face and hands. Dazzy Vance was warming up in the bull pen. Gehringer bounced to Frisch and was thrown out at first on a close play. The ball took a bad hop and the Cardinal manager's throw was hurried, almost pulling Collins off the bag.

No runs, one hit, no errors; three left.

Cardinals. — Delancey fanned, swinging at a low curve. Orsatti walked, the fourth ball being high and inside. Durocher lifted a high fly to Rogell. Dean fanned, swinging at a fast ball.

No runs, no hits, no errors; one left.

FIFTH INNING

Tigers. — Greenberg walked, the fourth ball being wide. Goslin lifted a short fly to Medwick. Rogell dropped a single in short centre and Greenberg ran to third. Owen fanned, swinging at a fast ball that cut the outside corner of the plate. Fox fanned, swinging hard at a fast ball, and the crowd gave Dean an ovation as he stopped the Tigers with men on bases for the fifth successive inning.

No runs, one hit, no errors; two left.

Cardinals.—Martin slashed a double against the screen in front of the right field pavilion.

After another conference Cochrane decided to keep Bridges in the box.

Frisch bounced a single over Gehringer's head, scoring Rothrock. The Detroit infield was playing in and Gehringer just failed to stop the ball as he jumped. Bridges was taken out of the box and was replaced by Elon Hogsett, southpaw. Medwick grounded to Rogell and the Tigers pulled a double play, Rogell to Gehringer to Greenberg. Collins grounded to Rogell and was safe when Greenberg failed to hold the shortstop's bad throw. It was an error by Rogell. Collins was thrown out trying to steal, Cochrane to Gehringer.

Two runs, three hits, one error; none left.

ATTORNEY HIRED BY MARCHIONESS

Will Represent Her at Vanderbilt Trial—May Sail Herself.

PROTECT INTERESTS.

LONDON, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—A London attorney will proceed immediately to New York to represent the Marchioness and Marquess of Milford-Haven in the Vanderbilt trial, it was announced to-day after a conference.

Charles Russell, their attorney, said one of the partners in his firm would make the trip "to represent their interests." It will be decided later, it was indicated, whether the Marchioness herself will sail.

The Marquess ridiculed published reports that his wife had visited Buckingham Palace "apparently to explain her connection with the Vanderbilt case."

"That is utterly false," he said. "She has not been near Buckingham Palace. Whether she goes to America is up to her lawyers."

The Marquess said he understood the former Lady Furness, Mrs. Vanderbilt's twin sister, who is expected in London to-night from Paris, would sail immediately for America and would be joined on the ship by her brother, Harry Hays Morgan, now in France.

HELD FOR CAR THEFT.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 5.—(C.P.)—Alex Heckling, no known address, is being held at Bracebridge by provincial police on charges of being in possession of a stolen car and counterfeit coins. The car was stolen here Tuesday, Sept. 25.

Heckling is wanted here on a charge of theft of the car and he may be brought back to the city following the hearing of the charges at Bracebridge, police stated.

DEAR LODGINGS.

BRANTFORD, Ont., October 5 (C.P.). — With a half a bottle of whisky in his pocket, Blair Casey, transient, walked into the Police Station last night and asked for lodging, and he got a large piece of it this morning when Chief Magistrate John R. Blake fined him $100, and costs, or three months in jail on a charge of having liquor in his possession without having an individual permit. Casey pleaded guilty and took the time. He had no money, he stated the object of industrial policy to secure by the maximum co-operation between industry and the state, a constant and steady increase in the standards of living of all classes of the community.

TORIES PROPOSE

Protection by itself was not enough, said Lindsay. Three main principles should govern reorganization; Schemes should originate from industry itself; they must command a substantial majority in the industry concerned; and should contain adequate protection for all interests concerned—for consumers, workers and the public interest.

An Opponent

Sir Isidore Salmon, chairman of the City of London employment exchange for many years, immediately attacked the resolution as interference with legitimate business. He said it proposed in effect to set up a General Johnson for the whole of British industry, a dictator who would stifle initiative, and kill competition. The resolution, he added, "is a wolf in sheep's clothing."

Lindsay replied the resolution did not propose any measure of compulsion, and the party approved it, no ballot being necessary.

Interesting in view of the party's swing to policies of strengthening the House of Lords, building up imperial defence and deferring a decision on India in view of strong support for the "die-hard" faction, was the declaration of Sir William Wayland, M.P., that he could not see any future for national labor men.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and J. H. Thomas are the only National Laborite M.P.'s remaining in the cabinet. "The most optimistic of us cannot see any National Laborites being returned in the next election,' said Sir William. He conceded the two cabinet ministers however would retain their seats executive of the County Association was highly pleased with the results, particularly with the uniformity of the skill shown in all classes in sod and stubble, and with plows, tractors and discs.

The teams committee of which Gordon Hancock was chairman had more horses available than were needed. The other members of this committee were T. H. Graham, C. E. Moore and Vernon Campbell. Plowing was begun at 9 a.m. and was completed in mid-afternoon when the the results were staked on the ground, the final evidence of the efficiency with which the match was conducted.

William Doherty of Toronto, a director of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, was judge of the work. He complimented the plowmen and also the officers of the County Association on the complete success of the macth, and stated the contestants had given him a difficult task in determining the winners.

The ladies of Gilmour Memorial Church provided refreshments on the grounds.

BRITISH WOMEN HAVE ATTAINED

rights took place when the famous Emmeline Pankhurst learned that the soldiers' and sailors' franchise bill of 1919 was not going to mention women. And this after a war in which British women, at the front and elsewhere, had performed noteworthy service. Mrs. Pankhurst had only to threaten a revival of militant suffrage activities.

"God forbid," Lloyd George was quoted as saying when Mrs. Pankhurst confronted him in person with her threat. The result was the Franchise Bill gave all women more than 30 years old the right to vote. The full franchise bill of 1928, in the Baldwin Conservative regime, reduced the age limit to 21 years, and added 7,000,000 women to the polling lists.

New Era In Spain

MADRID—(AP)—The advent of the second republic three years ago opened a new era for Spanish women. Today women sit in congress, and a few have even become bull fighters.

Spanish women have won the vote, and their independent use of it is credited with being the chief reason for decisive victories of the Conservatives last November.

Divorce has been legalized. And modern Spanish laws strike less severely at women whose children are born out of wedlock. Spanish women are showing an aptitude for the professions, it is revealed by the experiences of the universities.

There is a new personal freedom for women. The strict chaperonage which formerly was assential to a Spanish girl's appearance at social functions is vanishing. The modern girl drives her own automobile. She smokes in public if she is so minded, and her clothing these days is designed for comfort and freedom rather than to cloak everything but an oval face.

No Vote in France.

PARIS, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—Since the war wrenched women away from the hearthsides twenty years ago, French women have bettered their lot greatly.

Economically and professionally, the have made great strides. Socially their lot is happier. Sartorially they continue to dress as they please, and they take orders from no one except the Rue de la Paix.

Politically they have not advanced a step—partly because of their own indifference.

French women do not vote, and great numbers of them do not care to. But a drive for women's suffrage has gained momentum the past few years and there is a general impression that it is "bound to come."

"Ten million women are at work in France to-day," it was said by Mme. Kraemer Bach, lawyer. "Forty per cent. of the business in France is headed by women. There are about 1,000 women doctors, 600 chemists and 400 lawyers."

RETREAT IN NETHERLANDS.

AMSTERDAM (A.P.). — Women of the Netherlands are retreating a little after having attained most of the objectives of feminism in the years immediately following the war.

They are being driven back by the economic misfortunes of this little state. Female employees of the government must resign upon marrying, and the practice carries on to commercial fields.

But it is not a "back to the kitchen" movement such as goes on in Germany. The woman of the Netherlands expects to reclaim her rights when the clouds of the depression scatter.

Dresses are modish and hair is shortened, even though Queen Wilhelmina will admit to her presence no women with bobbed hair or cut-out dresses. Society women must make a choice—either to follow the court or follow fashion.

Irish Turn to Business.

DUBLIN—(A.P.)— Those smiling eyes of the Irish colleen these days are studying the figures on clinical thermometers and scanning down the entries in ledgers.

In increasing numbers women of the island are shouldering their way competently into the crafts and professions. Two decades ago women physicians were rare. To-day they form a large bloc in the Irish medical profession.

Women vote, and do so in a vigorously independent manner. Feminists deplore the fact that there are only three of their sex in the Free State Dail Eireann. But they are sure that number will increase. Many women won political offices in recent elections for local councils.

Miss Louie Bennett, Irish Labor leader, believes Ireland's abnormally low marriage rate is an influence forcing women into professions.

"Irishmen," he siad a bit ruefully, "can't make up their minds to marry until they are around 40, and the women don't wait for them idly. They get jobs."

POOR EXAMPLE.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 5.—(C.P.)—Guy W. Jacobs of a Steubenville, O., ice company, was supposed to read a paper at the National Safety Congress on prevention of accidents in the ice business.

His paper was read for him. He was home with a broken leg.

"I am the picture of health"

"Before My Baby Was Born"

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built me up before my baby was born. For five months I could not keep food on my stomach and I was so weak I had to lie down every day. A friend told me how much the Compound helped her so I started taking it. My appetite improved and I was soon strong enough to do all my work. I am the picture of health now. Your medicine is wonderful in pregnancy."—Mrs. R. W. Campbell, 127 Blackburn Ave., Ottawa, Ont.

Veteran Couple Pass 80th Mark

LINDSAY, Oct. 4.—Congratulations are being extended to Mr. and Mrs. William Thornbury, 63 Regent Street, who will celebrate their birthdays this week. Mr. Thornbury is 80 years old to-day, and his wife will celebrate her eightieth birthday a few days later. Mr. and Mrs. Thornbury will commemorate their fifty-fifth wedding anniversary in November. Both are enjoying excellent health. They are former residents and pioneers of the Township of Eldon, and for many years Mr. Thornbury was in business in Lindsay. He was also at one time license inspector. They are members of the Cambridge Street United Church.

Pepper Martin Safe At First On One Of Those Tiger Errors

Five Tiger errors played a vital part in the 8 to 3 defeat of the Tigers by the Cardinals in the first game of the world series in Detroit. Pepper Martin is shown reaching first in the second inning on one of those errors, a wild throw from third baseman Marvin Owen pulling first baseman Greenberg off the bag as pictured. Martin, hero of the 1931 world series between the Cards and Athletics, seems to be Detroit Public Enemy No. 1, judging by the number he wears on his back. (Central Press Photo)

Weddings

KELLAR—COX

TWEED, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—A quiet but pretty wedding took place at The Log Cabin on Highway No. 7, on Wednesday, October 3rd, when Laura Annie Cox and Mervon Kellar, both of Hungerford Station, were married by Rev. M. Price.

The attendants were Miss Mildred La Barge and Mr. S. J. La Barge of Sulphide. On their return from a short honeymoon they will reside at Hungerford.

SINE—MORTON

TWEED, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—The Parsonage, West Huntingdon, was the scene of a pretty, though quiet wedding on Wednesday, when Annie Ida Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Morton, Moira, became the bride of Mr. Alton Caverly Sine, elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Sine of Sidney Township. The marriage was performed by the Rev. R. J. Merriam.

The bride was married in her travelling costume, a brown ensemble with matching accessories.

The happy couple left immediately by motor for Ottawa, Montreal and other eastern points. Upon their return they will reside on the Sixth Concession of Sidney.

McHARDY—WALLACE

TWEED, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at Sulphide United Church, when Florence Irene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wallace, Sr., became the bride of Alexander, son of Mrs. A. McHardy of Toronto and the late A. McHardy of Arbroath, Scotland. Rev. Merritt Price assisted by Rev. L. Smith officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin. Her veil was of white tulle caught with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses. Miss Annie Wallace attended her sister. Mr. James Wallace, Jr., brother of the bride, was the best man.

Following the ceremony a buffet lunch was served at the home of the bride's parents. The couple left later for a motor trip to Ottawa, Montreal and Eastern points. On their return they will reside on Sammon Avenue, Toronto.

MORTON—HALL

TWEED, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hall, Latta, was the scene of a pretty Autumn wedding when their eldest daughter, Annie Marion, was united in marriage to Lewis Thompson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Morton of Thomasburg. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Everson. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Miss Helen Hall was her sister's bridesmaid. The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Harry Carelton of Thomasburg. Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served. Later, the happy couple left by motor for Ottawa. On their return they will reside at Thomasburg.

Obituary

WILLIAM HENRY CHAPMAN.

HASTINGS, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—Word was received in Hastings on Tuesday morning of the sudden death in Toronto of William Henry Chapman. The deceased, who had been troubled with a weak heart, was seized with a fatal attack on Tuesday morning.

The late Mr. Chapman was born in Hastings on August 8, 1892, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chapman.

The body arrived on the C.N.R. train on Wednesday night, and was taken to the family residence, where the funeral was held from on Thursday morning to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church, where Requiem High Mass was sung by Rev. Father P. J. Kelly. Interment was made in the R. C. Cemetery.

There are left to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, one brother and one sister, J. R. Chapman and Miss Helen Chapman of Hastings.

The bearers were: Messrs. J. J. Collins, J. F. Jones, G. Lynch, J. C. Wilson, J. Faux and S. Stevenson.

WASHINGTON H. ROLLINS.

TWEED, Oct. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—After surviving a serious operation on Thursday, Washington Hulsie Rollins of Ivanhoe, suffered a heart affliction and succumbed in the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning. He was born in Ivanhoe 72 years ago, being the son of the late James and Matilda Rollins and had resided in that community all his life. As a young man he took up farming. A member of the Presbyterian church at West Huntingdon, he took an active interest and fraternally was a member of L.O.L. at Ivanhoe and Lodge No. 290, I.O.O.F., Tweed.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Charlotte Fleming, two sons, Harry Rollins of Belleville, and Clarence of Stirling; another son, Fleming, was killed in action in France; five daughters, Mrs. Albert Cooke, of Harold; Mrs. William French of Crookston; Mrs. Garfield Runnels, of Harold; Mrs. Donald Campbell, of Anson, and Mrs. Howard Cooke, of West Huntingdon. Three brothers, S. B. Rollins, ex-Warden of Hastings county, Tweed; Harkness Rollins, Cooper; Albert Rollins of Hartney, Manitoba, and one sister, Mrs. George Post, West Huntingdon, also survive.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at West Huntingdon Presbyterian church, interment being made in Luke's cemetery.

ISAAC JENKINSON.

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — The funeral of the late Isaac Jenkinson was held from the residence of his brother in Peterborough on Monday afternoon, with interment at the Hillside cemetery, Lakefield, with Rev. W. J. Creighton officiating.

Mr. Jenkinson died in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on Saturday after an illness of about two weeks. He had been a resident of the village for many years and for a greater part of that time he conducted a jewelry and clock store. For the past years he was associated with the Brown Boat Co. A quiet man, he had many friends and might easily be termed the good Samaritan of the community as he was always ready to do "a good turn" for anyone who needed it. He never married and lived alone in a neat little coitage on Colborne street. His acts of kindness, particularly to lonely people, were many and he will long be remembered as a good neighbor and friend. An old landmark has passed in person of Isaac Jenkinson and very few can remember the village without him.

Among those from Lakefield who attended the funeral were Messrs. Robert Jory, Alex. MacDonald, W. A. Payne and T. Z. Webster.

MRS. R. H. YORK.

TWEED, Oct. 5. — (Examiner Correspondence.) — Following a lengthy illness, the death occurred of Annie Young, wife of Reuben H. York, at Marlbank. Deceased was born and grew up in Marlbank, a daughter of the late George Young and Anne Bloxom, his wife, lifelong residents of this community.

She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Mrs. W. C. Martin, Marlbank, Mrs. William Wicklam, Lime Lake, and Mrs. Stuart Stinson, Sheffield; five sons, Jesse, Marlbank postmaster; Edward, Thomas and Calvin at home, and William of Toronto, also one sister, Mrs. Joseph Milligan of Tweed, and four brothers, Thomas R. and William of Marlbank, Carman of Richmond and Charles residing in Western Canada.

The funeral was held from her late home on Sunday to the United church, Marlbank, services being conducted by Rev. R. Brown of Tamworth, interment being made in Tamworth cemetery.

JAMES KELLY.

TWEED, Oct. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—The death of James Kelly of Point Anne occurred at Belleville General Hospital.

The late Mr. Kelly was born in Tamworth 60 years ago, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Kelly. For the past twenty-five years he had been a highly respected resident of the Point Anne district, where he was engaged in farming. He is survived by the following sisters, Mrs. Manson MacDonald, Point Anne and Mrs. M. Thompson, of Belleville.

TELLS HEPBURN

Mr. Roebuck declared his fellow practitioners in the legal profession would support him when he said there was "no act of mine during all my years of legal practice of which I am ashamed or for which I shun the light of day." He pointed out Col. Drew had been Securities Commissioner for three and a half years "in which he was an autocrat with an unlimited power of investigation and attack.

"During this time he says he was informed of things which he now suggests are reprehensible, and he has waited for three and one- half years until a Liberal Government took office before asking for a commission of investigation," the Attorney General continued. "Mr. Drew has been either woefully lax in the performance of his duties during all these years or else there has been nothing to investigate.

He described an inquiry conducted by Col. Drew along the lines he suggests would very likely contain "the spleen, misrepresentation of facts and disregard of the truth he has evidenced during the last few days." The company in question, he explained, suffered like all others during the 1929 market crash.

He was a director during 1929 and did his utmost as a legal representative for the firm "rather than as an investment expert."

"I do not think that anyone ever blamed me for its losses," Mr. Roebuck added. "I was certainly not the only executive in Toronto and elsewhere whose company suffered during the disastrous periods. I resigned from the board of directors of the company, I think, in 1930, or there-abouts and later the company amalgamated with another company and I have long since lost any control over its affairs."

PEACE RIVER MAN DIES ON SCAFFOLD

Two Others Remain In Death Cells at Fort Saskatchewan Jail.

EDMONTON, Oct. 4 (CP)—John Ferguson was hanged early to-day at the Fort Saskatchewan Jail for the slaying of Louis Jobin, father of the girl he wanted to marry, at Big Prairie in the Peace River district, on March 15 last.

Ferguson was silent from the time he left the death cell until the trap was sprung by Hangman Arthur Ellis.

Two others remain in death cells at the fort. They are Julius Kassai, sentenced to die Dec. 31 for the slaying of Julius Kolner, Wetaskiwin district farmers, and Mrs. Dina Dranchuk, sentenced to hang Dec. 12 for the slaying of her husband at their farm home north of St. Paul, Alta.

Wrong Denizen

OAKLAND, Calif., October 5 (C.P.). — After watching a certain culvert all night, Policeman Fred Favero is convinced that Annie, a python reputedly at large, does not live there any more.

To Favero's surprise, it was a bewhiskered itinerant, and not Annie, that crawled out of the drain. The itinerant said he hadn't seen Annie.

Magistrate's Court

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 5.—(Examiner Correspondence.) —Appearing before Magistrate Campbell on Thursday afternoon, Alfred Cook, charged with breach of the L.C.A., was given the option of a fine of $25 and costs or 30 days and had his home brew permit cancelled for all time. Cook took the thirty days. The charge was laid by R.C.M.P. Harry Allen of Cobourg, who with Chief Constable George Hardy raided Cooks' home on the night of Sept. 13 and found the accused "treating" a couple of friends.

The case of a school boy, reported by Truant Officar Ernest Armstrong with not attending school, was adjourned until Jan. 3rd, 1935, but in the meantime that boy was warned by the magistrate that he must return to school immediately.

Thomas Saunders, charged with reckless driving, following an accident on Hastings road, on the night of 'Fair Day,' Sept. 26th, when a car driven by Wm. Partridge of Dartford, was run into and badly damaged, was let off with court costs, Saunders having previously paid for the necessary repairs in connection with the Partridge car. This charge was laid by Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell.

Passenger and freight receipts of Government railways in Japan are much greater than a year ago.

PROSPERITY IS BEING HELD BACK BY HEAVY TAXES

Babson Discusses Subject of Taxation in Impartial Manner.

REVENUE TAXES

Taxation for Revenue But Not for Political Purposes.

(Authentic Statement by Roger W. Babson).

BABSON PARK, Massachusetts, Oct. 5.—This week I want to discuss the subject of taxation. My statements will be wholly impartial. I shall speak as an economist and statistician, not as a Brain Trust or politician. The subject has been very much abused. Taxation is something like the multiplication tables and the Ten Commandments—there is no excuse for getting it into politics. Taxation is purely a business question and should be handled wholly in a business way.

Theoretically, I am more or less of a single-taxer, believing that Henry George had some sound ideas on the subject. On the other hand, I am willing to take the opinion of tax experts that Henry George's methods are not politically feasible. At the present time there are fifty-seven varieties of taxation, the most common of which are as follows:

Federal corporation taxes; Federal income taxes; Federal excess profits taxes; Federal inheritance taxes; State income taxes; State corporation taxes; State inheritance taxes; City taxes; Automobile license taxes; Federal gasoline taxes; State gasoline taxes; Federal capital stock taxes; State capital stock taxes; Telephone taxes; Telegraph taxes; Check taxes; Taxes for code administration; Processing taxes; And a host of other taxes.

Revenue Taxes

Taxes, in most cases are passed on to the ultimate consumer. As the tax on a house is raised, the landlord raises the rent. As taxes on corporations are increased the prices of goods which these corporations manufacture are increased proportionately. All normal income taxes are passed on to the ultimate consumer and also a large proportion of the surtaxes and excess property taxes. With the exception of inheritance taxes, there are no forms of taxes that can be imposed but what raise the price of the ham sandwich which the "forgotten man" is forced to buy for his daily lunch. Furthermore, high taxes increase unemployment.

Taxes Passed on to Consumer

The various taxes enumerated above apply to a person or corporation doing business only in one state. The fact is, however, that most concerns are doing business in several states and hence these taxes accumulate like a rolling snowball. Those who have been administrators of estates know that not only must inheritance taxes be paid to the state in which the deceased lived, but also in various other states if he happened to hold stocks or bonds of companies incorporated in these other states. If only one concern in an industry should be taxed, then that one concern would be obliged to pay the taxes. That one concern could not pass on the taxes to the consumer.

When, however, all concerns in the industry are taxed, these taxes will merely be passed on to the ultimate consumer. They are added to the cost of manufacture and hence to the retail price of the goods. This is the real reason why retail prices have gone up faster than wholesale prices, and why wholesale prices have gone up faster than labor and raw materials. We criticize merchants for their heavy mark-ups, but taxation is one very important reason therefor. The wage worker wonders why the cost of living goes up more rapidly than his wages. The reason is that so many taxes come in between his pay envelope and the goods which he buys from the retail merchant.

Political Taxes.

Please do not think this is any campaign document. I believe in a balanced budget for the Federal government, state governments and municipal governments. So far as taxation is necessary to balance the budget, I am for taxation. On the other hand, I also believe in reducing expenses. There are three ways to balance a budget—first by reducing expenses, second by borrowing money, and third by taxation.

Although economists believe in taxation for revenue, they are strongly opposed to taxation for political purposes. Taxes should never be used either for giving special favors to a privileged few or for punishment of an unpopular group. For instance, tariffs for revenue are legitimate and necessary, but tariffs to help any special section of the country to the detriment of other sections are both unjust and uneconomic. Some of the taxes now being proposed against department stores, mail order houses, and especially chain stores are political taxes. These are not enacted to collect revenue, but rather to put a ball and chain on efficiency. I believe such taxation is unconstitutional; but if the Constitution should uphold these proposed political taxes, all consumers would ultimately pay the bill.

Something for Nothing.

William T. Stead, the famous publisher of London, once said to me that the prevailing characteristic of the American people is to kid themselves. This is why we like legislation for daylight saving and set the clock back instead of getting up an hour earlier in the morning. This is why we like to pay indirect taxes through tariffs instead of direct taxes in a business-like manner. This is why some people foolishly propose monetary inflation instead of other measures, on the same principle that they shrink from a surgical operation.

The point of this article is not to pretend that taxes are unnecessary, but rather to make clear that practically every tax (with the possible exception of inheritance and high-bracket income taxes) is finally paid by the ultimate consumer. The rich people collect the taxes, but the plain people pay the taxes. This mean sthat the next step in reducing retail prices and hence reducing the cost of living is to reduce taxes. Moreover, this means taxes of all kinds, especially real estate taxes, corporation taxes, and income taxes.

Byrd Party In The Antarctic

These exclusive and remarkable pictures from the Byrd South Polar expedition were brought through with great difficulty from the frozen south. One of the cows taken on the expedition by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd is shown being taken out for exercise on the ice and snow, wearing a heavy blanket to protect it from cold which reaches at times 60 below zero. The snowmobile, shown resting on the ice, is near the anchored supply ship, the Jacob Ruppert, and is indispensable in transportation of food from the ship to Little America. The trap-door in the snow is the only available entrance to the cabin at the outpost camp set up twelve miles south of Little America.

Sight, Short Sight or Myopia

by

DR. T. F. McCULLOUGH
166 Brock Street

Sight or vision is that sense by which we appreciate the form and color of objects through the action of physical energy, light on the inner coat of the eye-ball. The inner lining of the eye-ball is an expansion of the optic nerve and is the most anterior part of the brain and is named the "retina".

In other words, sight is the consciousness which results from stimulation of the retina by light. The visual apparatus, therefore, consists of two distinct parts. First the eye, which is comparable to a photograph camera, the retina, which receives and transforms the light energy into a nerve impulse corresponding to the sensitized plate of the camera. Second, the conducting and interpreting mechanism by means of which the nerve impulse is conducted to the visual area of the brain and thence to the centres of consciousness where the impulse is manifested as sight.

The manner in which the light stimulus is transformed into a nerve impulse is but little understood. It is only known that in this transformation a certain chemical change takes place, that is, a destruction of the retinal purple. The second transformation, that of the nerve impulse into the consciousness of vision, is also beyond our comprehension. The visual act may be described in general terms as that process by which luminosity form or color is recognized, by the organs of vision. In order that we may perceive the form of an object by the visual sense, the stimulated area on the retina must constitute an image of that object and this image is formed by the refracting apparatus of the eye, namely, the aqueous humor, the crystalline lens and vitreous body. It is well known that light appears to travel in straight lines (rays) as long as the medium is unchanged, but when light travels from one medium to another of different density or refractive index, the path of all rays which meet the separating surfaces obliquely undergoes a change of direction. This change in direction is called refraction. It is explained by assuming that light travels in waves and the progress of these waves is less rapid in dense than in rare substances.

In order to possess normal vision, parallel rays of light must meet or focus on the retina without accommodation. Such a condition is known as Emmetropia. The eye is then adapted for distant vision without accommodation and by the exercise of accommodation, it is adapted for near objects. This is the typical optical normal condition and the most favorable one for the various requirements of civilized life. By accommodation is meant the power possessed by an eye to see objects distinctly at different distances.

Myopia, or short-sightedness, is that form of an error of vision in which the eye, in a state of rest, focuses parallel rays of light in front of the retina, causing diffusion circles. Hence the reason why short-sighted people nip the eyelids together in order to diminish diffusion circles and obtain a clearer view of objects.

Cause of myopia is due mainly to increase of the length of the visual or is by stretching of the eye-ball at the posterior pole (Apine Myopia). Myopia may be produced also by excessive curvature of the front part of the eye-ball, namely, the cornea, or by spasm of the ciliary muscle. Myopia is far less prevalent in this country than in Europe, especially Germany. In this country, more attention is given to out-of-door sports and not so much to the close application of detail, that characterizes the sedentary, plodding German nation. Myopia is said to be unknown among the Nubians, the Laplanders, and the Latagonians, as well as the peasant class of Europe, and it is unknown amongst the savage races. Jews are said to be more subject to myopia than Christians of the same social class. Myopia is rarely congenital. That there is some hereditary tendency in the form of the myopic eye, there can be no doubt. Just as the susceptibility to tuberculosis is passed from parent to child, so may the tendency to myopia be inherited. Myopia is as truly a disease as is tuberculosis. The myopic child may inherit an eye-ball, the structure of which predisposes it to the development of myopia, when placed under conducive conditions, of which the most important are improper illumination and astigmatism (hyperopic). Susceptibility to myopia is most marked when both parents are myopic; less when the mother is affected and least when the father alone is myopic. When both father and mother are affected, it is seldom that the children escape. A great many children, especially improperly nourished children, are made use their eyes for near work at an age when they should be having outdoor exercise and the eyes resting on distant objects. For this reason, Kindergarten work is harmful. No doubt it trains the mind, by systematic play, but does so at the expense of the eyes, and it is quite likely that the beginning of myopia could be traced to Kindergarten and Primary School work done under bad hygienic surroundings, combined with some error of vision. Study in itself is not the cause of the great increase in myopia, as the pupil progresses. The potent factors are: studying of books poorly printed, small type, lines too close together, poor illumination, faulty ventilation, improperly adjusted desks and stools with an uncorrected error of vision. Those living in cities are more susceptible to the development of near-sightedness than the inhabitants of small districts, where social and commercial competition is less marked. It is stated by some authorities that, if children did not enter school until seven or eight years of age, myopia would soon disappear. School children are not the only class of individuals in whom myopia is prevalent. It occurs in individuals who are constantly straining their eyes at near work, especially with poor illumination, such as the proof-reader, the compositor, the brass-turner, the type-writer, lithographers, dressmakers and those doing fine fancywork, etc.

Near-sightedness is so wide-spread and important a disease, that it has an amount of investigation which for extent and for thoroughness along all lines of research, few other diseases can equal. The school most dangerous for the eyes, is the high school. It is in this that myopia increases in regard to intensity and numbers, as we ascend the classes. In Germany about 20 per cent. are myopic in the lower classes and 60 per cent. in the higher classes. Continuous employment of the eyes upon fine work exerts the same influence, as do the schools. Among lithographers, Cohn found about 40 per cent. and amongst compositors, 31 per cent.

Subjective symptoms:

(a) Inability to see distinctly in the distance.
(b) Distortion of objects.
(c) Eye-ache, brow-ache.

The young myopic will acquire distinct habits and pecularities if the defect be not corrected by proper glasses.

Objective symptoms:

(a) A certain awkwardness manifested by bearing and gait.
(b) The orbits are low, broad and shallow in the young.
(c) The brow is wrinkled.
(d) The eye-balls are large and apparently protrude.
(e) Nipping of the lids together in distant vision.
(f) Divergent squint (at times).

Treatment:

In qualifying children for school life, the first question that presents itself for consideration is: At what age are children most fit, mentally and physically, to have thrust upon them the duties of the school-room? As a general rule, children are not fitted to enter school until their seventh or eighth year. At this age, the ocular tissues are well formed, and if the child be otherwise physically eligible, he may enter upon a well-regulated school course. Increased age brings increased resistance of the ocular tissues and no harm can follow the delay of a year or two in sending the child to school. The importance of detecting a refractive error and making the needed correction cannot be urged too vigorously. If all children could remain at home until they are eight years old, and then be sent to school, where some attention is paid to the general hygiene, myopia would rapidly diminish. Stooping over work, with consequent damming of blood in the head, should be made unnecessary by having adjustable chairs and desks. Text books should be printed on unglazed paper. The type should be heavy-faced. Two and a half millimeters space should be between lines.

A systematic examination of the eyes of all children, upon entering school, should be insisted upon, and all refraction errors should be carefully estimated and corrected. If myopia becomes once established, we should endeavor to arrest its progress by the strictest care of the eyes and the employment of concave glasses, so as to render any necessary use more comfortable and less dangerous to the patient. Children in feeble health, with myopia, should be given nutritious food, fresh air and exercise, as well as general tonics. They should not be asked to perform the same tasks as children in good health. In all young people in whom the accommodation is still active, a cycloplegic (homatropine drops) should be used sufficiently strong to produce absolute loss of accommodation power, and especially so if there should be present any retinal haze and choriodal wooliness. As a rule, no errors of refraction should be made so long as there is congestion or inflammation of the eye. Myopia is a disease which can be prevented in a great measure, or at least much can be done to arrest its progress. As myopia is produced during youth, and is increased by continuance of near work, it is necessary to keep the child in vigorous health, so that the eye tissues can resist any reasonable strain put upon them. A young subject with fairly good density of vision, a range of accommodation suitable to his age, and the balance of the external eye-muscles good, having a myopia of 2 to 3, D., may be allowed to wear the full correction habitually for near and distance work.

D. means diopter and indicates the focal distance of the lens. In the higher degrees of myopia, with lowered acuteness of vision, the full correction should be lowered, at least for reading. In very high degrees of myopia, the are complicated by disease, glasses ar[e] of very little use. When myopia is 1[o]5 D. or more, the crystalline lens is sometimes removed in suitable cases, with improvement of vision. If there is weakness of the internal muscles of the eye, amounting to 10 to 12 degrees for distance and a corresponding larger amount for near work, great relief can sometimes be obtained by dividing one or both of the external lateral rotators. Prescribing glasses for near-sighted persons requires much experience and a careful consideration of all the attendant conditions.

LABOR ORGANIZES FORCES FOR BATTLE WITH N.R.A.

(By LOUIS ASHLOCK

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5. (AP). The Blue Eagle of the N.R.A. dominated discussions of the American Federation of Labor convention to-day.

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins came from Washington with a message from the administration.

President William Green declared the Federation would "mobilize its entire force" to resist any effort to establish an N.R.A. policy of permitting employers to deal with minority or individual fractions in collective bargaining activities.

Two more issues threatened to bring heated debate to the convention floor. The Federation executive council's report on its decision on the internal strife in the building trades department over the re-admission of the carpenters, electrical and bricklayers unions appeared eminent.

• The bathing suits of fifty years ago look odd nowadays. The vows of bathing - machines on the sands, the old bathing - women who ducked the children remorselessly, and many quaint old ideas of propriety have, happily, given way to more healthful methods of enjoying the water.

in the days when Surprise Soap was first made

• Half a century ago Surprise Soap helped women do their heavy, weekly washing quickly and thoroughly, exactly as it is doing in hundreds of thousands of homes today.

• Surprise Soap gives plentiful, rich suds that reach every atom of dirt and loosen it so effectively that, after rinsing, soiled garments of everyday wear are revived into fragrant, gleaming cleanliness.

• Because there is less rubbing with Surprise Soap, the filmy wisps of daintiness that women wear today, last longer. There is another reason for this, too: Surprise is absolutely safe. Its pure ingredients are so skilfully blended that they will not harm the finest of garments.

"Quality First" was the policy adopted when the first bar of Surprise Soap was made in St. Stephen, N.B., 49 years ago. This policy has never been altered and the quality has improved with advancing knowledge, keeping pace with modern requirements.

Ex-service Men's Club Meets In Armouries

The bi-monthly meeting of the Peterborough Ex-Service Men's Social and Welfare Club was held in the Recreation Room at the Armouries on Wednesday evening.

The meeting opened with the solemn two minutes of silent communion with those that have passed, after which matters pertaining to the welfare of the club and of ex-service men generally were discussed, and the details of the first annual reunion banquet at the Armouries on November 10th, settled.

The meeting closed by the singing of God Save the King, and the rest of the evening was left in the hands of the entertainment committee under the chairmanship of Bro. S. Harris. They had provided a wealth of talent and the thanks of the members for a very enjoyabe time are due to the soloists Bros. F. Peterbridge H. Wilford B. Simmons F. Markwick and S. Harris; the pianist Bro. J. Victor and also to Bro. Tom Parker who with his tenor guitar and mountain and cowboy songs contributed so much to the enjoyment.

TORIES FIGHT TO GET SECURITY FOR THE EMPIRE

British Party Would be Sure All Defenses Are Adequate.

SEEK MORE JOBS.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

BRISTOL, England, Oct. 5 (CP Cable).—Security again echoed in the Conservative Party convention to-day following its overwhelming approval of a resolution expressing grave anxiety at the level of the national defences.

Sir Edward Grigg, parliamentarian, urged that to make absolutely sure of the security of the country and of the Empire, and to do its utmost to insure reduction of international tension, should be one of the cardinal points of Conservative policy. This was essential to recovery in trade, he declared.

Tempers had cooled from the closing stages of yesterday's meeting when the party was almost evenly split over the policy for India. Compared with the hectic battles of yesterday the scene was placid in the extreme.

Immediately on the opening Miss Regina Evans, presiding, submitted the amendment on Indian policy as an independent resolution. This amendment declares the party should not take a final stand on the question of India until the Joint Parliamentary Committee, now studying the White Paper, has reported its findings.

The amendment supersedes a resolution attacking outright the present policy for India, of self-government with safeguards. Yesterday it had been granted a majority of 23 votes in more than a thousand, and inasmuch as it did not forthwith approve the present policy, it represented a victory for the die-hards.

On a show of hands the amendment was to-day declared carried as a substantive resolution, and the Indian question passed from the scene—for the time being.

Propaganda.

The conference then wandered through discussions on the Junior Imperial League, on propaganda and methods generally of stirring the elector from his apathy.

Sir Edward Grigg urged a broad constructive policy. It was not enough to talk about the Socialist menace, he said. Socialism was an extensive term of varied meanings. Conservative ministers at his moment were introducing measures in parliament which the conference only a few years ago would have regarded as bare-faced Socialism.

Conservatives, Sir Edward added, could neither expect a National Government to be 100 per cent. Conservative, nor expect their National-Liberal and National-Labor allies to sit like figureheads on the bows of a ship to amuse the dolphins.

He suggested three guiding principes of Conservative policy:

1.—Adequate employment on a broad front in order to prevent class warfare.

2.—Absolute security of the country and the Empire, and utmost efforts to secure reduction of international tension as essential to trade recovery.

3.—The absolutely vital necessity of continuity in policy so far as it could be secured.

Horse Chases Deer From Pasture Field

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 5. (CP) Deer are getting so thick in this district that horses have to chase them out of pasture fields.

Three deer were grazing in a field on the farm of George Gole, near Breslau, this morning when one of the Gole horses decided he wanted the field to himself. Whinnying a sharp challenge he started toward the wild creatures. Leaping a fence, they cantered off across another field, hurdled another fence and disappeared from view into a bush. The horse returned to his peaceful grazing.

Mrs. Carl Gole witnessed the surprising sight from the farm house.

GIRL CHARGES NEGRO SLASHED FRIEND'S THROAT

Both Held Two Days in Los Angeles Apartment, Attacked, Beaten.

ESCAPED FUNERAL CAR.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—Bruised and cut about the face, Irene Willard, 26, staggered into a Los Angeles police station early to-day, with a story of having witnessed the slaying of a girl friend and having been attacked and beaten.

She said she was held prisoner for two days in a Central Avenue place where she was assaulted.

Miss Willard insisted she saw her friend's throat slashed by a Negro and the body wrapped in sheets. She named the supposed murder victim as Gladys Seeley, 23, Hollywood.

The young woman told police that late last night the Negroes bundled the body of her friend into the rear of an old automobile, forced her into the front seat and started to drive toward the beach.

"I jumped out of the car and escaped," she told officers. "I ran as fast as I could."

Police began checking her story.

TRIAL RECALLS OLD TRAGEDY

Edwards Case Said Repitition of 1907 Sweetheart Slaying.

LAWSUIT CROPS UP.

CORTLAND, N.Y., October 5 (C.P.). — From real life to fiction, and from fiction back to real life is the story of "An American Tragedy."

Twenty-nine years have passed since the love affair of Chester Gillette and Grace Brown fashioned the plot for Theodore Dreiser's novel.

Now the novel has lent its name to the trial of Bobby Edwards at Wilkes Barre, Pa., for the slaying of his sweetheart, Freda McKechnie.

Dreiser drew from the records of Gillette's trial at Herkimer for his book, from which came the stage play and motion picture.

The romance of the New York country girl who drowned in remote Big Moose Lake is involved directly in a law suit now pending against the makers of the film.

Mrs. Minerva Brown of Norwich, mother of the girl, is suing for $150,000. She contends that the picture showed her to be slovenly, illiterate, unkempt, and neglectful of her daughter. Trial is set for this month.

Grace Brown worked in the shirt factory of Chester Gillette's uncle in Cortland. Together they went for an outing in the lower Adirondack Mountains of Northern Herkimer County. Young Gillette appeared at the camp of some friends and said the girl had fallen from a boat and was drowned before he could aid her.

She had been struck on the head. She, also, was about to become a mother. Gillette, further, was in love with another girl — a society girl, daughter of well-to-do parents.

Gillette wa tried at Herkimer and sentenced to death. He was electrocuted at Auburn in 1907.

3 Fords Smash Pike's Peak Climb Record

Three Ford V-8 cars with optional equipment consisting of cylinder heads with a higher compression ratio and carburetor jets and by-pass valves available for high altitude driving and driven by skilled mountain drivers, shattered all stock car records to take the first three places in the sixteenth annual stock car Pike's Peak Hillclimb Labor Day. The race was supervised by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

The new Ford V-8 record, for the 12½ mile, 5,000 foot dash to the summit is 19 minutes, 25.7 seconds, and was set by B. P. Hammond, driver of Ford V-8 entry No. 2. The new mark clipped 39.5 seconds from the old record. The second winning Ford V-8 piloted by Angelo Cimino, finished the climb in 19 minutes, 28.7 seconds, the third, driven by Glen Shultz, in 19 minutes, 39.1 seconds. Hammond was driving his first Pike's Peak race.

Cimino, a veteran of the Pike's Peak climb, declared he had made his best recorded time in the Ford V-8. Shultz, third place winner and champion of the climb by virtue of nine victories previously, said the mark made with the Ford V-8 bettered all his previous records.

The Pike's Peak climb is the most difficult event of its kind in U. S. sport. The grades average 7 per cent, and at times reach a maximum of 10 per cent. This coupled with the high altitude—the summit is more than two miles above sea level—the tortuous course and many danger spots make it a strenuous test both for drivers and cars.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

L. Marie Huffman, Norwood, Ont.

Your letter of September the second was greatly appreciated, I can assure you, and the sample which you desire analysed is indeed a study for graphology. In the first place, I do not think that your friend signs his name in quite so versatile a manner as that throughout the main body of the writing in this letter. However, he has some good qualities, which I hope will develop into definite characteristics as he grows older, for at present he has a lot to learn. His mind is analytical and quite scientific, and would lend itself most admirably to the study of surveying, civil engineering or electrical motivation, or aviation.

He is keen and interesting, but at times would not be at all averse to the use of "Little White Lies". In this respect you would have to be on your guard, and keep a careful watch on the eyes. I might tell you as a future guide, to be very, very careful and cautious with any one who uses the 'j', 'y' and 'g' under-loop that are depicted in this sample; but as I remarked before, this person has not really grown up, and therefore I could not advise you as to partnership at this early date. You may send me both of your birthdates if you wish and I will ascertain from the numerological chart if your numbers and dates correspond, but if you do, be sure that you remember to give me date, month and year of birth.

Your handwriting depicts you to be a most philosophical mortal. You are discreet, affectionate, loving and forgiving. You are most fastidious as regards personal appointments and create self expression through your mode of dress. You are determined but not stubborn.

You conduct yourself with the utmost propriety at all times and endeavor to please all those with whom you come in contact. You are gracious and well poised and carry yourself with an air of distinction which has a tendency to make people think you are proud and arrogant. Fortunately, they are mistaken. Do not let 'uncalled-for' expression of thought from others affect your sense of well being in the least.

You are mentally equipped to meet any situation no matter what the contingency. You possess kind heart and willing hands.

Doris Ann Porter, Norwood, Ont.

In answer to your letter of September 24th, in which you set forth so many questions, I must first analyse your writing, and from your character you will be well able to form more definite conclusions, as to your future plans, hopes and ambitions.

You are a trustworthy person, and have many genuine qualities. In friendship you would be loyal and true, detesting gossip, and looking at all sides of a question when in doubt as to someone's integrity, your own religious code is of the quiet type and you do not care to talk about it.

Regarding employment, you should be interested in a commercial field, and once past the undecided stage, should meet with a fair share of success if you truly desire success. The question almost answers itself here . . . but even if you help at home you can learn a great deal there. Can't you? This type of knowledge is far more suitable for future happiness too, especially as you ask another intimate question which I dare not answer here. Your own heart must decide that for you and not my pen. Your birthsign is Capricorn the Goat. Most Capricorn people marry fairly young. Your best months are March and November. Tuesday and Saturday are your lucky days and seven is your number.

Ethel M. Dean, 1258 Lansdowne Ave., Toronto, Ont.

Your handwriting is illustrative of a very gentle and refined nature. You seem to have a sweet personality, and I am sure that people must love you for your genuine devotion. You are loyal and true. You have just sufficient humor with which to appeal to the friends with whom you come in contact every day, but you are never loud or obstrusive in your remarks.

You appear to be rather nervous, and your health is perhaps below par, but if so, you can take more care of it than usual, through correct diet and nerve building foods.

You are artistic, modest and retiring. Usually you efface yourself, rather than present your views, when in a large company of people.

Your name reminds one (according to the easy manner in which it is written) of soft music and ambition almost reached. Your 't' bars show flights of imagination. Your lower loops show interest in out-of-door recreation, and all other graceful activities such as swimming and dancing.

Mrs. David Lehamn, 650 Downie St., City.

Your handwriting delineates you as one who knows her own mind, but who is not in the habit of making it up too quickly. You seem to want to ponder every situation over and over before you are agreeable to definitely undertaking the project at stake.

However, you are sociable and enjoy the company of people whom you believe to be on the same mental standard as yourself.

As a rule, you do not crave a life of social events, because you are rather a studious type and prefer to have something really worth while to show for your time.

Your imagination is keen and well developed, but it does not make you dream about things which are of no value. You are conservative in your ideas and rather apt to be a little impatient with a slow thinker, especially if you feel that the person in question will not see your point of view. This trait is predominate as you yourself think slowly and wisely and well.

There is a slight versatile tendency which lends interest to your general character.

Your birthsign is Leo the Lion, which is ruled by the Sun. Sunday is your best day, January and October are the most fortunate months. Your most lucky number id twenty-two, and is a super number.

Edith B. Smith, Warsaw, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates a keen mind and a refined, well-poised bearing. You are exacting as to detail in any finished product, and will not be satisfied with 'slap dash' work.

You are especially fond of debates, in fact any conversation or lectures where you have the ability to make use of that keen mind of yours.

Your brain is retentive, and you can impart knowledge once you have grasped the fundamentals. You have sufficient will-power and determination to enable you to complete any task which you deem worthy of merit.

You are easily able to ascertain if the project in question is worthy of the accomplishment, because your power of discernment is ingenious.

The general outline of your writing depicts intelligence beyond the average. You are adaptable to existing conditions, genial and thoughtful.

You have a fair share of humor and spontaneous wit. You detest flattery of any sort, and do not indulge in disagreeable gushing even among your most intimate friends.

Your most fortunate number is five and your birthsign is Cancer the Crab, which is ruled by the Moon. February and September are your lucky months and Monday your lucky day.

Lenore Harrigan, Cobourg, Ont.

Your handwriting compares with that of Annie Douglas, and was delineated and printed in "The Examiner" on September the 6th, 1934. I am afraid that I could not enlarge upon the delineation, and as you did not give me birthdate, month and year, I am unable to give you your lucky number, day or month.

Alice Burns.

Your handwriting indicates rather an impulsive nature, and a sharp, decided disposition. Your health seems to be normal, and you should meet with a fair share of success, but it would be well for you to conserve your nervous energy. Your writing reveals intelligence, energetic endeavor and thoughtfulness.

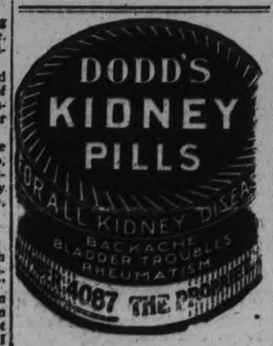
You are a type unto yourself. You seem to lack self expression. Yet, you can and do act on your own initiative. Your will-power is developed to a normal extent and you have quite sufficient determination to enable you to carry out definite projects.

Your capital letters denote imagination, intuition and a slight artistic tendency.

Your general character is very good, but you can be most secretive and conservative when you want to be.

Your birthsign is Scorpio the Scorpion, ruled by Mars. Your number is 5 and January and July are your lucky months and Tuesday is your most fortunate day.

"Did you know that Dizzy Dean claims three states as his birthplace. "You get more guys rooting for you that way," he says.



DIZZY'S RISE TO FAME LIKE ALGER NOVEL HERO

Ever-Loving Wife of Elder Dean Tells Ordeal Cardinal Hurler Goes Through to Run Up Victories—Daddy Prefers "Just Sittin' Around."

DETROIT, Oct. 5.—"They'll never send Dizzy back to the 'minors' and say 'Too bad he's through—and broke. He was a great pitcher! Not if I can help it!"

* * * * * * *

Mrs. Patricia Dean, wife of the famous Dizzy Dean, 23-year-old pitching wonder of the St. Louis Cardinals, curled up in comfortable pajamas in her suite at the Book-Cadillac and talked about the most talked-of-man in baseball to-day.

* * * * * * *

"I wish you could know Dizzy as I know him. He's the sweetest kid in the world! You see him out on the diamond pitching one of those terrific games of his. Only when he gets home does he let down. When he comes in the door I get him right to bed. Why, one game this summer he lost 12 pounds. Immediately I give him milk, orange juice, any kind of liquid to drink, and make him rest for an hour at least before he has supper.

* * * * * * *

"And many's the time I've fed him as you would a little boy because he was too exhausted to get up. Those games are his life's blood. Don't misunderstand. Dizzy loves baseball. It is his life. He gives it everything he's got. I have to watch every mouthful he takes and make him eat. I sit over him at breakfast until he has cleaned up his plate and I feed him cod liver oil all the time. I sometimes wonder if fans have any conception of what pitching a game the way he does means to a pitcher.

* * * * * * *

DIZZY'S RISE TO FAME LIKE ALGER NOVEL

"Yes, Dizzy's wonderful. We've been married four years now. I'm two years older than he, and to me he seems like a little boy. Maybe you don't understand about him. You see, his mother died when he was 4. His family was terribly poor, lived on a farm near Holdenville, Ark. Many a time the kid did not have enough to eat. And he didn't have any clothes except a pair of overalls. He never went beyond the fourth grade in school.

* * * * * * *

"His dad has often told me about Dizzy's baseballs when he was a kid. Dizzy made them, used a stone for the center and wound them with string or unraveled an old sock to wrap the stone. That's the kind of childhood Dizzy had—no money for such things as baseballs. These were the balls he pitched when he played out there on the farm. The bat was a stick he cut himself in the woods and whittled down smooth.

* * * * * * *

"I've been pretty close to tears when I think of that little gawky boy throwing those homemade baseballs at his brother. He was just a gangling youngster. When he was 15 he lied about his age and got in the army down in San Antonio; I've had a lot of the boys he soldiered with tell me about him.

* * * * * * *

"The orneriest, laziest kid in the outfit, they said—and then they put him to playing baseball.

* * * * * * *

"Daffy, now, is just the opposite. That youngster is never happier than when he's 'just sittin'.' Dizz doesn't drink, but he does smoke, too much to suit me, but it is his nerves. Daffy doesn't even smoke. Even in summer when we are living in an apartment hotel in St. Louis I cook for Diz. I make him custards and pies of cream. Anything to keep weight on him. He's 6 feet 3. He should be about 200, but I can't seem to get him up to that weight no matter what I do.

* * * * * * *

"HARD ROW UP—BUT EASY SLIDE DOWN"

"Yes, it's a hard row up, but an easy slide down. Sometimes, if Diz gets a little obstreperous, I just say: 'Diz, you're the world's greatest pitcher out there on the diamond, but here at home you've just a husband.' Then he laughs and says 'O.K.'

* * * * * * *

"He'll do his best in this series. If it isn't good enough to lick the Tigers, then I hope the Tigers win. By the way, Diz' name is not 'Jerome.' It is Jay Hammer Dean. He uses Jerome because he likes it.

* * * * * * *

"I like to watch him and Daffy together. They adore each other. Dizzy says Daffy is going to be a better pitcher than he is. And Daffy says Diz is the 'greatest ever.'

* * * * * * *

"Odd that two brothers, both pitchers, could have such totally different temperaments. They're great kids. I hope there's some good old-fashioned music on the radio to-night. That's the only kind Diz likes, it rests him. 'Good old mountain music,' he always calls for when I dial."

FOURTH ARSON RING MEMBER ADMITS GUILT

Confession Comes After "Torch" Tells of Chicago Newspaper Blaze.

GETS PRISON TERM

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Sam Roman, one of four men charged with setting fire to the offices of El Nacional, Spanish newspaper, on October 4, 1932, suddenly pleade guilty during his trial before Judge Miller in Criminal Court and was sentenced to serve from one to five years in the penitentiary.

He was the fourth member of the "million-dollar arson ring" to plead guilty.

Sam Fraga, owner and editor of the newspaper, who is alleged to have received $9,000 in insurance as a result of the fire, was granted a continuance until Thursday after he said his attorney had been injured in an automobile accident and could not appear.

Roman's guilty plea followed testimony by Valentine Notari, alleged "torch" who turned state's evidence.

CHATHAM, Ont.—Clifford Frankfurth of Comber, pleaded not guilty when he appeared in police court today charged with stealing a wrist watch, the property of Veronica Ford of Chicago. The latter figured in an automobile accident near Tilbury, and lost her watch. It is claimed Frankfurth found the watch and failed to return it to the owner. He will be tried in Tilbury, October 11.

NEW OLD AGE PENSION PLAN IS SEEN AS GREAT AID TO BUSINESS

California Doctor Would Pay $200 Monthly to All Over Sixty.

SPENT WITHIN 30 DAYS.

By GAITHER LITTRELL
(Central Press Canadian Correspondent).

LONG BEACH, Calif., Oct. 5. — Stimulation of business and a vast unemployment relief program, which would lead to immediate prosperity, are depicted in the colossal yet simple pension plan conceived here by Dr. F. E. Townsend, retired municipal health officer.

In view of old age pension discussions being carried on throughout Canada, it will be of interest to Canadians.

At the present time nearly 4,000,000 persons throughout United States have signed a petition favoring the plan, which calls for the payment by the government of a $200 monthly pension to every person of 60 years of age and over, with the stipulation that the pensioner spend the money in the 30-day period.

Dr. Townsend stated he intends to present the petition at the next congress where he will seek such legislation.

Sales Tax.

Through the medium of a nation-wide sales tax to be collected in the same manner as the gasoline tax in many states, funds for the pensions are expected to be gained.

When finally wedded out, those to receive the government funds would probably be ten million persons, compiled data reveals.

Savings Expected.

The continual war against crime, which is costing the taxpayers a billion and a half dollars each month, will be cut in half when, and if, money is put in circulation through the plan, and another billion dollars each month will be saved in taxes now made necessary in maintaining national, state and local charity institutions, backers of the plan believe.

Persons having reached the age of 60 years were selected to receive the pensions because of their inability to find work and their greater experience in handling money.

These pensioners would almost be forced to spend their vouchers on luxuries—that portion which remained after necessities were cared for—thereby distributing the moneys to many industrial units.

During October Dr. Townsend will go to Washington to seek an audience with President Roosevelt to acquaint the chief executive with his pension proposal.

Costs Are Assessed In Rutherford Case

Damages were assessed by O. A. Langley, K.C., in the case of Rutherford versus Hill which was heard before Mr. Justice Kingstone last December, and referred to the local master of the Supreme Court.

The local master's assessment was in favor of the plaintiff Rutherford for $394. The costs of the trial and the costs of the reference are to be paid by the defendant, it was directed. Plaintiff's counsel was E. F. Sheehy, with J. A. O'Brien for defendant.

FIGHT PRESSED BY NEW JERSEY FOR HAUPTMANN

Want Kidnap Suspect Before He Goes on Trial for Extortion.

RENEW MENTAL TESTS.

By Ronald Dixon.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (A.P.).—New Jersey's Governor and other high officials arranged a conference today to discuss the best way to extradite Bruno Richard Hauptmann before New York can try him on the Lindbergh ransom extortion charge.

Prosecutor Anthony M. Hauck of Hunterdon County, where Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his crib in 1932, said a definite disclosure of New Jersey's plans might follow the meeting at Trenton.

The Hunterdon grand jury is to consider the kidnapping and murder indictments against Hauptmann early next week.

Hauptmann's extortion trial has been set in the Bronx County Court for October 11, but his counsel, James M. Fawcett, said yesterday that he would ask for a postponement. The attorney also promised a fight against extradition.

The lawyer announced he would retain handwriting and finger-print experts to combat whatever evidence District Attorney Samuel J. Foley may offer in their fields. Experts have said the writing of the ransom notes corresponds to that of the defendant.

Hauptmann's mental examination is to be resumed this afternoon.

Average Intelligence.

The carpenter from the Bronx was described as of average intelligence and normal reacions after the first session by Dr. James B. Spradley, New Jersey psychiatrist.

"He isn't a vicious type," said Dr. Spradley, "and he certainly gave no outward indication that he is trying to fake insanity."

Hauptmann was named in Boston last night as the man who helped a man escape from the Westchester County Penitentiary in New York four years ago.

U. S. Marshal John J. Murphy said that James Bruce Russell, a federal prisoner, gave him the information. Russell, however, declined to go into details.

MOUNT PLEASANT BUSY VILLAGE IN EARLY DAYS OF MANUAL LABOR ALL FARM WORK DONE BY HAND

Joseph H. Lowe Recalls Activities on Omemee-Port Hope Highway.

NOW 91 YEARS OLD.

Farmers to Church on Horseback Before Carriages Were Common.

Ninety-one years old on August 7 last, Joseph H. Lowe of Mount Pleasant, father of Stanley A. Lowe of this city, has been a witness of the development of the machine age with its social and industrial effects and problems.

"It is an old story, I suppose," Mr. Lowe recently told the Examiner as he briefly retraced in memory a long life time in the Cavan countryside, "but the young people of to-day with their automobiles can hardly imagine what it was like when I was a boy and all the work on the farm was done by hand.

We had plows and harrows, cradles and scythes. They were the main implements. Farmers sowed the grain by hand, and when the harvest time came they cut it with cradles. And threshing was done with flails on the barn floor. We used scythes for cutting hay and other grass crops.

Some time during the winter the rain was loaded on to sleighs and hauled to Port Hope. I can remember when the teams would be strung out for half a mile or more, and usually the farmers would have to spend the night in Port Hope. It was a busy town in those days. Farmers brought their grain from all this section, and most of it was shipped by boat across the lake to Rochester."

Mr. Lowe was born on the paternal farm west of Ida, a son of Caleb Lowe who had come from England to settle in Upper Canada. The family was one of Cavan's pioneers. With the exception of twenty-five years as a farmer in Emily Township, Mr. Lowe has spent his entire life in the neighborhood of Cavanville, Ida and Mount Pleasant. None of his boyhood companions who attended the old school below Ida have survived the years, boys of such families as the Vances, Fergusons, Bapties and Watts.

Stage Coach Days

The county road that passes Mr. Lowe's door was from the early days a main highway from Omemee through Mount Pleasant, Ida, Cavanville, Millbrook and on south to Port Hope.

"Travel up on down this road was by stage coach," he recalled. "It is a very hilly road south of here, and the stage coaches had to be drawn by four horses. It was the main road from Port Hope to Lindsay, and I believe the teams were changed at Cavanville and Lindsay on the daily trips up and down. The coaches operated from Toronto all through this section and further east. I think they were owned by one man.

Mount Pleasant was once quite a busy community. All the villages were more important in an industrial way than they have been in recent years. Charles Courtenay had a tannery here with probably two or three working there. North of the village was John Goodman's carding mill. The foundry that is now owned by John Handley was a busy place for years. It was run by Isaiah Best, and was burned down at least once. About a dozen men were employed in the foundry where farm machinery was repaired, and some implements were manufactured. Three or four worked at the carding mill. Then there was a harness shop, afterwards a saddlery, two or three shoemakers, three general stores. One of the stores was conducted by James McLean. Samuel Best was the longest in business. His place burned down and was not rebuilt.

We had two hotels, the last one up to some ten years ago. William Kell's kept hotel for a good while; and Sam English. Then there was John McPherson, but that was long ago. The hotels at the corner were destroyed by fire. There was always a blacksmith shop, and Jim Smith's place will probably be remembered by the older folk. East of here there was a grist mill, and there were more hired men on the farms than there are now. There was work for everybody, and as I said Mount Pleasant was quite a busy village at one time.

In the earlier days the farmers used to provide most of the things they needed. They took their wool to the carding mill and had full cloth made. Boots were made out of the leather from their own cattle. You took a cow hide to the tanner, and he kept half of it for tanning, and gave you the rest. It took twelve months to tan a hide, and it was the best of leather. Then you took the leather to the shoemaker, and I remember when there were shoemakers all along the road, one or two at Ida, two or three at Cavanville and so on. People had to do with candles, and the farmers made their candles out of the tallow from their cattle.

To Church on Horseback

I can remember when you may say there were no carriages. Probably only a few who were the best off could afford a carriage. We attended the Anglican Church at Ida. I was baptized in the old church which was pulled down when the new one was built. In the old days people came to church on horseback, before buggies and carriages became common. The country was poorer then, and it was young, and such things were not generally made. It was an ordinary sight when members of a family came to church on horseback, and I may say that the church used to be crowded even if the people didn't have all the comforts of driving in automobiles.

One of the old customs that have disappeared to a large extent was the credit system in business. People paid their bills at the general stores once or twice a year. The merchant expected it, and the result often was that many people bought more than they needed because they didn't have to pay cash at the time. I think it was a good thing when the credit system was done away with."

Mr. Lowe is probably the oldest resident of Cavan Township. Time doesn't count much in an old man's affairs, especially if you reach ninety. One day is much like another, and you know the end of the road is not far distant.

To Mr. Lowe the automobile has been one of the greatest of men's inventions because so many people can afford one.

"If I were a young man I would want to have a car," he remarked. "They have made good roads and with an automobile you can go any place, you have more freedom, and you can easily go distances we never thought of when I was a boy. I don't blame the young people for liking cars."

GRENFELL MISSION IS DESCRIBED BY HARRINGTON HOSPITAL NURSE

Mrs. B. M. Purdy Addresses the W. A. of Lakefield Church.

ESTABLISHED IN 1892

LAKEFIELD, October 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. B. M. Purdy, nurse in Dr. Grenfell's Hospital at Harrington was the guest speaker at the opening meeting of the W.A., and in an informal talk Mrs Purdy told of the coming of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell in 1892 from England in the hospital ship Strathcona, and opening a hospital. The first boat was replaced over and over but retained the name Strathcona till three years ago when a beautiful private yacht, Jessie Goldthwaite, was presented to Sir Wilfred for a hospital ship after Mrs. Goldthwaite's death. It is the last word in luxury. Dr. Grenfell came to Harrington in 1907 or 1908, and gave spiritual comfort and medical aid. He is a very good man, his hospital are undenominational and give aid to everyone. The first hospital was destroyed by fire three years ago and was replaced by a hospital at St. Mary's River in a more sheltered location.

Three Stations.

This is the only Canadian hospital. There are three Canadian nursing stations, Harrington is one of a group of rocky islands near the Straits of Belle Isle. There are no trees on the islands, just scrub pines. The population is 450. The hospital is a three-storey frame building with two wards, thirteen beds, and two baby cots. The majority of the cases are T.B. caused in many cases by a lack of meat, which is difficult to procure at all seasons. Rabbits and ducks, which are available seasonably, are the chief meats. There are, of course, a good many maternity cases, and heart cases and infection is common from cuts or scratches. There are only two nurses and they do not make a practice of going out to nurse patients. The charge at the hospital is 50 cents per day if you can pay it. The dog teams and sleigh for winter travel are very interesting. Mrs. Purdy had a model of one, and it was most interesting to all the ladies. The arrangement of the team is important —the leader is always a female because they have more intelligence than the male dogs. Their average rate for travelling is 6 or 8 miles an hour. They are given one full meal a day of corn meal cooking and bits of seal thrown in.

Room Well Equipped.

The operating room of the hospital is well equipped. There is an X-ray machine and the entire hospital has electricity for both light and power. The doctor is the director, and is also the Indian agent. From June till October the hospital staff is augmented by volunteer workers, a fourth year medical student, a graduate dentist, and others who pay all their own expenses. There are more patients in summer than winter because it is easier to get to the hospital. The superintendent tries to cover the entire territory four times each year. In summer he travels by boat, the Northern Messenger III. The boat (the original) was named from the popular Sunday School paper of that name, and every cent of money sent through its medium is spent in the upkeep of the boat. There are two nurses in the hospital, a day and a night nurse. Mrs. Purdy's coworker, Mrs. Thompson, also takes the industrial side of the business and Mrs. Purdy is the housekeeper, plans the meals, etc. In the summer they depend largely on canned food; fresh fish comes in sometimes, there is an excellent trout river ten miles west. Berries, cranberry, two varieties of blueberries, and a fruit called bake apple, are to be found there. There are two churches, Anglican and United, the latter has a student in charge part of the year, but the Anglican Church supplies two ordained men for full time work. The United Church sends a fourth year student for three months from the Halifax Presbytery, who baptizes the babies. Each church has a Woman's Missionary Society and each holds an annual sale of work. The Girls' Guild of the Anglican Church looks after the parochial needs, meeting at the homes. Out of a possible 22 there are 19 members and an average attendance of 14. There is a two-roomed school in Harrington with a fully qualified teacher.

The men cut wood in winter, going inland some miles, and some trap fur-bearing animals and seals. The Indians are of the Montaigne Tribe, and they have an annual mission for which a priest comes from the south coast of the St. Lawrence.

Following Mrs. Purdy's talk tea was served and the ladies were given an opportunity to look at the exhibits Mrs. Purdy had brought. The audience was very appreciative of the treat. Mrs. J. W. Todd presided.

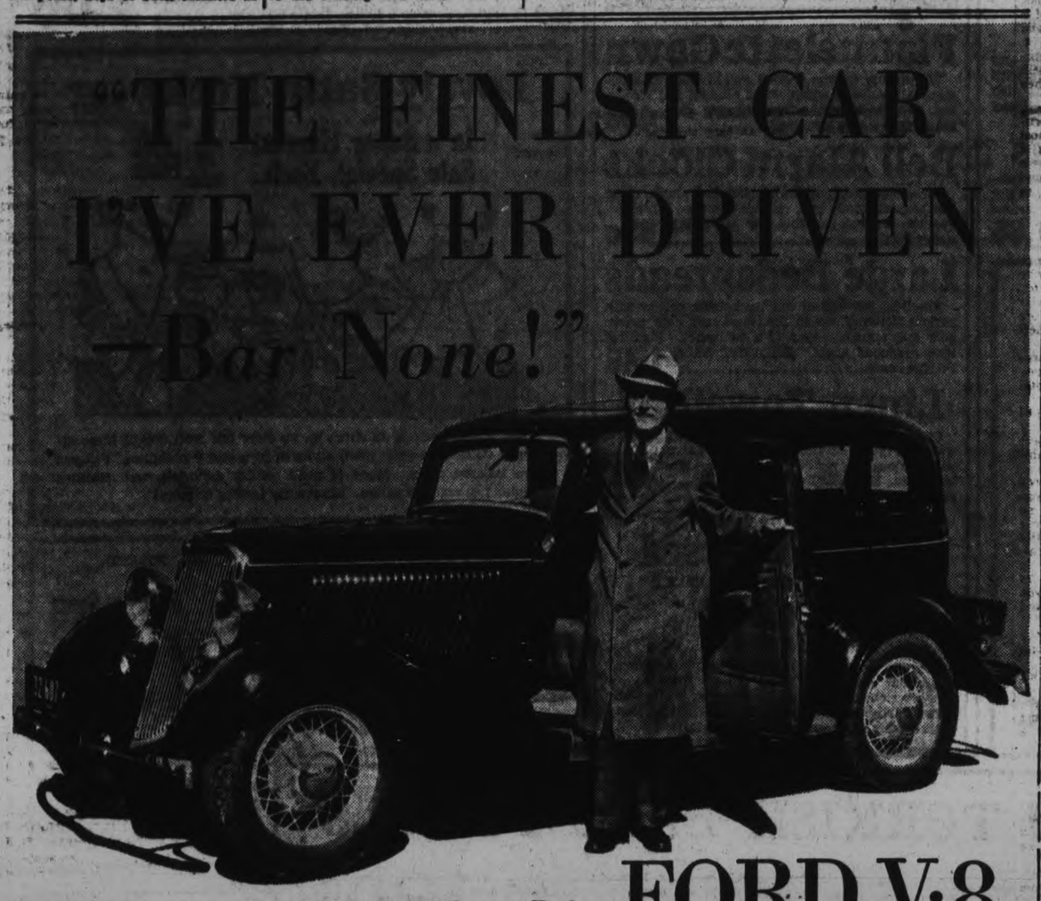
"THE FINEST CAR I'VE EVER DRIVEN —Bar None!"



A Man's Car That Women Like to Drive FORD V-8

"I've owned a dozen cars in my time and some of them cost a great deal of money. But none of them could match this Ford V-8.

"I tell you—it's perfectly amazing the way this car travels. I couldn't believe it myself until I tried it—had no idea that the V-8 engine would make such a difference. It's so smooth you can hardly hear it. And how it can take the hills!

"It's the only car I've ever had that I really enjoy driving. You just can't compare it with any other car, because there is no other car just like it. You see—no other car under $4000 has a V-8 engine. My wife is even more enthusiastic than I am. She likes the lines and upholstery. Says she never really felt safe in any car until she started driving the Ford V-8.

"With all its power, the Ford V-8 is economical to run. Gives me the best gasoline mileage I've ever had, and I haven't spent a cent for repairs.

"I take off my hat to Henry Ford for a great job. His Ford V-8 is the finest car I've ever driven—bar none!"

JOHN J. O'LEARY TAX COLLECTOR

Emily Township Council Holds Lengthy Business Session in Omemee.

TAX RATE IS SET

The Emily Council met in the Farmers' Club Rooms, Omemee, on Tuesday. Members all present, Harry E. Endicott, Reeve, in the chair.

Communications were read as follows:

From F. L. Weldon, enclosing list of old age pensioners; from the same, enclosing notice from the Sick Children's Hospital, re admission of Ray Paul; from the same, enclosing notice from St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, re admission of Thomas Twomey; from the same, enclosing notice from St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, re the admission of Mrs. Bertha Martin as an indigent patient.

From the Provident Assurance Co. acknowledging receipt of completed claims in the matter of the claim of Thomas E. Rice, for damages to a car, and refusing to assume any liability for the same.

From J. A. Ellis, notifying council that school text books and school supplies may be furnished by the relief officer on the request of any school principal, and may be included in the direct relief accounts for which the province assumes a percentage of the cost.

From the secretary of the Hydro-Electric Commission, pointing out that Emily Township had not yet passed a bylaw approving of the reduction in the term of rural contracts from 20 years to 5, and further pointing out that until all the municipalities in any power district had approved of the reduction and passed the necessary bylaws, the proposed reduction does not take effect.

From Percy T. Udy, on behalf of the Council of Smith Township, urging Emily Township to approve of the same.

From C. E. Weeks, acknowledging receipt of communication re having taxes paid into the Victoria Trust and Savings Co.

From Weldon and Lacey, re taxes against the Pat J. Collins estate.

From G. N. Gordon informing the council that he intended to take action against the township and its officers for failure to collect taxes against the Pat. J. Collins estate.

From A. M. Fulton, enclosing legal advice on certain questions submitted to him.

A sheep valuer's report was received from D. M. Costello.

Relief accounts were received from George O'Donnell for August and September.

Applications for the position of collector were received from J. J. O'Leary, salary $125; from Vincent O'Connell, salary $150; and James Magahey, salary $126.

Sayward Switzer resigned the office of pathmaster and Eugene Switzer was appointed in his stead.

The road accounts were presented by the different commissioners, approved and ordered paid.

The following accounts, being found correct were ordered paid by the treasurer:

Lindsay Post, advertising	$ 3.06
R. Insley, repairing pick plow	2.00
Mun. World, blank forms, postage, etc	.99
Frank Crough, sec.-treas. S. S. No. 7, teacher's salary	30.00
George O'Donnell, relief for August	9.49

The action of the clerk in disputing the claim of Mrs. Bertha Martin to be a resident of Emily was approved, also the action of the Reeve in having the 1933 taxes sent to the County Treasurer for collection.

The Clerk was instructed to ask the County Clerk to notify the County Council and the County Road Board that the Emily Council wished to have no changes made in the county road system in Emily Township this year.

The Reeve and Clerk were authorized to sign a voucher accepting the sum of $189.20 in full payment of taxes against the properties of J. W. Stone and W. E. Faulkner up to the end of 1932.

The motion passed at the last meeting appointing the Victoria Trust and Savings Co., to receive the taxes of 1934 was rescinded.

Bylaw No. ..42, appointing John J. O'Leary, collector of taxes, was duly introduced and passed.

Bylaw No. 941, levying rates and taxes for the year 1934, was given its final reading and passed, the principal levies being: County rate 7 mills; township rate 2 mills; county road rate 3.2 mills; general school rate 4.2 mills; S. S. No. 1, 10.5 mills; S. S. No. 4, 7.6 mills; and S. S. No. 6, 5.1 mills.

Bylaw 648 amending bylaw 585, and reducing the term of contract between the Hydro-Electric Commission and residents of Emily from 20 years to 5, was given its several readings, signed and sealed.

The Clerk was instructed to send a suitable reply to G. N. Gordon in the matter of the taxes against the Pat. J. Collins estate. The council adjourned to meet on November 6th next at the hour of one o'clock.

W.A. Of Millbrook Plans Fowl Supper

MILLBROOK, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—Mrs. F. A. and Miss Phyllis Kidd were hostesses for the October meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church, held at their home on Tuesday at 3 p.m., the president, Mrs. F. J. Smith in the chair, and Mrs. Weston Fallis supplying in the absence of the secretary, Mrs. C. E. Thornton.

Business was chiefly concerned with arrangements for the annual fowl supper to be served on October 23, canvassers being appointed as follows: Fallis Line, Mrs. G. E. Burnham; Zion, Mrs. Might; 7th Line, Mrs. T. Douglas; centre village, Mrs. Ross Edmunds; west, Mrs. Henderson; east, Mrs. McKnight. Three dozen or more geese will be bought, the committee being Mrs. Smith and Mrs. McKnight. Other details were settled among these being the admission as forty and twenty five cents, with all helpers paying the latter figure instead of the full charge as in former years.

The program was left in the hands of Rev. A. L. Siscoe, Mrs. Smith and Miss Burnham. The treasurer reported approximately $172 in the bank, with money needed to shingle the parsonage, and other expenses including the purchase of new salt and pepper holders before the supper, the taxes on the parsonage amounting to over $90, and the contribution to the church thankoffering which last year was $150. It was decided to leave the latter item over until the November meeting when the amount realized at the fowl supper will be a determining factor as far as this subscription is concerned.

New members welcomed included Mrs. Denike Fennell, Mrs. H. Sanderson and Mrs. J. Sloan. The hostesses assisted by the committee in charge served afternoon tea at the close the small charge for this being turned over to the treasurer as 'talent money,' from which source $22.05 had previously been realized so far this year. The usual votes of thanks were passed before dispersal, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Sisco and Mr. Kidd joining the party for the tea hour.

Col. Fawcett Found?

COL. H. P. FAWCETT

Lost with his son in the wilds of the Matto Grasso jungles of Brazil, Col. H. P. Fawcett, English explorer, is reported in touch with civilization through another explorer, Angelo Truchi. Truchi has reported at Rio de Janeiro that he has been in touch with Fawcett, about whom much mystery has been wrapped since his disappearance in 1924.

Bombing Outbursts Are Ended In Cuba

HAVANA, Oct. 4.—(A.P.)—A double-barrelled outburst of terroristic bombing in Cuba's two largest cities Havana and Santiago, ended at dawn to-day without a casualty.

Squadrons of cavalary clattered through Santiago last night and took control of the streets after electric light and power lines had been slashed, making nervous citizens even more anxious.

More than 20 bombs exploded throughout the city. Motion picture houses and other public places closed immediately.

Terrorists were protesting the inauguration of Dr. Ernesto Ganivet as Mayor. Radicals oppose him because they claim he is an attorney for banking interests and United States firms.

MOVIES FOR STUDENTS

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 4. (CP)—Motion pictures have been introduced in the McKeough Public School as an aid in the teaching of geography and history. A projection room has been fitted up in the basement of the school, and the new department of instruction is under the direction of George Stewart, a member of the staff. Pictures will be provided by the Ontario Department of Education and the important railway companies.

CAR CATCHES FIRE
A box alarm brought the entire Fire Department to the Market Square last night, when a car belonging to A. Boyce of Toronto caught fire shortly before 11.30 o'clock. With the use of carbon tetrachloride, the firemen doused the flames before the car was damaged.
The blaze started, it is believed, by a back-fire.

The first of the Fall and Winter series of story hours in the Children's Department at the Public Library will be held to-morrow morning at 10 30 o'clock. As in other years, the hours will be in charge of the Children's Department librarian. Interesting programs have been planned.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 5 (C.P.) — Pressure is high over Eastern Canada and the north Atlantic States, also over British Columbia and the far West States, while a trough of low pressure extends southward from northern Manitoba. A disturbance is centered off the east Newfoundland coast and pressure is low over the Gulf of Mexico. The weather has been fair and cool eastward from the Great Lakes, but light showers occurred in the Lake Superior district, Manitoba and some parts Saskatchewan and northern Alberta. It is now becoming milder in Ontario, but is likely to become somewhat cooler again in the Far West.

Lower Lake Region — Moderate easterly and southerly winds; fair and milder to-day and most of Saturday; probably followed by showers.

Georgian Bay.—Moderate southeast to south winds; fair and milder.

Saturday.—Fresh south to southwest winds; partly cloudy and mild, followed by showers.

Northern Ontario. — Southerly winds, cloudy and milder to-night and Saturday, with scattered showers.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley.—Moderate to fresh southeast to southwest winds; partly cloudy and somewhat milder to-day and most of Saturday; probably followed by showers.

Obituary

GEORGE W. ADAMS
City Treasurer Frank Adams received the sad news to-day of the death of his brother, George W. Adams, at Flat, Alaska. The deceased was born on the 23rd of March, 1871, being 63 years old last March. After an absence of 37 years, he paid a visit to his old home in March, 1930, and will be remembered by Ashburnham residents and those who were students in the old Ashburnham school. He was married this Spring and besides his widow he leaves two sisters, Mrs. D. F. Drummond, Mrs. S. J. Burgess, and four brothers, T. H. Adams and Frank Adams, of Peterborough; Robert J. BELGIAN SHIP SINKS IN GALE

Lone Lifeboat With One Survivor Is Rescued Among Wreckage.

9 OF CREW MISSING.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 5 (AP)—The German steamer Wildenfels reported by wireless to-day that the Belgian steamer Charles Jose, with a gross tonnage of 561, sank four miles west of Haaks Lightship at 11 p.m. last night during a severe storm.

Distress signals were received at the lightship but did not identify the sender. Several rescue ships searched the area in vain.

The Wildenfels picked up a lifeboat containing one member of the Charles Jose's crew, but the other nine who launched another lifeboat, were believed to be lost.

Considerable wreckage was located by the tugboat Rhein, but it found no survivors.

WOMAN FREED IN ZUKOR GEM THEFT COURT

Jewels Found in Chicago Cafe Not Stolen, Declares Attorney.

WOMAN TESTIFIES

CHICAGO, October 5. — One of the four persons accused of a part in the theft of $65,000 worth of jewelry from the Blackstone Hotel suite of Mrs. Adolph Zukor was free on Wednesday night.

Testimony against James Weinberg and his wife, Eula, won release for Mrs. Helen Vestal, whose husband, Robert, is also a defendant.

Assistant States Attorney Chas. Dougherty said the state would probably introduce no more testimony.

Reward Sought

One of the prosecution witnesses had been Nat Ruvell, a former assistant state's attorney, who said Weinberg came to him, and said he had found the gems and wanted Ruvell to dicker for the 10 per cent. reward offered for their recovery.

Ruvell said he talked with counsel for the Chicago Jewellers' Protective Association. When the gems were delivered to the association offices, Clarence Converse, ace federal agent, burst in, he said.

Earlier in the trial, Jas. Burke, of defense counsel, said that the gems, in a purse, had been left on a table at Weinberg's 500 Club, 1350 N. Clarke street, by two strange women; and that Weinberg, finding them, had sought to collect the reward, supposedly about $6,500.

Burke declared that the Weinbergs should have the reward instead of being prosecuted.

Sleuths 'Appreciated'

Mrs. Zukor, wife of the president of Paramount Film Corporation, came all the way from Hollywood to testify, saying she wanted to show her appreciation of the work of the Chicago police.

Stolen were a lorgnette and chain, a diamond cluster ring, a string of pearls, and a watch set with diamonds, rubies and sapphires.

Mrs. Zukor gave routine testimony concerning her awakening to find a door of her suite open and the gems missing.

Lace Comes Into Its Own Again This Season

Left, royal blue lace dress from Lelong; center, black crepe with lace drapery; right, heavy lace and cellophane frock.

VOGUE FOR FEMININITY CAUSES DESIGNERS TO EMPLOY FABRIC IN MANY NEW AND DELIGHTFUL WAYS

By LISBETH

Really fine dressmaking has come into its own again, the Paris openings show, with rich, luxurious fabrics and styles that are very feminine.

Laces in bewildering variety appear in the fashion picture, from the sturdy tweed laces for daytime wear, to the most delicate cobweb patterns for evening. Then, too, there are the lovely lastex laces, and the cellophane and lace creations that have come from Paris, the city of surprises.

Even when lace is not used for the entire costume, the couturiers have shown a fondness for introducing a filmy and airy touch of lace or net or tulle, sometimes in the most unexpected ways.

Lace had been favored this summer, even for the most formal evening wear, and the popularity promises to continue throughout the winter. American women, are particularly happy to welcome lace back, not only because of its own beauty and charm, but because lace frocks are so wearable in this country, with its well-heated homes and restaurants and theaters(and they stand up well under travel and all kinds of weather conditions.

The three dresses shown suggest the possibilities of lace. There's the simple frock made by Lelong, left, of delicate lace in royal blue; the statuesque frock made by Rosine, of heavy lace and cellophane, right, also is in royal blue with finely pleated cellophane in most interesting and original fashion at the hem and sleeves.

While fine black lace is used by Mainbocher to edge the decolletage of the black crepe frock, center, and also for floating draperies, at the back.

Your Health

by DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Lead is the commonest cause of poisoning by any of the heavy metals. Metals cause poisoning, in most cases, accidentally, and, when so, of course, the victim is unaware of the action which introduces the metal into the body. This feature, combined with the fact that the metal enters the body in small amounts, slowly and insidiously combines to make a situation puzzling, both to the patient and physician, and frequently calls for some detective work on the part of the latter to uncover the source.

We recited yesterday the strange cases of lead poisoning which originated from the use of storage battery casings for fuel by poor people in the winters of the depression.

Most cases of lead poisoning, of course, occur in industries which must use lead in their manufacturing processes. Paint manufacturing and painting trades, and printing trades, used to supply most examples, but many technical changes and intelligent methods of prevention have reduced these to a minimum. Many cases are found among storage battery workers, and potters.

But from time to time epidemics of lead poisoning occur in the domestic population which are usually found to have curious origins.

In Philadelphia one such epidemic was traced to lead chromate in a baking powder. Lead-lined vats for brewing beer have often been identified as the source. Lead used in face powders and cosmetics has been the cause of many serious outbreaks.

Sporadic cases often prove to have an even more curious origin. A man with a bullet in his body developed lead poisoning from absorption of lead from the bullet. An even more bizarre case was a man who carried around in his pocket a bullet which had been extracted from his person, and from which he absorbed lead. Lead foil wrappings from snuff packages chewed by a young housewife caused death.

Several years ago when tetra-ethyl lead was first introduced to increase the efficiency of gasoline, some discussion arose as to whether it would cause poisoning. A very thorough investigation was carried out by Dr. Leake, of the public health service, with the result that he found no case in which lead poisoning had occurred in employees distributing or customers using, the product. Careful examination of the blood, etc., of these employees disclosed no evidence that they were absorbing any lead at all. It was therefore declared that tetra-ethyl lead is perfectly safe.

Liver is often recommended by a physician for the diet of a person who is anemic. These liver cakes are an excellent way of serving it, for it is a dish of which one might tire if new ways were not found to make it palatable.

Today's Recipes

Liver Cakes.—One pound liver, two cups bread crumbs, one-half cup grated onion, one egg, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper, four tablespoons drippings, four tablespoons cold water, one-fourth cup flour. Put liver through meat chopper. Mix all ingredients thoroughly. Shape into cakes, roll in flour and put each cake into a muffin tin. Place in a 400-degree oven for ten minutes, then reduce heat to moderate (350 degrees) for 35 minutes.

Serve with sauce made by adding half a cup grated carrots to one cup medium white sauce, made with two tablespoons each butter and flour, one and one-half cups milk and one-fourth teaspoon salt.

Corn Pudding.—One and one-half cups grated uncooked corn (four very large ears), three beaten eggs, one tablespoon flour, one tablespoon sugar, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon butter, one and one-fourth cups milk, little sweet green or red pepper, finely cut. Put together ingredients in order given. Bake as a custard about 30 minutes in a moderate oven, using greased pudding pan set in another pan containing hot water. Serves four nicely.

Mustard Pickles

Two heads cauliflower, one quart small onions, two quarts small cucumbers, one quart string beans, one-half cup flour, six large green peppers, six tablespoons ground mustard, six teaspoons celery salt, one teaspoon tumeric seed, one cup brown sugar, two quarts vinegar. Wash and prepare vegetables. Leave cucumbers and onions whole. Cut peppers and beans and divide cauliflower into flowerettes. Soak all vegetables in brine for twenty-four hours. (Make brine by dissolving one cup of salt in eight cups of water.) Drain. Scald brine and pour over pickles to blanch them. Drain again. Wet the flour and the spices with enough vinegar to blend. Add remaining vinegar and boil until it thickens, then stir in vegetables and bottle. Seal.

Every grandmother in the village and surrounding district is invited to be present and if possible bring a piece of their grandmother's work. The program committee have prepared an excellent afternoon's entertainment.

The annual dance of the Northern Light Lodge L.O.B.A. (Orange Ladies) will be held in the Town Hall on Friday evening, October 12 with a good orchestra.

Velvet And Tulle

SAPPHIRE blue velvet and sequined tulle are combined to fashion this luxurious evening gown.

The front of the gown is cut square with the sequined tulle fashioning an intriguing cowl back and falling on to the slight, graceful train.

Sequins are very important as trimming and used in a different manner this season. They are worked in more supple fashion, more like fabrics, with drapes and softly full sleeves.

Be Beautiful

'Way back in ancient times in India, it is said, there was once a tribe in which enormous feet were considered the apex of loveliness. Feet of all of 18 inches in length were not regarded as the least exceptional in size. And when a woman put her foot down in that part of the globe, she certainly covered a lot of territory!

In this country today, of course, very large feet are not considered particularly beautiful. Most women, as a matter of fact, have rather a yen for tiny feet. And some of 'em, through lack of knowledge of feet and footwear, sometimes do their tootsies serious injury.

At the present time, most women are purchasing their shoes for fall and winter wear. They are adopting again the higher-heeled and dressier footwear. And many of them are beginning to complain of pains in the backs of their legs and in their feet. This really isn't surprising, however. For during the summer, what with tennis shoes, sandals and flat-heeled sports shoes, the feet do not get the support that they do from the higher-heeled, arch shoes. And so, when snug arch shoes are resumed in the fall, the feet feel confined and uncomfortable, and tire very easily.

It's really not very difficult to correct this. First of all, extremely high heels shouldn't be worn immediately after loose, flat-heeled shoes have been worn for any length of time. The change should be a gradual one, and only moderately high heels should be adopted. And secondly, exercises should be practiced daily, so that the foot and leg muscles remain flexible. The following exercise is especially good for this purpose:

Stand behind a chair, about three feet away from it, and place your hands on the chair's back. Next, turn your toes inward in pigeon-toed fashion, with the weight of your body resting on the outer side of each of your feet. Then, holding your body rigid, slowly bend forward. The only motion that occurs during this action should be at the ankle joints. Then return to first position and continue this slow bending for 10 or 20 counts.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Blonde Hair Rinse

Ellie: The blonde hair rinse is made by adding the juice of half a lemon, one tablespoon of vinegar and one tablespoon of peroxide to a pint of clear water.

Thighs

Mary: It is indeed possible to reduce the thighs, knees, calves and ankles. Full information on this is contained in my article on "Care of the Feet and Legs".

Cocoa Butter

Peggy: If your face is thin, massage it nightly with warmed cocoa butter. This will help to nourish the tissues and round out the facial contours.

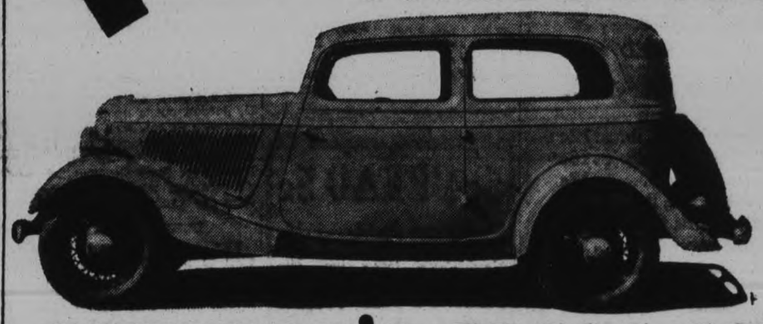
FREE — THESE PRIZES!



Ford V-8 Standard Tudor Sedan, fully equipped, 2 C.C.M. Bikes and 2 Air Line Coasters, to the winners—everybody has a chance—enter the contest now.

NEILSON'S COCOA CONTEST

A C.C.M. bicycle for boys and a C.C.M. bicycle for girls to the lucky ones——get your entry in at once.

Two of these new Air Line Coasters equipped with real General Jumbo tires holding five pounds of air each, and real automobile brakes—Boy, oh! Boy, the winners of these coasters will be the envy of the town.

CONTEST RULES

1. Estimate how many entries will be received in this contest. Neilson's will give a new 1934 Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan, fully equipped, to the person whose estimate is the closest to the actual number of entries received.
2. Each estimate must be written on the back of a label from a tin of Neilson's Jersey Brand Cocoa or on a reasonable facsimile of the label, together with your name and address—and in the case of those under sixteen, sex and age.
3. This contest is open to every resident of Canada—men, women, boys and girls—except employees of Neilson's and their families.
4. Boys and girls under sixteen years of age are eligible for all prizes—the car, the bicycles, the wagons, but can win only one prize. Persons over fifteen are eligible for the car only.
5. A dandy Air Line Coaster will be given to each of the two winners in the contest for children between the ages of five and nine years inclusive. One to the boy and one to the girl whose estimate is correct or closest to the actual number of entries received. A C.C.M. bicycle will be given to each of the two winners in the contest for children between the ages of ten and fifteen inclusive. One to the boy and one to the girl whose estimate is correct or closest to the actual number of entries received. Don't forget to give your age and sex.
6. In the event of a boy or girl winning the automobile then the bicycle or wagon, as the case may be, (major prizes in the children's contest) will go to the next boy or girl competitor whose estimate is closest to the actual number.
7. You may send as many estimates as you wish but each estimate must be on the back of a Neilson's Jersey Brand Cocoa label or on a reasonable facsimile thereof.
8. In the event of ties priority will be given to the entry bearing the earliest post mark.
9. All entries must be addressed to Neilson Jersey Milk Chocolates, Post Office Box, 854 Toronto, Ont.
10. Contest closes at midnight, December 22, 1934. The judges of this contest will be Mr. W. J. J. Butler of the Toronto Mail & Empire, T. N. Dwan of The Toronto Telegram, and Harry (Red) Foster, famous sports announcer. The decision of the judges will be final—no correspondence will be entered into with contestants.

Think of it . . . a beautiful new 1934 Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan . . . for merely estimating how many entries will be received in this contest. You could not ask for an easier way to win a car . . . no trick . . . no hard work . . . young and old . . . all have an equal chance. And boys and girls you have many chances . . . if you don't happen to win the car you are still eligible for a dandy new C.C.M. bicycle or a smart Air Line Coaster.

Don't delay . . . study the rules carefully and get your entry in at once . . . decide you will be the winner.

Before Neilson's Cocoa was introduced to the public, experts had spent many months to perfect the fineness, flavour and quality. In keeping with the Neilson tradition for leadership no product bearing the name Neilson could go on the market unless it was definitely better.

Already thousands of housewives acclaim this new, finer cocoa as the most delicious they have ever tasted. Get Neilson's Cocoa today. You too, will agree that it is better.

The tables were prettily decorated with autumn flowers. On behalf of the choir, the members and guests were welcomed by Mr. Percy Johnson, the president, who spoke briefly of the importance of music and its prominent place in the life of men, down through the ages. Mr. Johnson also proposed the toast to the King, which was honored in the usual manner. Mr. Gordon Matthews, chairman of the Music Committee, proposed the toast to the choir, with response by Mrs. James Mann; Dr. J. A. Morgan proposed the toast to the choirmaster, and Mr. Arthur Collison replied, speaking of future work by the choir. Mr. Johnson then introduced the speaker of the evening, Mr. Harry Graham, who gave a humorous and helpful talk about the choir and its work. Mr. Graham was thanked by Miss Marjorie Stenton, on behalf of the choir. Brief addresses were made by the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, Mr. C. B. Routly, Mr. B. W. Harvey, and Mr. J. G. Dallin. The vote of thanks to the ladies was voiced by Mr. D. Silvester, with response by Mrs. R. Gavine. The play-off in the third flight of the golfing contests at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club (Ladies' section) was concluded yesterday, thus bringing the ladies' golfing activities to a close for the season. Mrs. A. Belleghem was winner of the first prize, with Mrs. Lionel Brown securing second prize as runner-up. Contests of the afternoon were won by Mrs. F. C. Ferrier and Mrs. Max Rishor. About twenty-five ladies were present and enjoyed tea later in the clubhouse, with Mrs. A. Belleghem and Mrs. Max Rishor as tea hostesses, assisted by Mrs. F. C. Ferrier, Mrs. J. C. Green and Mrs. G. McLeod.

Ordinary envelopes can be so used that they are helps in housekeeping as well as fulfilling their function in correspondence. The envelopes can be small, medium sized, and large according to their uses. Readers who enjoy detective stories will recall how those who are seeking to discover the criminal, are inveterate users of envelopes of which they seem always to have a limitless stock in their pockets. Into different ones are thrust bits of gravel, threads, hairs, etc., which may reveal some bits of evidence, and form valuable clues. This only goes to show some uses of envelopes. Others can be as valuable to homemakers as, for instance, in tabulating papers requiring classification, making them more readily accessible, and less time-consuming to find.

* * * * * * *

The envelopes filing system is one not to be disregarded in the home where it can be as useful as in an office. There are filing envelopes available. The faces have ruled lines on which to write the grist of each paper, enough to catalogue the contents. While these are convenient, anyone can make satisfactory filing envelopes by using Manila envelopes approximately 8½ x 4½ inches in size. The fact can be ruled in ink down its entire surface the lines being spaced about 1 inch apart. The flap should open toward the right when the back is toward the user as this permits the contents being withdrawn in the handiest way. These envelopes can be for miscellaneous contents, alphabetically arranged. Or different packages can be for different subjects such as recipes, in one alphabetical set; clippings in another. Locations of household things can be kept in another set. This is a convenient set, since by consulting the contents under linens, accessories, etc., which may be packed away, all searching for wanted articles is eliminated.

* * * * * * *

Many persons prefer keeping such a filing system for clippings instead of pasting them in scrapbooks, for in the envelopes each clipping can be taken out for use when needed, and unwanted clippings can be discarded at will. In a scrap book the clippings are permanently placed.

* * * * * * *

In starting a stamp collection, envelopes can be used for cataloguing them. Small envelopes are recommended for this. I use envelopes in size approximately 2 x 3 inches with the name of the kind and denomination clearly penned on the face of each, together with a number stating how many stamps are in an envelope.

Large envelopes are handy to use when packing luggage. Small articles can be slipped in them, and each kind be kept separate, neat, fresh and easily accessible.

Weddings

LINES—JOSLIN.

The wedding took place quietly at two o'clock this afternoon at the parsonage of Muray Street Baptist Church, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe officiating, of Ena Joslin, daughter of Mrs. Nelson Routly of Park Street and the late Mr. George Joslin, to Mr. Eric Lines, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Lines of McDonnel Street.

The bride wore a smart ensemble of poudre blue crepe, with black hat, shoes and gloves, and corsage bouquet of Talisman roses.

Attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Routly, the latter wearing a gown of guardsman's blue crepe, with matching hat and accessories, and corsage of Butterfly roses.

Later, the bride and bridegroom left by motor for a short honeymoon trip and will reside in Peterborough on their return.

GOOD PROGRAM WARSAW SUPPER

Large Number Attends Annual United Church Entertainment.

PLEASING NUMBERS

WARSAW, October 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — A goodly number, though not quite up to the usual, attended the United Church annual supper and entertainment on Tuesday evening (October 2). The tables set in the basement were pretty with yellow runners, yellow daffodils and marigolds. Supper was up to the high standard the W.A. has won. The program in the auditorium was a delight. Dr. Munro and the Messrs. Leahy with violins, and Miss Jean Munro as pianist, gave the opening selection, also some numbers during the evening, as well as the closing number and leading in the National Anthem. Miss Larmer gave a reading about The Pickle Lover, and a delightful little skit for encore. This was Miss Larmer's first appearance in Warsaw and those who heard her hope it may not be the last. Fred Crowe in his usual bright manner gave Quizzing the Prisoner. Miss M. Bryce of Keene sang "The Fairies" and in reply to encore "Mary of Argyle." Her second number was "The Song that reached my Heart." Later she and Rev. Mr. Ferguson sang "Huntingtower" and "The Crookit Bawbee." For this Miss Bryce donned an old-fahioned girl's bonnet trimmed with pink roses and a paisley shawl. Mr. Ferguson looked his part in a Scottish cap and the Ferguson tartan, and carried a cane. Their numbers brought the house down. Mrs. Ferguson was pianist. Mr. Ferguson's talk on the present day situation was interesting, and he read a splendid little poem, "'Tis better to whistle than whine." This was Mr. Ferguson's first appearance in Warsaw. Mrs. W. J. Davies, soprano, Mrs. Cairns, alto, Miss Margaret Flowers, pianist, Mr Kirkcaldy, bass, and Mr. Parry, tenor, from Peterborough, also delighted the audience with their singing. Mr. Parry gave two solos, "Onward to the Battle" and "Idle Days in Summer Time." The quartette gave "Men of Harlech" and "Rising of the Lark," and later, "Ash Grove," "All through the Night," and their last the Welsh National Anthem, "Hen wlad fy Nhadau," freely translated "My Fatherland," literally translated "The Land of My Old Father." Their numbers were very much appreciated.

There was a social on Wednesday evening.

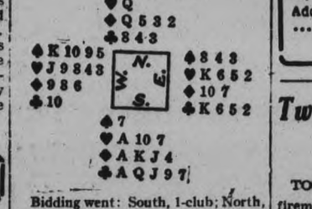
AMBITIOUS OR RECKLESS?

Ambition may either be an inordinate desire for results or distinction for its own sake, or eagerness to achieve a worthy purpose. Recklessness is foolish disregard for danger. For South to bid game at no trumps was worthy ambition. For him to attempt a small slam seemed a desire to show off. North's support of diamonds was proper, but his willingness to carry the call to a slam at no trumps appeared reckless. Here are the holdings:



Bidding went: South, 1-club; North, 1-spade; South, 2-diamonds; North, 2-spades; South, 2-no trumps; North, 3-diamonds; all of which was reasonable; South, 4-no trumps, when a less ambitious bidder would have ended at 3-no trumps; North, 5-no trumps, which was reckless; South, 6-no trumps, ending bidding without a double.

The opening lead was the 4 of hearts. Dummy's Q, East's K and declarer's ace fell in a heap. South took his ace and K of diamonds. As all followed suit it was evident that the suit would break, allowing two entries to dummy, with the Q to overtake declarer's J, and the 5 to overtake his 4. Dummy was put in the lead with the Q of diamonds. The lowest club was led. The J won, capturing West's lone 10. Dummy was put in the lead with the 5 of diamonds. The 8 of clubs held the seventh trick. The last club was led. The ace of clubs picked up East's last club, and the Q of clubs won the tenth straight trick.

Both West and dummy had been discarding during the long run of club tricks. At the end of the ninth trick the holdings about the table were as shown. The last club was led. What shall West let go? Dummy will let go the 6 of spades. East is not shown, as he has no hope of winning a trick.

Dummy— S: A Q J 6

West	Declarer
: K 10 9 H: J	S: 7 H: 10 7

If West lets go one of his 3 spades dummy will win the last 3 tricks. If West lets go his winning heart South's 10 of hearts will win the eleventh trick, and dummy's A-Q of spades will win the last 2 tricks. West is squeezed. As the cards are the defenders cannot avoid a grand slam, or one trick over the small slam contract. South played the hand exceedingly well.

Two Firemen Hurt At Toronto Blaze

TORONTO, Oct. 5.—(C.P.)— Two firemen were injured, one seriously, when a two-alarm fire here early today gutted two vacant mid-town stores and damaged extensively the store room of Routley's paint and wall paper shop. The fire, of undetermined origin, caused damage estimated at $15,000.

Believed to have suffered a broken shoulder when he fell into the cellar of one building, Fireman Jack Timmany was admitted to hospital. Shortly afterwards Fireman Jack Price lost his footing and fell on his head, but was able to return to the fire.

Flames spread so rapidly that 15 minutes after the blaze was first noticed the responding District Chief had to turn in a second alarm.

W.C.T.U. CLOSES ITS CONVENTION

Dr. Hughson Feels Temperance Forces Could Win Fight on Unbiased Grounds.

NO POLITICS INVOLVED.

STRATFORD, Ont., Oct. 5. — (C.P.)—To-day marked the conclusion of the 57th annual convention of the Provincial W.C.T.U. which opened its sessions here yesterday. The only outstanding business today will be selecting the next convention meeting place. A meeting of the executive board was also held this morning when some necesary items of business were transacted.

An outstanding address was given last night by Rev. J. E. Hughson, D.D., of London, who urged the organization to keep on nagging the government until a referendum on the liquor question is given.

The speaker maintained that the first task before the people is to take the temperance question out of the hands of politicians and that if given a fair fight on unbiased grounds as a clear cut issue, the temperance forces will win. It was a neat trick of brewers and politicians, Dr. Hughon contended, to put the liquor plank with nineteen or twenty others on the party platform so that the other planks would carry the liquor plank in some places and in others the liquor plank would carry the others. Thus by a party vote, not a vote on the temperance question, the wets went on to victory.

This, according to Dr. Hughson, was the position in two political contests, but in the last election the tactics were worse. Since the dry side of the liquor question was out of politics there was no place for the voter to vote dry. No matter whether a vote was cast for Liberal or Conservative in the last contest, the vote was for beer parlors, thus the dry voter did not have one chance and the wet voter had two chances, was the opinion of the minister.

FLAME-TINTED SMOKE CLOUD ANGEL OF MONS

German General Reveals How Curious Accident Produced Inspiring Vision.

SEEKS SON'S GRAVE

Germans Used Scheme to Great Advantage While on the Eastern Front.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

LANGEMARCK, Oct. 5.—What Ypres is to pilgrims from England, Langemarck is to the Germans. Around Ypres are the British cemeteries and in that city is the new Menin Gate on which are inscribed the names of the sixty thousand "missing", who died in the salient, but whose graves are unknown. There, too, each night is sounded the "Last Post", now an institution scarcely noticed by the inhabitants. Langemarck is the huge grave of the foot regiments of the Prussian Guard. Langemarck to the Germans, and especially to the Germans of the new militarist regime, signifies one of "the most glorious" episodes of the sanguinary conflict. There the cadets of the Potsdam military academies, the flower of the feudal nobility of Prussia, had their baptism of fire—and their burial at the same time.

Delegations of German peace societies used to come here in years gone by to swear amidst the innumerable wooden crosses: "Nie wieder Krieg!" (Never again war!) and to make a solemn vow to work with all their energy to prevent a return of the ghastly business of 1914-1918. Now German peace societies don't send any more delegations. They have been imprisoned, while a New Germany, under a hard and cruel taskmaster, is drilling . . .

Terrifying Cost.

Still some Germans visit here. I saw several small parties today. One aged couple were searching for a grave, map in hand. We stood together reading a weather-worn proclamation on a post, nailed up there by a delegation from the Reich, I don't know how ong ago. The proclamation said: "What the war has cost: Soldiers known dead, 10 million; soldiers missing, 3 million; civilians, 13 million; wounded, 20 million. Orphaned, 9 million; famine-stricken children, 34 million; widowed, 5 million; homeless refugees, 10 million; influenza deaths, 15 million. War bills: Allies, 100 billion; U.S.A., 40 billion; Germany, 60 billion dollars. Property losses, 37 billion; loss in production, 44 billion; loss to neutrals, 2 billion; capitalized value of lives lost, 67 billion. Grand total, $350,000,000,000 (three hundred and fifty billion dollars)!"

And some people are still searching for the cause of the depression. I thought as I read that. And others would start this all over again to bring back happiness and prosperity!

One gentleman, with a close-cropped military muostache, was examining the name on every cross, scrutinizing the inscriptions with a magnifying glass. He had a chart in his hand, but each time when he had followed one of the endless rows to the end, he looked up, apparently bewildered and worried that he could not find what he was looking for. He noticed me sitting nearby and came over. "Gestatten," he said, stiffly. "General Dietrichs, late of the 124th Hessian Infantry! Permit me to introduce myself, General Dietrichs. Do you know perhaps whether 'le' avenue is supposed to run beyond this path here?"

Retired General Seeks Grave.

"I don't know," I said, "but I will ask for you."

"That will be kind of you," he replied. "I am looking for the grave of my boy . . . Fanrich Dietrichs, third foot regiment."

"Yes, sir, I'll see what I can do." I went in search of one of the Flemish gardeners. Having found him, this man soon put me aright, and I returned to the general with my information. Then, together, we set off in search of the grave. We soon located it. The general seemed suddenly to have grown much older when I left him alone.

Later we met again and had a little lunch in one of the rural taverns of Langemarck. I did not ask him the usual questions about how things were going in Germany. I know how things are going in that unhappy land, and don't need any retired general to tell me. Retired generals have pensions.

We talked of something entirely different. We talked of . . . the Angels of Mons. Herr Dietrichs had taken part in the pursuit of the so-called "Contemptibles" as a major of infantry, he explained. "I was right behind the English," he said. "Many times we were so close that we could see them leave a village as we entered."

"You must have seen the angels of Mons, then, too?" I queried.

"Sure, I saw them," he came back. "Very clever work that!"

"Clever? How so, clever?"

Angels Caused By Smoke.

"The way the British inspired their troops with that vision. It was a grand idea. It helped us marvellously later in the battle of the Mazurian lakes on the eastern front."

"Excuse me," I said. "I don't know what you are talking about. Do I understand you to say that the British were responsible for the angels at Mons? That would be a new one on me. What's behind it all?"

"Don't you know, really?" he asked. "Don't you know how the British made a first trial with covering smoke, a smoke screen near Mons, and how the puffs of pure white smoke were lit up by burning farmhouses at nights, giving them the appearance of mighty white shapes floating in the air? Of course, they did not intentionally try to produce the illusion of angels. The smoke pillars looked that way only from a great distance to some tired and exhausted men, who hoped for a miracle. But when the news of angels having been seen at Mons was published in the British press, it was a rare find for our intelligence service. We seized upon the idea and greatly improved it."

"How?"

Used Against Russians.

"Well," he replied, "we had aeroplanes going over the Russian lines on the eastern front at nights, and they threw a picture of the Madonna and Child on the white clouds above our own (German) army by means of powerful lanterns. Just brief flashes, but it worked. We learned later how entire Russian divisions refused to advance against a foe who so clearly enjoyed heavenly protection as we did. It was a good stunt. We attacked immediately to take advantage of the confusion we hoped to have produced with our pictures in the sky. It was an easy victory. We mowed them down in their thousands," he said, and he added, "I think illusions of that sort may play a great role yet in the next war." They won't work on the Russians, I am afraid!

28 lbs. Off in Three Months With Kruschen

"Three months ago," writes a woman, "I took Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs. 4 ozs., and I felt five years younger. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date, and while before to go upstairs was a great effort, now, as my husband says, I trip up like a two-year-old." —(Mrs.) S. G. B.

You, too, can take off fat with Kruschen Salts if you will take one-half teaspoonful in hot water every morning before breakfast, modify your diet, and exercise regularly.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. The old armchair won't hold you any more — you'll want to be up and doing — you'll enjoy work and active recreation, and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat, and feel years younger.

RURAL DEANERY HOLDS MEETING

Fall Chapter Meeting of Peterborough Deanery Held in Apsley.

HARVEST SERVICES

APSLEY, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—The Rural Deanery of Peterborough held its fall Chapter meeting at Apsley on Tuesday and Wednesday A visit was made on Tuesday afternoon to the Holy Cross Rock on the shore of Loon Lake, the visitors being greatly impressed by this natural phenomenon which is yearly attracting an increasing number of tourists. In the evening, divine service was held in St. George's Church, the sermon being preached by the Rev. T. H. Floyd of Campbellford, and the service being sung by Rev. F. H. Battersby of Hastings. Rural Dean Bousfield, Dean Daniels of Moncton, U.S., the Revs. C. E. Moore, W. C. Creighton and the rector also taking part.

Wednesday's session commenced with a celebration of the Holy Communion by Rev. C. A. G. Spence, assisted by the Rural Dean, followed by breakfast at the rectory and a business session, and a study of the Greek Testament, conducted by Archdeacon Blagrave. In the afternoon Dean Daniels gave a most interesting talk on the life of the Episcopal Church in the United States. A very successful and inspiring Chapter meeting came to a close at four o'clock, after the customary votes of thanks to the speakers and to those who so kindly provided hospitality.

The following clergy were present on Wednesday: Rural Dean Bousfield, the Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave, the Revs. J. L. Hughes, W. Creighton, E. W. G. Worrell, T. H. Floyd, C. E. Moore, F. H. Battersby, C. A. G. Spence, and the guest speaker, Dean Daniels.

Harvest Services.

Harvest thanksgiving services were held on Sunday at St. Stephen's Church, Chandos, and St. George's, Apsley, both church being beautifully decorated with seasonable offerings. The Chandos church was crowded for the occasion, Mrs. J. Downing presiding at the organ. At Apsley the congregation was fairly large. The anthem, "Praise ye the Father," was ably sung by the vested choir, composed chiefly of girls' voices, while the well-known harvest hymns were heartily joined in by the congregation.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. John Coones desires to express his thanks to the doctors, nurse, and attendants for their kind services during his late father's illness, also to the clergy for their ministrations, and to the many friends who sent flowers and messages of sympathy.

Out of 1,321,520 houses inspected by local health officials in England 26,405 were found to be totally unfit for habitation, while 367,810 needed extensive repairs.

Dangerous Spider Makes Appearance In Western Canada

Bite of Black Widow Known to Cause Death in Many

(By J. McGredie Brown, Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

VANCOUVER, B.C., Oct. 5—Woman's inborn fear of the spider is justified in British Columbia where the murderous Black Widow is reported to have made its appearance.

The deadliness of this insect is indicated by a recent statement that three out of five of those bitten by it will die.

Its name is due to the curious fact that the female devours the male immediately after she is fertilized. The Black Widow is a small, coal black spider, variously marked, red or yellow, or both. The surest sign that it is of the deadly species is a mark of hourglass shape on the under side of the abdomen. Other marking differ considerably. The body of the female when full grown may be a half-inch in length. The abdomen is technically described as "globose."

The male is much smaller than the female. In size it seldom exceeds a length of a quarter-inch. It is usually more conspicuously marked than the female, having four pairs of stripes along the sides of the abdomen. Immature females sometimes are similarly marked.

The entomological name for the insect is "latrodectus mactans." It is common in Southern United States though latterly it has been moving northward and has been reported in Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Hamshire, California, Oregon, Washington and Montana. Its occurrence in Washington State was discovered after there had been several mysterious deaths. The spread of it in British Columbia became definitely established when William Simpson, of Summerland, found one in his tomato field. Mr. Simpson discovered a mature female specimen and the species was established by government entomologists.

The habitat of the Black Widow is under stones and pieces of wood on the ground, in stumps, holes in the ground and in outbuildings. In issuing a description of the spider Mr. Max H. Ruhmann, assistant entomologist in charge of the government station at Vernon, B.C., urged that it be sought and destroyed.

COUPLE HONORED AT SPRINGVILLE

Over 70 Gather—Present Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnston With Chair and Table.

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnston, whose marriage took place recently, were honored on Tuesday evening when seventy or more of their freinds and neighbors gathered at their home in North Monaghan to present them with a beautiful arm chair and Chesterfield table.

The presentation was made by Messrs. Keith Fairbairn and Lloyd Whittington, while the address was read by Gordon Morrison. The groom made suitable reply on behalf of Mrs. Johnston and himself.

With Rev. Mr. Seymour in the chair a short impromptu program was given consisting of cowboy songs by Harry Atkins, accompanied by William Cook on the harmonica; a solo and address by Mr. Bruce Herron; solo by Alton Van Allen; reading by Marie Van Allen; a speech by Mr. Melville Johnston, father of the groom, and a harmonica selection by Mr. Percy Johnston.

Dainty refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed.

AIR RACE TAKE-OFF FROM NEW AIRPORT

Big Marathon is Scheduled to Start at Dawn on October 20.

(By Central Press Canadian.)

LONDON, October 5 — Mildenhall military airport, tucked away in a lonely part of Suffolk County 60 miles from London, has now been chosen as the starting point for the England-Australia air Marathon, which is due to commence at dawn on October 30.

It Was made available by permission of the British Air Ministry after examination had revealed that no English civil airport had the necessary hangar accommodation to house the 60 aircraft entered.

Already arrangements have been completed by the Royal Aero Club, handling the English end of the race, for the competitors to be able to use the airport from the beginning of October for the final adjustments to their machines, trial flights, and servicing.

Mildenhall is a newly completed airport and was due to be taken over by the Royal Air Force personnel on October 21. With amp'e accommodation, its dimensions are approximately 1,400 yards by 1,100 yards, with a runway of 1,500 yards. surface, and there is the important advantage for air race competitors that the surrounding country is flat and open, offering no obstructions. It affords possible landing room for machines which in many cases will start with an overload of fuel and may be compelled to land directly after the take-off.

Criticisms that the new starting point will add to the distance to be covered have been answered by the statement that Mildenhall will add but 20 miles to the first direct stage, England to Bagdad, as compared with any other airport which might have been used.

It is also pointed out that the hangar accommodation will be more than sufficient and thus all competitors will be starting on an equal basis. Further, selection of Mildenhall assures the avoidance of interference with normal civil or military flying activities, it is claimed.

The Unknown Dog

NASHUA, N.H., October 5 (C. P.). — Nashua's unknown dog is to be honored here next Sunday in somewhat unusual ceremony. The dog, a stray, died some time ago and was buried in the Procter Animal Cemetery, under direction of Mrs. M. Jennie Kendall, vice-president of the New Hampshire Humane Society.

On Sunday a local clergyman will read a prayer by way of dedication of the marker, which has been placed on the dog's grave, and flowers will be placed on the pound. The ceremony will be completed with the reading of two poems.

LICENSE SUSPENDED

LINDSAY, Oct. 5 (Examiner Correspondence)—In police court Paul Zaresky, a Russian from Port Colborne, was arraigned before Magistrate Gee charged with vagrancy. The accused created considerable excitement in Minden where he chased a little child and brandishing a dangerous knife. He was apprehended by the police and escorted out of the village with instructions to leave the limits for Port Colborne. Later he returned to the village, when he was arrested. He will undergo a medical examination. For some time Zaresky has been working in the road camps near Dorset.

An Omemee man named, Albert Brooks, was charged with reckless driving and a breach of the L.C.A. arising out of an accident in that village recently. A car driven by the accused crashed into a car parked on the right side of the road. It is claimed by the police that two bottles of liquor were found near the car after the accident. The accused was fined $10 and costs and his driver's license suspended for thirty days. T. J. Carley, of Peterborough, appeared for the accused.

Two political rallies are scheduled for Lindsay at an early date. It is announced that the Liberals are to meet to select a candidate to contest the riding for the Federal House. Bruce McNevan, of Ops, president of the Liberal Association is mentioned as the party's standard bearer. The Conservatives are holding an organization meeting the latter part of the month when a big public meeting will also be held. T. H. Stinson, K.C., M.P., will likely be nominated as the party candidate. The name of I. E. Weldon, K.C., Lindsay is also mentioned in political circles.

THE LONG BRANCH meeting is going along in fine style. Conny Smythe put over his good filly Lady Marlboro yesterday at a nice juicy price and he has a few more well charged guns to shoot. His luck all year, up to a week or so ago, has been bad but in the next ten days we expect to see him make up for lost time, and it will pay to ride along with him. The Smallman Stable got a nice win with their good sprinter Meloy who has now reached the peak of his form.

Abe Orpen has announced he will offer a purse of one thousand dollars for a handicap race for Canadian bred three-year-olds over a distance of ground. Horses to carry 122 pounds and fillies 119. No allowances given. This will afford an opportunity for Sam McLaughlin's Listaro, and Harry Hatch's Chickpea to meet and decide the burning question as to whom is the best. It is squarely up to the horsemen now to fill the race with sufficient horses to make it a go, as Mr. Orpen has done his part.

× × ×

WE HEAR that the feature race on opening day when Lynx Eye and Projectile finished noses apart was a dandy. This Projectile will win a race before the meeting comes to a close. Uvira has a liking for the Long Branch racing strip and we will be greatly surprised if he does not cop a heat there. Jockey Young who does the riding for the Hatch Stable has improved wonderfully since his sojourn on the American tracks, and today is considered by experts as one o the best jockeys plying his trade in Canada. Protractor whom we picked to win on opening day and he did not fail us, will win another within a very short time. He is one of the shiftiest sprinters in our midst.

The Long Branch management are running off their program in right smart style these days with no delay between races and some of the boys and girls that are a little tardy in making their bets have been shut off. The races don't start until two o'clock and shortly after five it begins to get a little dark so you can see they have to run them off with a minimum of delay. They expect next Monday which will be Thanksgiving to be the banner day of the meeting, and we rather think that will be the day of the one thousand dollar handicap which we mentioned previously in this column.

TIGER TOM TO FOLLOW STEPS OF SCHOOLBOY

Rowe Gives Brilliant Display Thursday in Allowing One Hit in Final Nine Frames.

GOSLIN AGAIN HERO.

Cardinal Fielding Errors Keeps Hallahan in Hot Water Most of Game.

(By Edward J. Neil, Associated Press Sports Writer)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5 (AP)—To paraphrase the chant of Mr. Kipling it was the Gunga Deans go-day, the Deans, Deans, Deans, and the bloomin', blawatin' blighters can't get in there any too soon if the swashbuckling St. Louis Cardinals are to regain the upper hand in this blood pounding duel with the Detroit Tigers for baseball's world championship.

Paul (Gunga) Dean it was, Lil' Brother Dean, the freshman, to whom Frankie Frisch turned for aid and comfort as the Cardinals rallied for the second phase and the third game of the World Series on the home grounds of Sportsman's Park, St. Louis. The Tigers, wild cats again overnight, chose the curve ball wizard, Tommy Bridges, to carry on the astoundingly grand pitching work of Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe that pulled them up to evens in the series yesterday.

The situation to-day was one that well merited the attention of the Deans, Deans, Deans, and it is more than likely that if the 22-year-old schoolboy from El Dorado, Ark., has more of what he showed yesterday in his system, and the Cards can't do any better by such a grand old warrior as Wild Bill Hallahan than they did, then the cry of Dean, Dean, Dean is merely the announcer reeling off the St. Louis starting pitchers for the remainder of the conflict.

A Brilliant Display

The unveiling of Rowe, winner of 16 straight games during the American League season, the most publicized pitcher in the business barring only the Dean brothers themselves, was such a magnificent success that it even overshadowed the performance of Big Diz, the elder, in winning the series opener, 8 to 3, in Detroit. It also brought a cry of wonderment from the assembled experts as to why Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Tigers, ever hesitated, and finally decided to hold the youngester over for the second game, rather than risk his ace in hand-to-hand conflict with the Dizzy One.

Once he recovered from a shaky start, the 6 foot, 4 inch Schoolboy turned in one of the most amazing performances in all World Series history as he outlasted unlucky Hallahan and went on to win, 3 to 2, in 12 innings, the victory that brought Detroit back, made a hero of old Goose Goslin, and not only changed the entire complexion of things but riddled the confidence and cohesion of the National League champions for the moment at least.

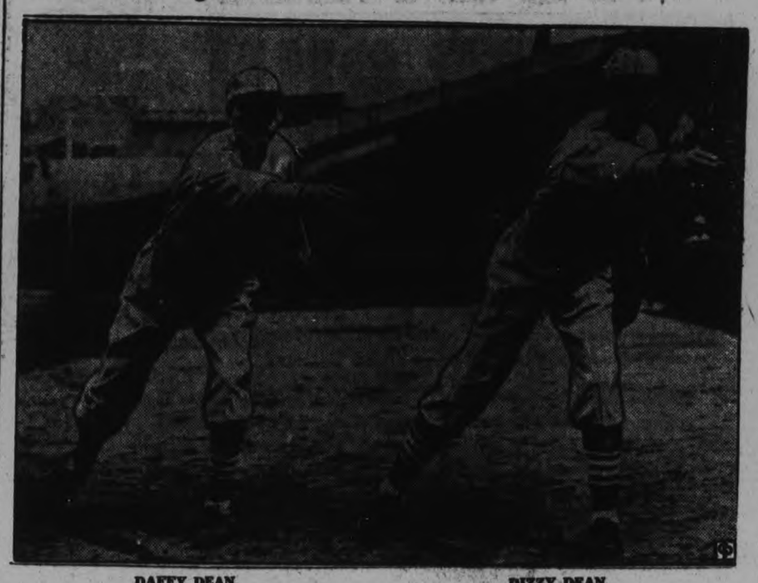
Rowe, of course, had the Cardinals themselves to thank for his chance to display a brand of pitching genius, for, over the nine inning route gallant little Hallahan, a 5 foot, 2 inch midget beside the young giant, had a right to the victory.

But the Cards, suffering all the jitters that attacked the Tigers in the early innings of the opening game when the "Battalion of Death" infield almost got itself shot for making five errors, stumbled all over the place, both mentally and physically.

Errors Costly

The Cards belted Rowe for six hits in the first three innings, scored two runs, and might have scored more if Goslin hadn't nipped the final rally in the third with a beautiful peg to the plate. Hallahan allowed only four, and three of them flukes at that, until the lid blew off in the ninth, taking him with it from the game, and a pinch hitter, Gerald Walker, tied the score with a single after he should have been out. But up to that time, the tiny lefty had been continually in hot water, little of it of his own making, what with errors, of which the Cards made a total of three, the high wind blowing pop flies around, and a mental collapse here and there.

Doing a Brother Act—It's a Success, Too



DAFFY DEAN. DIZZY DEAN.

The Dean brothers, like it is not, are very much in the spotlight. They have earned their publicity. Neither are shrinking violets off the field, but you cannot criticize them for boasting when they make their boast good. And they have done that. Where Dizzy lays down, young Daffy picks up the burden. Here they are limbering up together.

Five Maroon Players Sign On Dotted Line

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—Alex. Connell of Ottawa, goalkeeper for Montreal Maroons, has come to terms with the club, making five of the National Hockey League club's personnel who have either signed contracts or agreed on figures, it was announced at headquarters here yesterday.

"Hooley" Smith, Earl Robinson and Russel Blinco have signed on the dotted line, while Connell and Jimmy Ward have accepted the club's figures.

Manager Tommy Gorman stated Maroons would carry but 14 men this season, and as a result one goaltender, two defensemen, a forward line with one extra winger will be farmed out. Five minor teams have asked Maroons for players on loan. They are Quebec, Windsor, Providence, London and Syracuse.

Vancouver Promoter Seeks Titular Bout

VANCOUVER, October 5. — Billy Townsend and Gordon Wallace, both of Vancouver, will meet here shortly in a 15-round bout for the Canadian welterweight boxing title if the Canadian Boxing and Wrestling Federation in Montreal sanctions the bout. Charlie Jones, chairman of the Vancouver Boxing and Wrestling Commissiou, announced plan for the fight last night.

Jones stated he had received an application from Jack Allen, Vancouver fight promoter, for sanction to stage the bout and had passed it on to the Canadian body which must rule on it. Wallace scored his third consecutive recent knockout last night when he disposed of Billy Overby, Spokane, Wash., in the fourth round of a scheduled six-round bout.

Salmonbellies' Pilot Predicts Victory Over Orillia in Straight Games.

BARRIE, Ont., Oct. 5. — (CP)—Rotund, grumpy Spring, boss of British Columbia's Canadian lacrosse title challengers, the Salmon Bellies from New Westminster, sounded his battle-cry today as Barrie seethed with excitement on the morn of the town's first national championship series of any kind.

"The boys are all going great guns," asserted Spring, "and they're going to take some stopping by the Terriers. This is going to be a real series and don't you forget it."

The Terriers from the neighboring town of Orillia, Eastern Canada champions and conquerors of the 1933 champions, Hamilton Tigers, moved into the scene just in time to hear about this. Barrie watched the Salmon Bellies practice last night and already knew there was plenty of power behind Grumpy's challenge.

FORMER CHISOX MANAGER FOUND DEAD AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—(AP)—James J. Callahan, 60, of Chicago, former manager of the Chicago White Sox baseball team, was found dead in bed in a hotel yesterday. Death was due to natural causes, a medical examiner reported.

Callahan, a native of Pitchburg, Mass., was elevated to the managership of the Chicago club in 1902 after he had pitched for the club's pennant-winning team in 1901. He saw his first major league service with Philadelphia Nationals in 1893. He established a reputation as a tremendous hitter.

SCHOOLBOY AMONG IMMORTALS OF BASEBALL CLASSIC HISTORY

Spectacular Feat in Subduing Cardinals Ranks Rowe With Ruelback, Pennock and Earnshaw for Brilliant Mound Work.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—(A.P.)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe stands today alongside the pitching giants of world series history, towering as mightily and casting as big a shadow now across the chances of the St. Louis Cardinals as Jerome (Dizzy) Dean did in his Jungletown debut two days ago.

The world series record books fail to show any nine-inning stretch of pitching, over a 30 year span, superior to the blazing finish of the 22 year old, 6 foot 4 inch boy from Eldorado, Ark., who mowed down the Cardinals from the fourth to the twelfth inning, allowing only 1 hit, facing only 28 batsmen and issuing not a single base on balls during the entire game.

Ranks With Leaders.

The nearest comparisons to Rowe's spectacular feat, in his world series debut, were the feats of big Ed Ruelbach, old right-hander of the Chicago Cubs, Herb Pennock of the 1927 New York Yankees, and George Earnshaw of the Athletics.

Ruelbach scored a one-hit victory over the Chicago White Sox in the 1908 series within the regulation nine innings, a performance that is the closest on the books to a perfect game.

Rose To Heights.

Pennock pitched no-hit, no-man-reach-first baseball for the first seven innings of a game against the Pittsburgh Pirates seven years ago. The Yankee southpaw retired 22 batsmen in succession before yielding the first hit, a mark that Rowe equalled when he set the Cardinals down in order yesterday at Detroit from the fourth to the tenth, inclusive, then retired the first batsman to face him in the 11th inning before being belted for a double by Pepper Martin.

Martin Again Nemesis.

It was the same Martin, incidentally, who spoiled Earnshaw's chances for a no-hit game in the 1931 series between the Athletics and Cardinals. The big right-handed speedball artist of the A's blanked the Cards in the fourth game, 3 to 0, yielding only two hits, both by Martin, who singled in the fifth and doubled in the eighth, Earnshaw issued a single pass in that game but retired the National Leaguers in order in the other six innings.

Lawn Bowling

We Do Feel kind of guilty, but nevertheless we have to announce that there will be no bowling on the greens to-night. You will have to do your own guessing as to why this is so.

—o—

However, The Boys have no kick coming: the greens have been in constant use from the 24th of May, and if any one has not had enough bowling for one season—will you know who to blame.

But On Monday afternoon, if the weather is good, we will hold the last tournament of the season and then the greens will be closed.

—o—

It Will Be a mixed affair; the draw will be made off the board: three six ends will be played; and the fee will be 25c per bowler; so come on out and take part in the last tournament for 1934.

Riders Rate Odds to Crush Tiger Powerhouse—Varsity Vs. McGill.

(By Elmer Dolmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Hats go into the football ring to-morrow as the East's dozen senior machines roll up to the starting line on even terms and commence the heavy cannonading. For once the more interested observers in Interprovincial, Intercollegiate and Ontario Union affairs hesitated to issue forecasts on how the initial round of fire would result.

This promised to be one football opening day where few top-heavy favorites were already established. Sarnia Imperials held a definite edge in the O.R.F.U. they have dominated for three seasons and perhaps Ottawa Roughriders inspired more fear than any other Big Four squad, and Queen's more popular support than any college outfit.

The first-day schedule:

Interprovincial

Toronto Argonauts at Montreal.
Hamilton Tigers at Ottawa.

Intercollegiate

McGill at Toronto.
Western at Queen's.

O. R. F. U.

St. Michael's College at Hamilton Cubs.
Toronto Balmy Beach at Sarnia.

Argos, 1933 title-holders, will rate no better than a 50-50 chance of beating the Wheelers in Montreal, largely because Montreal has added two outstanding United States backfielders, Wes Bacon of Colgate and Bill Pendergast of Manhattan, to a team almost good enough to whip the Scullers last Fall.

Replaces Andy Mullan

Bob (Square) Clark, from Niagara University, will replace Andy Mullan at quarter for Argos, and Paul Ciancy, also from Niagara, will play outside, but these were the only new strong spots, Mullan, Art Upper, Joe Wright, Mike Valeriotte, Mike Chepesuik and Ted Moore were among the missing. It will surprise even Coach Lou Hayman if the replacements are adequate.

The Tiger-Roughrider game at Ottawa will be interesting because it will reveal the real strength of a Rider powerhouse that rolled up big scores in two pre-season exhibitions. With Abe Eliowitz, the East's most formidable triple-threat half, leading the way and four experienced performers from down Michigan way helping him, the Riders will start as favorites.

Coach Johnny Ferraro from Cornell will make a personal debut with the Tigers. A sensational forward passer, Ferraro will team up behind the line with Frank Turville and Boley Jeffers to provide the Roughriders with an exceedingly good chance to affirm their defensive ability.

SCHOOL LEADERS BEAT QUEEN MARY

King Edward Eleven Scores Two Goals Against Their Opponents.

King Edward still keep climbing the Public School Soccer League when they defeated the Queen Mary eleven by two goals to nil, in an interesting tussle that was productive of clever football, yesterday afternoon, at Nicholls Oval.

From the kick-off, King Edward carried the attack into the vicinity of Queen Mary goal where the full backs nullified their efforts. Individual efforts by Queen Mary forwards failed to make any progress against the alert halfbacks of the south-end team, clever combination by King Edward front line caused the west-end goalie some anxiety in clearing his charge. Half time—No. scoring.

South End Scores Twice

On resuming, exchanges continued even until fifteen minutes of keen tackling subsided to the splendid combination of the King Edward attack, Murduff registering the first counter from a scrimmage in front of Neiman's charge. The west-enders replied with a steady pressure upon the King Edward goal to find Leggitt and Howden punting and checking at the opportune moment. With only five minutes to go, King Edward increased their lead when Mackness tallied from a scrimmage to make the count stand. King Edward 2, Queen Mary 0.

King Edward—W. Ferguson, goal; H. Leggitt and B. Howden, full bacs; W. Harvey, M. Grose and H. Campbell, halves; A. Nokes, J. Mackness, S. Murduff, W. Anderson and J. Post, forwards; subs., N. Tarkington, E. Jobe and S. Henwood.

Queen Mary—A. Neiman, goal; J. Robson and S. Bonick, full backs; O. Kellor, E. Routley and D. Crary, halves; J. Merritt, D. Mortimer, J. Mortimer, C. Nicholls and B. Hamilton, forwards.

Referee—F. H. Dearborn.

First Game Of World Series To Cardinals

Forty-two thousand wild-eyed Detroit rooters saw their Detroit Tigers go down to defeat at the hands of those irrepressible St. Louis Cardinals in the first game of the World Series. Jack Rothrock is shown here as he rounded first base on the blow which brought home Orsatti and Dean, giving the Cardinals a lead which they never relinquished. The disconsolate chap in the infield is First Baseman Hank Greenberg. Coach Gonzales is in the foreground.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

At the first indication of an easing up in the present pressure upon the city exchequer, it is probable that the job of making the many necessary improvements to Riverside Park will be commenced. With one or two exceptions, members of the City Council are unanimous in the opinion that the existing conditions of the grounds and stands about the ball park are not a good advertisement to the city. Although actual start on the program of improvement can not be considered now, certain members of the Council have given much thought to the problem. Alderman George Macdonald deserves the thanks of ball fans for the manner in which he has consistently kept the dilapidated condition of the fences and grandstands and the needed resurfacing of the diamond before the City Fathers. He has never missed an opportunity in the Council's deliberations when park improvements were being discussed to suggest, "And what about Riverside Park?"

• • • • • •

Approaching on this subject ye sterday Mayor Denne said, "Yes, the ball park should be fixed up and if it was possible at all to do it now I would be strongly in favor. There is a lot of work needed over there. The stands are rotting away and the fences are in danger of falling over. The park should be filled up a couple of feet. But an expenditure for such work right now is out of the question. What with the cost of relief and the difficulties taxpayers are having in paying their taxes, it would be most unwise and poor business.'

• • • • • •

Alderman James Hamilton, chairman of the Board of Works, stated that he was fully aware of the need for practically building a new park and had made several tours of inspection of the grounds to contemplate just what might be done. Years ago, he said, the park was filled in with sawdust and rubbish and this is gradually settling down leaving depressions here and there. Each spring many loads of fill have been dumped into these depressions, but the following year just as many more are needed. "The park should be raised a couple of feet to prevent the river from flooding over it in the spring," he stated. "But the cost of such filling is too great to be thought of now. Besides, unless some excavation for a new building was underway in the city, it would be a problem to secure sufficient material to cover the park."

• • • • • •

Well, if it seems improbable that there will be any great changes to the Petes' ball park by the time next season rolls around, there seems little doubt that there will be several new faces on the lineup—if the Belleville sports scribe is to be believed. His story is that members of the executive of the local club are far from satisfied with the showing of the team this season. "The Petes are hot foot after a catcher, an infielder or two and perhaps a slugging outfielder," quoth the Quinte scribe. Continuing, he admits that the Nationals' management have some similar chase in view and are particularly anxious to corral a catcher to fill the shoes of Feeney Mills, who like Babe Ruth appears to have definitely quit the game.

• • • • • •

That "hot foot" bit is merely literary license, but certainly the Petes 'management would welcome players of ability to the squad. In fact the "welcome" sign is on the door mat of any amateur ball club in Ontario up until May 15. As that final day of complying with the residence rule draws nigh each year there is considerable "hot footing" after alleged star diamond performers. But it is much too soon for such activity now.

• • • • • •

"Dizzy" Dean may be the world's greatest boaster but if all boasters produced the goods as he does then give us more boasters. As "Bugs" Baer commented yesterday, "What if the Deans do make a lot of noise about their pitching? Nobody ever panned a locomotive for whistling at every crossing."

• • • • • •

A throng of fans should forget the World Series for a couple of hours tomorrow afternoon and ankle over to Riverside Park to see the P.C.I. senior rugby team make its local debut against the strong Belleville Collegiate squad. The game will get underway about 2.45 and with two young husky teams playing for keeps there should be plenty to see and enthuse about.

• • • • • •

It required 10 innings for the Chatham Stars to secure a 10-9 victory over Milton, conquerors of Cognawaga, in the first game of their series. Ernie Gibbard's Napanee squad get the acid test tomorrow when they play the Southampton Fishermen with "Lefty" Goldsmith twisted them in. Tommy Pointer will hurt for Napanee.

PRINCE OF WALES BEAT KING GEORGE

Williamson Registers From a Scrimmage in Front of Goal.

King George dropped their first brace of league points, yesterday afternoon, when Prince of Wales defeated them by 1 goal to nothing, on King Edward Park. Williamson registered the winners' tally.

Play Keen Throughout

King George won the toss and travelled down into the Prince of Wales goal to be repulsed by full backs. Csumrik transferred the ball up to Hollingsworth who broke through the opposition to test Robinson with a fast drive. Hawkes repeated the same performance at the other end. Prince of Wale confined their activities to the King George goal until Hawkes dribbled his way towards Jones charge who made a spectacular save from the King George centre. Play ran from end to end with both teams missing many openings. With only two minutes from the interval, Prince of Wales forwards bombarded the King George goal to be successful when Williamson scored from a scrimmage. Prince of Wales 1, King George 0.

West-enders Hold Lead

Both custodians were called upon to save their citadels on resuming, from the forwards who were indulging in long shots trying to get in close. Scriver and Eason intercepted many dangerous rushes by the wing players of Prince of Wales. They kept feeding their front line to visit Jones who had no difficulty in clearing the unfinished efforts. Scumrik never gave up tearrying the ball into the King George territory to find that a stalwart defense denied him the privilege of shooting the goal. Before the finish, King George endeavoured to get the equalizer but Jones robbed Perks of a scoring tally by his clever save. Prince of Wales 1, King George 0.

Prince of Wales—H. Jones, goal; A. Campbell and T. McDonald, full backs; D. Leal, S. Csumrik and G. Curtain, halves; D. Leal, A. Maldover, J. Hollingsworth, M. Williamson and R. Whatman, forwards. Subs., T. McMillan, T. Jackson and B. Killingbeck.

King George—, Robinson, goal; R. Scriver and D. Eason, full backs; D. Delong, G. Cooper and B. Ball, halves; D. Perks, E. Partington, G. Hawkes, A. Northcott and F. Gandy, forwards.

LITTLE WORLD SERIES RESUMES AGAIN TO-NIGHT

COLUMBUS, O., October 5 (A.P.)—Leading by three games to one in the battle for their second consecutive Little World Series crown, and with the team in good shape as a result of three days of rest, the Columbus Red Birds will tangle to-night with the Maple Leafs of Toronto, champions of the International loop.

The Birds, American Association title-holders for the second straight year, won the first two games of the series, dropped the third, and then took the fourth as Ed. Heusser allowed but two singles. Manager Ray Blades is planning to send Ed. Greer, righthander, who won the opener, back at the Leafs to-night, but was worried over a cold Greer was nursing. If Greer can't make it, Klinger probably will get the job.

APPLES, PEPPER MARTIN'S DIET FOR BASE STEALING

Can Run Around Moon After Eating Fruit Is Claim Of "Wild Hoss Of Osage"—Famous Cardinal Overshadowed By Dean And Rowe This Year.

(By Paul Mickleson, A.P. Sports Writer.)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5 (AP)—Beware: Mickey Cochrane sew up your pockets; lock up your mask and shin guards! Pepper Martin, the "Wild Hoss of the Osage," is eating apples again.

It was while the Cardinal special train was rolling southward and the Cardinals were trying to comfort "Wild Bill" Hallahan over the breaks of the second World Series game that Pepper divulged the secret of his base stealing exploits, which robbed Mickey blind three years ago when he was battling the Cards in Athletic regimentals.

"Apples, that's it," shouted Pepper.

"I want apples. I ate a flock of apples three years ago and felt like running around the moon. Hey, porter, get me a plate of 'em. That's my base stealing diet."

The exploits of Dizzy Dean and Schoolboy Rowe have overshadowed the famous Cardinal Pepper so far this series. He is batting .300, fielding brilliantly, his wild throw yesterday not withstanding, bothering Tiger pitchers with his base running, and inspiring his mates in the pinches when the Cardinals, led by the glum and disgusted Manager Frankie Frisch, kicked and sputtered about losing yesterday's game, it was the Pepper's spirit that lifted them back.

"Aw, we've got those fellows beat already," he broke in.

"What's the use of kicking about that game? Rowe was a great pitcher. So was Hallahan. Some one had to lose."

Dropping his scythe when he encountered two snakes, one of which coiled around the handle, F. L. Jones of Llwynforwyn, Wales, killed both reptiles with a pitchfork.

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER 57

After that, Margarida went back and forth in the dining room, bringing in a silver bowl of fruit and flanking it with violet candles. When at last they went in, Giles said: "Trust Margarida to see the eternal fitness of things. She matched you gown, and is probably sighing over the fact that there are no violets on the island to make her color scheme perfect."

When they were seated, Giles said a simple grace. It was a wonderful thing, Joan felt, to be there with him. She found herself saying in her heart, my beloved is mine and I am his . . . And suddenly she knew that she wanted to stay here with Giles forever. To be shut up warm and close, away from that opulent and frightening world into which Adelaide Delafield had brought her.

To Joan the island house seemed roofed with stars and encompassed by shining waters. What did she care for this night of storm! She was safe with the man she loved. She would always be safe with him. She knew it. His tenderness would shield her; his quietness would calm her.

She ate little of the delicious dinner. "My dear," Giles said, "this won't do. You can't keep yourself alive on a cup of consomme and two bites of a chicken."

She smiled at him, "Three bites."

"Margarida has a wonderful pudding which she always serves for company. You must eat that if you eat nothing else."

But when the pudding came, and she tasted it and laid down her spoon, he did not press her. For as he had talked to her throughout the meal, ignoring her silences, supplementing her brief comments by easy discourse on a thousand things, he had found himself entering into her mood. Starry-eyed, dreamy, she sat at his table, in what would, please God, be some day her rightful place. She was his for the asking. He knew that. Yet he could not ask her. But nothing should separate them—neither time nor space. He could not, of course, tell her this, but he felt she must know. For going out from him to her was such a surge of emotion that he felt she must be swept by it into complete understanding.

When after dinner, they went back to the living room, they found that the wind had changed. "The night is wonderful," Giles said, as he looked out of the window, "come, Joan, and see."

The rising moon shone through silver veils of cloud. The waves were tipped with white feathers of foam. The scene was exquisite, enchanting . . . "The storm is over," Giles said, "I can get you to the mainland in time for the nine o'clock train."

Quite suddenly Joan knew that she didn't want to catch the nine o'clock train. She wanted to stay in this house roofed with stars and encompassed by shining waters. But not for worlds would she have voiced her thought, and what she said was, "Farley will be glad."

So presently she had on her fur coat and galoshes and she and Giles set forth in the silver night.

The waves were still high, but there was no wind. They made great speed, so that in a few minutes, the island was just a thin dark line between shining sky and shining sea. Once when the boat sank deep into the trough of the sea, Giles asked, "Are you afraid?"

"Not with you."

"I somethimes think," his voice had a touch of exaltation, "I sometimes think, Joan, that it would be marvelous to go out into the night with the woman one loves. To leave life behind and see together the beauty that is beyond the stars. The mystic wonder of it all, my dear."

She was never to forget that moment. The veiled moon and the silver sea, and Giles, his face uplifted—speaking of the things which belong not to earth and its harsh adventures, but to a life linked with eternity—a spiritual enterprise . . .

For the rest of the way they had few words for each other. Later, as she relived in the train the ecstasy of that voyage, it seemed to her she might have said something to meet his mood. She had sat in silence, inarticulate because of the emotion which gripped her.

Giles had begged that she would let him go with her to Boston. But she had refused. She had known that her strength was not equal to the strain. Very definitely and resolutely he was putting her out of his life. As he had lifted her from the boat, he had held her close for a moment in his arms. "This is our real 'goodby,' Joan," he had said, and for a moment they had clung together.

Not a word of when he would see her! What did it mean? Yet he had said he loved her. She knew that he loved her . . .

When she reached Boston, she found Farley strained and anxious. "My lamb," she said, "why didn't you take me with you?"

"Because," Joan's voice was shaking, "if I had, I should have had to be sensible, and I didn't want to be sensible. I did a mad and impetuous thing, Farley. And I'm glad I did it. And I'd do it over again," she began to weep bitterly. "Oh, Farley, what have I done, that life should work out this way for me?"

"You must wait, my darling. Life hasn't worked out for you yet. There are years ahead. Of happiness. And you mustn't cry. I'll tuck you up in bed, and give you something hot to drink and you'll feel different."

"I shall never feel different, Farley."

But Farley would not listen. She busied herself with drawing Joan's bath, and laying out rosy garments, and giving orders through the telephone for lemons and sugar and boiling water.

And when at last she had everything off her competent mind, and was sitting by the bed, with her young mistress propped up on pillows, the maid said, "It might ease your mind to tell me all about it."

So Joan, tense and torn by doubts, opened her heart to the motherly creature. It was a long story—some of it Farley knew, and some she did not. "It is all so hard to understand," she ended.

"It may be hard for you, but it isn't hard for me," Farley answered with emphasis.

Joan, dabbing her eyes with a wisp of chiffon, demanded, "Why isn't it hard?"

"Because I know the world better than you, my lamb, and from all you've told me, I'll bet my head that Drew Hallam is to blame. If he can't have you, he won't let anyone else. He's a dog in the manger, Miss Joan. And that's all there is to it."

Nancy Hallam, in the shabby pension in Paris, was standing in front of her mirror. She had on a new dress—dull green with touches of gold embroidery, and a velvet turban of the same color wound tight about her copper-colored hair. She looked slim and young and happy as she smiled at her reflection. "Your wedding dress, my dear," she told the girl in the mirror, "and you've spent your last cent for it."

There were to be no guests at the wedding. She and Alan had made up their minds to that. He had been very masterful in the whole matter. "You are not going to escape me this time," he had told her, "and as for that brother of yours, give him what you've got left of your money, and he'll be glad enough to have it."

"But it seems like desertion," she had protested.

"He deserted you. It will be a relief to him, if he loves you, to know you are happy and safe."

"Safe," she had breathed, "I haven't been safe for a thousand years."

"Is that why you are marrying me?"

"One of the reasons."

"And the other?"

"I love you."

He had laughed and kissed her. "I know you do, my dear."

So here was the wedding gown, and she had written to Drew, telling him that all of her little income was his, and would he send her his love and blessing? And she had had no answer.

Well, she was not going to worry. For years she had agonized over Drew, and her life had been sordid and cheap and insecure. Alan would change all that. He had a country house and a town house, and his friends would take her in. Society standards weren't as rigid as they had been in her young girlhood. She would put behind her the memory of those haphazard and hateful days and live sheltered and serene as Alan's wife.

For she really loved him. She knew that without the town house or the country house she would have married him. She had great capacity for affection. She had lavished it on her brother, sacrificing everything to his weakness, and now she would lavish it on a man whose strength would bear her up. It seemed almost too amazing for reality that she could look forward to the future, without fear of old age and poverty and perhaps disgrace.

In an hour the wedding would be over. Her bag was packed, the wonderful fur coat which had been one of Alan's gifts lay over a chair. They were to spend their honeymoon in northern Africa. They would probably meet a lot of people they knew. As Mrs. Alan Vincent she could hold up her head with the best of them.

When she went downstairs her mail was handed to her. There was nothing from Drew, but she found a letter from Rose Carter.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 6

Although a lively and enterprising state of affairs is presaged from the predominant lunar figure, yet there are signs of adverse, afflicting and frustrating situations to be coped with. There is an element of the subtle, mysterious or intriguing to be shrewdly sensed and wisely manipulated if the menace of duplicity, loss through fraud and trickery or other curious measures is to be sidestepped. Sign papers cautiously and beware of strangers and dubious propositions.

Those whose birthday it is are advised to be on guard, during the year, against all strangers and strange or doubtful propositions, as they are threatened with duplicity, fraud and other curious and mysterious channels which may lead to loss, frustration and betrayal. Sign papers carefully and be alert to all secret and subtle entanglements. Employmnet is favored, however.

COMMUNITY CROPS HIT BY WEATHER

Yield of Potatoes Lighter Than Last Year.

The potato crop from the community gardens is turning out lighter than last year, A. B. Cunningham, chairman of the Garden Plots Committee told The Examiner to-day.

"The potatoes that were planted early are showing good returns," he said, "but the later crop is showing the effects of the weeks of dry weather in the middle of the season. These lots were planted by men who took up gardening a little late because they had other work up to late in the Spring on road construction. Their crop is not a failure, but it is not as good a yield as a year ago. On the whole, however, the season's work has been quite satisfactory, and a large quantity of vegetables was collected by the men who certainly did their part to make the gardens a success."

HELEN ROGERS AUXILIARY HOLDS SUPPER MEETING

The October meeting of the Helen Roger Auxiliary, of Knox United Church was held on Monday evening. Supper was served at 6.30 p.m. in the primary room of the church, with a large attendance present. Mrs. Howard Clegg, presided, and following the supper Mrs. Binks lead the community singing. Mrs. E. G. Johnston gave a very interesting paper on the work of United Church Missions in Africa, and told of the progress in mission work there. Mrs. Binks then took charge of a contest of "Bible Lotto" which was most thoroughly enjoyed by all present. Mrs. George Wallace rendered a very delightful solo. Prayer and benediction by the Rev. William MacDonald brought this very successful annual supper and rally to a close.

Beverage Rooms Are Inspected In City

C. H. Curtis of Warkworth, recently apointed inspector of beverage rooms, has completed his first inspection of Peterborough's public dispensaries of beer and wine. He began the rounds of the local hotels early this week.

No comments, favorable or otherwise, were made to the beverage room proprietors by Mr. Curtis on the conditions he found. He asked many questions at each establishment and inspected facilities with a regard for sanitation and conformity to the license requirements.

Inspector Curtis will submit complete reports and, if any of Peterborough's beverage rooms are to be closed or refused new licenses in November, the attitudes of Commissioner Odette will, it is understood, be largely based on the contents of the reports.

REFUNDING LOAN WILL PASS GOAL

Final Check on Subscription of First Four Days Show $131,000,000.

BOOKS OPEN NEXT WEEK.

OTTAWA, Oct. 5 (C.P.).—Judging from the impetus given conversion operations in the past 24 hours, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes declared at noon to-day that the Dominion Government 1934 refunding loan of $250,000,000 would be heavily over-subscribed.

Final check-up of yesterday's figures brought the total subscriptions for the first four days of the loan of $131,000,000 and to-day's subscriptions included the following among the larger amounts:

Prudential Insurance Company of London, England, $250,000; Massey Harris Co., Ltd., Toronto, $100,000; Sovereign Life Insurance Company, Winnipeg, $75,000; Reliance Insurance Company of Canada, Montreal, $75,000; The Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company of Canada Toronto, $50,000; La Societe Des Artisans Francais Canadiens, Montreal, $50,000; Maritime Life Insurance Company, Halifax, $35,000.

It had been tentatively planned to close the books on Saturday, but they will remain open until early next week, probably the middle of the week, since Monday is a holiday.

Mr. Rhodes said he was confident that week-end subscriptions would see the campaign well past its objective.

There had been an astonishing change in the situation during the last 24 hours as the full force of the conversion applications coming in from small towns and country districts rolled up the total, Mr. Rhodes said. This morning one leading bond dealer reported four and one-half times the business as compared with last year. Another reported over two and a half times, both in number of applications and in total.

Refusal To Follow Law Is Strike Cause

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor charged today that major strikes in the United States have been caused by the refusal of employers to follow the plain mandates of law.

"If employers had accepted the right of wages earners to organize and met their representatives at the conference table to negotiate terms and conditions of work, the president of the United States would not have to ask industrial truce," Green said in an address prepared for a luncheon of the Commonwealth club.

FATHER, MOTHER TELL OF SON'S CHILDHOOD LIFE

Provide Pathetic Note After Flaming Love Letters Read to Court.

GIRL SLAYING CASE.

By Leo W. Sheridan
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

WILKES BARRE, Pa., Oct. 5 (AP)—A subdued note, pathetically in contrast with the emotional turmoil of yesterday, was struck to-day in the trial of Robert Allen Edwards, 21-year-old mine surveyor, when the youth's mother and father came to his defence before a Luzerne County Court jury.

Edwards, pale and harassed from his long cross examination and the experience of hearing his love letters to the "other girls" read to the public, furtively wiped his eyes as his mother testified in trembling voice to the early life of "Bobby."

The flaming love letters written by Edwards to Miss Margaret Crain, East Aurora, N.Y., music teacher, were termed by Edwards, Sr., the outpourings of a boy in the throes of "puppy love."

With His Son.

"I shall stand by him," gruffly stated the father.

The young engineer's long cross-examination was completed quickly to-day as the prosecution sought to tear down his story of the death of Fred McKechnie at Harvey's Lake August 31 in a realistic "American tragedy" setting. Edwards is charged with beating her to death as they swam together at night.

Mrs. Edwards, in a dark blue coat and small black hat, spoke uncertainly and held her handkerchief to her mouth to hide the trembling of her lips. She was on the stand less than three minutes.

The father, who yesterday stumbled from the court-room as his son's love letters were read to an avid, tittering crowd, gave his son a reassuring look as he took the stand. He testified less than two minutes, and took his accustomed seat behind Robert.

It was expected the case might go to the jury late to-day.

AMATEUR PLAY WELL RECEIVED

"Mary's Castle in the Air," Presented by Cheerful Workers.

ENACT PARTS WELL.

"Mary's Castle in the Air" is one of the first amateur productions of the season, and judging from its enthusiastic reception last night in St. James' United Church, it was a decided success, of which the Cheerful Workers' Class, who sponsored it, may well be proud.

The play was given in the Sunday School auditorium to a large and truly appreciative audience.

The characters are particularly well chosen, and are very adept at interpreting their roles, whether serious or comic, with an ease and naturalness above the average amateur actor.

Mary Estabrook, the "Air Castle" girl, is splendidly portrayed by Miss Jean Hammond. Playing opposite to her, J. Reeve-Newson, as Jim Ruggles, the young lawyer, does some good acting.

The blind mother is a pathetic but appealing picture as she is cleverly played by Mrs. M. Drysdale.

Any actor introduces a touch of true art, when he makes even an undesirable and rascally character appeal to his audience; and this was admirably well done by A. J. Hyter, as Edward Carlye, the unprincipled advisor of Mary's father.

Mimi seems also to come under the shadow of her father's sins, for her lot, too, seems as if it might be an unhappy one. This vivacious young lady is the spoiled darling of fortune, and was admirably played by Mrs. Reeve-Newson, who, both as the hard-hearted flirt, and later, in her more subdued and unselfish role, was charming and caught the admiration and sympathy of all.

A quaint and somewhat unusual part is that of Daddy Alden, the village philosopher, who also proves susceptible to romance especially since it is with the lovely blind widow. This role is extremely well done by Henry Turner

Most of the comedy was introduced by the Estabrooks' neighbors, who help Mary in carrying out the details of her "Castle." Mrs. Jenkins is the bustling, chattering type, who conceals, nevertheless, a heart of gold. She is made most realistic by Mrs. Henry Turner. Her daughter, Jane, is another flirtatious young lady, whose love affairs go somewhat awry due to her mother's amusing mistake. Miss Alberta Frost depicts Jane Jenkins most acceptably.

Jane's two suitors cause a good deal of hilarity, too, for M. Drysdale does a comedy part to perfection is especially good as Bill Bronson, the chauffeur. His erstwhile rival, Lenny Taft, the grocer boy, a shy rather awkward swain, is well played by Harold May. Last, but not by any means least, is Delia, the faithful colored Mammy, whose delightfully soft Southern drawl is entirely true to life. Droll, pathetic and amusing in the extreme is Mrs. A. Williams' clever portrayal of this difficult role.

The director, Mr. Reeve-Newson, is to be congratulated upon the success of the play, as well as the president, Mrs. W. Atkinson.

The play was introduced by Rev. A. E. Moorhouse, the pastor, who announced the interesting and cleverly put on, between-act entertainment. This was a rollicking Haymakers' and Dairymaids' song by members of the class, half of whom appeared as men and half as dairymaids, in the customary smocks and sunbonnets.

The costuming was lovely throughout and in itself made an attractive picture in the homely setting of the stage.

Mrs. R. B. English, teacher of the class, assisted by Mrs. Swanger, acted as treasurers, while Harold McMahon and W. A. Wood had charge of the curtain and lighting.

FISTIC CARNIVAL STARTS FOR TITLE

Lasky and Hamas to Meet in First of Garden's Elimination Series.

NEW YORK, October 5 (A.P.)—The business of building up a heavyweight championship fight for next summer which will be attractive enough to the public to justify the outlay of cash begins to-night with the opening of the new winter fistic season in Madison Square Garden.

Art Lasky, the big boy from Minneapolis, and Steve Hamas, who is still remembered as the greatest all-around athlete ever produced at Penn State College, cash in the indoor curtain raiser, a 10-round affair. Later in the year two former heavyweight champions, Prime Carnera and Max Schmelling, and Jack Peterson, promising English heavyweight, will be tossed into the lists. When the winter program is finished the Garden management hopes to have discovered a worthy challenger for Max Baer's title.

BLAST INURES OFFICER.

WINDSOR, Ont., Oct. 5.—(C.P.)—Word has been received here that Constable George Brown of the Windsor force is in Bracebridge Memorial Hospital following an accident in a cottage at Terrytown, in Muskoka district, when an oil stove exploded. The officer, who had been on light duty here following a serious operation, left on vacation early this week. He is in a critical condition.

Steam Yacht Capsizes In Heavy Storm

THREE DROWNED BOAT GOES DOWN LAKE MUSKOKA

Steam Launch Waome Capsizes During Heavy Storm.

CAPTAIN IS LOST.

Boat Was One of Smaller Craft to Sail Muskoka Lakes.

BEAUMARIS, Ont., Oct. 6 (CP)—The steam launch Waome of the Muskoka Lake Navigation Company, sank to-day near here with loss of three lives. A heavy storm was said to have capsized the vessel which filled rapidly and went down.

The vessel foundered during a violent electrical storm. A terrific swell struck her broadside and she listed so far her skipper was unable to right her.

The Captain, C. W. Henshaw of Gravenhurst, veteran Muskoka Lake mariner with 30 years experience to his credit, went down with his ship.

Arthur Thompson, mate, and one unidentified passenger also were drowned.

Robert Bonnis, fireman from Gravenhurst, saved himself by swimming ashore and giving the alarm. Alvin Saulter, engineer, of Bracebride; George Harvie, purser, of Gravenhurst; Reginald Leeds, cook, of Bracebridge, and three passengers were rescued. Names of the passengers were not available at once.

The vessel, about 80 feet in length, was plying between Beaumaris and Muskoka wharf. She sank in a channel between Gages and Borntraegers Islands.

The boat was one of the smaller vessels of the Muskoka Navigation used during the spring and fall navigation seasons.

ITALIAN WOMAN STILL HAS HOPES

Says Mrs. Kenny's Expected Twins Will Not Give Her Lead in Millar Contest.

ISSUES SHY HINT.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(CP)—Mrs. Rose Bagnato, 41-year-old Italo-Canadian woman, former leader in the $500,000 decade-long child-bearing race instituted by the late Charles Millar, today refused to yield top place in the baby derby to Mrs. Matthew Kenny who claimed yesterday to have borne 10 children since 1928.

Mrs. Bagnato declared she had investigated Mrs. Kenny's claim to having 10 children in as many years, 10 since Millar, eccentric attorney, died, and found only seven of the French-Canadian mother's children had been registered with the vital statistics department of the Ontario government as required in Millar's rules.

Mrs. Bagnato, wife of a police court interpreter, claims to have eight children who could qualify in the contest. She said even if Mrs. Kenny's claim she would give birth next month to twins should prove correct, the new entrant in the race could not draw ahead.

The reason—she lowered her eyes shyly as she said it—"Wait a few weeks and I'll tell you." If Mrs. Kenny can produce only seven registrations and has twins she will have nine children qualifying, but whether or not Mrs. Bagnato can equal that depends on what she will have to say in "a few weeks."

EX-MAYOR DIES.

BROCKVILLE, Ont., Oct. 6 (C.P.)—John J. Hall, a former Mayor of Brockville, and engaged in business here for many years as a plumbing contractor, died in St. Vincent De Paul Hospital early to-day after a short illness.

Relations Better With France Says Duce, Half Million Italians Roar In Laughter

(By Andrue Berding, A.P. Foreign Staff.)

MILAN, October 6 (A.P.).—Half a million Italians gathered at his feet roared with laughter to-day when Premier Mussolini told them: "The relation abetween Italy and France are notably improved."

The gales of mirth welled tremendously in the vast Cathedral Square into which the listeners had fought to be near their Duce.

Possibly the laughter was spontaneous, but it was possible that it was inspired by a wink of Mussolini's eye as he finished the phrase.

The Premier let the laughter continue some minutes, then he declared.

"Your attitude shows that you are a very intelligent people!"

From the time that he entered his lofty pulpit in the Cathedral Square, Il Duce, dressed in the green and black uniform of a corporal of the Fascist Militia, was cheered until he waved his arms imperiously and began to speak.

MRS. DAVID HUGGINS CELEBRATES HER ONE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY LIVED SOUTH MONAGHAN 70 YEARS

Aged Woman Now Resident of High Street in West End of City.

BORN NEAR GALT.

Nine Children, the Oldest of Whom is Now Seventy-six.

"They say that women and music should never be dated."
—Goldsmith.

But women, like men, are sensitive about their age only up to a certain Point. Later, they become proud of a ripe old age.

Peterborough's centenarian, Mrs. David Huggins, Senior, of High street, was one hundred years old on Thursday, October 4th.

Sitting in the dim twilight of such a long life, with three decades added to the allottment of the Psalmist, she thinks of herself now as only seventy years old, and yet her eldest living son is in his seventy-sixth year, and the child who was her firstborn has green grass growing over his head these many long years.

Now, she does not remember the springtime of her existence. Her thoughts hark back mostly to her early married life and to the husband who died thirty years back.

She was born in Beverley, near Galt, in 1834, three years before Queen Victoria came to the throne, and her eventful life flowed and ebbed during the sixty-four years of the great queen's reign. George the Fourth, Queen Victoria, King Edward ,went their ways while she spent her winters and summers in quiet places, and now the fifth George reigns and she still lives on.

For seventy years, the space of a natural life, she lived in South Monaghan, where her husband farmed and she helped him and raised their nine children, all of whom are still alive. (The first-born died in infancy.)

When she came to the township, possibly as a bride (she does not remember that now, it happened so long ago), in her twenties, no doubt she often came to the market place in Peterborough, that old square that has felt the pulse of the community throbbing through it ever since Adam Scott came for the first time in 1817 and gave the place his name.

Foley Is Committed On False Pretenses

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 6 (C.P.)—Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw today committeed Vincent T. Foley, London attorney, for trial on three charges of false pretences and converting to his own use bonds valued at $6,700.

Foley was charged with converting last April Dominion of Canada bonds, one valued at $5,000 and the other at $1,500 and of obtaining through false pretences $2,000 belonging to John and Catherine Bruce of Delaware Township.

London now has 250,000 women clerks.

Plucky Babe

MEMPHIS, Tenn., October 6 (A.P.).—After undergoing a major operation without taking an anaesthetic four-weeks-old David Tipps gave "fighting roll" to a hospital here to-day.

Hospital attendants said the baby nursed away on a "pacifier" and whimpered but little as surgeons yesterday sought to correct an intestinal disorder.

SUSPECT'S TRAIL LEADS OFFICERS INTO HAMILTON

Taxi Man, Two Hotel Workers Identify Pictures of Vermilyea.

DROVE FROM TORONTO.

Boarded Train for Chicago—Blamed for Slaying Dr. Faulkner's Mother-in-law.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(CP)—Search for the slayer of 79-year-old Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, mother-in-law of Dr J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, today found police in the Province concentrated in the Hamilton area while along the border Canadian and United States authorities kept close watch for Harold Vermilyea, the woman's 45-year-old son.

Harold Vermilyea, resident of Ontario, Cal., is charged with the hatchet-slaying of his mother, found with her head crushed and her right hand almost severed from the wrist beside the side door of the Faulkner home in Belleville. She was found by Mrs. Faulkner, her daughter, Thursday night, dying Friday morning.

PRAIRIES ARE ENJOYING FINE AUTUMN WEATHER

WINNIPEG, Oct. 6 (CP)—Lowering clouds of the past week had cleared away to-day and with just enough snap in the air to remand citizens it was Autumn, prospects for the holiday week-end in Western Canada were excellent.

The sun shone brightly over Prairie Provinces. Slowly rising temperatures were reported from Alberta and it was anticipated football fans would attend opening games coatless.

The hunting season in Saskatchewan and Manitoba—with shooting open for prairie chicken and small game—was ushered in under clear skies and a big following of this pastime prepared for an active week-end.

TRIO LOST BOYS DRIFT ASHORE ALL ARE DEAD

Tiny Bodies Found Huddled in Bottom of Frail, Oarless Duck Boat.

AT LONG BEACH.

Lads, Victims of Exposure, Had Drifted 12 Miles Since Wednesday.

CENTRAL BEACH, Ont., Oct. 6 (C.P.)—Search for three small boys missing three days aboard a tiny, oarless duck boat out of this port ended to-day when their bodies were found huddled in the bottom of the frail craft which drifted ashore at Long Beach, 12 miles from here.

The boys, Walter McFarland, 10; his six year old brother, Lorraine, and William Matthews, 10, were discovered by Clifford Medlicott, Long Beach resident. The boys appeared to have lain down in the bottom of the boat, either through exhaustion or in an effort to keep it from capsising, and to have died of exposure.

Discovery of the bodies came after a two day search by land, water and air had been abandoned as futile.

Lose Control Fishing.

The boys were seen alive for the last time as they lost control of the boat in which they had gone fishing and drifted out into the open lake, rendered choppy by a keen breeze. They vanished Wednesday afternoon and United States' coastguardsmen searched for them throughout the night.

Thursday brought renewal of the search by men in eight small boats, coastguardsmen in a cutter and Jack Sanderson in an airplane from Port Erie. Sanderson stayed aloft several hours and saw no signs of the lads or their boat. The men in the boats returned after a few hours, tired with heavy rowing and unsuccessful in their search.

The hunt was abandoned yesterday and waterfront authorities prepared to wait for the bodies to rise, believing the little boat had been overturned by the waves.

ALGERIAN WINE MAKERS PLAN ECONOMIC REVOLT

ALGIERS, Oct. 5 (AP)—Algerian wine producers planned an economic revolt against France to-day because of the Mother Country's failure to relieve the Colonial depression.

In a plan to boycott France, vineyardists and farmers proposed secession of municipalities from French control by severance of relations with the French administration, and French industrial and commercial houses.

The vine growers planned to protest suspension of decrees which formerly assured them a market in France for a portion of the wine crop.

Sympathetic municipal officials of Eaffroum, important centre of the rich agricultural colony, met with the vine growers.

MENACE OF FASCISM.

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (C.P.).—E. A. Beder, chairman of the First Canadian Congress Against War and Fascism, to-day told 200 members of that body that "in every capitalist country the menacing rise of Fascism threatens to destroy the last remnants of democratic rights as a prelude to unloosing the horrors of a new world catastrophe."

DETROIT LEADS CARDINALS 3-2 IN THIRD GAME

Cochrane, Gehringer and Goslin Score in Four-hit Batting Splurge.

CARLETON CHASED.

Medwick Counters St. Louis' Lone Run on Collins' Double in Second.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, St. Louis, Oct. 6 (A.P.)—Faced with the necessity of making another deperate come-back to avoid being trampled by the galloping Cardnals, the Detroit Tigers pinned their faith in the 24-year-old Kansas "submarine ball" pitcher, Eden Auker, to-day in the fourth game of the World Series.

Auker, one of the greatest all-around athletes and football stars ever developed in the Big Six conference at Kansas State, was making his World Series debut—a circumstance so far productive of extraordinary results by the pitching heroes of both clubs.

Opposed by Carleton

Auker's opponent was James O. (Tex) Carleton, tall right-hander and product of the Texas League, who came up to the big show in company with Dizzy Dean.

The Tigers, dropping Hank Greenberg to sixth place in the batting order and moving Goose Gos'in to the cleanup spot, made no further changes. Shortstop Billy Rogell, who has been battered up and playing erratic ball, reported in shape to stay on the job again.

Another big crowd, estimated at 36,000, turned out for the game, but there were again some vacant rows of seats in the extreme corners of the pavilions.

The Batting Order:

Detroit (A)	St. Louis (N)
White, cf	Martin, 3b
Cochrane, c	Rothrock, rf
Gehringer, 2b	Frisch, 2b
Goslin, lf	Medwick, lf
Rogell, ss	Collins, 1b
Greenberg, 1b	Delancey, c
Owen, 3b	Orsatti, cf
Fox, rf	Durocher, ss
Auker, p	Carleton, p

FIRST INNING

Tigers.—White lifted a short fly to Orsatti. Cochrane bounced to Frisch near second base and was tossed out. Gehringer singled sharply over second. Goslin lined to Rothrock.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Cardinals. — Martin walked, the fourth ball being inside. Rothrock grounded to Auker, and the Tigers engineered a double play, Auker to Rogell to Greenberg. Frisch lined to Goslin.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

SECOND INNING

Tigers.—Rogell fanned on a called third strike. Greenberg got a single on a hard drive that Durocher barely knocked down. Owen popped to Frisch, the bat flew out of his hand as he connected. Fox popped to Durocher in back of second base.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Cardinals. — Medwick singled over Rogell's head, connecting with a slow ball. Collins hit against the right field fence for a double, sending Medwick to third. Delancey walked, the fourth ball being low and the bases were filled. Orsatti flied to Goslin and Medwick scored after the catch. Delancey and Collins held their bases. Durocher flied to Fox whose throw kept the runners from advancing.

Carleton grounded to Rogell and Delancey was forced at second, Rogell to Gehringer.

One run, two hits, no errors; two left.

THIRD INNING

Tigers.—Auker flied deep to Orsatti in right centre. Orsatti tumbled against the pavilion wall after making a leaping catch but apparently was unhurt. White fanned, swinging hard.

Killed by Hatchet

MRS. NATHANIEL VERMILYEA

Her head battered in, her wrist severed, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, prominent citizen of Belleville, Ont., died from wounds inflicted by an assailant who attacked her with a hatchet near the home of Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, her son-in-law. Dr. Faulkner is Minister of Health in the Ontario cabinet. Police allege attack was made by Mrs. Vermilyea's son, Harold, of Ontario, Calif. They have not been able to locate him as yet.

ONLY 15 SHARES IN CENTRAL BANK PER APPLICANT

Over 13,000 Write to Ottawa for a Total of 230,000 Shares.

ALLOTMENT COMPLETE.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6 (CP)—There were so many subscribers to the recent issue of 100,000 shares in the Bank of Canada that no more than 15 will be available to any one applicant, according to a statement issued to-day by Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes. The work of allotment of shares has not been entirely completed, but it was evident that no higher ratio could be achieved.

The Bank of Canada Act provided that the maximum shares available to any one subscriber would be 50, and a large number of the applications were for the maximum number. The shares were sold at par value of $50.

There were over 13,000 applications for a total of about 230,000 shares, leaving a problem in scaling down so that the capital stock would be as widely distributed as possible. The ratio of distribution will be as follows: Subscriptions for amounts up to and including seven shares will completely be filled; from eight to ten will receive seven shares; 11 and 12 will receive eight; 13 and 14 will receive nine; 15 to 25-inclusive will receive 10; 26 to 30 inclusive will receive 11; 31 to 35 inclusive will receive 12; 36 to 40 inclusive will receive 13; 41 to 45 inclusive will receive 14 and 46 to 50 will receive 15.

Announcement of the allocation was made at this time, the Minister said, in order that those subscribing would have some idea what their obligation would be, and in the hope that applicants would wish to invest in the bonds of the current $350,000,000 Refunding Loan if they knew the extent to which their subscriptions in Central Bank stock were to be scaled down.

FOUND STABBED IN APARTMENT SPANISH DANCER

Girl Picked Up Injured in Field After Wrecking Car in Flight.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENCE.

Used Knife When Victim Was Choking Her in Drunken Rage.

MONTREAL, October 6 (C. P.). — Fatal stabbing of William Owen, broker's assistant, early to-day in the apartment of a Spanish-American Night Club dancer was claimed by police to have been quickly solved by a statement from Dolores Lopez, or Dolores Morel, flame-haired girl of 25.

Dolores, who came to Montreal after dancing in several United States cities and is believed to be a native of either Mexico or Cuba, sat in the office of Inspector Armand Brodeur, according to a statement the police official made public ,and declared he had struck Owen in self-defence as he tried to choke her in her apartment.

Owen, handsome 36-year-old customers' man in a brokerage firm, according to his intimates had once been clerk in the secretariat of David Lloyd-George, but had never been a secretary of the former British Prime Minister as some of his friends believed. He came to Canada with the intention of obtaining a position in the banking house of Morgan in New York, but had been unable to get to the United States under the immigration quota.

Fled in Panic.

Dolores Lopez , who sometimes called herself Dolores Morel or Lillian Morel, was injured when she fled from the apartment in a panic and ran Owen's car into a tree at Longueuil while trying to reach her aunt there. After she allegedly made the statement police took her to hospital. They did not continue their questioning far enough to discover definitely where she came from, but said there was no doubt she was either Cuban or Mexican.

She was being held as a material witness for the coroner's inquest on Tuesday.

The girl, bruised and unconscious, was picked up in a field at Longueuil after police had found Owen's car wrecked against a tree with a blood-stained knife on the seat.

Taken to police headquarters she sat in a semi-dazed condition, Brodeau said, and told a story of a struggle with Owen.

Three men had been in her apartment, the alleged statement

Veteran Flier, Wife Injured In Car Crash

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(A. P.)—William Alexander, 40, veteran aviator, was critically injured and his wife, Helen, also a pilot was slightly hurt early today when their automobile struck an elevated railroad pillar.

Alexander, who was wounded while serving with the British Air Force during the Great War, flew with Lewis A. Yancey to Bermuda in 1930 and three years later led an aerial relief expedition to British Columbia after Jimmy Mattern, round-the-world flyer, crashed up in Siberia. Last summer Alexander obtained a plane for a globe-girdling flight.

He overturned a plane on the beach at Coney Island in 1927, killing two children, but was exonerated in homicide court.

Edwards Found Guilty Slaying Sweetheart

ELECTRIC CHAIR RECOMMENDED FOR 'LADY'S MAN'

Jury Convicts Robert Edwards of "American Tragedy" Slaying of Sweetheart.

APPEAL TO BE ENTERED.

Young Coal Surveyor Slumps in Chair as Verdict is Announced.

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP) —Robert Allen Edwards, the youthful hard-coal surveyor, who called himself a "lady's man," was convicted to-day of the "American tragedy" slaying of Freda McKechnie, unemployed telephone operator. The jury recommended death in the electric chair.

Edwards sat almost alone as he heard the verdict. Only Frank McGuigan, his counsel, sat beside him.

Edwards listened to the verdict with bowed head. He slumped forward in his chair as the poll of the jury was made.

There were only a few persons in the court room when the jury filed in; news writers, less than a dozen spectators and State police.

Neither Frank McGuigan, Sr., chief of Edwards' counsel, nor his assistant, John Phillips, were with the youthful mine surveyor at any time during the morning.

Proper Verdict

District Attorney Thomas M. Lewis said:

"It was a very proper verdict. It has been my hardest task, but justice must prevail as it has in this case." His assistant, J. Harold Flannery, agreed it was a proper verdict.

Edwards trembled as he was led handcuffed back to his cell in the county jail. John Phillips of defense counsel announced before the case went to the jury at 8.54 last night, that the case will be appealed.

The jury retired for three hours' sleep at 2.35 o'clock this morning, but came back to its deliberations at six o'clock.

Smile Changes to Frown

Edwards was up at daybreak, ate a hearty breakfast and smiled as he was told to prepare for the verdict. But he was scowling and pale as he was led into the court room.

He frowned as flash-lights boomed about him. Charles Landis, forman of the jury, declined to say how many ballots were taken by the jury, but he explained that the jury had reached its verdict before it retired this morning.

Judge Valentine thanked the jury, saying:

"I commend you for your verdict. It meets with my approval. You have performed your duty."

The Murder.

Edwards was accused of bludgeoning to death Miss McKechnie as they swam together in Harvey's Lake the night of July 31.

Miss McKechnie was to have become a mother, and the State charged that Edwards killed her so he could be free to marry Margaret L. Crain, East Aurora, N.Y., teacher whom he had met at Mansfield Teachers' College several years ago.

Through the mist and rain, the same lights in the jury room, which correspondnets watched through the night, burned again. But at 7.15 the jurors were seen leaning from the windows and reports came that a verdict had been reached.

A few minutes later the jury went out from breakfast and Judge William A. Valentine telephoned from his home that he would go at once to the court house.

MARMORA CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Caldwell, rector for the past eight years.

FORT ERIE MAN OF ROYAL BLOOD

Dan McAlpine Claims Ancestors Trace Back to King Kenneth of Scotland.

REIGNED 844 TO 860 A.D.

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 6 (C.P.).—Leaning back in the swivel chair of the local telegraph office, where for three generations he has tapped out messages, a brown-eyed, grey-haired man related his claim that if history had not played a cruel trick on his family centuries ago he would be enthroned as king of Scotland rather than plain Daniel McAlpine, key-trapper.

He was not bitter over it all. "I have made a good many friends in my chosen profession and have lived a happy existence. But at the same time I am not ashamed to stand up for what I know is true—direct descendant of the first King of Scotland," he declared.

Proudly Mr. McAlpine boasted, "I can trace my genealogy back to King Kenneth, who reigned between 844 and 860 A.D. He was the first real king of Scotia and the chief of the Scottish tribe to whom the Picts became a tributary nation."

Mr. McAlpine has in his possession photostat copies of recommendations given his grandfather, Malcolm McAlpine, when he left Argyle in 1818 to settle in Aughrim in Western Ontario, where the family has been rooted for 116 years. The recommendations were signed by Colin Campbell, pastor, and Elder McBride, of the church from which his grandfather came.

The matter of genealogy is a long story. A relative of Mr. McAlpine, the late Rev. R. J. McAlpine, formerly a prominent Buffalo minister, had the matter traced back to the day of King Kenneth the First.

There were 16 kings between Kenneth the First and the infant Kenneth, last king of the line. In 1040 Malcolm III. fell heir to the throne. He reigned till 1057, when he was succeeded by the infant, who held the throne only a year.

With the strong hand of the ruler removed, the unruly chiefs set aside the infant's claim and the throne was taken by Malcolm Canmore. Descendant of the McAlpine line proceeded through the deposed child.

FIND HUGE STILL NORTH OF TWEED

Mounties Seize Mash, But Operator Escapes Into Nearby Bush.

WARRANT ISSUED.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Oct. 6. — A large still was discovered by a detachment of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police near the home of James Chappelle, north of the village of Tweed on Wednesday. It was operating at full capacity at the time, and it is understood that the authorities seized several barrels of mash. The alleged owner of the equipment, however, is said to have beat a hasty retreat. It is understood that a warrant has been issued for Chappelle's arrest. He served a term early this year for a breach of the Liquor Control Act.

Jack Firn, 22, of Marlbank, was fined $10 and costs for failing to remain at the scene of an accident, and further failure to return to the scene of an accident near Belleville.

An alleged automobile thief was charged in Belleville police court before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. Joseph Kelleher, a transient, faced a charge of the theft of George Hawkins' motor car. Kelleher was asked to plead but was remanded until Friday.

Weddings

CLIFTON—LAWRENCE.

HASTINGS, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence)—Woodbine Avenue United Church, Toronto, prettily decorated with autumn flowers, was the scene of the marriage on Saturday afternoon at four o'clock of Dorothy Alma, third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Lawrence, to Alexander Clifton, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Wilson, Pleasantview, Hastings. Rev. M. Stanley Elliott officiated, assisted by Rev. Stanley Annis. During the signing of the register, Mr. Stephen King sang "Because." Miss Aileen Belham played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white satin gown on princess lines, trimmed with lace. Her veil of tulle embroidered with silk, was caught in a cap effect with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses and forget-me-nots. She was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Ralphe Drage, who wore black chiffon velvet trimmed with metallic cloth, black hat and shoes. Wm. Empringham assisted the groom and the ushers were Arnold Lawrence, twin brother of the bride, and Ralphe Drage.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 143 Gledhill Avenue. Mrs. Lawrence received, wearing a black georgette dress, black hat and wearing a corsage of sweet peas and roses. Mrs. Wilson, mother of the groom, was gowned in flowered chiffon and black hat. She also wore a corsage of roses and sweet peas. For travelling, the bride chose a blue tweed swagger suit with gray accessories. After a trip through Western Ontario and New York State, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will reside on Westlake Avenue.

The young couple received many beautiful gifts, one being a handsome cheque from Bowes Creamery Co., which firm the groom is connected with.

BLOODY REVOLT TAKES 93 LIVES ACROSS SPAIN

Extremists Continue Armed Opposition to Lerroux Cabinet.

SHOOTING CONTINUES.

Martial Law Reigns in Asturias—1,000 Arrested in 24 Hours.

BY REX SMITH
Associated Press Foreign Staff

MADRID, Oct. 6. —(AP)— Extremists revolt flared anew in the republic today and more blood flowed in the fight against Premier Alejandro Lerroux's cabinet soon after a government communique said tranquility prevailed.

Known dead had reached 93 with more than 300 wounded. Five extremists were killed and several wounded in Oviedo, in the first trouble in the provincial capital, and in Madrid three were killed including a guard in an interchange of shots.

Reports from Trubia said workers in arms factory there had armed themselves from the company storeroom, seized the plant, and successfully withstood the assault of troops.

Girl Is Victim

One of those killed was a young girl and two others in high social circles.

The new Madrid outbreak was between a group of workers and guards in front of a hotel.

Sporadic shooting was resumed in the mining region and resulted in a number of casualties.

More than 1,000 were arrested in the first 24 hours of the general strike call, the revolutionary gesture of hatred for Premier Lerroux's new government.

Minister of the Interior Vaquero issued a communique which said tranquility prevailed throughout the nation. In nearly all areas save Asturias, where martial law was maintained as a precautionary measures against a further bloody outbreak, all troops except skeleton patrols were withdrawn for rest after 30 hours' continuous duty.

Many Factories Reopen

Virtually all workers except those engaged in transportation were reported back at their posts. Many factories reopened. Bread, which was unavailable or selling at prohibitive prices yesterday, again was fairly plentiful. Vaquero said the government is prepared now against emergencies.

"In the event the unexpected happens again," he said, "we will use the iron fist."

In a broadcast, he ordered all remaining on strike to return to work. Employers refusing to dismiss workers who remain out were threatened with heavy fines.

FIND ANCHORAGE AT MOVING ISLE

Father Hubbard Tells of Lake With Steam Rising From Bulge in Centre.

FELT TWO SHOCKS.

VICTORIA, Oct. 6 (C.P.).—Discovery of a safe anchorage on the "disappearing" island of Bogoslof in the Bering Sea and his belief the natives of King Island are the original "cliff dwellers" of North America were reported to-day by Rev. Father Bernard Hubbard, S.J., "the glacier priest," who arrived here after a summer spent amid the volcanoes and glaciers and frozen peaks of Alaska.

"It was the most successful expedition I have ever undertaken," said Father Hubbard, who, with his party reached Victoria aboard their chartered vessel, the Amelie, and on Sunday will proceed to Seattle, where the expedition will disband.

"One of our most valuable contributions to shipping was our discovery of a safe anchorage on the disappearing Island of Bogoslof, Father Hubbard said. "We anchored there for a day. It was a peculiar lake, with a bulge in the middle, out of which steam was pouring this year. The island is always moving, being volcanic and I would not be surprised if there was another eruption there shortly. The day we were there we felt two distinct earthquake shocks. The island is about a quarter of a mile wide and two miles long, but it is always unstable."

SHINGLES, STOCK POULTRY MAY BE UNDER NEW ACT

Marketing Board Considers Ways of Regulating Canadian Output.

DEAL WITH BRITAIN.

OTTAWA, Oct. 6 (CP).—Shingles, livestock and poultry are among the commodities which may come next under the regulating influence of the Natural Products Marketing Act. Since the appointment of the Dominion Marketing Board, producers and dealers in natural products have been coming before it in a steady succession.

The board, composed of experts from various departments of the Government, headed by Dr. G. S. H. Barton, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, is now holding almost daily meetings reviewing the various marketing schemes now before it, and hearing the representatives of various groups of producers seeking improved marketing methods for their products.

Shingles may be the first non-agricultural product to come under a marketing scheme. Representatives of British Columbia shingle manufacturers have been in Ottawa discussing conditions in the industry with Minister of Trade and Commerce H. H. Stevens, testing

RECORD ENTRY HORSE CLASSES AT WARKWORTH

Percy Agricultural Society Holds Most Successful Fair.

THREE GOOD RACES.

Junior Farmer Sections Are Highly Complimented.

WARKWORTH, Oct. 6.—A record entry list of horses was the notable feature of Warkworth's eighty-fourth annual fair here yesterday. This department in itself, including heavy draft, roadster and carriage classes, was a show within a show.

W. J. Maher of Cobourg, one of the judges, told The Examiner he had never seen so many horses competing at Warkworth, and Mark Duff of Myrtle, nationally known breeders of Clydes, who handed out the ribbons in the heavy classes, didn't finish his work until the dusk was settling down at six o'clock, when the race track was deserted and only a few of the day's crowd lingered along the midway.

J. L. Phillips, secretary of the Fair Board, also mentioned the large entry list this year, emphasizing the remarkable showing of horses, which was supplemented by the Boys' Foal Club, the big exhibit of sheep and swine, an average display of cattle, and more than the usual number of entries in ladies' work.

Pleasant weather contributed its helpful atmosphere, the attendance was almost on par with the best figures of recent years, and the only squalls were heard in the baby show.

Junior Farm Sections

Walter Smith of Brighton, county representative of the Department of Agriculture, was generally complimented on the success of the Foal Club, and the boys' Holstein Club, two junior district projects which accomplished their year's objectives.

Fourteen foals were shown by the boys who formed that club, and the judging of this class by Mark Duff attracted a big crowd to the show ring. The winners of the eight prizes were as follows:

1—Hayden McCleary, Dartford; 2—Ernest Skinle, Warkworth; 3—Raymond Patterson, Meyersburg; 4—Don Goodfellow, Codrington; 5—Dougias Goodfellow, Codrington; 6—Howard Evans, Norham; 7—Chas. Sheppard, Codrington; 8—Wm. McKenzie, Warkworth.

Calf Club Winners

Ten boys comprised the Holstein Calf Club. Prizes were awarded for the condition of the calves and also for showmanship. In the fol-

CAMPBELLFORD TOURIST CAMP WELL UNDER WAY

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The new tourist camp opposite the Fair Grounds is well under way. The work is in charge of Mr. James Blue, who with his assistants, Frank Osborne and Charles Holmes, have already completed two neat little buildings of the Florida bungalow type, which with what is called a Spanish style tiled roof, present a very pleasing sight along the bank of the Trent River. These buildings will be electrically equipped throughout, and with a six-acre playground for the children, and suitable shrubs and trees spread over a 700-foot water front, promises to be one of the beauty spots along the Trent Canal.

Great Britain's imports of American machinery continue to grow.

Electric irons are being sold on instalments to Greece.

SUSPECT'S TRAIL LEADS OFFICERS INTO HAMILTON

David Danziger's story to police resulted in the concentration in the Hamilton area. The taxi-driver said he picked up a man at a Toronto hotel at 1.30 o'clock Friday morning and drove him to Port Credit where the fare decided to continue to Hamilton. Arguments over the cost of the trip marked the journey, the taxi-driver said.

On leaving Toronto the passenger, positively identified by the driver as answering descriptions of Vermilyea, thought the $3 fare to Port Credit too high. On reaching Port Credit he did not want to have his luggage moved from the taxi in fear an additional charge was made.

Dispute over the $10 cost for the Hamilton trip finally ended in Danziger making the ride for $8.00, although his passenger wanted to pay only $7.50. The taxi-driver said he left the man at a Hamilton hotel. To police he maintained the man was recognized by him through the pictures he had seen in newspapers.

Drove Man to Belleville.

Journeys to Belleville and Toronto were made with the same passenger by John Bannis, taxi-driver. Bannis said he took this man to Belleville on Tuesday and Thursday. He gave the name of Carter, Bannis informed authorities.

In Belleville police expressed the belief Vermilyea had succeeded in entering the United States at Detroit and immigration officials on that side of the border have been supplied with a complete description of the 45-year-old man, who is about five foot eight, fairly heavy set, and wearing a grey coat, a cap and white-rimmed glasses. It was believed he might be driving a car with a California license.

Officials of the hotel in Toronto said a man answering Vermilyea's description came here on Thursday at a late hour, anxiously ordered a paper, and after reading it in his room, dashed down within 10 minuter, after which Danziger was said to have taken him to Hamilton.

Using Assumed Name.

HAMILTON, Oct. 6.— (C.P.) — Travelling under an assumed name, a man believed by police to be Harold Vermilyea, wanted for the murder of Mrs. Vermilyea, arrived in Hamilton early yesterday morning and registered at a local hotel. He later checked out, boarded the 9.36 a.m. C.N.R. train for Chicago and has not been seen since.

Vermilyea, or a man resembling him very much, arrived in a taxi at the new Commercial hotel, and took a room at 3 a.m. on Friday. He instructed the night clerk to call him at eight o'clock, and this was alone. When he checked out, he wandered to the street and bought the clerk a basket of grapes, presenting them to him with his thanks. He then took a taxi to the C.N.R. station and boarded the 9.35 which goes from Hamilton to the border and thence to Chicago.

The man's movements were traced by Detective Albert Speakman yesterday in company with officers from Toronto. Pictures of the wanted man were shown to two of the hotel employees, who were positive in their identification.

Successful Tourney Is Held At Stirling

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mixed doubles tournament at Stirling, Thursday brought out eight entries from Campbellford, five from Kingston, four from Madoc, four from Stirling, two from Belleville and one from Norwood and with perfect weather, some keen contests were witnessed—the locals again made a good showing. Mr. and Mrs. Percy Locke winning one game, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Wiggins having three games to their credit. Mr. Wiggins bringing home a handsome bowling bag and Mrs. Wiggins a bed set comprising linen sheets and pillow case. Kingston tournament Monday, winds up season.

"Good news, Lou! Baby's as good-natured as a lamb. I was just telephoning you that I gave her Castoria last night. It was just what she needed."

"Isn't it fine, Betty, that there is a children's laxative as safe and gentle as Castoria? It's simply wonderful for flatulence—and you know how uncomfortable THAT is! Castoria hasn't any of the harmful drugs in it that are in most grown-up laxatives. And children love it — it's GOOD!"

Few Minutes Eases Neuritis Pains Now!

DISCOVERY BRINGING QUICK RELIEF FROM PAIN TO MILLIONS

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

THE ORIGIN OF HUMAN LIFE

(By Dean O'Sullivan)

And God said: "Let us make man to Our image and likeness, and let him have dominion over the fishes of the sea and the fowls of the air, and the beasts and the whole earth and every creeping thing that moveth upon the earth. And God created man to His own image; to the image of God He created him. The Lord God formed man of the slime of the earth, and breathed into his face the breath of life, and man became a living soul." These words of the Book of Genesis tell of the creation of the first man. The statement that the body of man was formed from the slime of the earth means that all the elements that are in the body of man, which was, no doubt, created by God in an instant, are to be found in the earth. The body of the first woman, who was to be the spouse of Adam, was taken from his side while he slept, a figure of the Spouse of Christ, His Church, coming forth from His side, in the form of the purifying water and the redeeming blood, while He slept the sleep of death upon the Cross. While the body of man came from the earth, his soul came directly from God. We, the children of Adam have, like the common parent of us all, received our souls directly from God, but our bodies from our parents, who are thus made co-operators with God in the work of Creation. By separate creative acts God calls our souls into being and infuses them into our bodies as soon as the latter are sufficiently developed to be a fitting habitation for the former. This substantial union of the soul and the body constitutes the human being, the individual or person. This, in brief, is the Christian teaching in regard to the origin of human life, as apposed to the errors of the materialists, the pantheists and the theosophists.

The materialists hold that not only the body but also the soul of man is derived from his parents, as is the case with animals. The falsity of this ignoble teaching is clear from the fact that the animal soul is not a distinct spiritual entity that demands a creative act. It has no aspirations that rise above the things of sense. It is wholly immersed in the body and perishes with it.

The doctrine of pantheism is that all life is God, and that human souls are emanations of the divine nature. "Glorious fragments of a Mind Eternal
With rubbish mixed and glittering in the dust."

If this were true, God, Who is a pure spirit, could be divided and would be liable to sin as we know human souls to be.

Modern theosophists have simply revived the old pagan belief in the transmigration of souls, that is that our souls passed through a previous existence in the bodies of others. I am sure that none of my readers are conscious of any experience prior to their coming into this world.

Apropos of these false notions I might answer a couple of objections that have been put to me. The first difficulty was propounced by a theosophist—and, by the way, this sect is becoming quite numerous. It was this: If our souls have had no prenatal experience, how do you account for the seven-year-old musical prodigy? In reply I might state that our souls are not equally endowed by God. To some He gives five talents, and to others two. There is as much variety, and even more, among the souls created by God as there is in the countenances of the multitude. Furthermore, the child may have lived in a musical atmosphere from the first moment of its existence and may have inherited from its parents a musically attuned physical mechanism. This latter condition is not, however, essential to the production of the phenomenon.

The other question was: If our souls come directly from God, how is it that there are children who have been idiots from birth? The answer to this question hinges on the fact that in this life the operations of the soul are dependent upon the condition of the body which it inhabits, especially the condition of the brain and nerves. Idiocy—and the same is true of all mental ailments—is not a disease of the soul, but of the organs by which the soul operates. If these are defective the soul cannot properly exercise its functions. The idiot son of an idiot father received just as perfect a soul as did the normal child.

The rational soul that every man receives is the source of all his activities, both physical and mental. It is, as Thomas of Acquin teaches, not located in any particular part of the body, but in the whole body and in every one of its parts. Some one may say: If my soul, as regards its essence, is whole and entire in my hand or in my foot, would I lose it by the amputation of one of these members? A familiar illustration will answer this objection. A light placed in a room illumines the whole room. If a portion be shut off by a screen or folding doors, the same amount of light is given out, but that portion ceases to be illumined. In the same way the amputated member ceases to be animated by the soul.

The soul is in the body very much as God is in His world. We are taught that God is everywhere, but is said principally to be in heaven, where He manifests His glory to the blessed. So is the soul everywhere in the body as the principle of its vegetative and animal life, but it may be said principally to be in the brain where it manifests its glory, its highest powers. These will be considered in my next paper.

John 15: 4—"Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; so neither can ye, except ye abide in me."

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

WHAT is more noble than forgiveness? Did we but heed the teaching of the Master in this respect, how many would find living a blessing, instead of days when sorrow and suffering leave their imprint. We are not sufficiently Christ-like to find it always easy to forgive, and so we reap the rewards of hatred, of holding grudges in our health and circumstances; but the greater the effort to rise above self and to let the soul speak and to feel within the working out of the Divine attribute, the more it records in the heavenly world as heroism and love.

How many say with their lips they forgive and at the time do not realize that it is but a surface forgiveness! How often we hear these words: "I can forgive but I can never forget!" Have you ever asked yourself, how deep can be your forgiveness, if you permit your thought, after you have promised that forgiveness, to dwell upon the wrong which you have promised to forgive?

Forgiveness, to be perfect, to be God-like, must hold no element which would not be found in the forgiveness of God. This we can attain, if we realize the Divine Presence, if we trust implicity in those words taught to us as little children: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those that trespass against us."

Man's duty to his brother man is to cast out hatred, the thought of self-justification, and in its place, let love and forgiveness reign, for are we not all children of God, members one of another?—Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

A BIBLE READING ON THE BELIEVER'S RICHES.

By REV. H. P. BROWETT.

IN the fifth chapter of St. John's Gospel, verse twenty-four, there is a promise addressed to "He that heareth and believeth." The man or woman who dares to appropriate this promise for himself is thereafter designated a "believer." And to such a one there are many more comforting promises that will become just as real. We have one such promise in Hebrews, chapter twelve, verse eighteen, and also twenty-two, twenty-three and twenty-four.

The "Ye" of this text will cover the same person as designated "H" in the previous text.

The first admonition to "He" or "Ye" is to walk holy before God. This is given in the fourteenth verse of chapter twelve of Hebrews.

When conditions about us so militate against this "walk" as that bitterness tends to take root in one's soul (see Heb. 12, verse 15) then we have a sure refuge into which to flee.

Our Blessed Assurance.
(Heb. 12, v. 18.)

The idea behind the words is that of a danger warning and the resultant fears. The Hebrews who gathered about Mount Sinai had to be careful that they did not touch the Mount. They had to be careful of the little ones who wandered near it, the penalty for which was swift judgment.

About that Mount hung all the portents of Divine wrath against sin—blackness, darkness, tempest.

The people were called up to it, to see it, and the sight filled them with terror. See verse twenty-one.

The assurance to the believer is that "we are not come" to such a mountain of terror such as the Hebrews were told to approach, and yet to stand at a distance—we are admonished to enter boldly. See Heb. 4, verse 16. And also chapter 10, verse 19.

Where the Mount of God spelt death to them it spells life to the believer.

If they stayed back and touched not—they lived. If we stayed back and entered not—we die. See John 3, verse 36.

If they accidentally touched—they died. If we purposely embrace it—we live. See Heb. 2, verse 3.

It was to them terrifying, it is to us attractive. In all of this there lies the difference between law and grace.

Our Worship.
(Heb. 12, v. 22.)

This is represented by Mount Sion—not Sinai. It was the place where the people met with God in worship—not in judgment.

Two things are indicated in Mount Son: One is remission of sins through the shedding of blood, for there was the altar for the burnt offerings. The other is, in our day of grace, the renewing of conscience through the inward writing of the law. See Heb. 8, verse 10.)

The reason for this full rounded provision of grace is that we can be made fit for our eternal home.

Our Eternal Home.
(Heb. 12, v. 22.)

This is represented by the "Heavenly Jerusalem"—the eternal home of the believer. It is the place that Jesus is preparing. See John 14, verse 2.

Jesus said (John 17, verse 24): "Father, I will that they also whom Thou hast given Me be with Me where I am; that they may behold My glory."

Our Eternal Fellowship.
(Heb. 12, v. 23 and v. 24.)

The end of the twenty-second verse speaks of the "innumerable company of angels." The believers, the trophies of His grace, will be eternally exhibited as the examples of the riches of His grace (Eph. 2, verse 7), and this innumerable company of angels will observe them with intense interest. What will this association mean to the believer?

Then there will be the assembled Church whose names are enrolled in Heaven. This enrolment is all of grace and nothing to be feared—nor neglected. Heb. 2, verse 3.

Then there will be the personal fellowship of Jesus, the Mediator. See Heb. 7, verse 25.

Finished then will be His work as mediator between God and man. See 1 Tim. 2, verse 5.

Then there is the token of the cleansing that has made the believers fit, "the blood of sprinkling" with which Jesus sprinkled the mercy-seat—the sign of completed atonement.

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

What should the church do with its critics?—N. O. S.

The critics of the church have been among its best friends. The church has never been so perfect as to have no faults. If there had been no one to point out these faults, there would have been no chance to correct them.

Dr. Wylie Clark

The surgeon who tells us of the diseased parts of our bodies and advises us to have them removed, is our friend. Even the critics who delight to hurt us with the meanness of their criticisms, show us how and where we can improve, and in spite of the sting, we should be grateful.

Are tin and lead mentioned in the Bible and if so where? — L. A. R.

Tin is mentioned, also lead, in Ezekiel 27:12. Lead is also mentioned in Job 19:24 and in Ezekiel 22:20.

These metals were brought by the Phoenicians from Tarshish, but they were also brought from the Tin Islands, supposed to be Cornwall in England. Tin was used to harden copper. Lead was used for tablets and was also known as an alloy.

What is meant by saying, "The Galilean is too great for our poor hearts?—W. H.

This suggests rather the weakness of our humanity than it does the greatness of Christ. We are overly fond of taking refuge behind what we call our human frailty.

The fact is Christ made His appeal to humans and formed a small group of them from whom we have the literature and history of the Christian church. The great thing about the gospel is, Christ thinks we may be like Him and that we may produce the Kingdom of God. It is what He sees in us which counts.

Is there a place in the Bible where anything is said about paid preachers?—D. W. T.

Fellowship With Christ

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—John 15:1-27.

In the upper room in Jerusalem on the night before his death, Jesus gave his disciples his parting messages to comfort and guide them through the dark days ahead when he was to be taken from them.

Copyright, 1934, by Central Press Association, Inc.

As they walked through the vineyards from the upper room to the Garden of Gethsemane he said, "I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for apart from me ye can do nothing."

Jesus meant by this that even after his death there would be an abiding fellowship between himself and his disciples. They would have spiritual life from him in this fellowship and the power to bear fruit for him in Christian service.

Not only would they have life and fruitfulness but love and friendship through this fellowship. "This is my commandment, that ye love one another, even as I have loved you . . . ye are my friends, if ye do the things which I command.

(GOLDEN TEXT—John 15:4).

THANKSGIVING DAY.

The Canadian people in general should have reason this year to give thanks for material blessings, inasmuch as the day set apart for national thanksgiving finds the Dominion in a much sounder and more satisfactory position than twelve months ago.

There has been a steady betterment in trade and industry during the year, more people are at work, the farmers of the country have more money to spend, the national revenues have shown a substantial increase since the year began, and the reports from every quarter are decidedly optimistic.

True we are not completely out of the slump, but 1934 has seen such a remarkable improvement in many directions that there is every reason why Canadians on Thanksgiving Day should look back with gratitude to the developments of this year and forward with confidence to the months that lie ahead.

All things considered, this country has made a successful stand against the prolonged depression, and is now emerging more quickly and in better shape than any other land in the world.

It should be easy therefore for our people to find cause for thanksgiving that they are citizens of such a country, and that their beloved Dominion has been spared the suffering, the upsets and the infringements upon personal liberty that have made this year an unhappy one for the inhabitants of many other countries.

THE GOVERNMENT SHOULD DO IT.

The proprietors of Oshawa's beverage rooms have followed the example of Peterborough hotel men and have voluntarily agreed to shorten the hours of sale under the new beer law, closing their establishments at 11 o'clock instead of 12 during the week and at 10 o'clock on Saturday night.

This action on the part of hotel men should give a lead to the Government and eventually result in a decision to reduce the hours of sale throughout the province.

As the Toronto Star, after a reference to the decision of Peterborough hotel men to close their beverage room earlier, points out, this question of hours should not be left to the judgment of beverage room proprietors, but should be decided by the Government and its Liquor Control Commissioner, and there is ample evidence that in the opinion of the vast majority of people the present regulations which permit sale until 12 o'clock each week night should be amended.

There is no necessity of keeping beverage rooms open until midnight, no popular demand for such hours, and when hotel men themselves find it desirable in their own interest to close beverage rooms earlier, as is being done here in Oshawa, Queen's Park should have no hesitation in stepping in and changing the regulations.

Licenses have to be renewed at the end of this month, and it would be a wise move on the part of the Government to amend the law so that when the new "authorities" go out they will provide for reduced hours of sale.

THE SLAUGHTER GETS WORSE.

While Canada's motor killings have been numerous enough to shock the whole country, the record in the United States has been even more appalling, and it is not surprising therefore to find that when the National Safety Council met in Cleveland recently much of the time of the convention was devoted to discussing this most serious problem.

The number of persons killed by motor cars in the United States this year is expected to reach 35,000, as against 33,700 three years ago.

For years the death roll from this cause has averaged 30,000 a year, which means that since the World War came to an end 185,000 persons have met death in the United States as a result of automobile accidents.

Uncle Sam lost 67,813 men killed in action or dead from wounds during the war, but the loss in traffic mishaps in the sixteen years that have intervened has been just about three times as great.

When it is realized that since 1918 over seven times the population of Peterborough has been wiped out by motor car accidents in the United States, the extent of the slaughter can be visualized.

At the Cleveland convention the four main causes for this condition were listed as follows: relaxed law enforcement, old vehicles unsafe from wear and neglect, greater speed of new cars, and increased use of liquor by motorists.

Whatever the explanation, the situation calls for the best thought of the continent in endeavoring to arrive at a solution; certainly the death rate is a challenge to the common sense of the public.

PREVENTIBLE FIRES.

While it is happily true that the fire loss in Canada last year declined by some ten million dollars from the 1933 total, it was still large enough, according to the annual report of J. Grove Smith, Dominion Fire Commissioner, to justify the holding of Fire Prevention Week, which is to be observed throughout the Dominion next week.

The object of this campaign is, of course to arouse the Canadian people to the absolute necessity of greater care in the matter of fire hazards, and of taking common-sense precautions that would eliminate the bulk of the fires that cause so much damage.

Property loss through fires accounted for a total of $25,676,000 in Canada last year, and the figures for the decade showed the enormous sum of $387,284,000, equal to a per capita assessment on our resources of $41.87.

While industrial and business concerns, by greater care, have done much to remove the menace of fire, it is apparent that householders have not been similarly careful, for there were 34,329 fires in residential properties last year.

Fortunately more than half of these fires involved losses under $25, but the number was so large that it indicated a vast amount of carelessness, especially on the part of smokers, who were officially held responsible for no fewer than 9,957 fires last year.

These conflagrations, big or small as the case may be, were certainly all in the preventible class, as were a great many other fires from various causes that combined to give Canada a fire loss of over thirty-two and one-half millions last year.

There is indeed every justification for a Fire Prevention Week in the face of those figures and facts.

AUSTRALIA'S 100 YEARS.

The first week in October marks the opening of the celebrations at Melbourne, State of Victoria, in honor of the founding of state and the capital city Most places celebrate for one day, or a week, but Melbourne and Victoria are going to celebrate from now until April, and it is to inaugurate these "doings" that the Duke of Gloucester is on his way there. An enormous program of events is scheduled, religious ceremonies, congresses of sports, scientific gatherings scout jamborees, women's conferences, etc., with perhaps the most exciting event of all, the air race from London to Melbourne featuring the opening month.

Captain Cook, who commanded H.M.S. Endeavour, is believed to be the first white man to see Victoria on April 19, 1770. Then in 1797 the first white men landed there from a wrecked merchant ship. In 1804 an army officer attempted to form the first settlement, but abandoned the place three years later and moved to Van Dieman's Land, now known as Tasmania. Between that date and 1835 various unsuccessful attempts at colonization were made.

The first real settler was John Batman, who moved over from Van Dieman's Land one hundred years ago, and was so fascinated by the location that he at once established some rude huts. He made friends with the aborigines, the Maoris. Talk about deals with Indians! Batman "bought" 500,000 acres of land from the Maori chiefs for forty pairs of blankets, 130 knives, forty-two tomahawks, forty looking glasses, sixty-two pairs of scissors, 250 handkerchiefs, eighteen red shirts, five flannel jackets, four suits of clothes and 150 pounds of flour. He again rowed up the Yarra and viewed his purchase. Stopping at Prince's Bridge, he wrote in his diary: "This will be the place for a village." The diary is preserved in the Melbourne Library and the "village" now has a population of more than 1,000,000.

However, the British Government intervened and refused to acknowledge the sale.

Four years later there were 5,000 colonists in the state, and in 1851 there were 76,162, of whom 23,000 were in Melbourne which was declared a city in 1842 when Charles Perry, the first Bishop of Melbourne, was installed. To-day Victoria has a population of about 1,600,000, and of these over half are in the place which Batman said would be the site for a village. The state is a great producer of gold, which was first discovered in 1852, and since then has yielded about $1,500,000,000. The total revenue of the state is now around $375,000,000 a year.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

KNOWLEDGE AND SCIENCE.

Because the triumphs of applied science have made us marvellously productive, but have left us unable to make full use of the things we produce, many people have jumped to the conclusion that it is science itself that is at fault.

We hear, periodically, demands that science "declare a holiday"; that new inventions, discoveries and research generally be held in abeyance until the race has had time to catch up with its own cleverness.

One of the best answers to this demand comes from Sir James Jeans, famous British astronomer and physicist.

Addressing a meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science in Aberdeen, Sir James declared himself as follows:

> Scientific knowledge is transmitted from one generation to another, while acquired characteristics are not. Thus, in respect to knowledge, each generation stands on the shoulders of its predecessor, but in respect to human nature both stand on the same ground.
>
> These are hard facts, which we cannot help or alter, and which—we may as well admit it—may wreck civilization. If there is an avenue of escape, it does not, as I see it, lie in the direction of less science but of more science.

It is one of the ironies of existence that the achievements of science are two-edged tools.

The discovery of vast resources of physical power makes it possible for us to do an enormous amount of work with far less effort than our grandfathers had to use; but it also makes it possible for us to blow ourselves out of existence, and if we indulge in another world war we may do precisely that.

Scientific agriculture has enabled us to rid ourselves of the old fear that the earth's population would grow faster than its food supplies. But it has also robbed the farmer of his old independence and left tons of food to rot on the ground while city people go hungry.

Machine power has taken the drudgery from the worker's routine—but it has also, in some millions of cases, taken away his job and left him without the means of existence.

But the remedy for these things isn't to lock science up in a dark closet and turn the clock back to 1800.

Our only salvation is to learn how to use these scientific tools sensibly.

If we do, we can make human life much happier than it has ever been before.—Vancouver Sun.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

With Schoolboy Rowe and Dizzy Dean monopolizing the headlines, even President Roosevelt has difficulty in making the front page these days.

Col. George Drew's request for a royal commission is after all quite natural. A lot of them have been appointed in recent months.

It seems to be the unanimous opinion of the press of Ontario that this is one time when the Attorney-General should do some talking. The floor is his.

And now Hamilton is trying to find a way to clap a tax on beverage rooms in that city. Everybody seems to be looking for a slice of the beer money.

Four school teachers are among those on the relief lists in St. Thomas. Meanwhile we are turning out a new crop of teachers every year, and the Government has facilitated the process by abolishing the two-year proviso.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

The village senior ball team didn't do no great shucks with the bat here last Sat., so a team from Toronto, west of us, bumped the lads off 2 to none, and the uniforms has been hung up for the season. Sad doings, boys, say we.

H. Campbell of the outboard motor works, C. Giroux, the treas. of the village ball club, and Bob. Elliott from Deloro, east of us, has been in Detroit, across the river from Windsor, this week watching the baseball classick between the Dean boys and the Detroits.

Monday will be Thanksgiving Day in the village, and any way we can all be thankful we don't have to live in Lindsay, west of here, or in Port Hope, down No. 28 highway a bit.

A exciting time was had out the Chemong road Thurs. when a plowing match was held, the boys from all over the county showing a bunch of straight furrows that would of made Geo. Henry turn green with envy.

Col. Winterbottom's foot soldiers is going to stage a sham battle out the Norwood road Mon., so the villagers is warned not to be scared if they hear firing from yon direction.

Plans is being pushed ahead for the hop to be give by the village constabulry on Oct. 26. Many of the folks is already practising their steps for the same. Your scribe learns that the lock step is going to be barred.

Judges has been appointed to hear the election protest in these parts, and will decide on the amature standing of Perce Lancaster and Jim Hawthorne. Better get it settled, lads, before the Legislature meets, say we.

HOOVER'S NEW BOOK.

It is entitled "The Challenge of Liberty". The first chapter has appeared in The Saturday Evening Post. Seldom have the political circles of the nation been so stirred. The contention of the book is that the American people are confronted with the issue of human liberty. The opening chapter recalls the record that throughout history men have given their lives to build a state in which the individuals should have freedom of thought and action. He points out how liberty is more than independence. Liberty is a thing of the spirit. It means to be free to worship, to think, to hold opinions, and to speak without fear. It means to challenge wrong and oppression with surety of justice.

Ex-President Hoover uses a somewhat new word. The great philosophy of Society he terms Liberalism. For this philosophy men have made all kinds of sacrifices. His review of the progress made by society and the costliness thereof is convincing. Here is a sentence that will challenge the political economy of more than one nation. His words will resound the wide world around. The effect will be international. The words are sledge hammer blows at Communism, and Fascism, and Nazism and Socialism. Look at the words. "Man is master of the state, not the servant". The isms mentioned above all hold that man is but the servant of the state.

Mr. Hoover dwells on the fact that these isms are regimentation. And that regimentation is the negation of American Liberalism. This Liberalism is not the possession of any political party. It is the rightful possession and heritage for all the people of the United States.

In this concept of the relationships between men and the state, Mr. Hoover finds the widest divergence in the concepts of government and society. His book, "The Challenge to Liberty", is pre-eminently a book of the age. It has evolved from world conditions and not merely from American.

From what is written in "The Challenge to Liberty", by Mr. Hoover, it is manifested that he is not in harmony with many changes that are under way. He does make some admissions —that a few of the changes have been essential to recovery. Social forces unleashed during the Great War and the advance in productive technology during the last quarter century, have wrought change.

It is the extent and methods to which the spirit of change may lead that disturb Herbert Hoover. His concessions are frank. The Codes have served admirably to reduce child labor by twenty-five per cent. Sweating has been eliminated in certain trades. Sweating slaves before '65 was no more brutal than has sweating in mills have been since. Sweating is a blot on the escutcheon of modern civilization. The strike has waked up the church in the affected areas, and it needed waking up. Some of the same kind of awakening would not be out of place in Canada. Unethical business practises have been weeded out. Mr. Hoover gives credit to the present Administration for all these changes. But he does have something to say about change, that challenges liberty.

The change he decries, is the dangers of vast centralization of power, in the hands of the Executive. Such centralization he characterizes as the first step in regimentation. In fifteen fields Congress has delegated its constitutional powers to the Executive. One man is in complete command of the nation's business. Representatives of the people at Washington are mere rubber stamps. They confirm what he orders. The President's rubber stamp is legislation. The Democratic party must either assert itself or lose the confidence of the people.

Hoover fears the overstepping of the boundaries of liberty. Quoted here are his words: In haste to bring under control the sweeping forces unleashed by the political and economic dislocations of the world war, peoples and governments are blindly wounding, even destroying, those fundamental human liberties which have been the foundation, and the inspiration of progress since the Middle Ages.

The Challenge of Liberty does not raise an issue between the leaders of the political parties as to the supreme duty of relief of human needs. This is not the place of challenge by Hoover. The issue brought forward so prominently in his book is one of trend and method in administration and their bearing upon the future well-being of the people.

In not one sentence of the book is there an attack upon President Roosevelt. The whole content of the book is aimed at the fundamental methods of the present administration and their future effect upon the people's liberties. Considered in this light the subject under consideration by the former President will receive increasing consideration by the people, and their eventual verdict at the polls. The book has gripped the nation as books seldom do. Some partisanship will be aroused. But social conditions of the hour also hold the riveted attention.

In the United States this winter there will be 40,000,000 applying for federal relief. Never before has there been such a situation in any civilized nation. This is the statement of the President of the American Federation of Labor. Every word is appalling. Read it over again. . . . The united action of all groups alone will save. The present issue demands the clearest thinking and the most vigorous action.

BOWMANVILLE, ONTARIO.

The first actual settlement of Bowmanville occurred in 1794 and was effected by settlers induced to come from the United States. Among them were John Burk, John Trull and Roger Conat. The lands which forms the principal part of Bowmanville was drawn from the government by John Burk. Burk built a saw-mill and grist-mill, sold it to a man named Purdy, who in turn sold it to Lewis Lewis, who added a general store. This was in 1820, and Lewis remained in business for four years, eventually selling out to Charles Bowman in 1824. In 1829 a post-office was established, with Robert Fairbairn, then manager of the Bowman interests as postmaster. It was he who suggested the name of Bowmanville to the postal authorities.

A Thought

The world may sound no trumpet, ring no bells;
The book of life, the shining record tells.
Thy love shall chant its own beatitudes,
After its own life-working. A child's kiss
Set on thy singing lips shall make thee glad,
A poor man served by thee shall make thee rich;
A sick man helped by thee shall make thee strong;
Thou shalt be served thyself by every sense
Of service which thou renderest.

THE MANITOULIN TREATY

On this date, in 1862, the Manitoulin Island treaty was signed at Manitowaning by Hon. William McDougall, Superintendent general of Indian affairs, for the government of the province of Canada, and by a number of chiefs of the Ottawa Chippewa and other Indian tribes living on the island. Considerable difficulty was encountered in reaching an agreement, many of the Indians objecting to selling their rights on the Island and resorting to intimidation and threats to coerce those who were ready to accept. Eventually a compromise was reached, the eastern end of the island being reserved. The government claiming that the Indian title to the island had already been surrendered by virtue of a treaty with Sir Francis Bond Head, lieutenant governor of Upper Canada, in 1836, asserted that the mainland Indians had failed to take advantage of their right to live on the island, and that the time had come to throw the island open to white settlers. The treaty provided for the payment of $700 cash and the prices received from white settlers and for grants of land to the Indians, 100 acres to men with families and 50 acres to single men.

As soon as the treaty had been approved, surveyors were sent to the island and it was not long before settlers arrived around Manitowaning and Little Current. Within ten years villages had sprung up at Kagawong, Gore Bay, Providence Bay and Michael's Bay. In 1889 the island was created the Judicial District of Manitoulin and Gore Bay was by popular vote, selected as the judicial seat. In 1902 the island, with a portion of the mainland, was created the electoral district of Manitoulin and qualified to send its member to the Ontario Legislature, but for federal purposes the island remained part of Algoma East. In 1933 the Ontario Legislature amalgamated the ridings of Algoma and Manitoulin, putting the island back politically where it was 35 years before. The largest island in the world in fresh water, Manitoulin has been called "The Island of a Thousand Lakes" so many lakes, large and small, lying with its area of 1073 square miles. Fishing is the chief industry of the Manitoulin, though it has long been famed for its sheep and of recent years has become a large turkey farm. Manitoulin turkeys fetch high prices in the United States, to which they are shipped in large quantities.

GROUP ACTION AGAINST HAY FEVER

To Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—The increasing prevalence of hay fever, rose fever, and other kindred ailments constitutes a menace to the social and economic life of our country. Although statistics are not available, we believe that approximately one hundred thousand people in Canada are afflicted yearly with this scourge. Recently a medical doctor estimated that in the city of Toronto alone there are about thirty thousand sufferers. In some cases their efficiency is seriously impaired.

There is the further discouraging fact that the individual is unable to remove the cause or causes of his or her indisposition. Year after year, with painful punctuality, the disease returns and, despite the alleged benefits of inoculation or change of climate, there seems to be no permanent cure or preventative. It is this helplessness of the individual, combined with the sure return of the disease, that makes the plight of the hay fever sufferer so intolerable.

Pondering on these facts, it has occurred to the writer, who unfortunately numbers himself among the hay fever sufferers, that possibly something might be done by united group action towards the extinction or mitigation of the disease.

Briefly, the writer suggests that hay fever sufferers get together for the purpose of group action. The immediate objectives would at least be two—firstly,—to see a permanent cure or a sure preventative, secondly to work for the amendment of the legislation regarding the destruction of weeds.

To some, possibly the search for a permanent cure or preventative may seem utopian, but in view of the achievements of science with other ailments, the writer feels optimistic.

Assuming that even two-thirds of the hundred thousand hay fever sufferers in Canada were to subscribe $1.00 each, funds would be immediately available for research work. Amendment to the legislation at present in force regarding the destruction of weeds needs no further explanation. This, of course, would involve approaching the Government, with the object of suggesting such amendments to the Act as are necessary in the interests of hay fever sufferers. Other objectives might be suggested, but for brevity's sake will not be mentioned here.

To carry out this program, it would be necessary to hold a representative meeting of hay fever sufferers. This could be achieved if some individuals in each county were to undertake to get together the local hay fever sufferers, and would appoint representatives to attend a public meeting to be held at some central point, say Toronto. At this public meeting, the suggestions outlined, and others, could be discussed, and action taken if considered advisable.

In the meantime, to facilitate group action, the writer will be pleased to hear from those who are prepared to work along the lines indicated. If a sufficient number respond, the writer is willing to share the work incidental to organization. May the writer state here that he has no axe to grind. His aim is solely that of a voluntary association of hay fever sufferers, working together without fee or reward. His only desire and hope is that through group action he may with others be ultimately delivered from yearly torture of hay fever. It may be that writer is too optimistic, but if it be true that "the Lord helps those who help themselves" it seems to the writer that the scheme at least offers a gleam of hope for hay fever sufferers.

THE BROWSER.

It will be a long time before the Browser reads a better book than W. R. Burnett's "Goodbye to the Past". It is so good, so real, that he knows he will have trouble trying to make its goodness clear to other people. After all it's just the story of a man who struck it rich in the west and sold his silver claim for real money and went back home and went into business and made more money and married but was always a stranger to his wife and to his son and his son's son and all the respectable people of the town. When he's a very old man he dies, and his daughter-in-law and his son are not unhappy and that's the end of the story. . . . But the Browser knows old Bill Meadows, who was such a hellion all his life, will stay in his memory. He'll always, from now on, find himself being reminded of Bill and after a while there'll be times when it will be hard for him to remember whether he used to know an old man named Bill Meadows or whether he was just a character in a book by a man named Burnett who knows what to look for in life and how to put what he sees into the simplest and most necessary words. . . . Structurally it's an odd book. . . . You know how, sometimes, you meet an old person at the fragile end of his life and you wonder to yourself, "What was the earlier part of his life like? How did he get to be what he is? He must have been a hellion in his youth." But it does you no good to wonder because you know he won't tell and all those who knew him when he was young are dead and he's alone with himself. . . . Well, W. R. Burnett answers those wonderings in "Goodbye to the Past". He gives you Bill Meadows in the last chapter of his life in 1929. And then he takes you back to a period in 1924 before he abdicated from business. And he shows you what he was like in 1907 when he was a vigorous business man. And then he shows you the rough and tumble Bill Meadows of 1878 when he fell in love with and married a-young-lady-who-was-too-good-for-him. And finally he takes you to 1873 when Bill was fighting Indians and protecting his silver claim and dreaming of going home on a spree to astonish the natives of the little town he came from. . . . It's all very simple and very real, but it's just the kind of book the Browser likes to praise and he knows it will be a best seller.

The best sellers throughout the land right now are Caroline Miller's "Lamb in His Bosom" which won the Pulitzer prize; James Hilton's "Goodby, Mr. Chips", which has sold 25,000 copies, Stark Young's "So Red the Rose", J. B. Priestley's "English Journey", Robert Graves' "I Claudius", A. P. Herbert's "Holy Deadlock", Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse", Carl Carmer's "Stars Fell on Alabama", Woollcott's "While Rome Burns" and Walter B. Pitkin's "Life Begins at Forty" and "New Careers for Youth". . . . Arthur Shumway, who killed himself because he couldn't sell what he wrote, has a pathetic story in the September Esquire. The same number has an article by Ernest Hemingway in "Defense of Dirty Words". His defense is that people use them so why shouldn't he put them in his books? Right now the Browser doesn't like Mr. Hemingway. He sneers at O. Henry for indignantly saying that he had never written a dirty word or a dirty song in his life, and then Hemingway says: "O. Henry was a wonderful fellow, too. They put him in jail once it is true, but everybody agreed, when he died, that he was a prince." . . . A nasty way to argue, thinks the Browser. . . . The John Day company is publishing a novel in verse by Frank Ernest Hill. Hill wrote an outline of the novel in 15,000 words and sent it to a number of friends with the question, "Shall I write this in prose or verse?" Everyone of them said, "Write it in prose." . . . So he decided to write it in verse. It is called "The Westward Star", a novel of the overland trail to Oregon and California. . . . Lippincotts are publishing their biography of Sir Basil Zaharoff by Dr. Richard Lewinsohn. . . . The other night the Browser found a recipe in "The Wine Cook Book" for the very best zabalone that Cora, Rose and Bob Brown were able to find in Italy. So he made it and it WAS the very best zabalone that the Browser ever tasted. It is made with Marsala, not with Sherry. . . . Louis Adamic thinks that Halper's "The Foundry" is "a big thing, an achievement any American novelist could well be proud of". . . . Halper has gone to London on his Guggenheim Fellowship. He will take a small flat in the East End and do most of his own cooking . . . and write another novel. . . . James Gould Cozzens, whose "Last Adam" made such a big noise, is finishing a novel for Harcourt. That's enough from

VETERAN TEACHER DIES.

BRANTFORD, Ont., Oct. 6 (C.P.). — Miss Reba Catherine Fyle, a school teacher for more than 50 years, widely known in Brantford and in the surrounding district, died this morning in the Brantford General Hospital in her 74th year.

For 30 years she taught in Brantford and vicinity, and she was for a time principal of Grandview School here.

MINING STOCKS SLIGHTLY LOWER

Few of Big Gold Issues Only Stocks to Hold Against General Trend.

BASE METALS SLOW.

TORONTO, Oct. 6.—(C.P.)—Buyers were sitting back and letting prices seek their level to-day, with the result that the mining list drifted quietly but narrowly lower on the Toronto exchange to-day. Three or four of the big gold issues held against the trend but with exception of Teck Hughes which added a few cents to sell at 4.40, volume in the group was small. Base metal and silver stocks were very slow.

Gains up to 25 cents were registered for Hollinger, Lake Shore, McIntyre and Pioneer and Wright Hargreaves closed slightly lower. In the secondary gold group small recessions were recorded for Siscoe, McKenzie, Read Authier and Howey while Sylvanite, San Antonio and Pickle Crow held strong.

INDUSTRIALS SLOW IN SHORT SESSION

Nickel, Brazilian and C. P. R. Finish Day Unchanged—Ford A Steady.

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (C.P.)—Today's short week-end market had a distinctly pre-holiday flavor and trading was very slow over the industrial board only International Nickel showing anything like normal action. Nickel closed unchanged at 23¾ and Brazilian and C.P.R. finished the day unchanged. Ford A also finished steady at 22¼ and over the board recessions had a majority over gains.

Construction stocks made up the only strong group, Canada Dredge, Building Products, Hamilton Bridge and Canada Cement all doing better. Beverage shares lagged, the brewing corporation issues boarding declines and Walkers common closing ⅛ lower at 25⅞.

Stock Trend Mixed In Montreal Trade

MONTREAL, Oct. 6 (CP) — The trend was mainly mixed on the Montreal Stock Exchange at the close of to-day's abbreviated session.

International Nickel was the only interlisted stock to gain in the short trading period, rising ⅛ at 23⅞. Brazilian Traction reversed yesterday's buoyant tone and declined ⅛ to 11⅛, while Canadian Pacific was also lower, easing ⅛ at 12¾.

Lake of the Woods was a firm spot to-day, advancing a full point at 11. Hollinger held steady at the higher level attained in the previous day's trading, at 21.00. Fractions were gained by B.C. Power "A", Canadian Car, Alcohol "A", and Foundation Company.

Ship Wires For Help Year After Last S.O.S

PALM BEACH, Fla., Oct. 6 (AP) —Exactly a year from the day she sent an SOS from a point off Florida, the American freighter Western Sword early to-day reported it had lost its propellor about 20 miles off shore. The Radio Marine Company's station here said the ship was not in any immediate danger this time.

A Coastguard boat was dispatched from the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., base to the aid of the ship. A wireless message picked up by the Radio Corporation of America in New York said immediate assistance was needed.

STOCK EXCHANGES CLOSED

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (C.P.) — The Toronto Stock Exchange (both mining and industrial divisions) will be closed on Monday (Thanksgiving Day), and will resume trading on Tuesday morning.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (A.P.).—Stock market enthusiasm cooled somewhat to-day following yesterday's brisk rally. Some traders were inclined to accept profits rather than carry positions over the week-end, and prices, generally, displayed an indecisive tone. A few specialties, however, exhibited strength. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated only 260,000 shares.

HAILEYBURY — Three Ontario provincial police officers have been transferred from points in Southern Ontario to this district. Two who have already arrived here are: Allan Stringer, of Belleville, stationed at Cochrane, and L. A. Tregenna, of Goderich, who went to Timmins. Constable Jocelyn of Hamilton is expected shortly.

Discovered Gold That Started Rush

Last June, Renny Maloney, LEFT, 30-year-old Gaspe, Que., prospector, was returning to his camp late one night when his pick struck a rock and uncovered a vein of visible free gold. The find started one of the greatest gold rushes in recent years to the Thunder Bay district of Ontario, along the Sturgeon river. The man with Maloney is Charlie Taylor, another prospector, who was with Maloney when the discovery was made.

FOUND STABBED IN APARTMENT

declared, and she had driven two of them home.

"We were alone in the apartment at the time," said the document which Inspector Brodeur made public in part. "The two men who were with us previously had left, when William Owen—a hard man to deal with when only partly drunk—tried to argue with me in a thoroughly drunken condition. I would not give him the answers he expected so he started to beat me and suddenly commenced to choke me."

The Stabbing

Then, said Brodeur, she declared Owen had forced her back over a kitchen table and her hand had come in contact with a knife with which she had struck Owen in an effort to loosen his choking hands.

Frightened by the blood, the girl had run and brought a doctor, said the statement. The doctor found Owen, clad only in his underclothing, bleeding profusely from a wound near his right armpit. The doctor closed the wound, but Owen died a few minutes later.

In a panic, the sobbing girl had run out again, climbed into Owen's car and started for her aunt's home. To settle her nerves, the statement went on, she had taken several drinks and was completely drunk when the car crashed into a pole.

Two Notes

At the morgue two notes, written on sheets torn from a scribbling pad, were found when attendants sought to remove the blood-stained underclothing from Owen's body.

One said:

"Billy, darling.—I have taken George and Walter home. I could not let them take a taxi for that distance. I love you. Dolores."

Then the postscript, "Be a good boy. There is a drink for you on the table."

The other note read:

"I have gone home! For no reason at all you started hitting me in the face. Do you mean it? That is what I want to know. In any case you had better be a good boy and sleep here to-night. D."

Hunt 2 Men.

Police were trying to find the identity of the two men mentioned in one of the notes. This was another matter on which the girl was to be questioned after she had recovered from the injuries received in the car accident.

One report had it that another girl was in the car with Dolores Lopez. Police picked up a blonde young woman who they said they thought might be the one, but no statement was made after they had questioned her.

Owen, who lived at 4215 Western avenue, here, had been in Canada for about nine years. He was 36 years old, a well-built, young-looking fellow with a small moustache and a head of dark hair.

At detective headquarters police said the night club dancer showed bruises as if she had been struck with a fist.

An examination of Owen's body at the morgue showed the wound was only about one inch long near the armpit under the right shoulder.

Doesn't Know Wm. Owen.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (C.P. Cable).—David Lloyd George to-day said he had no knowledge whatever of 36-year-old William Owen, slain in Montreal.

The former Prime Minister added that he knew Col. William Hugh Owen, also of Montreal, saying he was aware the latter was alive and well.

It was learned that a William H. Owen was employed at the War Office while Lloyd George was there. He was never employed as Lloyd George's secretary, but went to Montreal after the war.

IS CONTINENT'S YOUNGEST PILOT

Air-Minded Manitoban Has Been Granted License at Sixteen.

FULLY QUALIFIED

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS
Central Press Canadian Correspondent

EMERSON, Man., Oct 5.—Archie McDougall, 16-year-old son of Norman McDougall, collector of customs at this port, a home-grown product of this border town and an honor student in his school, has just been granted his pilot's license by the United States air ministry.

ARCHIE McDOUGALL
Emerson, Manitoba, is proud of her schoolboy pilot.

He is the youngest qualified pilot on the continent, and Pilot George Buttles, Jamestown, N.D., instructor at the Pembina flying school, considers he has a fine future in commercial aviation. He now has 70 hours in the air to his credit, including several solo trips and flights to air meets at Fargo, Walhalla and Edinburgh, N.D., and Steinback, Man., in which he has acquitted himself creditably.

Archie conceived his desire to become a pilot while he was building model airplanes. His parents encouraged him in his hobby, but insisted that his studies take precedence. He has been an honor student the last three years in Emerson Collegiate, and after graduation next year he plans an entry into the commercial field.

Herridge's Visit Rouses Speculation

OTTAWA, October 6 (C.P.). — Arrival in Ottawa of Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington, to-day had aroused conjecture as to whether or not his visit is associated with the St. Lawrence Waterways Treaty.

Reports from Washington last night were the United States would seek minor modifications of the pact and President Franklin Roosevelt would resubmit it afterwards to the United States Senate.

No statemen on the purpose of Major Herridge's trip from Washington could be obtained last night, but it is understood he will be in Ottawa for a couple of days and intends to take up some matters with the Department of External Affairs.

Major Herridge signed the Waterways Treaty at Washington in July, 1932, as a signatory for Canada.

OFFICIALS IN CHARGE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 6.—(C.P.) —Despite despatches from Montreal last night which stated Joe O'Brien and Hoddy Foster, well known Intercollegiate officials, had resigned, over the new gridiron rules, both officials will be in charge of the Queen's Western game here this afternoon.

When word was received here last night that O'Brien and Foster had resigned, officials of Queens and Western got together and after much communication, the two officials agreed to come to Kingston to handle the game.

Heffernan's Bridge Is Being Repaired

Heffernan's bridge in the second concession of Douro, north of Indian River, is being repaired by the County's road department, A. E. Chalmers, county engineer, told The Examiner that a heavy truck, loaded with about four cords of wood for delivery in Peterboro, had recently broken through the bridge, requiring extensive repairs, including new stringers and flooring.

This bridge is 102 feet long, and the work will be completed within two weeks. In the meantime traffic along that road is detoured.

SCOTIA MINERS BACK ON JOBS

Efforts of Amalgamated Workers to Spread Strike, Fail—Only 85 Respond.

SHAFTS WEEK IDLE.

GLACE BAY, N.S., Oct. 6 (CP) —More than 300 miners trooped back to work in Number 2 Colliery to-day and mining operations were resumed after a week's idleness, the majority of the miners going back to work to-day were United Mine Workers.

Efforts of the Amalgamated Mine Workers to spread the strike failed yesterday. Only 85 out of a working force of 290 heeded the call at No. 2. Last night miners at Sydney Mines and Florence decided not to participate, and a majority at No. 1-B voted to return to work next Tuesday, when repairs to a motor which burned out early this week will be completed.

The seriousness of the situation was emphasized last night by H. J. Kelley, General Manager of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, who announced that because of the strike at No. 2 the Dominion Coal Company would not be able to complete its contracts in the St. Lawrence markets and was releasing two freighters of the fleet of coal-carriers.

Carloads Vegetables For Saskatchewan

Those Desirous of Contributing Communicate With Rev. A. E. Moorehouse, 'Phone 465W.

Arrangements have been made again this year, as in previous years, for the shipment of a car load of vegetables to the Commissioner of Public Welfare at Alameda, Sask. The car load of vegetables will go forward from the C.P.R. freight sheds on Thursday, October 11th, where vegetables may be loaded during the day. Some persons have learned of this gift and have stated their desire to assist this tragically needy area and those in charge of the shipping of the car ask that such persons who are interested will kindly report by 'phone to Rev. A. E. Moorhouse (No, 465W), 163 Romaine Street, the quantity of potatoes or vegetables that you can supply. Anything that is donated should be delivered on Thursday morning or early on Thursday afternoon at the C.P.R. freight sheds, where the car is being made up, and will be shipped that day.

Cars will be loaded at Campbellford, Brighton, Colborne, Cobourg, and Port Hope stations on or about October 19 and 20, unless the local committeeman decides otherwise.

OTTAWA — Two members of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Sergt. J. E. Doane and Pte. N. W. Denny were injured here today when a two-seater plane stalled in landing at the Rockliffe airport. They were taken to hospital where their injuries were reported as not serious.

CENTRE HASTINGS TEACHERS HOLD ANNUAL RALLY IN MADOC

Delegates From Many Schools Are Welcomed by Rev. T. Rivers, Reeve Wallbridge.

FINE ADDRESSES GIVEN.

MADOC, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual convention of Centre Hastings Teachers' Institute was held in Madoc on Thursday and Friday, October 4 and 5.

The convention met in the Sunday school parlors of Trinity United Church and members were cordially welcomed by the pastor, Rev. G. W. Rivers, who presided over the opening exercises on Thursday morning. Following this, Mr. Campbell M. Wallbridge, Reeve of Madoc village, extended the welcome of the village to the visiting teachers.

The President's address proved an inspiration to all.

Miss Vera Filchett, delegate to the O.E.A. Convention held in Toronto during the Easter holiday, then gave a very comprehensive and helpful report of the sessions held in the rural school section.

Mr. A. W. McGuire, B.A., I.P.S., addressed the teachers.

Seat Work

Following the roll call, Miss Hilda Thompson, of Marmora public school, gave a very helpful paper on "Suggestions for Primary Teachers". In this she included numerous forms of seat work and interesting drill devices which would prove a boon to the older teachers as well as to the newcomers to the profession.

Miss Alice Heasman, of Thomasburg, gave a much appreciated talk to the teachers of fifth or continuation classes in rural schools.

Composition in junior classes, by Miss Mutton proved a helpful paper and many suggestions for making the work interesting as well as profitable were forwarded. This was followed by a paper, "Composition in senior classes" by Mr. E. C. Prentice, of Marmora, which contained a plea for more serious attention and greater enthusiasm on the part of the teacher of composition.

A discussion of school helps closed the afternoon session.

Friday Session.

The Friday morning session was opened by Rev. W. A. Hunter, who spoke of the joint task of the church and the school.

Reports of auditors and committees were then received and an invitation was given to hold the next convention in Tweed.

Miss Grace Garrett, of Madoc public school, gave a very well prepared talk on third class geography.

Miss Elizabeth Stuart, B.A., of Tweed high school, gave a highly appreciated talk on "The teacher's bookshelf". She spoke directly to the teachers on appreciative literature and poetry and suggested a definite course in reading for all teachers.

Mr. McGuire's suggestion for improvements in the school room were very helpful.

A very well prepared paper on "Methods of teaching history" was given by Miss Ellen Shea.

In the afternoon session, following roll call, Miss Hazel Grindell, B.A., of Tweed high school, in a paper on "The pupil's book-shelf" gave many ways and means of inspiring a desire for good reading in the pupils. Mr. Moffatt, of Tweed, followed with a few remarks on supplementary reading.

Miss Marion Henderson, of Bannockburn, gave a very lovely solo, "Trees" which was encored and answered by "To a Hill-top".

The topic, "The teaching of grammar", was very ably handled by Mr. James Irwin, principal of Madoc public school. He urged that grammar be made as interesting as possible and suggested the use of the contest spirit to arouse keener interest of the pupils

A Prayer of Thanks

"A PRAYER OF THANKS"

I thank Thee Lord, for eyes to see,
And ears to hear and hands to do
The kindly tasks all meant for me,
And, then, again, for feet to go.
For friends, and foes, who help us grow,
Fine, noble, yet humble, in Thy sight;
For loss, experience and woe,
For courage to stand up for right.
For smiles and tears all through the years,
For home and families—children dear,
And trials that make us richer grow—
That bring Thee, very, very near.
For Sun by day, for Moon by night,
For health, and sympathy, and peace,
For patience, gentleness and light,
And trust until all fears do cease.
For beauty, truth and honor bright,
That lives in spite of sin and strife,
For love, and faith, and charity,
And hope for that eternal life.
And also for your own, dear word,
To read and earn whene'er we may,
And most of all we thank, Thee Lord,
For mind and will to choose the way.

PLEA FOR INDUSTRIAL PEACE VOICED BY FRANCES PERKINS

States Government Will Not Coerce Either Side in Capital-Labor Dispute.

OUTLINES PLANS.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 5. — (A. P.)—A plea for industrial peace through arbitration was voiced at the American Federation of Labor convention to-day by Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of Labor.

Making plain that the government would not coerce either side in a capital-labor dispute, she asked for voluntary use of the mediation machinery the Roosevelt administration has set up.

"While the government," she said in an address prepared for delivery, "does not prevent strikes or prevent employers from closing down their industries, it would be a forward looking step, where differences arise, to utilize the services of the impartial agencies set up as constituted groups for the purpose of keeping industrial peace for the benefit of employers and labor and in the public interest."

"It seems fitting, proper and reasonable that this system should be given every trial."

Plans Outlined.

As in several recent utterances by administration spokesmen, she assured business that it has the right to a "fair profit." She also spoke of a need for increased wages and shorter hours as profits became better.

As chairman of the President's Economic Security Committee, which is drafting recommendations for social insurance to be laid before the next Congress, she made the definite announcement that the plan will "embrace some form of unemployment insurance and of old-age pensions."

"The significant fact now stands out," she said, "that in no country which has experimented with unemployment insurance has the system broken down, even in the present world depression, and in no country has the public treasury been called upon for amounts to relieve distress approximating our expenditures for relief."

"The plans for social insurance," she said, "will not retard recovery, but will mean the development of a more stable income which should put a bottom to any future depression as it has done in other countries."

MRS. DAVID HUGGINS CELEBRATES HER ONE HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY

Plains, would be fourteen years old when Mrs. Huggins was born. Mr. Stewart kept his general store across the way from the square and charged such things as soap to "the woman with the red cloak," and the grist mill, operated by John Hall and Moore Lee, was the centre for the sale of farming produce. It was also the club, where ladies met for friendly gossip and the men for little refreshment from the whisky bottle on the counter, free to all who came.

But in Mrs. Huggins' young days the market, as we know it now, was flourishing. The cornerstone of the first buildings had been laid in 1851 by the mayor, Charles Hudson, but they were destroyed by fire in 1857, and the present market block was erected on the ruins. There were meat stalls in the arcade then and the "We Frees" of the Scottish Church used the hall for Sunday services.

They were the days, in the early 40s, when the town had 400 houses, two breweries, five distilleries, thirty saloons, and whisky sold at twenty-five cents a pint!

Mrs. Huggins, if she cared or remembered about it, could refute the prophecy of one Thomas Hartley of that day. Pausing in his work, with his foot placed on the stump of a tree he had just sawn asunder, on the site of the present Conservatory of Music, Mr. Hartley, in the year 1834, said "No person now living will ever see the town extend as far as this." And Mrs. Huggins still lives.

When she came to the township, tallow candles were used for lighting, lanterns were taken abroad after sundown, when most respectable folk stayed in their homes, women made clothing from the wool off the sheep's back, and men thought nothing of walking fifty and sixty miles to have grain ground in the mill.

Peterborough, as described by a visitor, was a place of 'rude shacks and a few stores," the townspeople were elated over the holding of the Fall Fair where Central Park is now, and clerks in the stores worked from seven in the morning until seven at night. Ashburnham was the 'Scotch Village," where the women went down to the river to wash their clothes, when water was scarce.

Brave Fighting Men

If she cared, Mrs. Huggins might recall the talk of the place when John Miller went off, a gallant lad, to fight for the freedom of the slaves, in the Civil War, and came back with a glorious record of brave achievement Or the day when one Mowry started in 1862, for the strange land of Egypt. General Gordon was bottled up in Khartoum by the fanatical followers of the Arab, El Mahdi, and the English government called for Canadian boatmen to sail down the Nile to his rescue.

She could remember better, probably, if the mists would clear away a little, when John Cameron used to hang dried codfish in front of his store, to signify that he was open for business, or when Harry Long's geese, waddling up from Spaulding's Bay, near Rink street, would turn the corner at George and Hunter, over to Water, to camp in their night quarters where Peck, Kerr and McElderry's law office now stands.

Or she might recall the women's wear of those bygone days, before silk stockings were a matter of necessity, when petticoats were legion and a lady's waist was that of a wasp. For women remember fashions when they forget other matters. As witness the following account of earlier modes.

It was of the early days of the city that Mrs. Stewart, author of "Our Forest Home," wrote of a hasty summons to the famous dinner given in the old log house on the market, to the Governor-General, Sir Peregrine Maitland:

"You may imagine what a fine fuss this put me into. How should I dress myself? That was my first thought. I knew none of the company would expect me to be fine, living as we do here, so I thought I had better put on whatever would take the shortest time. We soon agreed that a very pretty Irish cabinet which I had never yet worn, would be best. At Dr. Reade's medicine shop (opposite the square) the gentlemen entered....and we ladies spent one good hour in dressing our beautiful persons. I had but little show in the business as I had but my head to dress. Mrs. Rubidge and Mrs. Reade went without caps. Mrs. Reade had a large wreath of artificial flowers in her hair and wore a brilliant geranium-colored tabinet which did not suit her. Mrs. Rubidge had on a white striped gauze trimmed with pink satin."

The Unadorned Male

Colonel Talbot, who was at this party, wore an Arctic dress; a great coat made of sheepskins with the wool on, and a pair of boots of the same, worn over his other boots. "And as he is short and fat...."

Mrs. Traill, writing in "Forest Gleanings," as a contribution to the Anglo-American, describes a Canadian housewife of 1854, the year of Mrs. Huggins' marriage: "A cheerful, bustling little matron in a dark brown merino dress and neatly quilled little cap."

She describes a visit to some of her friends "in the bush": "My sister-in-law advised me I needn't be at all particular about my dress, but being a little desirous of displaying my Old Country finery and my own gentility I dressed myself in silk and lace, thin shoes, and the finest thread stockings .... Of course, going through dense woods and swamp I soiled my silk pelisse and dress, tore my fine lace veil and pelerine scrambling along wet logs, and finally lost one of my shoes in a mudhole!"

But Mrs. Huggins probably had little time to think of fine dress in those days. The wants of her home and children would come first, in the pioneer days of a young and growing land, where money was scarce and times were hard.

Now, she wears a clean print dress with a little lace edging, and an equally clean apron. Her small hands, that helped clear a hundred acres of land for her father, before ever she come to the township, are knotted, but still active. They have knitted many and many a pair of socks in their time, but the old, blue eyes can see only vaguely now, and no glasses will help them. Her silver hair is thick yet and her hearing is splendid. She is able to walk about without help, but the mists of a hundred years have fallen lightly on the tired old mind.

"The Lord is my Friend and has been these many years," she says simply. "I would be glad to go any time."

Five sons and three daughters, thirty-one grandchildren, thirty-nine great grandchildren, and one great, great grandchild, enough to make a comfortable small community of Huggins clan, if they were all together, make the five generations that include the head of them all, this little old lady who has looked on a procession of the long summers and winters of a hundred years.

The sons are William Robert, of 450 Mark street; Thompson and Shep, of South Monaghan; Braden, of Bailieboro; David, of 21 High street, and John, of 224 Perry street. The daughters are Mrs. George Hunter of Detroit, Mrs. H. Miller of Toronto and Mrs. D. J. McLeod of 267 Lake street.

Soviet Adopts Use Of Aeroplanes to 'Sow Wheat Fields

Find Method Gives Excellent Results Over Large Areas Instances

(By Lindesay Parrott, Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

MOSCOW, Oct. 5—More than a million acres of grain, in preparation for the harvest of 1935, will be sown this year from aeroplanes.

Air-sowing, first tried experimentally here in 1931, now has been declared a success. In the quality of work, sowing from aeroplanes equals that done either by hand or by tractor-drawn machines, the government experts have found.

And the speed with which the job can be done is greatly in excess of any other method.

In 1933, it has been announced, each aeroplane engaged in sowing seeded between 1,000 and 1,250 acres in a day, planting a total of 1,000,000 acres, an area that will be somewhat increased for 1935.

In addition, it is declared, districts sown from the air showed a yield ten per cent. greater than similar fields sown by hand.

Aeroplanes equipped for grain planting carry seed in large tanks, from which it drifts down to the plowed land. Best results, it has been determined, are achieved when pilots keep an absolutely straight line between the two markers set up to guide them, and shave the ground as closely as possible.

Also among the advantages claimed for the new method is that, from aeroplanes, super-early sowing —an important advantage in view of the short Russian summer—is possible.

Aeroplanes, it is pointed out, can pass over and seed fields which are inaccessible to heavy machinery because of the mud from melting snow.

FENELLA W.M.S.

Mrs. Roy Smith is Elected Secretary—Special Baby Band Meeting Planned.

FENELLA, October 5 (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. John Cowling on Wednesday with 24 members and visitors present. Mrs. Roy Smith was elected secretary in the absence of Mrs. L. Hope. The devotional leaflet, Mutual Friends, was read by Mrs. Fred Talling. The autumn thank-offering envelopes and mite boxes are to be handed in at the next meeting. A special Baby Band meeting will be held next month at the home of Mrs. Hugh Sherwin, with Mrs. Frank George as program leader. The program was then handed to Mrs. C. W. Macklin, who read an introduction to the new study book, Builders of the Indian Church, by Stephen Neill. Scripture reading by Mrs Fred Talling. First reader, India and its Church, by Mrs. N. C. Leach; second reader, Has India an Apostolic Church? by Mrs. George Montgomery:; third reader, A Portuguese Archbishop and His Subtlety, by Mrs. W. H. Sandercocks; solo, "Let's walk along together," by Mrs. L. W. Scott; fourth reader, Disillusionment, by Mrs. L. W. Scott; fifth reader, The Church Missionary Society Lends a Hand, by Mrs. Howard Macklin; sixth reader, Gleams for Gloom, by Mrs. J. H. Mouncey; solo, "Tell me the old, old story," by Mrs .N. C. Leach, ended the program. Mrs. Frank George tendered a hearty vote of thanks, and a social hour was enjoyed.

Special Bible Class For Young Ladies

Although St. Paul's Church Sunday School did not cease to function during the past summer, tomorrow will see a resumption of renewed activity, when the various classes will assemble at three o'clock for the opening of the fall and winter season. The Sunday School is under superintendency of O. M. Steer.

One of the features of the Sunday School in the past has been the Amos Bible Class conducted by Mrs. D S. Clarke, and which includes in its membership the young lady members of St. Paul's congregation. Young ladies in attendance at the Normal School here are particularly invited to enroll in the Bible class, which meets each Sunday afternoon in the Sunday School room.

BROKER TO FACE COURT FOR PRESSING HIS LUCK

TORONTO, Oct 5.— (C.P.)—An unnamed broker whose license had been cancelled under the administration of Colonel George A. Drew as Ontario Securities Commissioner, will wish he had refrained from making application for renewal of the license, to Col. Drew's successor, J. M. Godfrey.

Mr. Godfrey revealed to-day this man had come to him immediately he assumed office and asked that his license, previously cancelled, be renewed.

The new commissioner investigated the case. Now the unnamed applicant is awaiting appearance in court on charges which Mr. Godfrey said previously had been held in abeyance.

MISS H. CAMPBELL RESIGNS POSITION

For Many Years Librarian at Carnegie Library in Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Miss Helen Campbell, who for many years has been librarian at the Carnegie Library, has resigned, and Miss Lillian Benor has been appointed to fill the vacancy, with Miss Jean Wallace as assistant librarian. Sincere regret is felt by th ecommunity at Miss Campbell's decision to retire. She has won the admiration of the citizens by her courteous and efficient service. Miss Benor, who has for several years held a similar position at Preston, comes well qualified for her new position, both by special training and experience, and will assume her duties on Tuesday, October 9.

New Zealand Is Tired Of Canada's Actions

VICTORIA, Oct. 5 (CP)—"New Zealand is getting tired of the way in which Canada is carrying on," according to David Jones, chairman of the Meat Producers' Board of Wellington, New Zealand, who passed through here on the R.M.S. Niagara early to-day. "Unless the spirit of the Ottawa agreements is more liberally interpreted in this country, it will not be long before we will be compelled to adopt measures which will be more to our advantage," Mr. Jones told newspapermen.

"Canada is selling us a wide variety of things under the trade agreement and British preferences," he continued, "but has practically closed the market to our export commodities, notably butter. There should be some reciprocity. We are beginning to believe it would be more satisfactory for all concerned if our butter for instance to this country, were admitted under a fixed tariff. We would then know what to expect and do. As it is now, the shipments are made and we never know when it is going to be marketed."

In Vanderbilt Case

LADY MILFORD-HAVEN

Sensational testimony by Maria Caillot, former Vanderbilt maid, concerning Lady Milford-Haven, ABOVE, titled Englishwoman, and Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt resulted in an order for private hearings by Supreme Court Justice John F. Carew in New York city. The public and press was barred from the courtroom where Mrs. Vanderbilt sought to regain custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria heiress as witnesses alleged neglect of the child who now is in care of Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her aunt.

MISS MIRIAM LORD GUEST AT SOCIAL

Millbrook Friends Present Her with Walnut Book Stand on Eve of Marriage.

MILLBROOK, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—A pleasant social gathering was held in the parlors of Grace Presbyterian Church on Thursday evening, the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., taking the chair and explaining that the congregation, including the several organizations, had come together to do honor to Miss Miriam Lord, a bride-to-be of this week, who has been an active and very capable worker in the Young People's Society and the church generally, for some years past.

The program included the singing of "O Canada"; a solo, "A Little Kiss", by Joe Thorndyke; a reading by Mrs. F. J. Deyell, and a solo, "I Love You Truly", by Miss Vanita Ingram. Miss Ruth Thorndyke presided at the piano.

The guest of honor was then invited to the platform and on behalf of the Y.P.S. of which he is president, Mr. F. J. Deyell read an appreciative address, Miss Margaret Armstrong presenting Miss Lord with a handsome walnut book trough. Following this happy event, and while the pianist played the wedding-march, a miniature bride and groom, Donald Kerr and Emma Peers, looking very quaint in their respective costumes, drew in a wagon containing a large basket daintily trimmed in two shades of pink, bringing it to a stop immediately before the chair of the bride-to-be.

Mrs. J. R. Eakins, on behalf of the entire congregation, read the accompanying address, and before the pleasant task of opening the many parcels making up the miscellaneous shower was proceeded with, Rev. Mr. Williams made suitable reply on behalf of the guest of the evening, doing this at her request. Fine china, linens, silver, etc., made up the list of lovely gifts, the singing of "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow", games, music and the service of home-made candy completing an enjoyable occasion.

MARMORA.

Born—on Tuesday, October 2, to Mr. and Mrs. Sam Nobes, of Marmora, township, a daughter—Betty Marie.

Messrs. Ritchie and Russell Wells visited friends in Stratford over last week-end.

Mrs. J. L. Hickey and son, John, of Toronto, are Thanksgiving guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hickey.

Marmora Post No. 237, Canadian Legion, held a meeting in the Memorial Hall on Friday evening, with the president, Comrade L. R. Rundle, occupying the chair. One new member was initiated. It was decided to apply for a goodly number of poppies for members to sell on November 10. The branch will attend Divine Service at St. Paul's Church on Remembrance Day and will endeavour to get an overseas chaplain as special preacher for the occasion.

Baby Show

The winning babies were Allan Runciman son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Runciman, Warkworth; and second, Ann N. VanBlaricom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. VanBlaricom of Codrington. Both were under one year.

Various Attractions

The crowd of three horses races, and several running races won by Ed Huycke of Warkworth, and a short vaudeville program in front of the grand stand provided the main amusement features, with a number of tent shows on the midway. The "crown and anchor" games drew only a light play, kicking in not much more than transportation costs.

Many of the members of the counties council, including Warden Wilbert Davey, were present. Mayor Harold Carr, M.L.A., of Campbellford, came over with C. H. Davidson and Major J. M. Bygott.

Insomnia

A Sleepless Nightmare

One man says, "I wouldn't mind having insomnia
If I could only sleep well nights."
This may be alright as a joke,
But what is more distressing
Than to toss and turn unable to rest and sleep.
You think and think and worry and worry,
Longing for morning to come.
Every sleepless night further exhausts the nerves.
How are you to ever get rid of this condition?
There is a way, a very satisfactory way

Toronto Man Hurt, Crash Near Madoc

TWEED, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—Skidding on loose gravel on the Madoc-Belleville highway, a mile south of Madoc, on Wednesday evening, an automobile owned by Carl Cassan, of Toronto, and driven by his brother, Ford Cassan, also of Toronto, crashed into a deep ditch and overturned after striking a telephone pole. Ford Cassan was seriously injured and, after an examination by Dr. Eagleson, of Madoc, was taken to the Belleville General Hospital.

Up to the present time the condition of Ford Cassan is reported by Dr. C. Adams as unchanged. He is suffering from serious internal injuries and fractures of both legs. Bernard Kerr, of Campbellford and Carl Cassan also received minor cuts and bruises.

SHINGLES, STOCK

out the feasibility of bringing their product under the Marketing Act.

Progress Made.

Good progress is understood to have been made in getting schemes covering live stock and poultry advanced to the stage where definite action may be taken. The board spent a good deal of time this week on a poultry scheme drawn up by officials of a Western Canada co-operative organization.

The live stock scheme now proposed would, if approved, regulate both the export and domestic marketing of live stock. Canada's chief export market for live stock now is the United Kingdom, and recently Canadian cattle exports to that country have had to be restricted to conform to the wishes of the British Government. A marketing scheme would include this regulation.

Live stock producers have been hard hit by low prices and have long been convinced an improvement in marketing methods would give them a better return. The scheme proposed would govern domestic sales, but it has not been stated whether it would be confined to fixing grades or whether it would attempt to regulate the movement of stock to market by licensing the truckers and shippers.

A tobacco scheme is well advanced and consideration has been given to the drawing up of schemes covering beans, celery, onions, butter, and several other commodities.

AN EXTRA $5,000.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 6 (C.P.). — Dee Griffith, injured when struck by a Standard Oil Company truck in July, 1932, sued for $30,000, claiming head and back injuries. An Allegheny County common pleas court jury has just awarded Dee—not $20,000 but $25,000.

SINGLE CLERIC IS NOW SUPREME OF NAZI GERMANY'S PROTESTANTS

Reichbishop Mueller is Close Friend of Chancellor Hitler.

STRONGEST IN PRUSSIA

(By Central Press Canadian.)

BERLIN, October 6 — With the consecration of Ludwig Mueller as reich-bishop of the German Evangelical church in Berlin cathedral, the last stronghold against "Nazification" has been captured, and for the first time since the death of Martin Luther, one cleric now has complete control of Germany's churches, but finds some pastors still prefer independence.

BISHOP LUDWIG MUELLER

rules supreme over the nation's Protestant faithful.

It is a strange destiny that has carried the stern-looking Nazi primate to the top of the church from his humble position as an East Prussian chaplain in less than 16 months. But the answer in his case is Adolf Hitler, of course.

Reichsfueher Hitler and his advisors long had planned a "regimentation" of the German Protestant church to fit in with Nazi philosophy. And when thousands of pastors resisted stubbornly and fought the proposals from their pulpits throughout the reich, Hitler's handpicked bishops tried to oust the "rebels."

Joachim Hossenfelder, a fanatical Nordic preacher, swept through the land during 1933, when the Nazi enthusiasm at capturing power was at its peak. He sought to outlaw the Old Testament, combine the Christian cross and the swastika. Other sects, influenced by Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi philosopher, endeavored to return to the old Teutonic gods and mythology.

When state lines had been abolished in Germany, a clamor arose among the Protestant clergy for a united reich church, and this was hastily assembled, with Rev. Dr. Friedrich von Bodelswwingh, as bishop. The latter, a famous humanitarian, seemed too "willowy" for the blood-and-thunder Nazi religionists, and he was deposed in a bitterly contested "election."

Mueller's Hand Seen

Dr. August Jaeger was named bishop and was given powers denied his predecessor. According to political observers, it was Dr. Mueller, who pulled the strings for this selection.

For Rev. Mueller has been a bosom friend of Reichsfueher Hitler since 1926, when the Nazi movement was beginning to find solid footing. It is said that the cleric was among the first to convince Adolf that a united single German church would bulwark the swastika banner when it arrived at the top.

But to adopt such a plan has been difficult. Though thousands of Germany's 35,000 Protestant pastors listened to the new faith, less than half decided to accept it. From the closely watched pulpits of these rebelling clerics severe criticism of Nazism was uttered. But not for long, for many were arrested and sent to concentration camps. Others were forced to accept the new order or resign their pastorships.

Opposition Growing

A prominent "rebel" is Dr. Martin Niemoller, who was removed from his Berlin suburb pulpit. He is a former naval commander and was wounded and decorated in the World War. He seeks to remove the church from the power of Reich-bishop Mueller.

Outside of Prussia, where the Nazi primate is strongest, the resistance to the Nazi Christian wing, now dominating the reich church, has been growing constantly. In Munish, where the Nazi congress recently convened, 1,500 intrepid communicants took their lives in their hands by singing a defiant hymn in the city streets.

DR. ALFRED ROSENBERG

Nazi philosopher, and politician in his spare time, who champions the doctrine of Teutonic supremacy divinely ordained—and worship of old mythological gods.

THE ASTRONOMER-POET OF PERSIA.

Omar Khayyam.—A life, by Harold Lamb (Doubleday, Doran & Co., Toronto, 316 pages).

I read the Persian Poet's rhyme of old,
Each thought a ruby in a ring of gold—
Old thoughts so young, that, after all these years,
They're writ on every rose-leaf yet unrolled.

—Mathilde Blind.

All those persons who have been lovers of the beautiful lines of Omar Khayyam, as given to us by Edward Fitzgerald, will be delighted to know that Harold Lamb has now given "A Life" of the poet. There is probably no one so well qualified to do this as Mr. Lamb. He has already proven his ability to portray the genius and the spirit of the East by his stories of Genghis Khan, Tamerlane and The Crusades. He has spent considerable time in following the footsteps of those about whom he writes. He has lived there in the shadow of the past and has seen the ruins where once costly caravans halted on their way from Samarkand to Bagdad. And he has been able to recreate the scenes for us where Omar carried on his struggle for scientific enlightenment against the prejudices of the people.

There are comparatively few certain facts known about Omar Khayyam's life. This is partly due to his banishment from favour later in life and also due to the fact that—even to this day in Persia—he was and is regarded as an unbeliever by all true Moslems. He is, as a matter of fact, much less well-known in his own country than abroad.

It is, however, known that he was born about 1050, lived chiefly in Nisapur in the district of Khorasan, that he was a brilliant mathematician and astronomer and that he was court astrologer to the Sultan Malikshah. The author has taken the knowledge available of contemporary figures and into their lives has woven that of Omar. A narrative results—to an extent an imaginative narrative—which brings to us all the beauty and the mysticism, as well as the treachery and the cruelty of the Medieval East.

After a youthful experience with war he carries on his studies. The favour and wealth of the sultan enable him to build The House of the Stars on the outskirts of Nisapur. Here he perfects the new Solar Calender which replaces the Lunar Calender then in use. He wrote treatises on algebra and geometry and studied other problems, "some of them impossible," he says. Although there is no direct proof that he believed the earth rotate there are reasons to show that he suspected it at least. It was this, together with the death of his patron, the Sultan, which caused his downfall. To teach that the earth moved was contrary to the Koran of Muhammed. It was a broken-hearted Omar whose books were forbidden from the academies and whose House of the Stars was despoiled and burned by the mob.

Then only does he become the man he is most generally thought of. It is true that he had previously written an occasional verse and had—contrary to the Koran—drunk wine. But now he definitely makes the decision:

To drain a gallon beaker, I design,
Yea, two great beakers, brimmed with richest wine;
Old faith and reason thrice will I divorce,
Then take to wife the daughter of the vine.

(Whinfield Version)

It is likely that in this latter part of his life, as he journeyed to and fro with caravans, that he wrote the quatrains. Finally he comes back to Nisapur and here his grave is as he had always wished . . . "it was just outside a garden, and the trees laden with fruit stretched their boughs over the garden wall, and dropped their flowers on his tomb so that the stone was hidden under them."

With the controversies of how far the Rubaiyat reflects the true Omar, or of how far the Fitzgerald version is fantasy we shall not concern ourselves. For these the reader is referred to that excellent edition of The Rubaiyat by Thomas Wilson & Sons containing translations by E. H. Whinfield and J. H. McCarthy, as well as Fitzgerald.

$10,000 PRIZE NOVEL.

Candy. — By L. M. Alexander (Dodd, Mead & Co., Toronto).

With this story of negro life on a plantation in North Carolina, Mrs. Alexander won the $10,000 prize donated by the publishers of the book. It is told against a background of ever-menacing depression which threatens and finally is the indirect cause of the break-up of their lives.

The central character is Candy — a young negress—who has had several loves—but as she herself claims never more than one at a time. Her life is divided between her love for her child, Georgia Belle, her loyalty to "The Big House" and her hatred of Dick Clay, the child's father. The story opens with the latter's return from the north with glowing tales of easy money and leisure in Harlem. In spite of Candy's efforts, several of the helpers leave the plantation for the north. Her troubles are further increased by the marriage of her daughter to a worthless negro.

The simple touches of negro life and ideas are extremely well done. There are practically no descriptions of the persons—we have one fleeting picture only of Candy as "a young woman who flashed into view in a sky-blue frock and a gold-coloured kerchief bound about her head. She stepped lightly towards the clothes-line, her long bright earbobs swinging in merry usison with her carefree movements."

Mrs. Alexander is a Southerner and has been able to present a vivid picture of the reactions of the negroes to the "march of progress" and their final surrender to the enticements of the city over the life beside the Savannah River.

There are six full-page portraits and also end-papers done by Rockwell Kent in his characteristically bold and clear styles.

OTHER NEW BOOKS.

The Wolves, by Guy Mazeline (Macmillan, Toronto)—a translation of the French book which won the Goncourt prize.

The Peel Trait, by Joseph C. Lin. coln (Ryerson Press, Toronto). Another yarn by this well-known author.

Holy Deadlock (Doubleday, Doran, Toronto). A. P. Herbert has here a story which carries beneath the surface a protest against the present English divorce laws.

Honor Bound, by Faith Baldwin (Gundy, Toronto). A modern story.

Good-bye, Mr. Chips, by James Hilton (McClelland and Stewart, Toronto). Here is a truly delightful book of reminiscences of an English schoolmaster who taught in the same school through three generations.

The President Vanishes. Anonymous (Farrar and Rinehart, New York). A story of what might happen if the President of the U. S. A. were kidnapped or disappeared just prior to a war crisis.

Lady Haddington And Daughter

Here is a beautiful portrait study of the Countess of Haddington and her infant daughter, Lady Mary Baillie-Hamilton. Lady Haddington is the former Miss Sarah Cook, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Cook, of Montreal. She is also a sister of the Countess of Minto. Lord and Lady Haddington were married in Montreal in 1923 and Mary, their first child, was born this year. They live for the most part in Scotland in Lord Haddington's lovely Berkshire seat, Mellerstain.

PHILADELPHIA, October 6. — Virginia Van Wie of Chicago pitted herself for her third successive United State golf championship yesterday, when she defeated Mrs. Glenna Collett Vare, five times former titleholder, 3 up and 2 to play, in the semi-final round of the thirty-eighth tournament.

Between her and a place in the golf hall of immortals, with Beatrix Hoyt, Alexa Stirling Fraser (now of Ottawa) and Mrs. Vare, each of whom has won the title three straight years, is an amazing 20-year-old girl from the Pacific Coast, Dorothy Traung.

Equalling women's par for 16 holes, Miss Traung, who took up golf five years ago, stamped out the title aspirations of Mrs. Opal Hill of Kansas City by exactly the same score that Miss Van Wie triumphed, and with one less stroke.

Council Gives Grant To Alnwick Society

ROSENEATH, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular meeting of the Alnwick township council was held in the town hall on Saturday afternoon, with all members present and Reeve J. Wesley Pacey in the chair.

Communications were read from the Hydro Electric Power Co., received and filed.

On motion by Harry Mouncey, seconded by William Murphy that the council give a grant of $125.00 to the Agricultural Society—carried.

Moved by Barton Thackeray, seconded by Edward George that the council renew the insurance of the township hall and a further motion, the following accounts were paid. The Municipal World supplies, $1.38; renewal of insurance to M. Davey for township hall, $15.00; expenses to Board of Health $10.00, making a total of $26.38.

A motion was carried that the reeve sign the Overseer's pay sheet.

The council will meet again on Saturday, October 27, at 1:30 o'clock, p.m.

THE
HAS NO HOME

HAVE you ever felt a sudden leaping of the heart when ducks come rushing through the wrack of a northeast storm?...or a strange yearning at the sound of their babbling high against the Autumn moon? Moving southward...moving to new feeding grounds...free in the vast spaces that stretch from the Arctic to the Equatorial Zone!

But the wild duck has no home. And your instinctive feeling at the sound of his rushing movement is not so much a desire to follow him away as it is to bag him...to bring him to pot, as the keen hunger of Autumn days warns you the time has come to prepare for Winter.

The wild duck is not so free as man. Hunted from marshland and bay, he is driven from one precarious resting place to another, forever on the move, forever in danger.

In Autumn the instinct of man is to dig in. It is primitive instinct, for the chief enemies of man are the forces of nature. He survives only because he is foresighted. He has the ability and the means to look ahead and prepare for storms.

Instead of being forced forth to search the world for the things we need, the world brings us its best offerings.

SPLENDID RECORD BEEN ACHIEVED BY 60-YR.-OLD MARMORA CHURCH

History and Progress of the Village is Closely Associated With St. Paul's Anglican Church and Its Endeavors.

MARKS ANNIVERSARY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, October 6. — Sixty years ago, one of the most auspicious events in the religious history of Marmora took place. On Sept. 1, 1874, on land situate in a commanding position in this beautiful Ontario village, honored brethren of the Masonic Order added another to the craft's long distinguished record of ceremonies in connection with the erection of ecclesiastical edifices.

The corner stone of the first and only Anglican church to grace the village, and to be later dedicated to St. Paul, was well and truly laid by Right Wor. Bro. S. S. Lazier, of Belleville, D.D.G.M., that year, of the Prince Edward district. For this ceremony, Mrs. Mulloy (nee Minnie Bleecker, and sister of Mr. C. A. Bleecker) presented the presiding official with a silver trowel, which bore the inscription, "Presented to Right Wor. Bro. S. S. Lazier, D.D.G.M., by the ladies of Marmora on the occasion of his laying the corner stone of St. Paul's Church, Marmora, Sept. 1, 1874." Mrs. Mulloy resides to-day in Los Angeles, California.

One of the two lots which were to constitute the property of St. Paul's, was donated by the Cotsworth, Peterborough and Marmora Railway and Mining Company. The other lot was purchased for the sum of fifty dollars from the same company. On April 11, 1874, the money was furnished for the deeds. W. P. Chambles was the managing director of the company, and David Bentley was their Marmora agent. Towards the purchase of the second lot, the following men subscribed ten dollars each: Solomon Johns, William Leonard, David Fitchett, David Bentley, and A. W. Carscallen. All these entered into rest practically with the passing of the last century.

Stone Quarried Close By.

The stone for the erection of the church was quarried on the west side of the Crowe River, slightly south of the bridge, whose western end adjoined the property of Marmoras first sacred edifice, the old Roman Catholic church. As funds were low, the completion of the tower of St. Pauls was deferred for about ten years, when a young English-born mason was employed to quarry and dress the stone.

The bell was provided through a subscription taken up by Charles Bleecker, and extended a short distance to its desired length through a canvass made by the late Miss Frances S. Jones. In course of time other church furnishings were added. The church received the gift of a beautifully carved reading desk from Charles Vissard and James McCluskey, artistically carved, some panels, to further adorn the altar.

Other Improvements

The present pulpit replaced the former one as the result of a subscription raised by the late Miss Frances S. Jones. A new clergy stall in memory of the late Thomas Campion was placed in the chancel. Its inscription reads: "To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Thomas Campion, who entered into rest, Jan. 20th, 1908, aged 76 years. The memory of the just is blessed." In the north wall of the church, a memorial window was paced with the following inscription: "There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God."

"To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Ezekiel D. Boyd, 1830-1909, Mary, his wife, 1833-1898. Alexander, their son, 1865-1896."

The window depicts Christ with the cup of blessing.

The Crompton and Boyd families were among the most regular attendants at St. Paul's.

Generous Gifts

In 1910, the church was beautifully carpeted through the munificence of Mrs. Grace Deacon. Eleven years later, Mrs. J. Douglas Wells of Montreal, cousin of the late Canon Harris, donated the cross which now adorns the altar. Its inscription runs: "To the glory of God, and in loving memory of Mary H. Harris, 1907, and J. Douglas Wells, 1920.

On January 15, 1933, in the presence of a large and representative congregation congregation Bishop Lyons unveiled and dedicated a handsome memorial window which was placed in the east in memory of the late Canon Charles Mountain Harris, who was called to higher service on March 13th, 1932. This window depicts Christ as the Good Shepherd, and is suitably inscribed. "What is the history of the Anglican Church in this period?" The younger generation and newer residents may enquire. Briefly it is this:

History is Lost.

Prior to the erection of St. Paul's, services of Anglican and Methodist ritual were alternately held in the old Town Hall. Much history of that period has been lost, because there was no weekly paper at that time, and practically speaking, no one kept a diary.

Each of the religious denominations represented in the village population was blessed with members who revealed a sturdy type of Christianity, and they had a friendliness, which one writer says, passed with them.

Among the ardent workers for the Anglican cause, was the late Miss A. H. Bentley, who established the first Sunday school in the village almost eighty years ago.

Earliest Services

The earliest Anglican services that could be recalled, by old worshippers in recent years, were those conducted somewhat irregularly by the Rev. Groves. The advent of the Rev. James Preston to the parish of Stirling, resulted in Anglicans of Marmora having a monthly service, which was maintained successively by the Rev Henry Edward Massey Baker and the Rev. George Grout.

Stories great and inspiring of those early church activities have been passed down to posterity to inspire the ardent of to-day in their labors. A short while after the completion of the church, when the Rev. J. Godden of Stirling was in charge of the services, the Rev. J. E. Halliwell was instrumental in the appointment of the Rev. Charles Mountain Harris as Marmora's first resident rector. No one foresaw with this appointment the long record of Christian devotion and service that was to ensue after forty-four years of diligent labor in this corner of the Master's vineyard, the life of saintly mould entered the far serener clime.

Daughter Churches.

It was not, however, before he had seen two daughter churches—St. Mark's, Rawdon, and Holy Trinity, North Marmora—erected in his original parish. He also saw St. Paul's Ladies' Guild organized to become a real asset to the church. A few months passed and there came to the mourning parish the announcement that Bishop Bidwell's choice of a successor had fallen upon the Rev. Philip Caiger-Watson, then stationed in North Dakota.

Throughout his rectorship, the activities of the parish were well sustained and augmented to include a branch of the A.Y.P.A. The parish also became self supporting and the rectory was built adjacent to the church.

In November 1926, Rev. P. Caiger-Watson accepted the offer of the livnig of Antrim in the diocese of Ottawa. Within a few weeks Bishop Seager announced that the Rev. Arthur Bell Caldwell, rector of Wyebridge, in the diocese of Toronto, had been appointed rector. During the eight years that have since passed, the activities of the parish have not only been maintained but have still further broadened out.

Sunday School Growth.

The Sunday school has attained to the greatest average attendance in its history and for four years, a Men's Club has supplied a long felt need.

To the members of the St. Paul's congregation of to-day, one feels that the words of the text chosen by Bishop Lyons as he delivered the fiftieth anniversary sermon should still have deepest significance, "The lot is fallen unto me in a fair ground; yea, I have a good heritage," Psalm 16.7, Prayer Book version.

With the recall to memory of the lives of many dutiful souls who now rest from their labours undertaken for St. Paul's and its services, comes also the remembrance of the hymn verse used in the same sermon as the Bishop touched upon comprehensiveness in the conceptilon of the church—

"One family, we dwell in Him.
One church above, beneath,
Though now divided by the stream,
The narrow stream of death."

1935 CATALOGUES, PART III.

To make a complete analysis of prices throughout the new catalogues would necessitate too lengthy a discussion, so I am attempting to touch on stamps of Canada only.

Last week we illustrated four designs of our official Air Mail stamps and price comparisons between Scott and Gibbons may be of interest to you.

Scott prices the two five-cent values at eight cents each, mint, the same used. The two six-cent values are down at nine cents each, mint, the same used. Gibbons' prices show considerable difference. The two five-cent stamps are prices at fivepence each, mint, but the first type, that of 1928, is priced at fourpence used, while the second type, 1930, is priced at ninepence, used.

This is actually a proper ratio of their scarcity in used condition, although both stamps may still be obtained at the Philatelic Agency in Ottawa at their face value; the 1930 five-cent stamp is far more scarce, used, than mint. It may be recalled that at that time we had little if any air mail service and thus we find legitimately used copies of the then current air mail stamp exceptionally scarce.

Gibbons' prices on the two six-cent airs are as follows: One now current, six cents surcharged on the first five-cent type, sixpence mint, the same used. Actually the stamp is more scarce used than mint, as it may still be bought at any post-office.

The six-cent Ottawa Conference air mail is priced at sixpence, mint, and one shilling threepence used. This is a true valuation for the stamp in used condition, if used at the time it was actually current.

From these comparisons it may be seen that any catalogue should not be taken as being infallible. This is only one instance, but there are hundreds of similar cases scattered throughout the entire Scott's catalogue, and undoubtedly the same conditions will be found among stamps of other countries in Gibbons' but possibly the latter book will give the collector a truer picture of stamp values as they actually exist today.

We are, none of us free from errors, and there may be some reason for those found in the new Scott catalogue, which this year has received more criticism and condemnation than formerly. So many collectors use this volume as a price basis for buying stamps, from which they will not swerve, that obvious discrepancies might materially dampen their philatelic ardor.

The wise collector will not take catalogue prices too seriously, some of which appear far too low and others too high. In a general way, I believe, when buying stamps you should not haggle over only securing 25 per cent. discount on this or that stamp, and then snap up the next one because you believe it a bargain at 75 per cent. discount. Make a little more careful and broad-minded study of stamps and prices, you will probably find that in the end you will get full value for your money, with no worries over large or small discounts. The man who consistently holds out for large discounts loses in the long run.

Over-catalogued stamps must eventually drop in price to their true level, while those under-catalogued are bound to go up to where they belong, sooner or later.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point.—Wheat, 90c to 93c; oats, 33c to 35c; barley, 46c to 48c; corn, 92c to 94c; rye, 50c to 52c; buckwheat, 43c to 45c; malting barley, 65c to 67c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Invigorated by liberal new export business in Canadian wheat, and by strength of securities at New York, grain values scored material fresh advances yesterday.

Cables said tremendous forced wheat market liquidation from Europe appeared to be finished, and added that holdings of cash wheat abroad were believed to be in strong hands now, with indications of a gradual advance of prices. It was estimated 1,000,000 bushels or more of wheat from Canada had been bought yesterday for shipment overseas, and there were also reports considerable domestic hard winter wheat would be moved out of Chicago shortly to the East.

Wheat closed firm, ⅝c to 1c over Thursday's finish; December, new, 97⅞ to 97½; corn, ⅝ to ⅝c up, December, new, 74⅞ to 75c; oats, ⅛c to 1c advanced, and provisions showing 25c to 32c gain.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Butter was fractionally higher in price and New Brunswick Mountain potatoes advanced on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19¾c to 19¾c a pound in carlots or less, up ⅛ cent. Small lots to retailers brought 20½ cents a pound for solids and 21½ cents for prints. Receipts were 568 boxes.

The cheese market was unchanged, quotations being 10¼ cents a pound for Ontario colored and 10 cents a pound for Ontario White, while Quebec colored sold at 10 cents a pound and Quebec White 9¾ cents a pound. Arrivals totalled 4,189 boxes.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were again 30c to 31c a dozen for A-large, 28c to 29c for A-medium, 21c to 22c for B and 19c to 20c for C. Receipts totalled 960 cases.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 6. — Aided by a 500,000-bushel export business and lightness of offerings wheat prices averaged higher on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, closing with gains of 1⅛c to 1⅝c.

A little selling in the closing minutes lopped fractions from top levels. October wheat closed at 97⅛c, December at 79⅝c, and May at 88⅝c.

Aside from foreign purchasing, operations were only routine in character. Hedging pressure was light and other offerings were of little account.

Trading was active at the start, but after the first half-hour settled down to a steady pace with a fair volume of wheat changing hands.

Cash grains spreads were unchanged to one cent ahead and coarse grains gained with wheat.

TURKEYS QUOTED 25 CENTS POUND

Geese Plentiful at 18 Cents and Chickens 18 and 19.

With their Thanksgiving dinners in mind, patrons at the Farmers' Market this morning found turkeys selling at 25 cents per pound. The birds were not as plentiful as in other years. Fearing losses from spoilage due to the warm turn in the weather, farmers cautiously avoided overestimating the demand in bringing their fowl to town. Near the end of the morning, a few remaining turkeys went at 20 and 22 cents per pound.

Geese were plentiful at 18 cents, and chicken broilers sold at 18 and 19 cents. Butter ranged from 20 to 25 cents.

Mid-morning downpours slowed up business for the garden produce vendors on the outside market. The last of the season's corn was to be had at 15 cents a dozen; vendors declaring it to be as tender as the July offerings. There were lots of cauliflowers at 5 cents each; carrots, three bunches for 10 cents, and celery at 10 cents a large bunch. Six-quart baskets of pickling beets sold at 25 cents and quart baskets of fine large tomatoes at 10 cents.

Potatoes brought 75 cents per bag.

UPHOLD KAWARTHA.

At a conference to be held at Ottawa early in November, under auspices of the Canadian Travel Bureau, J. J. Dorris, secretary of Peterborough Chamber of Commerce, is to uphold the claims of the Kawartha district as a happy stamping ground for tourists. He has been appointed by the executive of the Chamber of Commerce to attend the meeting, at which are to be represented all associations in the Dominion interested in the promotion and development of tourist traffic.

MEMBERSHIP DRIVE.

Peterborough Chamber of Commerce membership drive which is still being pursued under the direction of Charles Shaw, chairman of the Membership committee, is reported by J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber to be progressing favourably. In conjunction with the membership campaign the Chamber is also seeking support for the activities fund, and Mr. Dorris intimated that the wholehearted support of the manufacturers and merchants is solicited.

DIDN'T KNOW CAUSE

"We haven't heard yet. It was something outside", Ross L. Dobbin, general manager of Peterborough Utilities Commission stated, commenting on the general power shut-down that brought Peterborough industry to a fifteen minute halt at nine o'clock this morning.

DISPLAY FLAGS

Merchants and manufacturers are requested to display their bunting on Monday and Tuesday as a gesture of courtesy to the delegates to the nineteenth annual meeting of the Canadian Cavalry Association. Prominent cavalry officers from all parts of the Dominion will start to arrive in the city on Sunday afternoon, and the officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, who are guests to the convention ask the co-operation of merchants and others in making the event a success by displaying flags from their places of business.

Chinese government finances are reported to be improving.

CANADIAN CAVALRY ASSOCIATION WILL MEET HERE ON THE HOLIDAY

Third Prince of Wales Dragoons Will be Hosts to the Convention.

FORMED IN 110.

A distinguished company of cavalry officers from all parts of the Dominion, including a holder of the Victoria Cross in the person of Lieut-Colonel G. R. Pearkes who will represent National Defence Headquarters, will gather here over the holiday for the 19th annual meeting of the Canadian Cavalry Association.

The two-day convention opens on Monday morning with a meeting of the council at Empress Hotel, followed by a civic luncheon at which the official delegates are to be the guests of the city.

Hosts to the convention are the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons under command of Lieut-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, and the committee responsible for drawing up the program have done everything possible to ensure the success of the event.

Monday afternoon delegates to the convention are to undertake a trip over the lift locks on the SS Bessie Butler, and are to be conducted on a tour of the main points of interest in and around the city. On returning to the Armouries tea will be served in the Dragoons Mess, and in the evening the delegates will be the guests of the officers of the local unit at dinner in the Armouries. A dance will follow the dinner.

Tuesday morning business sessions will be resumed at the Armouries in the Dragoons Mess, and after the morning session the delegates will be the guests of the president of the association, Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., at Kawartha Country Club, where luncheon is to be partaken.

After the close of the afternoon sessions, the big closing items of the program will include, the annual dinner of the association at Empress Hotel followed by the Yahoo Challenge Cup match, which is the annual competition between east and west. The contest, which is to be staged in the Armouries, is stated to hold something in the nature of a surprise for the delegates.

Formed in 1910

The Canadian Cavalry Association was formed in 1910 at the "brush-up" course at Stanley Barracks, and Lieut-Colonel G. H. Syer former O.C. of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, was one of the original members of the Association. The first annual meeting of the association was held on February 11, 1911 at Ottawa, and included in the delegates to that convention was Major T. D. Johnston, father of Lieut-Colonel T. D. Johnston, former O.C., of the Dragoons.

Delegates to the convention will include: President Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., Montreal; Past President Colonel R. F. Stockwell, V.D., Provincial Treasurer of Quebec; Colonel P. J. Montague, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., V.D., Judge King's Bench Manitoba; Colonel E. J. Mooney, V.D., St. John's, N.B.; Immediate Past President Colonel H. C. A. Hervey, V.D., Midnapore, Alberta; Hon. Treasurer Colonel F. B. Inkster, V.D., Ottawa; Lieut-Colonel G. M. Endacott, V.D., Vancouver, representing Reserve of Officers Western Canada; Lieut-Colonel W. L. Oliver, M.C., Edmonton, member of the executive; Lieut-Colonel R. B. Crouch, E.D., London; Lieut-Colonel P. L. Johnston, D.C.M., Danville, Quebec; Lieut-Colonel E. A. Devitt, V.D., Ottawa; Major H. S. Packman, Lloydminster, Saskatchewan; Major H. F. Smith, Vancouver; Lieut-Colonel C. H. M. Anderson, O.B.E., representing Reserve of Officers Eastern Canada; Major J. D. Fraser, Ottawa, representing Military District No. 3; Major G. H. T. Ruttee, Wolfville, N. S., member of the executive; Lieut-Colonel N. King Wilson, V. D., Toronto; Lieut-Colonel L. W. Miller, Bebee, Quebec; Capt. G. F. Bertesu, Toronto representing the Permanent Force Cavalry; Lieut-Colonel R. T. Hall, V.D., Paris, Ont.; Major J. W. Bain, Prescott; Past President Colonel R. M. Courtney, V.D., Ottawa; Lieut-Colonel G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., representing National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa; Colonel W. B. Anderson, C.M.G., D.S.O., District Officer Commanding; Lieut-Colonel C. E. Connolly, D.S.O., Kingston; Major H. L. Salmon, M.C., Kingston.

Officers of the guest unit are: Lieut-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, O. C., Majors M. R. Sloan, E. G. Johnston, H. G. Mason, A. R. MacNab; Captains E. F. Sheehy, D. A. Loomis, M.C., C. H. Cutmore, S. Y. Walsh, J. D. Paterson; Lieutenants A. M. Johnston, R. R. Stewart, B. B. Dawson, R. J. Payne, A. F. Johnston, A. H. Newman, B. E. Knight, R. E. Rothwell, C. S. Hughes, R. E. Sutton, H. W. Cardwell, R. H. McClellan, H. C. McLeod, J. D. Fanning, W. A. Rothwell, A. E. Chalmers, and Lieut-Colonels T. J. Johnston, V.D., and H. W. Powell, V.D., former O.C's of the Dragoons.

Obituary

BABY O'KEEFE.

The death of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Keefe of this city took place yesterday after a short illness. Besides the parents, one brother survives.

Proceeding from the Duffus Funeral Parlors to St. Peter's Cemetery, the funeral was held this afternoon.

HUGH BAILEY.

Succumbing to a long illness, Hugh Bailey passed away at his home, 409 Bethune Street, at noon to-day. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Bailey was born near Marmora, and spent the greater part of his life in this district. Surviving him are his wife, three daughters: Mrs. Carl Condon and Miss Eva Bailey of Thorold, and Mrs. Fred. Johnston, Madoc, and a son, Edward Bailey, Marmora.

Arrangements for the funeral had not been completed this afternoon.

WEEK-BY-WEEK

Comparing 1930 and 1934

Will the ouput from Canadian automobile plants ever reach the height it attained in 1929 That question brings up the pleasing spectacle of more than a quarter of a million cars and trucks turned out in the year mentioned, but it also recalls the picture for the succeeding four years; and for 1931, 1932 and 1933, the total all rolled together didn't add up to a quarter of a million. But 1934 will awaken new hopes. At the first of September, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, automobiles produced numbered 103,102 — as compared with 50,861 for the same period last year; or as compared with 65,852 for the whole of 1933; 60,789 for the whole of 1932; 82,550 for the whole of 1931; and 153,372 for the whole of 1930. Not within striking distance of the 1930 total, it will be observed, but a great deal better than 1931. Sharp point is given to the meaning of such gratifying figures by C. E. McTavish, general sales manager of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, who, in a recent statement, said production of his company for the first eight months showed an increase of 105 per cent. (Increase for the whole industry in Canada, 103 per cent.) Mr. McTavish translated the percentage increase into figures the man in the street can understand, when he said the better selling year had meant an increase of 2,204,761 in the number of hours of work this year at the Oshawa and Walkerville factories of General Motors of Canada, Limited.

Standardizes Oldsmobiles

Red and White Cabs, Limited, of Vancouver, B.C., seeking to combine luxurious transportation for its taxi-cab customers with operating economy, recently selected Oldsmobile Sixes as the standard cars for their new 1934 fleet. Knee-action wheels; centre-control steering; ride stabilizer; and scientific engineering features which give the Oldsmobile Six its fine riding qualities and impressed the management as offering good values.

11,000 Miles in a Month

To sportsmen of other lands, there is often a thrill and a challenge in Canada's immensity. So much, at least, is indicated by the program laid out for themselves by David Beal and Oscar Browning, 2 young British yachtsmen who visited Toronto recently and carried off first honors in the fourteen-foot dingy races. Their yachting triumphs over, Beal and Browning felt the impulse to travel and were quick to act on call of Canada's far-flung highways. They bought a car and in less than a month covered 11,000 miles. The young Englishmen selected a Chevrolet Master Six from British & American Motors, Toronto; drove to Quebec to meet two chums from the Old Land; and then set out for the Pacific Coast by the Canadian route. Returning, they first went south to Los Angeles and then eastward via Death Valley and Yosemite Park.

Pedestrian Crossings

Touring the highways and by ways of Great Britain in search of ideas to check the number of accidents, the Minister of Transport Hon. Leslie Hore-Belisha, has not been able to evolve many new proposals. Among the recent departures in effort to curb fatalities are pedestrian crossings. These are marked with zigg-zagg white lines at busy intersections, and when pedestrians keep to the marked areas, they are fairly safe. However, efforts to confine the London citizens to the marked areas have not been successful. One city in Great Britain,—Sunderland—with 180,000 inhabitants, has been able to show a sheet clear of fatalities for 22 weeks. This is attributed by the chief constable to a persistent campaign of safety-first propaganda.

"Leisurely" Travel

William A. "Navy Bill" Ingram, head football coach of the University of California, has bought another Buick, says a story from Berkeley, Cal. The well-known mentor of the gridiron, who was a star football player in his Annapolis days, is no newcomer to the ranks of Buick owners, his first purchase having been made when he first went to Berkeley in 1931. Ingram's latest Buick acquisition is one of the popular series forty touring sedans with built-in trunk. He purchased the car and took deliver at the Buick factory in Flint, Mich. Before driving to California, he toured the East and visited relatives and cronies of former days when he was a famous footballer and coach on the Atlantic Coast. In coming home, Ingram drove his new Buick from Louisville, Kentucky, to Berkeley, a distance of 2329 miles in four days. He stated that he travelled in a leisurely fashion. When he did travel, however, he reports that he drove at high speeds and although the weather was extremely hot in the middle west, he experienced no trouble of any kind. Not even a stop was necessary for tires or the slightest adjustment to the Buick.

Trucks for the Troops

Delivery of 250 trucks to United States army posts in the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain states has been started by the Oakland plant of the Chevrolet Motor Company. Sixty-two convoy trucks and twelve dump trucks were delivered last week. The new army trucks are of 131-inch wheelbase, with dual wheel equipment. The convoy trucks, with tarpaulin tops, are fitted for the transport of troops or materials.

Adjournment was made without naming the next place of convention.

FAMILY STARVING BROKER KILLS SELF

Chicago Financier Takes Poison—Once Prosperous Business Man.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—"He did it because he was sick—and broke. We have even lacked food."

This explanation was given to the police Monday by his wife to account for the suicide of Samual J. Cerf, once a prosperous broker, who died at the Chicago Hospital after swallowing poison.

Cerf was found unconscious near the Illinois Central Railroad tracks at Forty-third street. A loaded rifle lay beside him. Police said it had not been fired recently.

In Cerf's pocket was a copy of a telegram addressed to his son in Newark, N.J., saying:

"Father desperately ill. Everything possible being done for him. You can do no more by coming. Will wire particulars. Sophie."

Sophie is Cerf's wife, mother of Arthur. She said:

"My husband probably wrote the telegram himself."

It is not known whether the message was actually sent.

Mrs. Cerf said:

"Since last Monday my husband had been out of his mind. I have been too worried to eat or sleep. He was desperate because we were so poor and getting poorer. We had to cut down on food and we couldn't buy any clothing at all. Once my husband was very prosperous. He was connected with the firm of his brother, Floyd D. Cerf, investments, 120 S. La Salle street.

Friends of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham of Gore's Landing, formerly of Millbrook and Peterborough, will be interested in learning that her song, "The Hills of Old Northumberland," has been sung in Cairo, Egypt. The following letter from Lieut. Col. J. C. Trench, Commander of the Northumberland Fusiliers of Northumberland, England, now stationed at Cairo, Egypt, is of interest in the district: "Citadel Barracks, Cairo, Egypt, September 10th, Dear Mrs. Bingham—I have only just a few days ago returned from England where I have been for the past four months and to-day I have received your letter and song, "The Hills of Old Northumberland."

"It is most kind of you to have written and sent me this song and directly our Band returns from Alexandria next week, I will give it to the Bandmaster and he will play it on our guest night. I am glad to hear that it has been such a success and I am sure that our men will like it and that it will be a popular marching song. I am glad to hear that it has been broadcasted.

"My wife and I very much enjoyed our visit to Canada two years ago and we so enjoyed meeting the officers of the Northumberland Regiment and the Elgin Regiment and their wives. They made us feel so much at home and gave us a great welcome. I feel that your song will strengthen the tie existing between the two regiments.

Again let me thank you very much for sending me the song and I shall write you again and tell you of its reception when we get our Band back."

Mr. John M. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Ward of McClennan Street, has resumed his studies in Theology at McMaster University, Hamilton. Mr. Ward, with his wife and child, is living this year at Mountsburg, about seventeen miles from Hamilton, and goes in daily for classes at the University. He supplied the pulpit at Mountsburg Baptist Church throughout the summer months, and will continue in that capacity during the winter. His brother, Mr. Fred M. Ward, has entered on his fourth year of study, also in Theology, at McMaster University. The last issue of the Canadian Baptist contains the following reference to Mr. Fred. Ward: "Anniversary services were observed in Bellfountain Church on Sunday, September 16th, commemorating the founding of the church in 1835. Dr. Harris MacNeill of McMaster University conducted the services, assisted by Mr. F. Ward, student-pastor. Exceptionally large congregations greeted Dr. MacNeill, both morning and evening. A male quartet from Brantford assisted the choir, and their delightful rendering of the simple Gospel songs was indeed most inspiring and enjoyable. The work of the church for the summer months has been most successful under Mr. F. Ward. Mr. Ward's influence has been felt in all organizations in connection with the church. At the close of the Young People's meeting on Friday evening last, the president, Mr. J. Tremble, Junior, expressed to Mr. Ward, on behalf of the society, the esteem, love and appreciation of the young people. Master Hubert Rowcliffe presented Mr. Ward with a purse of money. Mr. Ward expressed his appreciation of the gift and the sentiments voiced by the president, and also commended the young people for their fine co-operation. Mr. Ward returns to Hamilton to resume his studies at McMaster University."

Weddings

HAYWARD—IRONS

Murray street Baptist Church was the scene of a very pretty ceremony at one o'clock today, when the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe solemnized the wedding of Dorothy Frink, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Irons of 776 Water street, to Mr. Oliver John Hayward, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hayward of Hartley avenue.

The pulpit platform and baptistry were decorated with white asters and hydrangea, and the guest pews were marked off with white satin ribbons.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely long gown of white satin, tightly-fitting, with sleeves that puffed to the elbow and ended in a long tight cuff trimmed with small white satin buttons. The neckline was cowl-shaped, and a wide sash, commencing at the side fronts, was buckled at the back with brilliants. The left shoulder was ornamented with a cluster of white satin flowers.

A hem-length veil of white tulle, embroidered at the edges, was caught to the head with orange blossoms in Juliet cap effect.

Slippers of white satin with pale flesh-colored hose, and short white silk gloves with gauntlet cuffs of lace, completed the bride's outfit, with a necklace of pearls and a bouquet of shell-pink Butterfly roses.

The matron of honor, Mrs. John Berry, sister of the bride, was frocked in French blue satin under net. The high net neckline of the front of the bodice descended to a lower line at the back and the girdle was finished with a little peplum of ruffled net. Two cape ruffles made the sleeves of the gown. A large hat of blue satin was worn, with a bow of pink crepe trimming the under facing at the left side. Slippers of blue faille were accompanied by flesh-colored hose, and long gloves were of blue silk. A little muff of blue satin, to match the dress, was trimmed with French flowers in pink crepe.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marion Armstrong, was attired in similar fashion to the matron of honor, with contrasting colors. Her dress of shell-pink lace had short cape sleeves. Her hat of pink crepe was trimmed with a blue satin bow, and she wore slippers of pink faille and gloves of pink silk. Her little pink muff was trimmed with blue flowers.

Mr. Stanley Turner of Oshawa was best man and ushers were Mr. John Wray and Mr. Walter Cocks.

The wedding march was played by Mr. Arthur Collison, L.R.A.M., A.D.C.M., who also played softly during the ceremony, two organ solos, "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and the "Indian Love Call."

During the signing of the register, Miss Trucie Pearson sang very sweetly "I Love You Truly." She wore white crepe, with a hat of black velvet and a shoulderette of red Templar roses.

After the ceremony, a reception, attended by twenty-five of the relatives of the bridal party, was held at the home of the brides parents, where the bridal party was assisted in receiving by the parents of the bride and bridegroom.

Mrs. Irons was in navy blue triple sheer crepe, made with a lace yoke lined with pink and sleeves which were lace to the elbow and finished with a tight cuff. She wore a hat of blue silk crepe, black slippers and a corsage bouquet of mid-pink Briarcliff roses.

Mrs. Hayward wore a fawn ensemble with matching, orange-trimmed hat, and corsage of golden Talisman roses.

A dainty wedding repast was served at a table done in pink and white, with pink and white asters, pink tapers in silver candlesticks and the bride's cake.

Assisting in serving were Miss Marjorie, Miss Edna Forster and Miss Alice Cocks.

Mr. Hayward and his bride left later by motor for a honeymoon trip, the latter travelling in a tailored dress of brown crepe with large bow across the bodice. Her brown felt hat had an orange feather mount, her coat was of brown flecked tweed with a scarf collar, and she wore brown accessories.

On their return, they will live at 402 McDonnell street.

ELMY—KNIGHT.

TWEED, Oct. 6.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—A wedding was solemnized at St. Paul's Anglican church, Roslin, when Doris Ada Knight of Deseronto, became the bride of Russell Thomas Elmy, of Roslin. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. James Bushell of Roslin. The ceremony was performed by the rector, Rev. F. C. Beaser.

The young couple will reside near Roslin.

HEAD—ROUTLY.

The wedding was solemnized quietly at one o'clock to-day by the Rev. C. D. Daniel, at the parsonage of Mark Street United Church, of Dorothy May, daughter of Mrs. Mabel Routly of London Street and the late Mr. W. J. Routly, to Mr. George Head, son of Mr. William Head and the late Mrs. Head.

Attendants were Miss Myrtle Campion and Mr. Max Clark.

The bride wore a dress of brown travel tweed, with brown hat and matching accessories. Her corsage bouquet was of golden Talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Head will reside in Peterborough.

EPHGRAVE—LLOYD

A quiet wedding took place this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. McConnell of 263 Dalhousie street, when Ada May, the oldest daughter of Mr. Walter Lloyd and the late Mrs. Lloyd were united in marriage to Donald, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ephgrave, the Rev. G. E. Tyler of Park Street Baptist Church officiating.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. J. McConnell. Immediately after the ceremony a dainty buffet luncheon was served to the immediate friends.

Mr. Ephgrave and his bride left on a motor trip and on their return will reside in Peterborough.

DELMERE—MOREAU.

TWEED, Oct. 6.—(Examiner Correspondence.) — At Our Lady of Lourdes church, Toronto, Master Gordon and Master Al. Delmere assisted the nuptial mass at the wedding of the ir brother, Mr. Joseph L. Delmere to Miss Mary Cecelia Moreau, formerly of Tweed.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. E. Moreau and the late Mr. Simon Moreau of Tweed, and the groom is the son of Mrs. C. Delmere and the late Mr. Thomas Delmere. Father Gallagher, assisted by Father Casey, and Father Hodgins, performed the ceremony, and Mr. Trembly played the wedding music.

Mr. Thomas Armstrong gave the bride away. She wore a russet brown chiffon gown, made on long tight lines, a matching turban of velvet and net, and carried yellow roses and baby's breath. She was attended by Miss Loretta Moreau, who wore a gown of midnight velvet with match accessories and carried roses and lily-of-the-valley. The best man was Mr. Frank Delmere and the usher was Mr. K. Smith, uncle of the groom.

Following the wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Delmere left for a motor trip through the States, and on their return will reside in Toronto.

RIVERS—CASSIDY.

TWEED, Oct. 6.—(Examiner Correspondence.)—St. Edmund's church, Stoco, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, when Cecelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cassidy, Stoco, became the bride of Mr. Louis Rivers, of Bogart, Rev. D. A. Cullinane officiating.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and wore a light blue crepe gown with white hat, shoes and gloves to match. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Violet Cassidy of Kingston, who wore a brown silk crepe dress with hat, shoes and gloves to match. Mr. Philip Rivers, brother of the groom, was groomsman.

After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, about forty guests being present. Later in the afternoon left on a wedding trip to Niagara Buffalo and New York. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Rivers will reside on their farm in Bogart.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

When children have gone away to boarding or preparatory schools, or older ones have resumed college life, it often happens that parents find themselves alone again, just as they were, in matter of numbers, when they began housekeeping. Then their interests were centered in the novel undertaking, and the adjustment to the adventure into the new life and constant companionship of natures different from those of their own homes. It was a time of happy dependence upon each other, of enthusiasm over what later seemed like unimportant things, but which were so momentous then. Life was comparatively simple at that time, viewed from the present distance of many years of homelike and the intervening exigencies of raising a family.

* * * * * * *

THE OLD AND NEW LIFE

While it is impossible to go back to the old life, although the two are again alone together, the parents have to be sufficient unto themselves in the absence of their family. Lonesome, the home will certainly seem at first after the exodus of the children especially where there are several children each of whom had its group of playmates and friends, who frequented the house. In the by-gone days there was no occasion for loneliness as each of the adults was engrossed with the other before the children came. To offset any prolonged lonesome element the parents have again to resume their two-some sufficiency, plus the communications through correspondence with the young folk. By these letters the pleasures and the problems of their family are revealed for father's and mother's share in them of happiness only, or of advice and resolutions.

* * * * * * *

RENEWED COMPANIONABLE LIFE

It is the renewed life together without daily contacts with the other members of the family that is important to parents now. Sometimes these interims become precious to these two people who find time to devote themselves exclusively to each other, and who delight in making happy plans for re-unions of the family during vacations. Such pleasant times can only exist when parents are satisfied with the school plans of their offspring, and are congenially companionable with each other. Little courtesies and attentions again assume the old-time importance. Life may have many problems, far more than in the early years of marriage, but the fact that mutual love and interest have carried the two along over the previous rough places gives a certain feeling of stability for themselves and for the lives of their children committed to their care.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

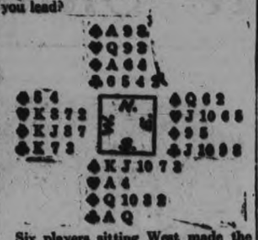
WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

MAKING THE BEST OPENING LEAD.

The subject of making the best opening lead cannot be stressed too strongly. Frequently there is only one lead which will defeat a contract. Where the best lead does not secure a penalty for the defenders, at least it makes things as difficult as possible for the declarer.

The following hand was played in the 11-table duplicate game. In each case South played the hand for 4 spades, not vulnerable, but doubled at 6 tables. The opening lead was the important feature. Which card would you lead?



Six players sitting West made the proper opening lead of a trump. In each instance the contract was defeated. Some players sitting South lost a heart, 2 diamonds and 1 club trick. Some lost a heart and 3 diamond tricks, but all of them failed to fulfill their game contracts.

At a single table West led the 7 of clubs, giving the declarer 2 tricks in that suit, and permitting him to go game, with a loss of a single heart and 2 diamonds.

Three West players opening leads were a fourth-best heart. In each case the declarer went game, losing either 3 diamonds or 2 diamonds and 1 club.

A single West player led a fourth-best diamond. The declarer's 10 won the trick. He took 3 rounds of winning spades, pulling all opposing trumps, then he led his ace of hearts, followed by a small card of that suit, losing his first trick to the K of hearts. West had let go a heart on the third round of trumps. He put dummy in the lead with his last remaining heart. South discarded his lowest diamond.

Dummy led a low club. Declarer's Ace won. Two rounds of spades were led. West discarded a diamond on the first and a club on the second, leaving him only the K of clubs and the K-J of diamonds for his last 3 cards. Dummy held a low club and the A-6 of diamonds. Declarer held the lone Q of clubs and the Q-3 of diamonds. West was put in with his top club, giving him his second trick, but he had then to lead a diamond, giving the declarer the last 2 tricks, or a trick over his contract.

Before Monday look over the hands. See if South could have gone game against an opening lead of a spade.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Some of the most important and brilliant research work in modern medicine has been done with so little publicity that it has gained no recognition outside the profession. A case in point is the splendid work of Dr. J. C. Aub and his associates on the treatment of lead poisoning.

They planned a systematic study of the subject, and determined first that lead is absorbed best through the lungs. They were able to obtain very little absorption when leaded vapors were breathed.

Then they set out to answer a question that has puzzled all workers on the problem. Lead is a cumulative poison. A man will work with lead for a long time, absorption certainly going on, as shown by the blood, and yet have no symptoms of poisoning. Then suddenly he will develop colic, neuritis, stupor—the whole list. Why is this?

There must be a place where the lead is stored in the body. There is. The storehouse was found to be the bony skeleton. Lead comes to rest in the hard part of the bones, and when they are full and can absorb no more, it begins to cause symptoms. Or when some chemical change in the body causes the lead in the bones to be thrust out into the circulation, the same thing happens.

What are these chemical changes which reverse the process of absorption? The bones, of course, also absorb calcium, and under certain circumstances give it up to the circulation. Dr. Aub and his fellow workers wondered if the absorption of calcium affected the absorption or the release of lead. They found that it did, and that when calcium storage is prevented (by reducing the calcium in the diet) the lead is released from the bones.

The release and absorption of lead from the bones is a curious thing. The body of a person who is leaded is alternately flooded and drained of lead as the bones give it up, and then take it back.

Certain things will hasten this release, Starvation, for instance. The natural suggestion was that in starvation an acidosis exists. Dr. Aub found that if he induced an acidosis in the body with such a drug as ammonium chloride, for instance, he could speed up the release of lead from the bones.

These discoveries have an immediate practical application. The cure of lead poisoning can be accomplished by removing the stored lead in the bones. This is done by using a diet low in calcium, which for practical purposes means a diet without milk, eggs and vegetables, and the production of a slightly acid balance in the blood and tissues by the use of ammonium chloride.

"Dear Miss Glad: Some time ago I read in a magazine that cuticle remover could be used to remove small callouses from the hands. I've forgotten the exact procedure now, but would like to try it. Could you tell me the proper method of doing this?
JINNY"

The process you refer to is very simple. Dip a cotton-tipped orange stick into some good cuticle remover, and touch it to the calloused spots. After a moment make a second application of the cuticle remover, and a little later, a third application. Then wash your hands in soapy water, letting them soak a bit, and when drying them, rub the towel briskly over the callosities. You'll find that this will help to remove all the deadened skin. And as the final step, use a good hand lotion to counteract any drying effects and to keep your hands soft and satin smooth.

"Dear Miss Glad: Here I am back again—and you shouldn't be surprised. You see, I followed that reducing course in your 'New Figure' booklet and lost 30 pounds through it. I look so much better now, and am firmly convinced of your abilities. At present, I want to know about eyewashes. Do they really help to keep the eyes clear and bright? And if so, could you suggest a good one for my use?
CAROL"

Eyewashes do indeed help to keep the eyes clear and sparkling. They remove any accumulated particles of dust and grime that may make the eyes inflamed and bloodshot, and they soothe and rest the eyes at the same time. A boric acid solution is the most commonly advised of eyewashes. To prepare it, one teaspoon of the boric acid should be dissolved in a glass of tepid, sterilized water. Another eyewash that is safe and effective is boiled water to which a very little salt has been added. The plain water tends to cause a smarting that the salt allays. It has the same effect as tears, the natural eyewash.

"Dear Miss Glad: Every year, it seems, when the weather gets the least bit cool, I begin to suffer with cold feet. My toes simply freeze when there's the least drop in temperature, and it's annoying. Is there anything that can be done to remedy cold feet?
RUTHIE"

Cold feet usually indicate decidedly poor circulation. General circulation improvement must be sought if the condition is to be remedied. Cold showers are effective for this purpose. Cold water dousings after a warm foot bath, followed by brisk rubbing will help to stir up the circulation in the feet, too. Also, take deep-breathing exercises when you arise, and get plenty of exercise and fresh air daily, to normalize the circulation in your entire body. And be sure to wear roomy shoes, so that the circulation of the blood in your feet will be in no way restricted.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

Household Hints

Menu Hint
Onion Soup
Toasted Whole Wheat Bread
Tuna Fish Salad
Floating Island Coffee

Nothing so good on a cool night as a dish of good hot soup. For the salad use a mixture of tuna fish, flaked; celery cabbage, cucumber, radishes, apple and tomato, moisten with salad dressing, and serve on lettuce.

Today's Recipes

Onion Soup.—Four large, mild onions, two tablespoons butter, three cups prepared bouillon, four slices bread, one-fourth cup grated cheese. Slice the onions and saute in the butter, melted in a heavy saucepan. Cook over a low heat until onions are tender, but not brown, about ten minutes. Add bouillon and simmer twenty minutes. Toast bread on one side, sprinkle other with grated cheese, toast slightly in a hot oven. Place a slice of cheese toast in each soup plate or cup, pour piping hot soup over it and serve immediately.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

This is Fire Prevention Week—Do Your Part to Reduce Peterborough's Fire Losses

All property owners were urged to rid their premises of the dead grass and brush still standing from last year in a statement by Fire Chief George Gimblett to-day. As soon as Spring comes, the chief pointed out, these dead growths dry out and they may be ignited by any chance spark such as a carelessly thrown cigarette or by any of many other ways.

Chief Gimblett went on to say that most citizens regard grass fires as of little consequence. Quite the contrary is true since fire in dead grass and brush travels quickly and may easily spread to homes, garages and other buildings before firemen are called. High winds in the spring time help greatly to spread the fire, carrying sparks into grass that may be some distance from the original outbreak of fire.

The Chief appealed to citizens to co-operate by removing dry, dead growth from their lots before warm weather dies it out completely. He placed special emphasis on a request to owners of vacant lots who frequently neglect them while the premises on which they live are kept in perfect order.

Grass fires are often caused by the efforts of citizens to burn their lots off, the Chief pointed out, and this method should never be employed. To often the original fire gets completeley out of control and may possibly ignite the clothes of the worker who would naturally try to beat it out. Small boys also cause their share of grass fires when they build bonfires in vacant lots.

The usual spring rains it was said, are not sufficient to keep the grass damp enough to avoid the fire hazard. Even after a heavy rain, warm sunshine and a stiff breeze will dry out the growth in a few hours and make it inflammable.

There is also the economy angle, the Chief pointed out. Every time the fire apparatus leaves the station on a fire run, it costs money—not only in gasoline, but in wear and tear on truck, tires, hose and other equipment. Each run to a grass fire costs money that could be used very well for other purposes.

"When fall cleaning-up time comes," concluded the Chief, "extend your operations to your yard or lot. It will pay dividends in safety, appearance and economy."

HUNT DISEASE IN AIR

BALTIMORE, Oct. 6 (A.P.) — Dr. George Walker went up 20,000 feet in an aeroplane to see what he could find out about the spread of disease epidemics from one part of the country to another. At each 1,000 feet he exposed a glass receptacle of bacteria-culture medium. His purpose was to obtain specimens of any disease organisms that might be in the air.

The receptacles were to-day to be studied by Dr. Walker and an associate, Dr. Walter Merkel of the Union Memorial Hospital staff.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE MEETING at Long Branch is turning out to be a whale of a success. It seems nearly every. . race produces a nose and nose finish, and if the weatherman dishes up any kind of decent weather this afternoon, some new attendance records should be established. We told you last week that Starter Tom Clarke was developing into a real one and now we see where different sports writers are singing his praises. He uses a starting machine patented by himself and has discarded the webbing altogether.

× × ×

Our friend Lou E. Marsh in one of his latest articles points out that Clarke would never have been appointed but for the fact that Red Palmer who had always done the starting on Mr. Orpen's circuit was having trouble with the immigration authorities in entering Canada on account of being an American citizen, and Abe took a chance and appointed Tom Clarke, a Canadian to the job and how he has made good since last Spring. Lou is right in every respect except he is one year late as it was one year ago last Spring that this all happened, and this is Clarke's second year in the starter's stand.

WE HEAR that Field Gold is getting a special prep these days with a view to grabbing off a few purses with him before our season closes. We have an idea that Mintmagi is not for off of a winning effort. This former Seagram hide can turn on the juice with any of them when not spotted too high. If the track is muddy he moves up several notches.

The long Detroit season closes today and we may see a few from there over at Dufferin next week. If so you can count on them giving their best as they will not ship over here for one week's racing just for a breath of Canadian air. Powder Monkey should win a race in the near future as he is back in midseason form. The Long Branch track is faster this fall than at any time in its history and if the rain holds off we may see some new track records hung up. Frankie Mann is about due to crash into the limelight any day now as he has not had much success lately. We think Jim Badame will shoot with Aymond the next time out. This former King's Plate winner has had only one race since arriving here from the United States and finished second on that occasion, which should just put him on edge for his next start.

LOU GEHRIG TOPS AMERICAN BATTERS

CHICAGO, Oct. 6 (C.P.). — Lou Gehrig, the iron man of New York Yankees, a front-rank hitter since he became a regular, has won the American League batting championship for the first time, and with it the lion's share of his circuit's slugging honors.

Gehrig, who ran his string of consecutive games to 1,504, compiled an average of .363, drawing away from his chief rival, Charley Gehringer, of the champion Detroit Tigers, in the last week of the campaign Gehringer finished second with .353.

The Yankee first baseman not only replaced Jimmie Foxx of the Athletics as batting champion, but defeated him in the battle for the home run title. Gehrig slammed out 42 round trip hits, to 44 for Foxx. Gehrig also drove in 165 runs to lead that department by a wide margin, and had 409 in total bases, another best mark.

Gehringer, second on batting, also was runner-up for individual laurels He crashed out 214 hits, to 210 for Gehrig, and led the league in scoring with 133 runs.

Cochrane Shakes Up Batting Order

GREENBERG IS PLACED IN 6TH, GOSLIN GOES UP

Detroit Pilot to Match Auker Against Cardinals' Carleton in Fourth.

ROGELL MAY NOT PLAY.

Tiger Shortstop Injured Sliding Into Second in 4th of Friday's Game.

(By Edward J. Neils, Associated Press Sports Writer)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (AP)—Mickey Cochrane hauled to the oxygen tank for his heart-sick Detroit Tigers today—administered baseball's last rites for a team in desperate condition.

He not only shook up his batting order, deposing giant Hank Greenberg, Bronx first baseman, from fourth place to sixth, substituting the sandy, hawk-nosed veteran, Goose Goslin, in the clean-up position, but he also planned to gamble on young Elden Auker to outpitch the Cardinals' lanky Tex Carleton in the fourth game of the World Series.

Shortstop Bill Rogell moves up a peg to fifth in the line-up of batters, if he plays at all. Rogell, limping from a strained left ankle suffered in the fourth inning of Thursday's game when he slid into second, was not improved by a smashing collision with Pepper Martin in the seventh yesterday. He made two errors after asking Cochrane for relief before the battle. Either Heinie Schuble, who saw little action all year as a substitue, or Herman "Flea" Clifton, a rookie from Beaumont, might replace him. Clifton understudied Rogell in practice yesterday.

More Changes Likely

There was a bare chance the brooding Cochrane might make even more drastic changes before game time at 1.30 (C.S.T.), and there was a report that he was considering leading off himself in place of Jo Jo White. But Mickey, with one hit in 14 chances, is batting only .091 himself. The only hitters really standing up are Goslin and Gehringer, with .364 each. Greenberg has left nine men stranded on base by his hitting failure in three games, though he hit the only Tiger homer in the first game of Dizzy Dean. His average is still .273 as a result of three hits in 11 times at bat.

Every hope of ultimate victory Mickey has for his Tigers, now trailing two games to one, rests in the mental stimulus of the return to the batting order he used most of the season in the drive to the American League pennant. Toward the end of the campaign, Greenberg hit so hard, Mickey had to shove him up forward.

But Greenberg, at the moment, is the hitting goat of the series. He woke up in the ninth inning of yesterday's conflict, first of three games here as the battlefield shifted from Detroit, but his besture, a ponderous triple to centre with two out scoring Jo oJ White, who had singled, only served to rob the second of the fantastic brothers Dean, Li'l Brother Paul, of a shutout.

As it was, young brother Paul merely hitched up his pants, heaved one down the middle that Rogell popped to Frankie Frisch for the final out, and trotted off the field with the screams of the packed Missouri stands heralding his 4 to 1 victory.

SALMON TRIBE NO MATCH FOR ONTARIO CLUB

Terriers Display Decisive All-Around Power in 21-8 Victory.

WESTERNERS TRY HARD.

Wilson and Curran Account for Ten Goals, Former Getting Six.

BARRIE, Oct. 6.—(CP)—Eastern Canada's lacrosse champions, Orillia Terriers, humbled New Westminster Salmonbellies, perennial British Columbia and Western challengers, 21 to 8 here last night with a smashing display of all-round power in the first game of the Canadian title series.

Too fast, afoot, too smooth with their intricate passing attack, too accurate in their firing, the Terriers opened gaping holes in the Western defense to take an early lead, then crushed the Salmonbellies completely in the fourth period, hammering in seven goals.

The triumph not only sent the Terriers away to a brilliant start in the five-game series but made the Ontario champions heavy favorites to capture the series in less than five contests. The second game will be played here on Monday night and the third game on Wednesday night.

Wilson and Curran Prominent

Two outstanding forwards, Bill Wilson and Bill Curran, led the devastating Orillia attack, just as they did during the Terrier scramble through the Eastern playdowns in which the Terriers ousted Hamilton Tigers, 1933 Canadian titleholders, by a decisive margin.

Tonight, gunning for the Mann Cup, Wilson and Curran were darting figures that the New Westminster defense was helpless against. Wilson rammed in six goals and Curran four—nearly half the Orillia total. They led a scoring parade that developed into an all-conquering march in the final quarter.

SERIES BETTING ODDS

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 6 (A.P.)—St. Louis Cardinals' victory in the third game of the World Series yesterday made them 1-to-2 favorites to win the world baseball championship, Tom Kearney, St. Louis betting commissioner, announced immediately after the game. The odds against Detroit's winning the title are 2 to 1 in Kearney's book.

FRENCH WINS FINAL

CALEDONIA, Oct. 4 — After a week of keenly contested singles lawn bowling contests in which younger bowlers stood out in competition with the more seasoned players, for the G. R. McColl trophy, B. E. French won by the close margin of two shots in the final game with W. Dyer. The games climaxed one of the most active seasons on the local greens in years.

One thing about this series the Bronx can't lose, Boss. It will either be Greenberg or Frisch.

BOONE'S HITTING FEATURES AS LEAFS DEFEAT RED BIRDS

Greer Is No Puzzle to Toronto Batters and They Collect 6-4 Win.

BOONE HAS 4 SAFETIES.

COLUMBUS, Oct. 6.—Walter Hilcher and Manager Ike Boone of the Maple Leafs collaborated here last night in putting the Toronto team back into the running in the Junior World Series with a 6-4 victory over the Red Birds. The Leafs started the Columbus end of the series with their backs to the wall. The Red Birds had won three out of four in Toronto and were expecting to end the series by winning last night and to-morrow. But Hilcher and Boone—and their team-mates—had other ideas. Hilcher replaced Gene Schott in the first inning when Schott was ...y unable to fool the Birds and held them to two hits and no runs the rest of the way.

And Boone pounded out three singles and a triple and walked once in five trips to the plate to lead his team with the willow.

As a result the Leafs are now only trailing the Birds by one game, and confident they'll even the series Sunday.

O'Brien And Foster Resign As Officials

MONTREAL, Oct. 6.—Unable, according to a letter, to handle a senior game efficiently under the present rules, Joe O'Brien, referee of the Senior Football Union, and Umpire Hoddy Foster, who works with O'Brien, resigned yesterday.

They sent their resignations in a letter to Boyd Millen, secretary of the Canadian Intercollegiate Rugby Union, now living in Quebec City. Eddie Hanna, former McGill backfielder, and Bill Consiglio, who has had considerable experience in Montreal as an official, were named to replace them.

The connective tissue is the most widely disturbed tissue of the body.

Southmpton Loses To Gibbards 3 To 2

NAPANEE, Oct. 6.—The Southampton Fishermen with their one and only "Lefty" Goldsmith invaded the precincts of Napanee yesterday for the first game in the intermediate A finals and were subdued by Tommy Pointer, the strikeout king of Eastern Ontario, and his co-workers, 3 to 2. The game, which was witnessed by approximately 2,000 fans coming from all portions of the Bay of Quinte district, was one of the most hectic and tense ever seen here, and both teams struggled for thirteen innings before the locals emerged victors.

The teams will meet at Southampton on Monday afternoon for the second game.

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I ain't got much for you to-day except a tale of woe, owing to all our ball teams getting washed up since my last. Our seniors bowed to the Grads, the Cogs was tripped up by Milton and our juvenile representatives, Mister Ralph's Terriers, passed outa the picture when they dropped the rubber game of their series with the Toronto Arlingtons.

We ain't never win a juvenile title, Mac, but this time we looked to be heading that direction when the Terriers went into Toronto for the 1st game and grabbed off a win. The series looked to be right in the bag when they took a 5 to 0 lead in the early stages of the 2nd game, but the Toronto kids kept on plugging and they finally win out 7 to 5 in 11 frames. In the 3rd set-too the Arlingtons had the punch when it was needed, and so it's them instead of us against Guelph.

Sat., Mac, our seniors dropped outa the O.B.A.A. race, mainly because they couldn't hit the size of their collar against Mister N. Moffatt of the Grads, which doesn't rate as the distillery crew's ace heaver. While Mister Moffatt didn't look like no Dizzy Dean in action out there, he had enough stuff to stop the Petes like hydraulic breaks, and in 9 frames they couldn't push a runner any closer to the home plate than the ¼-way mark. And unless you get nearer than that by some 180 ft. you ain't got a chance in the world to win no ball games. Our youthful Mister Calladine, going along like a veteran, had the Grads outside now of this Mr. Sniderman pretty well covered and if the gang could of kicked in with a few hits at the right time Mister Lee's selection would of breesed hom a winner. But the boys couldn't pour the pine at any stage of the battle, getting only 5 blows, and finally the Grads took advantage of a coupla brakes to score a pair of runners, and we was sunk for the season. Had our agile shortstopper, Mister Konopka, been able to glue onto the burning drive that their Mister Stronach shot at him the Petes woulda had a double play and the 2 teams would of gone into extra innings with no more runs that a nudist has clothes. But the ball failed to stick in Mister Konopka's mit and the bulky Mister Sniderman carried the ball game over the home plate with him as he tore in after the mischance.

The lads went down fighting, they've had a great season, copping their own league nicely, and 1935 will be another year. Right now, however, it don't need no baseball expert to see what the Petes need. They got to dig up a coupla consistent .300 hitters to have a real chance at the Ontario title, for without the old sock it's tough winning ball games.

Well, Mac, the 1st game in the world's serious went the way I been figgering the Tigers, looking like school boys in the opener, but I gotta admit I got a surprise in the 2nd battle. I didn't think Schoolboy Rowe had what it takes to stop them Cards, and when they opened up on him hard in the 1st three frames, it looked like I was right. From then on, however, this Rowe person blazed his fire ball in there so effectively that only 1 Card got to 1st base in the last 9 frames of the 12-inning struggle. The Tigers got a coupla brakes to win the decision, a misjudged fly giving them their 1st marker, and the tieing run was hit in by a guy who should of been out on a pop foul that nobody fielded, but it would of been a crime if Mister Rowe had been beat out after he had shut the Cards up like a concertina for inning after inning. That 2nd game listened like 1 of the best in recent years, and it sure provided thrills for all and sundry.

Well, Mac, if the Tigers don't get the St. Louis blues in the games on the Cardinal lot this might be quite a series yet.

Meanwhile locally the only excitement outside the football card is the dance the cops of the berg is staging on Oct. 26. That promises to be the big nite of the year.

I'll be seeing ya'.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

Rule Changes Made Carpetball League

The executive officers of the Carpetball League held a meeting at the K.O.P. Hall for discussion regarding rule 8, schedule and organization. Some very good points were brought forward for discussion and it was decided that the new rule will read as follows:

Rule 8—A team shall consist of not less than 4 and not more than 5 men—4 men constitute a rink. If a team turn up with only 3 men the opposing skip shall pick man from bench to play on defaulting team. Said man to be a registered member of the League and shall play in lead position. Two points will be given to opposing team if defaulting team refuses to play man from bench. In event of no spare man being available, defaulting team shall play 7 balls only. Lead man will roll 3 balls. A skip shall have power to place his men, including himself, in any position and can bring spare man into play on second game of the evening. Men must hold same position throughout game and no man coming in late can enter into or take part in an incomplete end.

Rule 7—Games shall consist of ten ends each. If the score is tied at the end of tenth frame, 2 extra ends shall be played. Same to continue until tie is broken. Teams must change mats at the end of each game.

It was decided to call a general meeting at 7.30 p.m. Monday, Oct. 29, and the Woodmen of the World have kindly donated their hall for this purpose. Also the schedule will be published, if possible every Saturday and the standings and results every Wednesday in the Peterborough Examiner.

SOUTHALL SETS RECORD

LONDON, Oct. 6 (C.P. Cable) — Frank Southall, English cyclist, yesterday set a new world's record for 2 hours' unpaced cycling, covering 457 miles. The previous record was 431½ miles, established by Hubert Opperman of Australia. During his record run Southall broke the cycling record from Land's End to London by an hour and 37 minutes.

Every time Frankie Frisch goes to bat he sets a record. He got one hit today to run his World Series mark to 53. Frisch also holds the record for most series games played, now 45, and most times at bat, now 175.

PIRATE HOLDS .362 AVERAGE FOR THE YEAR

Champion St. Louis Cardinals Earn Lot of Honors During Final Spurt.

SCORES 122 RUNS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 (AP)—Paul Waner of Pittsburgh Pirates, winning the National League batting crown for the second time in his big-league career, captured most of the senior circuit's hitting honors for the 1934 season, but in the final summing up the champion St. Louis Cardinals earned a lot of credit.

Waner, who hit through the season at a .362 clip and led his nearest rival, Bill Terry of New York Giants by 10 points, was a three-way leader, according to the final semi-official records, released to-day. He was high scorer with 122 runs and had the largest hit total, 217 blows.

On the list of other leaders among the 240 players who appeared during the season were three St. Louis hitters, Joe Medwick, Jim Collins, and Jack Rothrock, and the leading base stealer, Pepper Martin, who copped 26. Medwick led in triples with 18; Collins hit 35 home runs to tie Mel Ott of New York for the lead, and Rothrock, who went to bat 647 times, was the only player to make five hits a game on two occasions.

Played in 154 Games

Collins and Rothrock didn't miss one of the Cards' games, playing in 154. Ott and Terry did the same for New York, and Gus Suhr for Pittsburgh.

Despite late season slumps Dizzy Dean, the Cardinals' ace, swept practically everything up. He became the first National League pitcher since 1917 to win 30 games. He lost only seven for a .811 average; took part in 50 games, recorded seven shutouts and struck out 195. He had the season's longest winning streak, 10 straight.

O.R.F.U. OUTFIT PLAYS ON MONDAY

New Football Squad Ready for Opening Battle in Belleville.

The best rugby material in the city has been assembled in the new Peterborough Intermediate rugby team which opens its season on Thanksgiving Day in Belleville. Nearly all the players learned the game with former Collegiate teams, and four weeks of practise, scrimmage and signal drilling has brought them into great shape.

Belleville also has a starry aggregation assembled from former players on Collegiate teams in the Quinte district, and the opening game should bring forth some smart rugby.

The Petes have a speedy, tricky half-line, a hard-hitting, business-like front line, and a pair of deadly tacklers in Reynolds and Weir.

The team will leave about 11 o'clock Monday morning, and will wear their new uniforms into the fray.

The line-up for the game is:

Flying wing, Gardiner; halves, Magee, Richardson and Young; quarter, Jim Newson; outsides, Reynolds and Weir; middles, Gerow and Kirkwood; insides, Waddell an Parnell; snap, Sloan; subs, Dinesen, Broadley, Mesley, Spencely, Francis and Janeway.

HODGES TO TURN PRO

TORONTO, Oct. 6 (CP) — Don Hodges, one of Toronto's outstanding amateur hockeyists, was in receipt of a letter to-day from Art Ross, Boston Bruin mentor, inviting him to try out with the National Hockey League team at their Quebec training camp this Fall.

Baseball Results

The scores of amateur baseball games played yesterday were as follows:

O.B.A.A. Intermediate "A."

xNapanee 3, Southampton 2, x13 innings.

Maritime Junior.

Charlottetown 5, Amherst St. P. 2.

What's The Score?

(A.P.)—Court had opened with the usual solemnities and Judge Cyrus M. Palmer prepared to tell attorneys to start the case when he noticed Juror No. 9 was missing.

The clock ticked away from 1.45 to 2 o'clock before the missing talesman, Sam Huff, former manager of the Cressona Tigers, came breathlessly into the court room.

Judge Palmer frowned, pulled off his glasses, and said: "Mr. Huff, come here."

The Judge leaned forward and asked the juror: "What's the score?"

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

Wilfred "Biffer" Ranger, star left winger of the Cleveland Indians, may line up with Montreal Canadians in the N.H.L. this winter. Ranger's effective work with Cleveland last year earned him the attention of scouts from the major league teams, and it is learned that Canadiens are anxious to secure his services. The Habitants have already made a big for him, but whether or not the deal will be completed will not be known definitely for several days.

• • • • • •

Ranger is one of the most finished hockey players ever turned out here. He took to the game like a duck to water, its flashing speed and rugged play just suiting his temperament. After learning the rudiments of the game, he moved ahead quickly and was a star with that great Peterborough senior team that won the O.H.A. championship. When that team broke up he jumped into pro ranks with Bert McLeod, both going to Kansas City where they remained for several seasons. Bert retired from the game a year ago, but "Biffer" is still going strong.

• • • • • •

Through the years Peterborough has had its share of so-called all-round athletes, but at the present moment Cliff Cadd perhaps holds top place in this connection. Cadd is a tall, lanky youth who is filling out fast and a year or two should see him even better at all games than he is now. Hockey fans will remember him as a defence player last year with the intermediate team. He is a brilliant lacrosse player, one of the best recently developed, here and was outstanding with this year's lacrosse squad. He was left fielder with the Cognawago ball team and Dorsey Davis, manager of the team, was heard to say "give me a couple of Cadds and the Cogs would sure win the championship". He also played with the Orphans, champs of the city softball league, and is one of the smartest basketball players about the "Y."

• • • • • •

"Mick" Magee, captain of the city's recently-formed intermediate rugby team, is another athlete who likes variety in his sports efforts. About the only game he does not play is ball, and he is another product of the "Y" gym.

• • • • • •

What the World Series is to baseball, so ranks the horseshoe pitching contests soon to be held near Toronto to barnyard golfers throughout Ontario. All summer young and old men have been practising each evening out behind the barn for this blue ribbon classic of the horseshoe pitching world. These contests are the Ontario championships and will be held October 11 and 12 at Marvale farm, Dawes Road, 4½ miles from Toronto, in connection with the International Plowing Match. Entries should be sent to Bert Campbell, 63 Kippendavie Avenue, Toronto.

• • • • • •

The Church Basketball League is going to lose no time in getting re-organized for its fourth consecutive season. The meeting for this purpose will be held at 7.30 next Monday evening at the "Y". Each Sunday School is urged to send two delegates. Last year's executive was composed of Harold Rehill, chairman; James McLenaghan, Bill Brady, Vincent Holmes and Don Charlton, secretary. Last year there was a junior and juvenile section and games were played every Saturday evening on the "Y" floor.

• • • • • •

Keene girls' softball teams, champs of the city and district league, are looking for new worlds to conquer. In an effort to see just how the brand of ball played in the league here compares with that in Toronto, Keene has arranged to play an exhibition game with Parkdales of the Acorn Park Senior Ladies' Softball League at Acorn Park on Thanksgiving Day afternoon. If the village maidens play their usual snappy game they should make the Parkdales step.

• • • • • •

The inter-county cup for which Dinty's Inn and Millbrook have battled through four hard-fought games still hangs in the balance between these two smart lacrosse teams. Millbrook tied up the series with two wins apiece last night, by securing a last-period 7-4 victory. It was a rugged battle and kept the big crowd that jammed the Millbrook arena in a frenzy of excitement.

• • • • • •

Carlos Routley was missing from Dinty's Inn lineup last evening and the intermediate rugby team will have to get along without his services. "Stump", as his pals call him, has joined the recent exodus of local toolmakers to the Ford plant at Windsor. It is reported that in the past week about a half dozen local men have secured work at Ford's and that more are likely to go.

• • • • • •

Peterborough's entry into intermediate O.R.F.U. circles will get itsb aptism of fire in the gridiron sport at Belleville on Monday afternoon when it clashes n its first game with the husky Quinte City outfit. All members of the Peterborough squad are experienced rugby players having starred with P.C.I. teams in other years. The squad has been working out energetically for weeks and are in great shape for the hard battling. Charlie Carson deserves much credit for rounding-up the squad and placing it in organized rugby.

SILVER SLIPPERS By Temple Bailey

CHAPTER 58

Rose was in New York. She had seen a lot of Drew. "Things are quite as they used to be between us, Nancy. He says you are going to be married Well, I th nk you are wise. You have g.ven Drew so many years of your life, and now, perhaps, your mantle will fal on me. I know Drew's faults, and he knows mine. We ought to hit it off nicely together. And as mother and I have made quite a nice little sum through the rise in stocks, the financial situation is eased . . ."

There was a lot more, and when Nancy had read it all, she dashed off a hast y letter to her brother: "Rose says you are going to marry her. Well, I hope you will be as happy as I am. Alan is such a darling—and you wouldn't know me. I am getting to be as 'domestic as a plate' as somebody puts it. I'll send you a wedding present when we reach Cairo . . . and here's much love, and my heart's wish for your happiness."

It was in Cairo, two weeks later, that she bought a jewel for Rose and for Drew a beautiful and extravagantly expensive box for cigarets, inlaid with gold and silver and with a line or two in Arabic wishing him long life and love's fulfillment.

"He likes such things," Nancy told her husband, "but I feel as if I were spending an awful lot."

"What you are spending is nothing to what you are going to spend," he assured her.

She touched the back of his hand with her fingertips, "Alan, I am so happy."

He looked down at her. "Happy? We haven't touched the peak yet. Wait until we ride out into the desert . . ."

For that was their dream . . . to spend the remainder of their honeymoon far from the habitations of men . . . alone in a vast solitude . . .

Nancy's eyes were misty . . . "How I have laughed at sentimenta lovers," she said, "and now . . . oh, Alan, I don't deserve my Paradise . . ."

Drew Hallam got Nancy's Paris letter at his club, and when he had read it he called up Rose. "What," he demanded, "have you been writing to Nancy?"

"Why?"

"She congratulates me on my coming marriage—to you . . ."

Rose's laugh rippled over the wire. "Well, it is coming, isn't it?"

"Yes. But not yet. Nothing is settled. And here's Nan planning to send a wedding present."

"Let her send it."

"But I'd rather you hadn't told her."

"Why?"

"Oh . . . time enough when we've done it."

"You mean that you want to marry first and tell it afterward?"

"Yes."

"Heavens—how uneconomic. If we let people know, we can furnish an apartment with what they will give us. Nobody gives anything if you just announce it afterwards."

"Are you serious, or are you trying to be humorous?"

"Come and see," again her light laugh rippled.

He hung up the receiver and sat frowning, his eyes on the floor. Always when he talked to Rose he felt as if a mirror were held up to the worst of him. Joan had brought out the best. Joan . . . He groaned and dropped his head on his arm.

The telephone at his side tinkled. He lifted the receiver. "Baltimore is calling," a voice said, "one moment, please."

And then, incredibly . . . Joan! "Could you come and see me here? I have something important to talk over with you."

"You are in Baltimore?"

"Yes. Could you run over tomorrow? I am sorry to ask it. But it is—important."

He found himself saying eagerly, "Have you—forgiven me?"

He was aware of a change in her voice—a withdrawal—"Oh . . . you mustn't think—I have changed my mind. What I want to talk over is something—different."

Yet in the face of that avowal, after she had rung off, Drew found life flowing back into his veins. He walked jauntily to the mirror and squared his shoulders at his reflection. He was looking a bit run down, but he would be his best with Joan. He always was. And she was giving him an opportunity . . . and he knew his power. No matter what she said, when he was near her, he could sway her. And now, with this one last chance . . . well, he would make the most of it.

His eye fell on Rose's picture. There was, of course, between them a sort of understanding. But Rose had brought it about, hanging around, urging things. If he could have Joan back, Rose wouldn't matter. Not for a moment. Nothing would matter—but Joan.

When the next day, he entered the drawing room of the Baltimore house, he found the effect of frigidity lessened by golden roses in bowls of deep-toned pottery, by cushions and hangings of rich and glowing colors, and by a tea table set in front of an open fire.

Joan wore a simple frock of yellow wool. She seemed to move in sunshine, although the lamps were lighted against the darkness of the winter afternoon.

He held her hand, his eyes devouring her. "You beauty . . ."

The old thrilling voice! But it had lost its power. "Please . . ." she protested.

"But you are a beauty."

She laughed lightly and withdrew her hand. "It is my new gown. I bought it to wear on the ship."

"I saw that you were going away."

"I'm sailing around the world. I shall see everything . . ." she opened her hands in a wide gesture.

"You won't see anything lovelier than yourself."

Again she laughed lightly, and seated herself behind the tea table, barricading herself as it were, against him. Diggs came in with hot water, hot muffins . . .

Joan, pouring, said, "One slice of lemon . . . no sugar?"

He took his cup from her. "You haven't forgotten?"

"Why should I forget?" coolly. "Aunt Adelaide trained me to remember people's preferences. She said it was one of the secrets of a hostess' success to know whether a guest wanted cream or lemon, or four lumps or one."

"I wonder what she would say if she could see this room," his eyes roamed about it. "You've made a perfect setting for your personality."

"Have I? Drew, you're not eating your muffin."

"My dear child, I must think of my figure."

He was standing on the hearth rug, his cup in his hand. He was well-groomed, good-looking. But the glamor was gone. The king was dead . . .! And a prince reigned in his place—a prince with ruffled hair, slender and straight in a shabby velvet coat . . .!

And with the thought of Giles, she said, without preamble, "Drew, I asked you here, because there is something I must know."

"Yes?"

"What happened that night when Giles Armiger came to the monastery?"

He had not expected that, and paused before replying: "Why do you ask?"

"Because since then he has kept away from me."

"Why shouldn't he keep away?"

"We have always been such friends."

"Men change."

"Not Giles."

"How can you be sure?"

She said, bravely, "I was not sure. So I went to him—to his island. Last week. And now I know . . ."

Her eyes were like stars. She had never been so beautiful as in this moment when honestly and openly she showed her feeling for the man he hated. "Long before my engagement with you was broken, I knew that my friendship for Giles meant more to me than my love for you. That is why it was not hard to give you up. My pride was hurt, but not my heart."

He sat there staring at her. So this was the end of all his hopes! He had come, gay and debonair, to essay once more, the rôle of conqueror, only to find his rival occupying the field.

Suddenly the barriers of self-control broke. His face was red and his eyes hard as he bent down to her. "So you went and asked him if he loved you? And of course he said 'yes'."

"Drew, how dare you . . .!"

"You've got money. You're a prize for any man. I knew that. Armiger knows it. Do you fancy for a moment that if you had been just a little school teacher as you were when your aunt picked you up that either of us would have found you charming?"

She rose, her head high. "Please, go away—at once, Drew . . ."

"No. I'm not going till I tell you what I think of Armiger. And when I have told you, I'll go up to his blooming island and tell him to his face. A promise is a promise . . ."

He stopped as she gave a quick cry: "Then he did promise something? To you? What was it, Drew?"

He straightened up and laughed—a discordant, desperate sound. "Do you think I'd tell you? Find out from him. But I'll see him first . . ." He flung himself from the room. She heard him speak to Diggs as the man handed him his hat and got him into his coat. Then the outer door opened and shut. He was gone . . .

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 7

Sunday's horoscope holds augury of a very pleasant and profitable day for the church, clergy and philanthropy under a flourishing and constructive ray from the governing planets. The activities may be centered on the domestic, social, romantic and cultural interests, with the mystical idealistic and altruistic also attractive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of pleasant and prosperous conditions in all their contacts, affiliations and interests.

A child born on this day may be versatile and clever, especially in the direction of the unusual, mystical or diplomatic.

For Monday, October 8

Monday's astrological forecast, according to the lunar transits, holds presage of lively and progressive conditions, despite some minor setbacks, postponements or obstructions. With these impediments sagaciously disposed of there may be gratifying events, especially in employment, where superiors or those in authority are in friendly mood.

Those whose birthday it is may h. for a fairly lively year, with som happy and substantial recognition or preferment in employment.

A child born on this day may be versatile, talented and ambitious, and may attract the attention of its employers, greatly to its advantage.

For Tuesday, October 9

An unusually propitious, progressive and gratifying state of affairs is the presage based on an important chain of lunar operations. After the happy removal or disintegration of a long stagnant and frustrating state of affairs, an important and radical change may be expected.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a new year full of surprising reversals of their interests and fortunes, from an old crystallized and futile status to one of active, aggressive and progressive attack, in fresh fields among excellent opportunities, with "big business" and important persons assisting. It is a time for pushing for high goals of achievement in new directions.

A child born on this day should h progressive, ambitious, adventurous practical as well as original, and in dependent in thought and action. It should reach a high place of success and power, with prestige, popularity and much happiness in its life.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

No. 3—Double Crime in Port Coquitlam

By EVERETT GRAEME

(Canadian Press Staff Writer

(Copyright, 1934, by The Canadian Press)

(Copyright, 1934, by The Canadian Press.)

VANCOUVER, Oct. 6.—(CP).—Ranking among the standing mysteries in the police annals of British Columbia is the double murder of Albert Witcherly and his wife in their home at Port Coquitlam, 20 miles from here. It occurred 10 years ago.

Not the slightest clue to the identity of the slayer has been found. No plausible motive has ever been brought out and no arrest made.

The Witcherlys were found dead in their home on a Saturday night —March 22, 1924—the wife with her head smashed by repeated blows from a sledge hammer and the husband shot through the face and chest with a shotgun.

Investigating officers uncovered one startling fact, but it only added to their bafflement. The slayer returned to the scene next day and locked the back door. He then disappeared completely.

Witcherly was a railway car inspector. Early on the Friday evening he left his home to do some carpentering for a women's charitable organization. About 9.30 a neighbor thought she heard a scream. Looking out she saw a man come out of the back door of the Witcherly house and walk toward the woodshed. She thought it was the husband. Subsequent testimony by people working with him at the time proved it could not have been Witcherly.

Half an hour later the neighbor heard what she thought to be a shot. She put it down to boys using air rifles.

Next morning the baker's boy called. His evidence was no one answered his knock and he tried the door. It was unlocked, and opening it a little he saw the gun on the table. He left a loaf of bread between the inner and outer kitchen doors.

When neighbors started an investigation Saturday evening they found the doors locked and the lights burning. The body of Mrs. Witcherly was lying on the floor of the hall, partially covered with old clothes. The husband was on the floor of the kitchen, dead from gunshot wounds.

Reconstructing the crime police deduced the slayer had entered the house with a sledge hammer beaten Mrs. Witcherly to death, then waited for the husband's return later in the evening and shot him as he entered the kitchen.

Social Evening Held By Y's Men's Club

The Y"s Men's Club held their regular supper meeting on Thursday night in the Y.M.C.A. There was no special speaker, but Roy Lewis gave his report of the trip to the convention in St. Paul last August, which he attended with Jack Boyd.

Reports were also made by the Athletic committee on the volley ball league and the billiard tournament. The Social committee also gave out tickets to members for the dance to be held in the Legion Hall on Friday, November 9th.

At 8.30 members of the club and their friends gathered in the dining hall for an evening of bridge.

Seventeen tables were made up and a delightful time was had by all. The prizes, which were drawn for, were won by Mrs G. H. Roper and Mr. W. J. Hamilton.

Light refreshments were served after the bridge and the evening was closed by a short period of dancing, with George Nichols at the piano.

Y.W. Sports Hour

The school competition and sports hour was keenly contested and thoroughly enjoyed by spectators. The following were the results: Prince of Wales School winning from Queen Alexandria school; Queen Mary school winning from St. Mary's school; King Edward school winning from King George school; All Star Public school winning from P.C.I. Central and Confederation defeated.

In the diving competition: Queen Mary, 1st, A. Richardson, M. Boyle; Confederation and Prince of Wales tied for 2nd with E. Barnes and M. B. Barnes diving and A. Richardson and M. Boyle for Queen Mary; P.C.I. 3rd, I. Young and M. Smith; King Edward, 4th, L. Long and R. Dalliday; Queen Alexander, 5th, E. Dundas and V. Alkins; St. Mary's, 6th, M. Jordon and D. McCallum; King George, 7th, B. Cooper and E. Boorman; Central, 8th, M. Mccarrol.

Senior speed—E. Barnes 1st; M. Barnes, 2nd.

Intermediate speed—A. Richardson, 1st; I. Young and L. Long, tied for 2nd.

Junior—J. Cumming, 1st; B. Milburn and G. Schirrizza tied for 2nd.

Babies—D. Bell, 1st; R. Bell, 2nd; A. Boyle, 3rd.

Miss Littlefield announced that there are bargain swims every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon in the pool 10c, other days 15c. Also that the gym classes were starting and there is still plenty of time to start gym. So come along.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY SUPPER CLUB

Allan Heideman is Re-elected ed Vice Chairman of Club.

With C. A. Salmonsen continuing as chairman by unanimous consent, Allan Heideman was re-elected vice-chairman of the Friday Night Supper Club as the organization met for its first supper of the season at the Y.M.C.A. last night. More than fifty young men were in attendance.

Other members of the executive chosen to serve during the season were Herb. Hodgens, secretary; Alf. McKee, re-elected treasurer; Grant Gillespie, membership committee chairman; Dr. Jack Adair, re-elected speakers' committee chairman; J. H. Morley, publicity chairman; George Broadley, re-elected music chairman; Andy Rutter, entertainment; Eric Westlye, sports. The membership committee post was last year held by Graham Eastwood, who has served in various capacities on the club executive ever since its formation. He asked to be relieved of his duties this year in order to make way for other members.

In a short address, Mr. Salmonsen congratulated the retiring executive on the success of the club last season. He offered a number of suggestions towards continuing the high standard of the club's meetings and maintaining a high membership roll. The membership roll last season was maintained at the highest level in the eight years of the club's existence. Almost invariably the supper attendance ranged between 50 and 60.

A fine schedule of speakers is being arranged for the present season. Another course of university extension lectures is being planned in view of the complete successes the courses scored during the past two years. The series this winter will likely be based on an international theme in contrast to the Canadian series last year.

HAMAS GETS SPLIT CALL OVER LASKY

Former Penn State Star Wins First of Heavyweight Eliminations.

NEW YORK, October 6.— "Handsome Steve" Hamas, battered and bloody, staggered into the heavyweight throne room last night after winning a smashing, cruising 10-round brawl from Art Lasky, Minnesota farmer, in the show that officially opened the Metropolitan indoor boxing season.

Nearly 12,000 fans saw the former gridiron hero and darling of the Park Avenue dowagers come back from the verge of a knockout three times to gain the split decision over tall, angular Lasky, despite the latter's advantages of weight, height, and reach.

It was probably the most savagely contested heavyweight battle ever staged in the house that Tex Rickard built, and at the end most of the fans were undecided as to the winner, although Steve was decidedly the worse for wear.

BALTIMORE WINS TITLE.

COBOURG, October 6. — Baltimore girls' softball teams, by defeating Castleton, champions of East Northumberland, have won the championship of Northumberland County and the cup presented by W. A. Fraser, M.P. In the first game played at Baltimore the girls of that village won 19-7. In the second game at Castleton, the score was 16-6 in favor of Baltimore.

The softball season in this county for 1934 was a very interesting and successful one.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK . . By R. J. Scott

A Small Member of a Large Family

SOON after school closed, Mrs. Black received a letter from her sister in Wisconsin, saying that her husband had to come East on a business trip and would bring their son Will with him. She added that Will had won a microscope for a prize in a debating contest and would probably bring it with him.

The Blacks were all delighted over the expected visit, particularly Alec, and when his cousin Will arrived with his microscope, Alec had a collection of specimens to examine with it. He had bugs and butterflies, mosquito larvae, fish eggs and bottles of stagnant water in which he hoped they might find an amoeba.

One day when they were looking at the hairy foot of a fly, Clara spied her friend Grace's mother, Mrs. Sanders, coming into the yard with a small pitcher in her hand. By the time Mrs. Sanders reached the door Clara had it open, and Mrs. Black came forward to greet her neighbor and ask her to be seated.

"No, thank you, Mrs. Black, I can't stay," Mrs. Sanders said, "and I am sorry to trouble you, but I should like a little of your home-made yeast, if you could spare some. I think it is better than the yeast I buy."

"Why, yes, I shall be very glad to give you some," Mrs. Black replied, and took out the pitcher to get it.

"I hope you will have good luck with it. I find it makes very satisfactory bread," Mrs. Black remarked as she came back with the filled pitcher.

"Oh, I don't want it for bread. We buy our bread. I want to use it for making root beer," was Mrs. Sanders' explanation.

Alec, glancing quickly at his mother saw the expression on her face change. She hesitated, and "Oh" and again waited, as if perplexed.

"I don't know," she began slowly, "as I want to let you have it for that. I don't approve of making alcoholic drinks."

"Oh, I'm not going to put any alcohol in it, only yeast and sugar, and let it ferment to give it a tang."

"You will have alcohol if you put yeast and sugar in it and let it ferment," said Mrs. Black. "Didn't you know that?"

"Why no, I never heard you got alcohol that way. I thought it was only bought beer that had alcohol in it."

As Mrs. Black began to explain how the yeast caused the sugar to break up and form alcohol, Will turned from his microscope and interrupted,

"Aunt Mary, did I hear you say you have yeast there? May I have a little to look at it through the microscope?"

Mrs. Black handed him the pitcher and proceeded with her explanation to Mrs. Sanders.

Presently exclamations began to come from the group over the microscope.

"There, did you see that bud burst out!"

"See, there is another one budding!"

"Yes, those are the young ones and they'll soon be as big as the old ones."

"They grow fast."

"Yes, when they are where it is warm and have plenty of sugar."

The excited talk attracted the attention of Mrs. Sanders so that she did not half hear what Mrs. Black was saying about the way she put up unfermented grape juice. Seeing this Mrs. Black asked the boys if they would let Mrs. Sanders look through the microscope.

They quickly made way for her, and Will explained how the yeast plant grew by budding and how it used up sugar and formed alcohol.

"But where is the alcohol? You didn't show me the alcohol," complained Clara.

Mrs. Black caught Alec's eye in time to keep him from laughing at his sister, while cousin Will patiently explained.

"No, you can't see the alcohol because it doesn't look any different from the water, or whatever liquid the yeast is in; but it is there and can be found, though it can't be seen."

"Well," said Mrs. Sanders finally "I'm no friend of alcoholic liquors. I've seen enough harm come from them, and I guess I won't take the yeast, Mrs. Black, but I'll write down some of those recipes for summer drinks, if you'll let me have them; and then I'll be going. Thank you, boys, for letting me look through the microscope.

There are a large number of substances which come under the name of "alcohols," but generally this term is used for "ethylic alcohol," the ingredient found in the beverages which are known as alcoholic liquors or drinks. It is the alcohol in these liquors that causes drunkenness.

Yeast is a small, cell-like plant. Its favorite food is sugar. It breaks sugar up into water, carbon dioxide and alcohol. This process is called "fermentation." Yeast-cells float in the air or are found on the skins of fruits. And so, when grapes are crushed, these cells get into the juice. Fermentation starts and alcohol is produced. This is how wine is made. Through malting and mashing, the starch in grain such as barley is changed to sugar and from this sugar, by means of the action of yeast, the alcohol of beer is produced.

Alcohol is a colorless liquid, with a slight odor and a sharp taste. It is easily changed into a gas by boiling, but it has a very low freezing-point. It is difficult to obtain pure, because of its affinity for water.

Alcohol's use as a food, however, is limited by its action as a drug. When we later study this action, we will realize that it is only in theory we can call alcohol a food. Scientific study has proved that the ill-effects of its drug-action more than outweigh its food-value.

FAIRMOUNT W.M.S

Members Plan Pumpkin Pie Social for October the 19th.

FAIRMOUNT, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence).—The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the Sunday school-room on Wednesday at 2:30 p.m.

Mrs. Robert Hooton led in prayer. Next month the roll is to be answered by a verse on Thanksgiving.

Mrs. R. C. Hanbidge and Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour were nominated as a committee to decide on a Thanksgiving Service.

It was decided to hold a pumkin pie social on October 19 in the school-room, with Mrs. Jas. Seymour and Mrs. A. B. McBain to look after the program.

It was carried that the new study book on "The Builders of the Indian Church" be taken up next year.

Mrs. Jas. Seymour gave a reading, namely, "The Second Mile". A beautiful solo was rendered by Mrs. L. A. Hooton, "For You I Am Praying". Miss E. McIndoo read an article on "Our Schools Among the Bhils". Instead of using the study book, Mrs. Jas. Seymour gave a very instructive talk from one of Barton's books, "The Man Nobody Knows", telling us of a business man's view of the Life of Christ. The meeting was then brought to a close by singing "Sweet Hour of Prayer".

After riding a bicycle for 70 years without an accident, George Broxhome, aged 81, ran into a motor-cycle at Mitcham, England, and completed his country tour in an ambulance.

It's For Afternoon

That pretty and popular little screen star, Janet Gaynor, models this unusual afternoon costume which was inspired by the attire of Hungarian peasants.

It is made of navy blue wool and peach colored satin. The short jacket has raglan sleeves, three-quarters length and slit almost to the shoulder seams. The blouse is trimmed with Hungarian embroidery in lacquer red with a touch of jade green. The color closes with a red cord with tassel ends.

WESTWOOD W.M.S. HEARS FINE TALKS

Over 34 Members of St. Andrew's Society Attend Annual Thank-offering.

WESTWOOD, Oct. 6 (Examiner Correspondence). — The annual autumn thank-offering was held in connection with the October meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon. Guest day brought the attendance up to thirty-four and the response to the thank-offering was most encouraging.

The President, Miss J. Davidson, presided and Mrs. J. Hope and Mrs. J. Clysdale assisted in the devotional period. An appropriate solo by Mrs. R. C. Brackenridge was much appreciated.

A reading, "The Second Mile", by Mrs. M. Scott and "How the Master Came" was given by Miss Mary Cameron. Mrs. John Hope gave an outline of the work of this society, from its organization 42 years ago until the present. Mrs. Hope, now honorary president, was president during 35 years of that time. She recalled the day of organization when the late Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Thompson, of Hastings, officiated. She closed with an appeal to every woman of the church to become a member and worker of the society, that some day all would hear the supreme reward, "Well Done, Good and Faithful Servant".

A splendid address on "The Kingdom of God Movement" was given by Mrs. (Rev.) Newell and was an inspiration to all.

A hymn and the Mizpah benediction closed the meeting, after which all enjoyed a social half hour, when refreshments were served by several members.

Trent River

The October meeting of the Women's Institute will be held Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. McNeely. Roll call: A health habit. Antiques will be exhibited. Debate: "Has the Introduction of Machinery Done More Harm Than Good"?

A number of the members of Stanwood Sewing Circle met at the home of Mrs. George Dunham, Healey Falls, and quilted two quilts. The sale of cooking in connection with Stanwood Church has been postponed from October 6 to October 13.

Miss Evelyn Bonnycastle, of Campbellford, landed a 15-pound muskie while trolling in the Trent, near Crow Bay one day recently.

Mr. Arnold Richards, of Baltimore, who recently purchased the general grocery of Mr. Fred Scott's, was a visitor to the store Thursday. Mr. Richards will take possession of the business next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hubble and children, Elton, Donald, Faye and Marion, were recent week-end visitors with friends and relatives at Coe Hill and Glen Alda.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Walker and son, Reginald, expect to move to Campbellford to take up residence this week. Mr. Walker has accepted a position which necessitates travelling out from Campbellford.

Mr. Alfred Brown, of Seymour West has purchased the farm of Mr. Charles Longmuir and takes possession this week.

Miss Audrey Rowe, of Stanwood, is a visitor with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Vance, West Seymour.

Fairmount

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Seymour and Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Seymour and family have returned home after visiting friends in Stirling.

Several from the community attended the Millbrook Fair on Wednesday. Mr. C. W. Seymour was in the show-ring with his holsteins, taking home several first prizes; also Joe Fair with his colt.

Mr. H. M. S. McBain purchased a fine bay team of horses at Oshawa last week.

Mrs. L. A. Hooton and daughter, Marie, called on Mrs. R. H. McArthur on Tuesday.

Mr. W. M. Hooton and his two sons, Jack and Harold, attended the ploughing match in Smith Thursday, Harold taking first prize in the boys' class and Wm., taking third prize in the men's class. Jack did not plough. Mr. I. Allin and Stanley also attended, Stan getting second prize.

Mr. R. F. McIndoo purchased a McCormick Deering tractor, plough and cultivator recently.

Delay Christenings For Quintuplets

CALLANDER, Ont., Oct. 5. (CP) No further Christening ceremonies for the Dionne quintuplets can take place until spring because it would mean certain death for the weaker of the famous babies, now 130 days old, to take them to a church at present and the weather would be too treacherous in Winter, declared Dr. A. R. Dafoe, physician to the famous infants, to-day.

Dr. Dafoe said the babies are taking more interest in life now than ever before. When we lay them on a table together they don't fight any more but just coo—a very harmonious quintette."

Short News Items Received By Examiner Over Direct C. P. Wire.

HONG KONG.—The freighter City of Cambridge was abandoned to-day after the remaining 20 members of its crew of 80 had been taken from the grounded vessel by the British cruiser H.M.S. Suffolk. The City of Cambridge went aground on Pratas Reef during a typhoon which swept the coast over the week-end.

PASSADENA, Calif.—The popularity of the late Marie Dressler was shown to-day in spirited bidding at the auction sale of the actress' personal belonging. Three small personal belongings. Three small Dressler's lipstick and compact brought $60. A crowd of 1,500 persons attended the sale yesterday. The auction will continue the remainder of this week.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont.—Thomas David Roberts, 67, trapper and prospector, was held here to-day in connection with the stabbing last night in the Michipicotan area of Harry Apderson. Anderson, fleeing from possible trouble in the lumber strike area, was stabbed, he said, as he slept in an abandoned lineman's shack.

CHATHAM, Ont.—A. E. Mugridge, of Toronto, reported to the city police that while driving on No. 2 Highway he struck a man on a bicycle. No one was hurt and Mugridge settled with the bicyclist for $20 damages to the wheel. No charge was laid.

MADRID.—Reports that Premier Antonio de Oliveira Salazar of Portugal had blasted a budding Fascist rebellion in his nation yesterday were received from extremely reliable official sources in Lisbon to-day.

LONDON.—The King and Queen to-day left the capital for Sandringham, where they will stay three weeks.

WINDSOR.—City council to-day accepted the suggestion of Riverside town council that border municipal representatives meet to discuss an amalgamation proposal. The meeting will be held in Windsor City Hall to-morrow evening.

CALLANDER. — Warm sunshine greeted the Dionne sisters to-day, as they took their second outdoors in the out-of-doors today. Bundled up in their little coats, the babes were permitted to enjoy the crisp air for three-quarters of an hour.

As the babes become more rugged, they will be left out-of-doors for longer periods, up to three hours, says Dr. A. R. Dafoe. Should they continue to progress at their present rate, they will continue to be wheeled out on the hospital verandah, even during the winter months.

WINDSOR, Ont. — William Wyatt, 50, of Cottam, is reported near death in hospital here, and little hope held for him. He was crushed under a large block of cement while working on a culvert job in Gosfield North Township.

TORONTO. — Reports of violence in the lumbering districts of Iroquois Falls have been investigated by Provincial Police, and "though there has been lots of talk, there has been little violence," Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, said to-day. Police investigation had disclosed "nothing that would even raise a discussion in the city of Toronto."

Boy Breaks His Arm Twice In Two Weeks

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 9 (CP) — Bobbie Carey, 9-year-old schoolboy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Carey of this city, is certainly getting the "breaks" of the game—but unfortunately they are the wrong kind. A couple of weeks ago he fell out of a tree and broke his left arm. Yesterday started out to be a happy day when the bandages were removed, and Bobbie could swing his arm again, but before the day was out he again visited the surgeon's office. A playmate tripped him and he fell, breaking the same arm about two inches from the previous
